THE NATIVE CONVERTS' MARRIAGE DISSOLUTION ACT (XXI OF 1866).

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill :—

"The object of this Act was to legalize under certain circumstances the re-marriage of native converts to Christianity whose wives or husbands have deserted or repudiated them exclusively on religious grounds.

The present Act was passed to solve the difficulty by an interposition of the secular power, leaving missionaries of religion to act on their own views of duty in re-marrying their converts.

The persons entitled to relief under the Act are defined as 'Native husbands' and 'Native wives.' The expression 'Native husbands' is defined to mean a married man domiciled in British India, who shall have completed the age of sixteen years, and shall not be a Christian, a Mahomedan nor a Jew. 'Native wife' is defined to mean a married woman domiciled in British India who shall have completed the age of thirteen years, and shall not be a Christian, a Mahomedan nor a Jewess.

The mode of relief is by suit for conjugal society. In the course of the suit, many separate interrogatories are to be addressed to the Native wife by the Judge for the purpose of conclusively ascertaining her refusal to join her husband and the grounds therefor, and various private interviews are provided as means of conciliation. It is only after all these efforts to overcome the wife's distaste have failed, that the Judge may make a decree permitting the husband to re-marry.

The desertion or repudiation must have continued for six months before the commencement of the suit."

THE NATURALIZATION ACT (VII OF 1926).

N. B.—Throughout this Act, save as otherwise provided, for "a Local Government", or "the Local Government," or "such Local Government" the words "the Central Government" have been substituted by the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendments.
1926	VII	The Indian Naturalization Act, 1926.	Repealed in part, XII of 1927. Amended, I of 1935.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill (Fort St. George Gazette, Part III. dated 22nd September, 1925, p. 307).

"A certificate of naturalization issued under the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Acts, 1914, entitles the holder to the privileges of a British subject throughout the British Empire. A certificate of naturalization under the Naturalization Act, 1852, entitles the holder to similar privilege in British India only. The necessity of continuing the issue of local naturalization certificates under the latter Act has for some time been under the consideration of the Government of India. The objection to their discontinuance is that the British Act provides as one of the conditions precedent to the grant of a certificate of naturalization the possession of an adequate knowledge of English or, alternatively, of any language which is recognised as on an equality with the English language. There is no single vernacular in India which can, for the purpose of British Act, be regarded as on an equality with English. This constitutes a strong argument for the retention of the Indian Act, so as to provide for the requirements of persons resident in India, who do not possess the language qualification prescribed by the British Act, but who possess an adequate knowledge of the principal vernacular of a province. The Indian Naturalization Act, 1852, has, however, become obsolete in view of the recent developments in the law of naturalization, and the Government of India decided, after consulting Local Governments, that it should be repealed and replaced by a new and consolidated enactment on the general lines of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914, but embodying certain specific provisions to suit the special conditions existing in India. An Indian Naturalization Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on 2nd July, 1923 and was reported on by a Select Committee in the same month. No further progress was made with that Bill. The present Bill reproduces the Bill as amended by the Select Committee with the exception that clause 10 (i) (a) has been omitted."

[26*th February*, 1926.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the naturalization in British India of aliens resident therein.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the naturalization in British India of aliens resident therein ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN NATURALIZATION ACT, 1926.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,

(a) "British subject" means a British subject as defined in section 27 of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914 ;

NOTE.

Sec. 1.—It cannot be held that the Naturalization Act of 1870 applies to the Punjab, and even if it does, the Maharaja of Faridkot cannot by any stretch of language be said to be an alien. 10 L. 447=1929 L. 1.

Sec. 2 (a).—The expressions "British subject" and "natural-born British subject" are defined in Ss. 27 and 1, respectively, of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914 (4 and 5, Geo, 5, Ch. 17), as follows:

"27. * * * The expression 'British subject' means a person who is a natural-born British subject or a person to whom a certificate of naturalization has been granted or a person who has become a subject of His Majesty by reason of any annexation of territory."

(iv) his father was at the time of that person's birth in the service of the Crown ; or

(v) his birth was registered at a British consulate within one year or in special circumstances, with the consent of the Secretary of State, two years after its occurrence, or in the case of a person born on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifteen, who would have been a British subject if born before that date, within twelve months after the first day of August, nineteen hundred and twenty-two ; and

(c) any person born on board a British ship whether in foreign territorial waters or not :

Provided that the child of a British subject, whether that child was born before or after the passing of this Act, shall be deemed to have been born within His Majesty's allegiance if born in a place where by treaty, capitulation, grant, usage, sufferance, or other lawful means, His Majesty exercises jurisdiction over British subjects;

Provided also that any person whose British nationality is conditional upon registration at a British consulate shall cease to be a British subject, unless within one year after he attains the age of twenty-one, or within such extended period as may be authorised in special cases by regulations made under this Act—

(i) he asserts his British nationality by a declaration of retention of British nationality, registered in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act ; and

(ii) if he is a subject or citizen of a foreign country under the law of which he can, at the time of asserting his British nationality, dives himself of the nationality of that foreign country by making a declaration of alienage or otherwise he divests himself of such nationality accordingly.

Grant of certificate of naturalization.

3. (1) The Central Government may grant a certificate of naturalization to any person who makes an application in this behalf and satisfies the Central Government—

(a) that he is not a minor ;

(b) that he is neither a British subject nor a subject of any state in Europe or America or of any state of which an Indian British subject is prevented by or under any law from becoming a subject by naturalization ;

(c) that he has, during a period of not less than five years immediately preceding the date of the application, either resided in British India or been in the service of the Crown [1][in India] ;

(d) that he is of good character ;

(e) that he has an adequate knowledge of a language which has been declared by the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, to be [2][one of the principal vernaculars of British India] ; and

(f) that he intends, if the application is granted, to reside in British India or to enter or continue in the service of the Crown [1][In India] ;

Provided that nothing in clause (c) or clause (f) shall apply in the case of a woman who was a British subject previously to her marriage to a person not a British subject and whose husband has died or whose marriage has been dissolved.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the grant of a certificate of naturalization to any person to whom a certificate of naturalization has been issued under the Indian Naturalization Act, 1852.

4. (1) Every application for a certificate of naturalization shall be in writing and shall state, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the applicant,—

"I, A. B., of do hereby swear (or affirm) that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to His Majesty the King, Emperor of India, His heirs and Successors":

Provided that the Central Government may extend the time allowed under this section in any case in which it is satisfied that failure to take and subscribe the oath within that time was due to sufficient cause.

Effect of grant of certificate and taking of oath.

7. (1) No certificate of naturalization shall have effect until the person to whom it is granted has taken and subscribed the oath prescribed by section 6, but upon the taking and subscribing of such oath such person, [1][* * *], and any child of any such person who has been included in the certificate under subsection (2) of section 5, shall, when in British India, be deemed to be British subjects and be entitled to all the rights, privileges and capacities of a British subject born within British India, except such rights, privileges or capacities, if any, as may have been withheld from them respectively by the certificate, and shall within British India be subject to all the obligations, duties and liabilities of a British subject; [2][and the wife of any such person to whom a certificate of naturalization is granted after the commencement of the Indian Naturalization (Amendment) Act 1935, shall, if not already a British subject, in like manner be so deemed and be so entitled and so subject, if within one year, or such longer period as the Central Government may in special circumstances, allow from the date of the taking and subscribing of such oath by her husband, she makes to the Central Government a declaration that she desires to be deemed to be a British subject].

Revocation of certificate.

8. (1) [1][Where the Central Government is satisfied that a certificate of naturalization granted under this Act, or the Indian Naturalization Act, 1852], was obtained by false representation or fraud or by concealment of material circumstances, or that the person to whom the certificate has been granted has shown himself by act or speech to be disaffected or disloyal to His Majesty, the Central Government shall, by order in writing, revoke the certificate.

(2) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions, the Central Government shall, by order in writing, revoke such a certificate of naturalization as aforesaid in any case in which it is satisfied that the person to whom the certificate was granted—

(a) has, during any war in which His Majesty is engaged unlawfully traded or communicated with the enemy or with a subject of an enemy state, or been engaged in, or associated with, any business which is to his knowledge carried on in such a manner as to assist the enemy in such war ; or

(b) has, within five years of the date of the grant of the certificate, been sentenced by any Court in His Majesty's dominions to transportation or to penal servitude, or to imprisonment for a term of not less than twelve months, or to pay a fine of not less than one thousand rupees ; or

(d) has since the date of the grant of the certificate been, for a period of not less than seven years, ordinarily resident out of His Majesty's dominions otherwise than as a representative of a British subject, firm or company carrying on business, or of an institution established, in His Majesty's dominions, or in the service of the Crown, and has not maintained substantial connection with His Majesty's dominions ; or

and that the continuance of the certificate is not conducive to the public good.

(4) The Central Government may, if it thinks fit, before making an order under this section, refer the case for such inquiry as is hereinafter specified, and, in any case to which sub-section (1) or clause (a), clause (c) or clause (e) of sub-section (2) applies, the Central Government shall, by notice given to, or sent by post to the last known address of, the holder of the certificate, give him an opportunity of claiming that the case be referred for such inquiry, and, if the holder so claims in accordance with the notice, the Central Government shall refer the case for inquiry accordingly.

(5) An inquiry under this section shall be held by such person or persons and in such manner as the Central Government may direct in each case.

(2) On such revocation, the Central Government may, by order in writing, direct that the wife and minor children (or any of them) of the person whose certificate is revoked shall cease to be deemed to be British subjects ; but where no such direction is made, the status of the wife and minor children of the person whose certificate is revoked shall not be affected by the revocation :

[1][Provided that no such order shall be made in the case of a wife unless by reason of the acquisition by her husband of a new nationality she has also acquired that nationality] :

Provided [1][further] that, in the case of a wife who was at birth a British subject, no such order as aforesaid shall be made, unless the Central Government is satisfied that, if she had held a certificate of naturalization in her own right, the certificate could properly have been revoked under section 8, and the provisions of that section as to referring cases for inquiry shall apply to the making of any such order as they apply to the revocation of a certificate.

Declaration of alienage.

10. (1) A declaration of alienage in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made under this Act may be made,—

(2) Where a declaration of alienage has been made in the manner aforesaid, the person making the same, and the wife of any such person, and any children of any such person who are minors and are not by birth British subjects, shall cease to be deemed to be British subjects;

[1][Provided that the wife of any such person shall not cease to be deemed to be a British Subject under this sub-section, unless by reason of the acquisition by her husband of a new nationality she has also acquired that nationality.]

THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT (XXVI OF 1881).[1]

[9th December, 1881.

An Act to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called THE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT, 1881.

LEG. REF.

[1] For summary procedure on negotiable instruments, see the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908), Sch. I, Order XXXVII.

NOTES.

Secs. 1 and 2: SCOPE OF THE ACT.—49 I. C. 388=21 Bom.L.R. 1. See also 18 C.W.N. 494=22 I.C. 500; 58 I.C. 313. The Contract Act is a general statute dealing with contracts. The Negotiable Instruments Act is a statute dealing with a particular form of contract, and the law laid down for special cases must always overrule the provisions of a general character. 1933 R. 131=144 I.C. 866. Act is based on the principles of English Law, and Courts can construe conformably to the provisions of the English Law. 52 I.C. 370=10 L. W. 39. There must be no reasonable possibility of ambiguity in the construction of a negotiable security which is meant to pass from hand to hand; its meaning should be instantly recognisable and not after an elaborate analysis. 1936 N. 252. The Act does not apply to hundis. 1932 L. 582=13 L. 800. Hundi drawn payable to bearer on demand is illegal, even though drawn in an oriental language. 58 I.C. 508=12 L.W. 12. Mercantile usage, however extensive, should not be recognized if contrary to the provisions of statute. 49 I.C. 388=21 Bom.L.R. 1. See also 15 W.R. 501; 23 I.C. 29; 144 I.C. 914=1933 N. 389; 16 Bom. L.R. 434; 12 L.W. 12. Where any local usage is relied on, it should be alleged and established by the party who relies on it. 26 M. 526=13 M.L.J. 252 (F.B.). Where a purchaser of a hundi by payment of cash fails to discharge his obligations under the contract represented by the hundi and loses his right to enforce the hundi, he cannot fall back upon his original consideration. 1936 N. 260. If a buyer of goods gives a cheque for the price to the seller who endorses it for value to a third party, the original debt cannot be said to be still outstanding and unpaid while the cheque is oustanding in the hands of that third party. Therefore, an action for the prize by the seller, or if he has since been adjudicated insolvent, by the transferee of his assets from the Official Assignee, will not lie even after dishonour of the cheque, if at the date of the commencement of the action the cheque is still outstanding in the hands of the third party. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 103. In a suit on a negotiable instrument, it is open to the plaintiff to frame his case in an alternative and to sue both on the instrument and alternatively on the consideration. 46 C. 663=36

Kashmir Univers Library,
Accession No. 16209

It extends to the whole of British India; but nothing herein contained affects the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1871, section 21, or affects any local usage relating to any instrument in an Oriental language: Provided that such usages may be excluded by any words in the body of the instrument which indicate an intention that the legal relations of the parties thereto shall be governed by this Act; and it shall come into force on the first day of March, 1882.

Local extent. Saving of usages relating to hundis, etc.

Commencement.

2. [Repeal of enactments.] Repealed by the Amending Act 1891 (XII of 1891).

NOTES.

M.L.J. 429 (P.C.). See also 51 I.C. 945=29 C. L.J. 508; 1936 Pesh. 143. But where the suit is based wholly on a contract consisting of an inadmissible promissory note or hundi, it must fail because the note cannot be produced and the claim cannot be proved aliunde. 1936 Pesh. 143. If a person frames his suit alternatively on the promissory note executed by a Hindu father or on the consideration which passed, he can obtain a decree against the father and sons, but not if the suit is only on the promissory note. In the latter case, he can only obtain a personal decree against the father and a decree against the sons to the extent of their interest in the joint family properties. 138 I.C. 168= 15 N.L.J. 5. A contract of simple money debt is not required by law to be in writing. It may offer better evidence, but it is not necessary for the validity of the contract. It is on this principle that, when the promissory notes or other negotiable instruments are found unenforceable for defective stamp and other reasons, the creditor is permitted to fall back on his contract of loan, and oral evidence is admitted to prove the contract independently of the promissory notes. 26 N.L.R. 320=1930 N. 298. A suit on the original consideration after the dismsssal of the suit on the note on account of material alteration is maintainable. 18 C.W.N. 617=41 I.A. 142 (P.C.). Decree on original consideration was given in 29 C.L.J. 508; 4 L. 198; 60 I.C. 107. In cases of negotiable instruments all equities which have to be pleaded should generally arise out of the very transaction itself and must not arise out of the transactions which are either collateral or independent in character. 1938 Mad. 897. A principal can sue on a pro-note executed in favour of his agent without obtaining an assignment from him. 21 L.W. 696=90 I.C. 1047. A common manager of the estate of a deceased person appointed under S. 301 of Succession Act represents the estate for all intents and purposes, and he is entitled to file a suit on a promissory note on behalf of the estate. 22 Pat.L.T. 569 =1941 Pat. 403. See also 1941 Nag. 207; 7 Cut. L.T. 77. A plea of benami is only a plea in the nature of a resulting trust and there is nothing in the Act which justifies a payee, who is in the position of a trustee, insisting that the beneficiary should be precluded from proving that he is only a trustee. It is one thing to say that the promisor cannot, in a suit on a promissory note, plead that somebody other than the payee is the person entitled to sue, nor plead discharge by payment to the alleged real owner, and a wholly different thing to say that, as between the payee named in the instrument and persons other than the promisor there is any rule which precludes the admissibility of evidence to show that the payee was only a benamidar for another. 1935 M. 181=58 M. 693=68 M.L.J. 81 (F.B.). See also 1939 Pat. 347; 1940 Pat. 377=19 Pat. 404; 1936 Pesh. 143; 41 C.W.N. 1283; 44 A. 290; 123 I.C. 395; 27 N.L.R. 327. It is not correct to say that no person who is not named in the note can ever sue. There is no reason why the real owner should not be entitled to sue provided he is in a position to obtain a good discharge for the defendant. The Court must of course always be careful to see that the position of the defendant is fully safeguarded, but if that is done there is no reason for any further difficulty if the 'holder' and the real owner are agreed between themselves. A person not a holder cannot of course claim the privileges of a 'holder' but that does not disentitle him from suing. 1941 N.L.J. 263=1941 Nag. 207. Where in a suit on a pro-note, the note is not admissible in evidence, the plaintiff may prove his case by other evidence. 60 I.C. 652=2 P. L.T. 184. See also 9 R. 56=134 I.C. 737= 1931 R 139; 27 N.L.R. 56; 29 N.L.R. 131; 9 Mys.L.J. 476; 9 Mys.L.J. 438; 134 I.C. 254= 1931 A.L.J. 522; 9 O.W.N. 585; 9 O.W.N. 961; 1933 A. 280=144 I.C. 150. But see 34 Bom.L.R. 643=1932 B. 394; 1933 R. 161; 1933 N. 57 (2)=29 N. L. R. 131. Where the debt and the execution of the promissory note, are contemporaneous, the debt can be proved only by the note and where it is sufficiently stamped, the plaintiff cannot apply by amendment to convert the suit into one on the original consideration. 139 I.C. 361=36 L.W. 432=1932 M. 687. See also 40 C.W.N. 696; 40 C.W.N. 473; 41 C.W.N. 537. OF NOTES, BILLS AND CHEQUES.

"Promissory note."

4. A "promissory note" is an instrument in writing (not being a bank-note or a currency-note) containing an unconditional undertaking, signed by the maker, to pay a certain sum of money only to, or to the order of, a certain person, or to the bearer of the instrument.

Where such a document has been received in evidence in the trial Court without objection on the part of the defendant, the appellate Court will not interfere. 134 I.C. 575=53 C. L.J. 253=1931 C. 480. A promissory note stamped with quarter anna postage stamps is a document bearing stamps of improper description and can be validated by the Collector under R. 18 of the Government of India Stamp Rules. 55 M. 627=1932 M. 390=62 M.L.J. 538 (F.B.). Hundi substituted for hundi on unstamped paper—Liability under former not put an end to, 1923 L. 396. Once the execution of a bond was admitted, the onus of proving total or partial failure of consideration lies on the defendant. 4 L.L.J. 199. The words 'payable on demand' have a legal meaning and sense which convey that the amount is payable on the date of execution and no demand is necessary prior to suit. If, however, the words were "after demand" then a demand is necessary before a suit is instituted. 2 P.L.J. 451=40 I.C. 350. See also 1931 A.L.J. 230=1931 A. 302. Where a hundi is silent as to interest but there is a custom allowing interest if the hundi is not met within a certain time, the drawer is liable to pay interest. 62 I. C. 315. If in a suit based on a hundi, the defendant admits its execution, the burden of proof that it was got without consideration heavily lies on him. 187 I.C. 225. No doubt when a suit is based wholly on a contract consisting of an inadmissible promissory note or Hundi, it must fail because the note cannot be produced and the claim cannot be proved aliunde. But where it is possible to find for a creditor a cause of action apart from the inadmissible security, it would be contrary to the elementary principles of justice to deprive the creditor of his money. 1936 Pesh 143. A hundi is a Bill of Exchange drawn by one person who is called a drawer, on another person who is called a drawee, who is ordered to pay the amount thereof to a third person who is the holder. Thus three persons are parties to it and due to this very nature it is negotiable. A document which is only bilateral cannot be called a hundi. If, therefore, a hundi is drawn by a person on his own firm ordering the amount thereof to be paid to a creditor after certain days, the transaction virtually is that one person borrows money and passes a hundi drawn on himself as security for the debt to the creditor. It is thus a clear case of an execution of a promissory note pure and simple. 187 I.C. 225. Where a purchaser of a hundi by payment of cash fails to discharge his obligations under the contract represented by the hundi and loses his right to enforce the hundi, he cannot fall back upon his original consideration. 167 I.C. 907=9 R.N. 230=1936 Nag. 260. A document recited that the executant had a certain sum of money belonging to another and the former agreed to pay interest at a certain rate, held, it was not a promissory note, though there is an acknowledgment of a debt. 1924 L. 684. A promissory note given for reducing a liability only operates as a conditional discharge for the liability. (21 M.L.J. 432; 26 M. 526, Ref. to.) 1930 M. 874=59 M.L.J. 513. The drawee of a Shahjog hundi who pays the amount to a Shah is not absolved from liability to the owner, if the Shah has no title to the hundi (i.e.), when the endorsement is forged. 36 Bom.L.R. 929=59 B. 97=1934 B. 400 (F.B.). See also 36 Bom. Sec. 4—One of the most essential characteristics of a promissory note is certainty—certainty both as regards the person by whom and to whom payment is to be made. Any uncertainty in such matters would tend to restrict credit and to hamper commerce. 35 C. W.N. 53; 118 I.C. 673=1929 N. 274. There must be no reasonable possibility of ambiguity in the construction of a negotiable security which is meant to pass from hand to hand; its meaning should be instantly recognisable and not after an elaborate analysis in three Courts. 1936 Nag. 252. Where a document merely acknowledges that certain items of money mentioned therein have been borrowed and that the executant has to repay them on demand, it is not a promissory note because it does not contain an unconditional undertaking to pay. There is no promise to pay but only an admission of liability to pay, and, hence it is only an acknowledgment. 1938 A.L.J. 907=1938 A. 619. A document which acknowledges the receipt of a certain amount by cheque and contains a promise to pay that amount with interest at a certain rate after a certain specified time, is not a promissory note, as it is clearly not intended to be a negotiable instrument. 40 Bom.L.R 1053=42 C.W.N. 989 =1938 P.C. 121 (P.C.) See also I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 632=1939 Sind 281. There is an essential antithesis between the legal position of a surety and that of the executant of a promissory note and so a person who executes a promissory note cannot be held in law to have the position of a surety. 27 A.L.J. 1137=1929 A. 664. One C paid money to A whom B wished to be accommodated. A passed promissory note to B who endorsed it to C. Held, that B was in the position of surety and the endorsement was for consideration as A was accommodated. 191 I.C. 56=1940 Sind 146. Where there is no mention in document of the person to whom the money is payable on demand, it is not a negotiable instrument. 116 I.C. 111 (1)=1929 S. 164 (1); 177 I.C. 889=1938 Nag. 464; 1941 Nag. 1=192 I.C. 513. An instrument which contains the words "I am liable to pay" without any undertaking to pay is not a promissory note. 1934 M. 220=66 M.L.J. 315. A document alleged to be a promissory note contained the following terms. This (one) receipt is hereby executed by H and A, residents of Hoti, for Rs. 43,900, half of which amount comes to Rs. 21,950, received from the firm of L, for and on behalf of M of Hoti. This amount to be payable after two years. Interest at the rate of Rs. 5-4-0 per cent. per year to be charged. Dated 1st April 1917. Stamp has been duly affixed.

(Sd.) H.
(Sd.) A.

The document was not drawn on a paper with an impressed stamp, and a stamp which was sufficient, if the document was a receipt, was affixed. Held, that the document was not a promissory note but was merely a receipt containing the terms on which the amount was to be refunded. Being primarily a receipt, even if coupled with the promise to pay, it was not a promissory note. As the document did not record or purport to record all the terms of the contract between the parties and as there was nothing in the document explaining how the money came to be received, the parties were not prevented from showing that it was paid by way of loan or deposit or for some other purpose. (8 C. 645, Overr.) 63 I.A. 279=17 L. 557=40 C.W.N. 997=71 M.L.J. 712 (P.C.). The nature of a document must be determined by its contents, and the description of it given in the plaint cannot change its character or legal effect. A person wrote to another that he would be liable for payment of principal amount with interest due on promissory notes executed by his brother to the latter that he would pay the whole amount on demand after certain period and that his brother should not be asked for the amount. Held, that the letter was only a proposal and not a promissory note. 148 I.C. 964=1934 L. 93. The mere fact that a pro-note is addressed to a person of a particular place does not show that it is implied that payment is to be made at the place. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 323=44 C.W.N. 609=1940 Cal. 443. Where an instrument clearly indicates the promisor and the promisee, and contains a definite promise to pay, it amounts to a promissory note. There is no rule laying down in which part of the document the payee is to be named or by what kind of language. A signed letter which is in the following terms, namely, "30th, Panguni Siddhatri-Kallal A. T. N. A. T. credit, the same place R. M. M. R. Attestation by witnesses does not make a pronote a bond. 14 Luck. 438=1939 O.W.N. 168=1939 Oudh 107. Unconditional undertaking or unconditional personal liability means that the liability mentioned in the note should not be made contingent on some event. But a pro-note is not the less unconditional, simply because when the matter goes to a Court of law and the defendant raises some defence, the plaintiff has got to establish certain facts, and in the case of a note by a guardian, the transaction is for the benefit of of the minor, before he can succeed against the minor. That fact does not make the liability a conditional liability. 41 L.W. 514=68 M.L.J. 540 (F.B.). to negotiate the note to any other person. Any indorsement and negotiation by him would be beyond his power and would confer no right on the indorsee to maintain a suit on the instrument. 1939 M.W.N. 1017=50 L.W. 606=1940 Mad. 27. Where a promissory note executed by the manager of a joint Hindu family is endorsed over by the payee, stating inter alia: "I have assigned this promissory note in your favour," the endorsement is no more than an endorsement of the note. There is no assignment of the debt in such a case to the endorsee. In a suit by the endorsee on the note, he is entitled to succeed only against the executant of the note and not against the other members of the same family of which the executant is the manager. 189 I.C. 775=50 L.W. 797=1939 M.W.N. 1243=1940 Mad. 174. Promissory note purporting to be executed jointly by two persons A and B —Execution only by one (A alone)—Suit on—Liability of person actually executing—Test—Burden of proof. Held, (1) that as there was no execution by B or by a person authorised to execute on his behalf, B was not liable on the instrument; (2) that in the absence of evidence one way or the other as to whether or not A executed only on the faith that B would also execute. A was liable on the instrument; (3) that the question whether the instrument was signed by A on the faith that B would also sign is a question of fact, which must be proved not by the plaintiff who sought to impose liability upon the actual executant, but by the executant who has signed the instrument, who has the burden on him to establish it as a ground of defence. 52 L.W. 360=1940 Mad. 874=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 384.

Sec. 4, Ill. (b).—A pro-note payable to a particular person, not containing words prohibiting transfer, is an instrument payable to order. 27 N.L.R. 327.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ASSIGNMENT OF.—Although the proper mode of assignment is by endorsement only, yet in Punjab there can be an oral assignment of promissory note. (1932 Lah. 30 and 29 P.R. 1919, Rel. on.) 1936 Lah. 547. An assignment of a promissory note is possible without an endorsement of transfer on the note. A written assignment of a premissory note is valid and under the general law, such assignment gives to the assignee the right of suit upon the note. 13 Luck. 373=1937 O.W.N. 820=1937 Oudh 405.

CONDITION FOR PRO-NOTE.—A promissory note having been given, consideration is to be presumed. The question then is not, whether the plaintiff has formally and sufficiently proved that there was a stipulation for a fresh advance, but whether it is sufficiently shown by the other side that there was no consideration for the promissory note. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 646=42 C.W.N. 565=1938 P.C. 123=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 597 (P.C.). It cannot be said that the consideration for a promissory note is always the amount stated to be payable in the note. 189 I.C. 384=1940 Rang. 152. Where it is proved that the executant of promissory note did not receive any consideration for it, the instrument does not create any obligation between the holder and the executant. 167 I.C. 301=1936 Cal. 315. Where in a suit on a promissory note it appears that the note was executed for the amount of rent due by the defendant to the plaintiff, there is good consideration for the transaction and the suit should be decreed. The mere circumstance that in the body of the promissory note it was stated that the amount was advanced in cash is sufficient to justify a dismissal of the suit. 41 P.L.R. 49.

PROMISSORY NOTE—STAMP ACT.—A document which contains a promise to pay on a contingency will not be treated as a promissory note for the purposes of the Negotiable Instruments Act, but it may be regarded as such for the purposes of the Stamp Act. To determine whether a document is a promissory note or not the main question to be considered is not whether the instrument is negotiable or not though ordinarily negotiability of an instrument is a good test for that purpose, but to consider whether in substance and in primary intention of the parties the document was or was not a promissory note and whether it was intended to record a different kind of transaction altogether. A reference in the promissory note to a pre-existing account between the parties, made with a view to state the consideration for the note, does neither make the liability under the note a contingent one, nor the instrument any the less a promissory note. I.L.R. (1941) All. 264=1941 A.L.J. 36=1941 All. 158. Promissory note —Executed abroad—Suit in British India—Need for affixing and cancellation of stamp. See (1941) 2 M.L.J. 301.

PROMISSORY NOTE INSUFFICIENTLY OR IMPROPERLY STAMPED.—Though a promissory note is not sufficiently stamped and hence inadmissible in evidence, a suit could be instituted on the original loan, which is always the cause of action, the promissory note being at the best evidence of the loan. A suit or the note can be amended into one on the debt and relief be granted. 1939 A.M.L.J. 123. See also 43 L.W. 48 ; 1936 Nag. 225 ; 1936 Cal. 170=40 C.W.N. 473 ; 1936 Nag. 225. If a promissory note is not admissible in evidence on account of its being insufficiently stamped, the plaintiff is entitled to sue on a cause of action which is independent of promissory note. It is not necessary that there should be an independent express contract prior to the execution of such a promissory note. The fact that the money has been lent implies a promise to repay it, and the plaintiff in such a case has a cause of action on the implied promise, which is indopendent of the promissory note. (39 C.W.N. 1235, Foll.) 40 C.W.N. 696=1936 Cal. 127. In a suit on a promissory note, if the note is found to be insufficiently stamped and so inadmissible in evidence, he is entitled to a decree if he has a cause of action independent of the promissory note. As soon as the plaintiff in such a case proves that he paid to the defendant a sum of money by way of a loan, he is entitled to get a decree for the money lent and it is not necessary that he should prove an independent express contract by the defendant to repay prior to the execution of the note. 62 C.L.J. 289=40 C.W.N. 473=1936 Cal. 170. Although a promissory note is inadmissible in evidence being insufficiently stamped, the creditor is entitled to sue on the basis of a separate contemporaneous agreement to pay. 1940 N.L.J. 658=1940 Nag. 215. See also 1940 N.L.J. 601=1941 Nag. 1. A promissory note which is insufficiently stamped cannot be used as an acknowledgment or for any other purpose. 1940 N.L.J. 658=1940 Nag. 215. A decree cannot be passed on the basis of a pronote which is inadmissible in evidence for want of cancellation of the stamps even if the defendant admitted liability on it. 41 P.L.R. 356=1939 Lah. 31. A promissory note executed on 28th March, 1934, was affixed with revenue stamps, the use of which was made compulsory by the Government only from 1st April, 1934. Held, that these stamps must have been available before 1st April, 1934, and that a suit on the promissory note should not be dismissed merely on this ground especially when the defendant had admitted his liability. 1937 P.W.N. 663=1937 Pat. 560.

ORIGINAL CAUSE OF ACTION—HAND NOTE NOT DULY STAMPED.—Where in a suit on a hand note, the hand note is found to be inadmissible in evidence as not being duly stamped, oral evidence can be given of the original loan and the suit can be converted into a suit on the original loan. 172 I.C. 744=1937 Pat. 656. See also 1938 A.L.J. 773=1938 All. 504 ; 1936 Mad. 179=70 M.L.J. 267 (F.B.) ; 1939 Lah. 31. Where the loan is independent of the hand note and the taking of the loan is completed before the execution of the hand note, a suit can lie on the original consideration when the hand note which evidences the loan is found to be inadmissible by reason of certain provisions of the statute. 41 C.W.N. 537=65 C.L.J. 151=1937 Cal. 241. See also 1940 Lah. 329. It is open to a creditor, in spite of the fact that the promissory note is not admissible in evidence, to recover his money by proving orally the advance of that loan. It would not, however, be open to him having regard to S. 91 of the Evidence Act to prove the terms or the rate of interest entered in the promissory note. 1940 O.W.N. 581=1940 Oudh 308. Where a promissory note is taken in the name of a benamidar, a suit by the true owner based, not on the note but on the original consideration namely, the loan, is not maintainable, inasmuch as the liability of the maker under the note to the holder thereof is kept in fact. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 450=41 C.W.N. 1283=1937 Cal. 753.

PLACE OF PAYMENT—PRESUMPTION—PRONOTE NOT SPECIFYING ANY PLACE.—If a pronote does not specify any place where payment is to be made, the presumption is that payment should be made at the place of residence or business of the creditor. 181 I.C. 396=40 P.L.R. 975=1939 Lah. 18. See also 44 C.W.N. 609.

RIGHT TO SUE—ONE OF SEVERAL PROMISEES—IF CAN SUE ALONE.—One of several promisees under a promissory note is not entitled to sue alone without joining the other promisees, either as plaintiffs or defendants. 1938 O.W.N. 148=1938 Oudh 61. See also 1936 Pat. 274. Where in the case of a jointly executed promissory note one of the executants makes certain payment and the promisee agrees to discharge him from his liability only reserving his right to sue the co-executant for the balance, the co-executant is liable for the balance subject of course to his right to sue his other co-executant for contribution. 171 I.C. 622=1937 Rang. 137. In case where the plaintiff sues the legal representative of a deceased person upon a promissory note and there is no proof of any independent acknowledgment by the deceased of the existence of the debt, the Court should scrutinize the claim with the greatest care. In particular, where the plaintiff is not called and the Court has to depend on other evidence the onus of proof on the plaintiff is not lightly discharged, and the validity and due execution of the promissory note must be proved with strictness. 1936 Rang. 399.

Secs. 4 and 5.—As to distinction between promissory note and bill of exchange or hundi, see 1936 N. 260. A document containing a promise to pay a certain sum of money to a certain person after a certain date was executed on a paper on which was engraved the form of a stamp. The upper part of the stamp bore the word "hundi". The executant wrote the word "accepted" across the document over his signature. Held, that the document was a promissory note and not a bill of exchange, and that the words "hundi" and "accepted" in the document did not determine its character, which must be determined by looking to the provisions of the document itself. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 107=45 C.W.N. 609=1941 Cal. 498 (F.B.). A pro-note promising to pay on demand a certain sum with interest at 10 per cent. per annum with quarterly rests is for a "sum certain" and is therefore a negotiable instrument. 7 P.

5. A "bill of exchange" is an instrument in writing containing an unconditional order, signed by the maker, directing a certain person to pay a certain sum of money only to, or to the order of, a certain person or to the bearer of the instrument.

"Bill of exchange."

A promise or order to pay is not "conditional," within the meaning of this section and section 4, by reason of the time for payment of the amount or any instalment thereof being expressed to be on the lapse of a certain period after the occurrence of a specified event which, according to the ordinary expectation of mankind, is certain to happen, although the time of its happening may be uncertain.

NOTES.

41. Promissory note expressing promise to pay on demand a certain sum with interest with quarterly rests—Whether negotiable instrument. 1929 P. 136=7 P. 41. A promissory note executed in favour of the "Mohathameem Sahib Garu of Gadwal Samasthanam" is one in favour of a "certain person" within the meaning of S. 4, read with the last part of S. 5 of the Negotiable Instruments Act. 53 M. 968 =59 M.L.J. 548. The mere fact that a person chooses to give a certain title to a document by no means makes it that document. Where document described as promissory note does not amount to it. 1931 A.L.J. 230=1931 A. 302. Where a document sets out the fact of the amount of debt being owing from the father of the executant and then states that the amount will be paid in four instalments on dates fixed in four years with interest at a certain rate, it amounts to an unconditional promise to pay and therefore the document is a promissory note within the meaning of S. 4 of the Act. 1935 A.L.J. 651=1935 A. 410.

Secs. 4, 9 and 13.—Certain debentures of the City of Bombay Improvement Trust, belonging to the appellants were entrusted by them to one F for collection of interest thereon. By means of forged endorsement in his own favour, F pledged the debentures with the Alliance Bank, endorsing them over to that Bank as security for debts owing by him to the Bank, subsequently, the Alliance Bank surrendered the debentures to the Improvement Trustees, who issued in lieu thereof fresh debentures in the name of the Alliance Bank, the transaction being described in the present proceedings as a 'renewal' of the old debentures. Thereafter, the Alliance Bank, acting on F's instructions, endorsed over the new debentures in favour of the present respondents, the Mercantile Bank, to whom F has transferred his Loan Account. In a suit by the appellants, claiming as owners of these new debentures, delivery and transfer to them of these instruments by the respondents, the Mercantile Bank debentures were held to be promissory notes as defined in S. 4 and so negotiable instruments under S. 13 of the Negotiable Instruments Act; it was also held the new debentures issued by the Trustees in exchange for the old ones though called "renewals," were in form and substance new and independent obligations and constituted in effect new contracts; that the respondents, the Mercantile Bank, having no reason to believe that there was any defect in the title of the transferors, the Alliance Bank, were holders in due course against whom the appellants had no right of action. (24 B. 65, Overr.) 58 I.A. 54=56 B. 1=54 C.L.J. 419=61 M.L.J. 837 (P.C.).

Secs. 4, 20 and 78.—There is no force in the contention that S. 20 does not authorise the person to whom a stamped and signed paper is delivered to insert in it as payee the name of any one but himself. There is nothing in S. 4 of the Act which in any way curtails the general authority conferred by S. 20 on the person to whom a stamped and signed paper is delivered to convert it into a negotiable instrument payable to any specified person; where the promissory note contains a promise to pay unconditionally the sum mentioned to a certain person signing a bill or a hand note in blank without the name of the payee is an authority to a bona fide holder to insert a name, the name of a third person and it is not open to the executant (defendant) in a suit on it by the payee to plead that the person to whom he handed it describing it as a hand note had no authority to insert the name of the payee mentioned in it. The instrument being a negotiable instrument, the defendant cannot be heard to say that the holder, the payee, is not the person entitled to recover on it. Nor can he plead that payments have been made to some one else, i.e., the person to whom he handed the signed paper in view of S. 78 of the Act. 19 Pat. 404=21 Pat. L.T. 845. See also 1931 Pat. 504.

Sec. 5.—An instrument is not taken out of the definition of a bill of exchange simply for the reason that the drawer and the drawee are the same persons. 9 P. 717=127 I.C. 575= 1930 P. 239. Although under S. 5, where the drawer and the drawee are the same person, that person is not entitled to treat the instrument as a bill of exchange, still the holder of the bill may treat it as a bill of exchange. 9 P. 717=1930 P. 239. Where a document written on hundi paper was treated by the parties as hundi but it contained no promise to pay to the order of any person or to bearer, and the drawer and the drawee were the same person, held, that the document was a bond and fell within the purview of S. 2 (5) (b) of the Stamp Act. 32 P.L.R. 753=1932 L. 22. A hundi payable to bearer but not on demand does not contravene the provisions of S. 25 of the Paper Currency Act. 101 I. C. 641=1927 A. 463=49 A. 457. Hundi insufficiently stamped is not admissible in evidence. 49 All. 457; 40 C.W.N. 696. A hundi may be written in more papers than one; but the aggregate value of the stamp papers used should represent the correct value of the stamp to

The sum payable may be "certain" within the meaning of this section and section 4, although it includes future interest or is payable at an indicated rate of exchange, or is according to the course of exchange, and although the instrument provides that, on default of payment of an instalment, the balance unpaid shall become due.

The person to whom it is clear that the direction is given or that payment is to be made may be a "certain person", within the meaning of this section and section 4, although he is misnamed or designated by description only.

"Cheque."

5. A "cheque" is a bill of exchange drawn on a specified banker and not expressed to be payable otherwise than on demand.

"Drawer," "Drawee."

7. The maker of a bill of exchange or cheque is called the "drawer;" the person thereby directed to pay is called the "dawee.'

"Drawee in case of need."

When in the bill or in any indorsement thereon the name of any person is given in addition to the drawee to be resorted to in case of need, such person is called a "drawee in case of need."

"Acceptor."

After the drawee of a bill has signed his assent upon the bill, or, if there are more parts thereof than one, upon one of such parts, and delivered the same, or given notice of such signing to the holder or to some person on his behalf, he is called the "acceptor."

which such hundi is liable. 23 C.W.N. 534=51 I.C. 88 ; 58 I.C. 313. A bill of exchange may include a hundi, but it does not follow that hundi includes a bill of exchange. 23 C.W.N. 534. See also 57 C. 695=1930 C. 697.

WHETHER FOLLOWING ARE BILLS OF EXCHANGE.—Shahjog Hundi—Nature of. See 33 I. C. 247=22 C.L.J. 22 ; 19 C.W.N. 1326=33 I. C. 250 ; 28 Bom.L.R. 897=1926 B. 471 ; 1932 L. 312. It is not a bill of exchange. 1936 A. L.J. 246=1936 A. 396. But it is a negotiable instrument independently of the provisions of this Act. (Ibid.) Mate's receipt, see 41 C. 670 (P.C.). Bank deposit receipt, 38 B. 618 ; Railway receipt, 38 B. 669 ; Delivery order, 38 C. 127 ; 40 I.C. 86. Although there is no provision in the Negotiable Instruments Act specifically allowing post-dated cheques, there is nothing forbidding them, and the second paragraph of S. 5 contemplates (as indeed it must) the making of a bill of exchange payable at a future date. A post-dated cheque is therefore a cheque in proper form and therefore a bill of exchange within the meaning of the Act on the day on which it is drawn. It becomes on the date it bears a bill of exchange payable on demand and so a cheque. 46 C.W.N. 645. A Shah Jog hundi is not a bill of exchange as defined in the Negotiable Instruments Act. 58 All. 858 =1936 A.L.J. 246=1936 All. 396.

Secs. 5 and 17.—An instrument, called a "hundi" but in the form of a promissory note, becomes a bill of exchange, on the acceptance of a third party, though the bill is not addressed to him and he is not named as drawee, provided his acceptance is not inconsistent with the address. No party can be made liable as acceptor of a bill addressed to another but where no party is named in the address, the acceptor may be deemed, by his endorsement of acceptance, to have admitted himself to be the party addressed. 57 C. 695=1930 C. 697.

Sec. 6 : POST-DATED CHEQUES are cheques and after the due dates may be sued upon as cheques. 52 C. 677=90 I.C. 59. A cheque is a bill of exchange and as such it is negotiable. The mere fact that the date of payment of a cheque is postponed to a future date does not make the cheque payable "otherwise than on demand." It is payable on demand after the due date. Therefore, a person who is holder in due course of a cheque without notice of any defect, is entitled to payment from the drawer. 1934 A.L.J. 892=1934 A. 695 (1).

Sec. 7.—The definition of "drawer" in S. 7 is not exhaustive and the maker of a promissory note can also be called a drawer. 152 I.C. 1006 =36 Cr.L.J. 217=1935 L. 153. The makers of a promissory note cannot raise the plea that no consideration passed for the transfer of the note to a third party. Where the transferee sues on the note, he is entitled to recover what is payable to the original promisee. 138 I.C. 876=1932 A. 648. Oral acceptance of hundi is not sufficient. 1924 A. 129. See also 51 I.C. 250=29 P.R. 1919. It does not make the so-called acceptor liable to the holder of the bill. 1930 L. 471. Mere writing of figures on the hundi cannot amount to the signing of assent by the drawee unless it can be proved that it amounted to acceptance according to the mercantile usage of the locality. 1930 L. 471. Although in the normal course a cheque is not accepted by the drawee banker, there is nothing in the law that forbids him to accept it in which case he becomes liable to a holder in due course in the same way as any other acceptor. The certification of a cheque by the drawee bank is acceptance of the cheque within the meaning of

"Acceptor for honour."

The person named in the instrument, to whom or to whose order the money is by the instrument directed to be paid, is called the "payee".

"Payee."

8. The "holder" of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque means any person entitled in his own name to the possession thereof and to receive or recover the amount due thereon from the parties thereto.

"Holder."

Where the note, bill or cheque is lost or destroyed, its holder is the person so entitled at the time of such loss or destruction.

the Act. The signature of a certifying banker is an acceptance. 1941 Cal. 372. The certification or making of a cheque as "good" by the drawee bank is equivalent to acceptance and the bank will be liable to the holder of the cheque accordingly, provided the nature of the making or certifying and the accompanying circumstances warrant it. 46 C.W.N. 645. As to what constitutes acceptance of hundi, see 13 L. 31=1932 L. 274.

Sec. 8: SCOPE AND EFFECT OF SECTION.—This section prevents a person suing on a negotiable instrument, who is not named as a payee nor entitled as endorsee or assignee. 56 I.C. 259=19 I.C. 88.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—An alleged beneficial owner of a promissory note, whose name does not appear on the face of the instrument cannot sue on it. 29 I.C. 988=13 A.L.J. 695; nor in a suit on the note payment to beneficial owner a good defence. 49 A. 457=25 A.L.J. 402=1927 A. 962; 44 A. 290=20 A.L.J. 126=1922 A. 70. See also 153 I.C. 944=1935 M. 181=68 M. L.J. 81 (F.B.); 27 N.L.R. 327; 12 L.W. 532; 123 I.C. 395. As to principal suing on pronote in favour of agent, see 21 L.W. 696=90 I.C. 1047. It is not open to the defendant to plead that the payee is only a benamidar and therefore is not entitled to recover the amount due under it. 28 I.C. 501=1915 M.W.N. 227. A suit on a negotiable instrument by one of the heirs of the promisee alone is not maintainable. 12 L.W. 532. See also 44 A. 290=1922 A. 70; 1930 R. 243. No one can maintain a suit on a promissory note except the holder thereof. The fact that the holder has been made a party and has admitted that he is only the plaintiff's benamidar makes no difference. 1939 Pat. 347; 1939 S. 144; 12 L.W. 532. See also 123 I.C. 395. It may be that the suit can be proceeded with, if it had been based on the consideration and not on the note. 35 C.W.N. 53. Benamidar is a holder within the meaning of S. 8 and is entitled to sue on promissory note. 1930 R. 243. In India benami transactions are recognised. The real owner can institute a suit on a promissory note executed in the name of his benamidar, if the benamidar, admits that he is the benamidar for the real owner. 123 I.C. 395. On a pro-note executed in the name of one of the partners, a suit can be maintained by the partnership itself. 105 I.C. 549=55 C. 551 =1928 C. 148. An insolvent can sue on a pronote in his favour, if the Official Assignee does not interfere and object. 19 I.C. 88. A receiver appointed in a partition suit is entitled, when permitted by the Court, to maintain a suit on a promissory note which forms part of the assets of the joint family. The receiver can be said to be the holder of the promissory note under S. 8. 41 C.W.N. 697.

JOINT HINDU FAMILY.—A member of a Hindu family, to whose share, on a partition in the family, a debt evidenced by a promissory note is allotted is entitled to sue to recover the amount due under the promissory note without either an endorsement of the note or an assignment under S. 130 of the T. P. Act. A suit by that member must be regarded as a suit on the origial debt irrespective of the promissory note. 1937 M.W.N. 134. Where a promissory note executed in favour of a Hindu joint family firm, is allotted at a subsequent partition among the members constituting that firm to some of them, the latter to whose share the instrument is allotted are entitled to bring a suit on the note against the executant impleading the other members of the family also as plaintiffs. The plaintiffs who constituted the firm are competent to sue on the note as holders of the instrument. It is open to all the partners constituting the firm to bring a suit on a promissory note passed to that firm. The fact that there is no endorsement of the note in favour of the plaintiffs does not make the suit incompetent. 41 Bom.L.R. 219=1939 Bom. 147. In the case of a promissory note executed in the name of the manager of a Hindu joint family, the other coparceners are not "holders" of the instrument as defined by S. 8 of the Act, and they cannot therefore sue on the note qua coparceners. Although the debt may be coparcenary property, the promissory note is not such and does not devolve by survivorship but by succession. The right of the holder to sue on the note is personal to him, and no other person can be said to have an interest in it merely by birth or by being a member of the coparcenary though the coparceners might sue to recover the debt apart from the promissory note. If the holder dies, a succession certificate may be granted to his heirs, and they may then recover upon the promissory note as his legal representatives. 40 Bom.L.R. 964=1938 Bom. 451. Hindu coparceners governed by the Mitakshara law, carrying on a joint family business, can institute in their individual names a suit to recover a debt on a promissory note obtained in the name of the family firm. The coparcenary can be described as the holder of a promissory note made in its collective name or business name, and such an instrument is made in its own name within the meaning of S. 8. A suit on the note brought by all the adult coparceners who are capable in law of giving a satisfactory discharge, to recover the debt on the promissory note executed in their trade name is maintainable. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 153=42 Bom.L.R. 248=1940 Bom. 164.

Secs. 8 and 78: PROMISSORY NOTE—ASSIGNMENT—ASSIGNEE'S RIGHT TO SUE IN HIS OWN NAME, WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT.—A promissory note is a written acknowledgment of debt with a promise to repay. It is also a memorandum of contract and evidence of a chose in action. Thus, it may be transferred by assignment and the assignee thereby will get such title as the assignor had in the note and in addition, the right to have the endorsement of the assignor, and this includes the right to sue on the assignment in his own name and recover the amount due under the note from the parties liable. A promissory note is also a negotiable instrument and under the Negotiable Instruments Act, it is transferable merely by endorsement and delivery. As such, it is clothed with certain incidents intended to facilitate the business of merchants. The Negotiable Instruments Act has not affected the transferability of a promissory note by assignment as a chose in action, apart from endorsement. 61 C. 425=38 C.W.N. 465=1934 C. 549. See also 1935 O.W.N. 295=1935 O. 264. A payee named in a promissory note is the only person who can institute a suit upon it, and it is not open to a defendant in that suit to plead that the payee is a mere benamidar. 1939 P.W.N. 178=1939 Pat. 347. See also 19 Pat. 404=1940 Pat. 377. A person who is not the holder or endorsee of a promissory note but who only claims to be the surviving coparcener of the holder of the note is not entitled to sue on it. It would, however, be different if the suit is based on the debt itself. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 405=1939 Sind 144.

Sec. 9.—Whether a promissory note payable on demand does not become payable until a demand is actually made. 1923 L. 631. See also 47 C. 861. But see 2 P.L.J. 451=40 I.C. 350. When a negotiable instrument of any sort is handed over by a debtor to his creditor in discharge of a pre-existing debt the creditor becomes a holder in due course. 19 I.C. 786=15 Bom.L.R. 353.

"HOLDER IN DUE COURSE."—Where in a partition a promissory note is simply allotted to a person, but which note never comes into his possession, and the note is payable to a third person and not to bearer, the former person cannot be a holder in due course; that being so, he cannot make his assignees by a release deed holders in due course. 22 I.C. 345=1930 M. 197. The right of the real owner is not affected by the Act, if his name be disclosed to the maker of the instrument and if the maker does not make any payment to the holder and get a discharge from him. 1930 S. 4. No one can sue on a negotiable instrument as holder, unless he is named therein as the payee, or unless he becomes entitled to it as endorsee or bearer. 122 I.C. 345=1930 M. 197. Unless a person proves that he is a holder in due course within the meaning of S. 9, he cannot have any higher or superior rights against the drawer than the intermediate holders themselves would have, and the fact that the person knows of the defect of title of the intermediate holders is enough to disentitle that person to the benefits of a holder in due course. 123 I.C. 596=1930 M. 141. See also 1938 Mad. 599=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 757. Where the defendant in a suit on a promissory note admits that something is still due on the pronote the plaintiff is entitled to recover the same whether he sues as "holder in due course" or on the footing that he is a holder. 1940 Rang.170. Holder in due course —Indorsee from payee of pro-note prohibited from collecting by Court's order, effect of. 46 M. 415=44 M.L.J. 206. As to who is holder in due course, see also 14 I.C. 813; 1923 L. 638. A promissory note payable on demand cannot be regarded as having matured on the date on which it comes into existence. The date of maturity would depend on the circumstances of each case. The test is to ascertain if a demand has been made and refused. 48 L.W. 480=1938 M. 911=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 523. See also 1940 Rang. 170. If the payee of a promissory note executed by two persons agrees to hold one of them alone liable and relinquishes his claim as against the other executant, and assigns the note to another who takes the assignment with knowledge of this arrangement, the assignee has no better title than his assignor and he can therefore enforce the instrument only against one of the executants and not against both. The assignee is not a holder in due course. 47

10. "Payment in due course" means payment in accordance with the apparent tenor of the instrument in good faith and without negligence to any person in possession thereof under circumstances which do not afford a reasonable ground for believing that he is not entitled to receive payment of the amount therein mentioned.

Where it is not shown that payment was ever applied for, a promissory note is not to be treated as overdue merely because it is payable on demand and bears date some time back. If a negotiable instrument remains current, even though it has been paid, there is nothing to prevent a person to whom it has been indorsed for value, without knowledge that it has been paid, from suing. In the case of a promissory note which is payable on demand it does not become payable until demand is made. Where the maker of a promissory note payable on demand pays the amount of the note to the payee before the latter makes any demand, and leaves the instrument in the hands of the payee without insisting on its return or without obtaining from the payee a guarantee he acts at his own risk. If the payee subsequently indorses the instrument over to a third person who pays value and has no knowledge of the payment by the maker, the indorsee, as a holder in due course, is entitled to a decree for the amount in a suit against the maker. The endorsee of an overdue bill or promissory note does not take it subject to claims arising out of collateral matters such as a set-off, and the endorsement of an overdue bill in order to defeat a prospective claim on a set-off would not amount to a fraud. The only circumstance in which the transferee of an overdue bill would be fixed with liability to allow a set-off in respect of a claim due from the transferor is the circumstance which would justify an inference of an agreement to set off by both parties of which the transferee has notice. 54 L.W. 716= 1941 M.W.N. 775. See also 1942 M. 302.

He must be presumed to have had no knowledge of the discharge or demand, where there is no evidence as to his having had such knowledge. 44 L.W. 456=1936 M. 879=71 M.L.J. 473. See also 1940 Rang. 170.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT.—Negotiable instrument—Test of—Transferable by delivery—Right of holder to sue pro-tempore. 46 C. 331=48 I. C. 936; 1923 L. 388.

GOVERNMENT PROMISSOY NOTES.—Whether negotiable instrument. See 8 I.C. 796=12 C. L.J. 470. Shah jog Hundi—Incidents of. 58 I. C. 982=1 L. 429. See also 43 M.L.J. 480.

WHAT ARE NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.—An instrument, in order to be negotiable must fulfil the following conditions:—(1) it must be in a form capaple of being sued on by the holder thereof pro-tempore in his own name; (2) it must by the custom of trade be transferable like cash by delivery. A 'pahunch' is a writing merely chronicling the fact that a certain amount is received by the person signing it from another person. It is an ordinary receipt. Neither expressly nor impliedly does it create any obligation on the part of any one to pay the amount mentioned therein. It is neither a Bill of Exchange as defined by the Negotiable Instruments Act, nor a hundi, nor any such document entitling or purporting to entitle any person to payment by any other person of any stated sum of money, and is consequently not negotiable. 32 S.L.R. 640=1938 Sind 24. A promissory note payable to a specified person or order is a negotiable instrument and the transfer must be by an endorsement and delivery. A verbal assignment of such a note is not recognized by law. 55 I.C. 718=10 L.B.R. 96. But in Punjab, where the T. P. Act is not in force, an oral assignment of the note is valid. 134 I.C. 121 (L.). Shah Jog Hundis are negotiable instruments payable alternatively to one of several payees. 43 M.L.J. 480=16 L.W. 608. See also 58 I.C. 982=1 L. 429. A cheque from which the word 'bearer' is struck out without substitution of the word 'order' is not negotiable. 49 I.C. 388=21 Bom.L.R. 1. Share certificate with blank transfer deeds enclosed are not negotiable instrument. 46 C. 331=48 I.C. 966. Where a hundi drawn in favour of payee or bearer is endorsed by the payee to a named person, it ceases to be a bearer hundi and it can be paid only to the endorsee named. 27 Bom.L.R. 34=80 I.C. 118.

DHANIJOGE HUNDIES payable to bearer are negotiable instruments. 1928 A. 549. They come under S. 13—Holder, therefore, is entitled to benefit of S. 22. 9 P. 717=127 I.C. 575=1930 P. 239.

ENDORSEMENT.—A promissory note payable to a particular person, is, in the absence of words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it shall not be transferable, a negotiable instrument. Where such an instrument is not signed on the back either by the maker or by the holder, there is no endorsement. 76 I.C. 282=1925 S. 9. As to the effect of forged endorsement, see 30 Bom.L.R. 1210 =1928 B. 407; 30 Bom.L.R. 1222; 30 Bom.L. R. 1225; 36 Bom.L.R. 929=1934 B. 440. See also 1925 B. 173.

Sec. 13 (1).—A bill payable to a particular person and not to bearer or order is nonetheless a negotiable instrument by virtue of Expl. 1 to S. 13. 9 P. 717=1930 P. 239.

Secs. 13 (1), Expl. and 48: PROMISSORY NOTE—RIGHT OF SUIT ON—ALLOTMENT OF NGTE IN PARTITION—RIGHT OF ALLOTTEE TO SUE ON.—The payee of a promissory note is the only person who can sue on it; a person claiming to be owner thereof cannot sue on it in the absence of an indorsement in his favour by the holder. A person to whose share a promissory note in another's name is allotted on a partition cannot sue on it in the absence of an endorsement in his favour by the person in

14. When a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is transferred to any person, so as to constitute that person the holder thereof, the instrument is said to be negotiated.

Negotiation.

15. When the maker or holder of a negotiable instrument signs the same, otherwise than as such maker, for the purpose of negotiation, on the back or face thereof or on a slip of paper annexed thereto, or so signs for the same purpose a stamped paper intended to be completed as a negotiable instrument, he is said to indorse the same, and is called the "indorser."

Indorsement.

16. [1][(1)] If the indorsor signs his name only, the indorsement is said to be "in blank", and if he adds a direction to pay the amount mentioned in the instrument to, or to the order of, a specified person, the indorsement is said to be "in full", and the person so specified is called the "indorsee" of the instrument.

Indorsement "in blank" and "in full."
"Indorsee."

[1][(2) The provisions of this Act relating to a payee shall apply with the necessary modifications to an indorsee.]

NOTES.

whose name it is executed. The partition does not operate as an assignment by operation of law. 36 Bom.L.R. 807=1934 B. 356.

Sec. 14.—A document is negotiable, if, by the custom of the money market, it is transferable like cash and the bona fide transferee obtains a good title although his transferor might have stolen it. A delivery order may or may not be negotiable: the question depends upon the conditions attached to it and the usage of trade under which it issued. 40 I.C. 86. See also 38 C. 127.

Sec. 15.—For an exception to S. 15 in the case of Government securities, see the Indian Securities Act, 1886 (XIII of 1886), S. 6. Where an endorser gets another person to write his name for him, it is validly 'signed' within the meaning of this section. 161 I.C. 528=1936 R. 27 (40 M. 1171, Rel. on.) A negotiable instrument may be transferred otherwise than by endorsement alone. It may be otherwise assigned, and the assignee may sue in his own name, the only difference being that the assignee will have only the right, title and interest of the assignor while the indorsee will have all the rights of a holder in due course. 51 I.C. 250. A promissory note can be transferred like any other chose in action. It can be effected by a deed without endorsement. 138 I.C. 262=35 L.W. 755. A mere written acknowledgment of the receipt of money due under a pronote signed by the payee, does not by itself amount to an indorsement within S. 15. Nor does it amount to a transfer of an actionable claim under S. 130 of the T. P. Act in the absence of words of transfer. 59 I.C. 943=39 M.L.J. 273. Whether a suit can be filed on an endorsement made by a stranger on the back of a note, who does not satisfy the definition of an indorser, see 45 I.C. 186.

PROMISSORY NOTE IN FAVOUR OF PERSON AS AGENT—ENDORSEMENT BY PRINCIPAL.—Where upon a true construction of a promissory note itself, it is plain that the payee's name is mentioned therein as a payee in his capacity as agent of his firm and not in his personal capacity, the proprietor of that firm is really the true payee and can therefore endorse the promissory note under the provisions of S. 15 of the Act. 1934 R. 289. See also 68 C.L.J. 405=1939 Cal. 256 (pronote in favour of managing agents of a bank).

Sec. 16.—If an endorsement contains a direction to pay, though it may not contain actual words of direction, it contains a direction to pay within the meaning of the section. 19 I.C. 410=24 M.L.J. 296. The words on the back of a promissory note which were relied on as an indorsement were "Received the amount from T. K. A. (Sd.) K.A., Proprietor, A.N. Brothers". Held, that these words did not constitute an indorsement within the meaning of S. 16 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, as there was no direction to pay the amount of the note to a specified person and as the alleged indorsement did not consist only of the signature of the indorsee's name. Nor did the words constitute an assignment, because there were no words of assignment nor did they convey an expression of intention to transfer. 43 L.W. 371=1936 M. 417=70 M.L.J. 467. As to endorsement, before pronote becomes due, see 33 M. 34=3 I.C. 428=19 M.L.J. 509. An endorsement while it transfers the property in the note to the endorsee as the new holder, does not operate as an assignment to the endorsee of the debt due by the maker to the original payee. 1934 M. 350=67 M.L.J. 393. Where a person in whose favour a promissory note is executed makes an endorsement to the effect that he has sold the promissory note for a certain amount to the person named by him and that he has no further interest left in it, the endorsement is a perfectly good one, although it does not bear the words that the person named will be entitled to realise the amount by bringing a suit against the maker. S. 16 of the Act does not lay down any specific form or words which are necessary for an endorsement. 1935 O.W.N. 295=1935 O. 264.

Sec. 16 (2).—See 50 B. 118=1926 B. 262=28 Bom.L.R. 226.

17. Where an instrument may be construed either as a promissory note or bill of exchange, the holder may at his election treat it as either, and the instrument shall be thenceforward treated accordingly.

Ambiguous instruments.

18. If the amount undertaken or ordered to be paid is stated differently in figures and in words, the amount stated in words shall be the amount undertaken or ordered to be paid.

Where amount is stated differently in figures and words.

19. A promissory note or bill of exchange, in which no time for payment is specified, and a cheque, are payable on demand.

Instruments payable on demand.

20. Where one person signs and delivers to another a paper stamped in accordance with the law relating to negotiable instruments then in force in British India, and either wholly blank or having written thereon an incomplete negotiable instrument, he thereby gives prima facie authority to the holder thereof to make or complete, as the case may be, upon it a negotiable instrument, for any amount specified therein and not exceeding the amount covered by the stamp. The person so signing shall be liable upon such instrument, in the capacity in which he signed the same, to any holder in due course for such amount: provided that no person other than a holder in due course shall recover from the person delivering the instrument anything in excess of the amount intended by him to be paid thereunder.

Inchoate stamped instruments.

NOTES.

Sec. 17.—A hundi is sometimes a pronote and sometimes a bill of exchange. 58 I.C. 513. The right of election given by S. 17 of the Negotiable Instruments Act to the holder of an instrument to treat it as a promissory note or as a bill of exchange is a privilege which he must have the full advantage of and that benefit should not be taken away by anything contained in the Stamp Act. S. 17 should in effect be read as a proviso to S. 6 of the Stamp Act. 1932 M. 765=63 M.L.J. 548. Transfer of pronote for collection—Burden of proof. See 39 L.W. 486=1934 M. 292.

Sec. 19.—A bill of exchange is payable on demand though the demand cannot be made on the day when the bill is drawn. 45 I.C. 22=8 L.W. 501. A note which does not fix any date for payment is payable on demand. (Ibid.)

Sec. 20.—S. 20 gives general authority to a person to whom a stamped and signed paper is delivered to convert it into a negotiable instrument payable to any specified person; it is open to a person who receives a blank inchoate instrument to complete it in favour of any person besides himself. A hand note is a negotiable instrument, but if it is found as a fact that it was never negotiated, that would alter the position. 1941 P.W.N. 563=1941 P. 504. See also 1936 Nag. 260. S. 20 does not apply to cheques as a cheque does not require any stamp. Where therefore a blank cheque drawn by a person is dishonoured by the Bank, the "holder in due course" of such cheque cannot hold the drawer thereof liable for the amount stated therein on the dishonour of such a cheque, inasmuch as the cheque is not an inchoate stamped instrument. 40 P.L.R. 77=1937 Lah. 816. The document, whose stamp has not been crossed by the signature, might still come under S. 20 if the stamp had been cancelled in accordance with S. 12 of the Stamp Act. 34 I.C. 315=38 A. 430. The delivery of a hundi paper signed, but left blank, cannot be taken to give prima facie authority to make thereon a negotiable instrument outside the maximum value covered by the stamp by attaching thereto other stamps. 54 I.C. 3. So long as the amount of a pronote can be found out from the instrument itself without extraneous aid, the omission to state it in the body of the pronote does not vitiate its character as such. 1923 R. 97. Though a payee can fill in a blank in an inchoate instrument and sue on it himself or endorse it to some one else, no decree can be passed on such a blank instrument if it does not contain the name of the payee. Such an instrument is not negotiable. 17 I.C. 915. See also 13 Pat.L.T. 506=1932 P. 324; 19 Pat. 404=21 P.L.T. 845=1940 Pat. 377 cited under Sec. 4 supra.

Secs. 20 and 118.—If the plaintiff sues on a promissory note, and the defendant admits, or has had proved against him conclusively his signature and/or his thumb impression on the promissory note, but the defendant asserts that he did not sign the promissory note in the condition in which it is filed, the burden of proof lies on the defendant to show that the promissory note was not in its existing form at the time that he executed it. 1939 Rang.L.R. 397 =1939 Rang. 334 (F.B.).

21. In a promissory note or bill of exchange the expressions "at sight" and "on presentment" mean on demand. The expression "after sight" means, in a promissory note, after presentment for sight, and, in a bill of exchange, after acceptance, or noting for non-acceptance or protest for non-acceptance.

"At sight," "On presentment," "After sight."

22. The maturity of a promissory note or bill of exchange is the date at which it falls due.

"Maturity."

Every promissory note or bill of exchange which is not expressed to be payable on demand, at sight or on presentment is at maturity on the third day after the day on which it is expressed to be payable.

Days of grace.

23. In calculating the date at which a promissory note or bill of exchange, made payable a stated number of months after date or after sight, or after a certain event, is at maturity, the period stated shall be held to terminate on the day of the month which corresponds with the day on which the instrument is dated, or presented for acceptance or sight, or noted for non-acceptance, or protested for non-acceptance, or the event happens, or, where the instrument is a bill of exchange made payable a stated number of months after sight and has been accepted for honour, with the day on which it was so accepted. If the month in which the period would terminate has no corresponding day, the period shall be held to terminate on the last day of such month.

Calculating maturity of bill or note payable so many months after date or sight.

Illustrations.

(a) A negotiable instrument, dated 29th January, 1878, is made payable at one month after date. The instrument is at maturity on the third day after the 28th February, 1878.

(b) A negotiable instrument, dated 30th August, 1878, is made payable three months after date. The instrument is at maturity on the 3rd December, 1878.

(c) A promissory note or bill of exchange, dated 31st August, 1878, is made payable three months after date. The instrument is at maturity on the 3rd December, 1878.

24. In calculating the date at which a promissory note or bill of exchange made payable a certain number of days after date or after sight or after a certain event is at maturity, the day of the date, or of presentment for acceptance or sight, or of protest for non-acceptance, or on which the event happens, shall be excluded.

Calculating maturity of bill or note payable so many days after date or sight.

25. When the day on which a promissory note or bill of exchange is at maturity is a public holiday, the instrument shall be deemed to be due on the next preceding business day.

When day of maturity is a holiday.

NOTES.

Sec. 22.—The term "maturity" used in this section can have no application to a promissory note payable on demand. 1930 M.W.N. 1232. Time of presenting hundi for payment. 39 A. 86=37 I.C. 656. Hundi—Contract dispensing with days of grace—Whether permissible. 23 I.C. 437=26 M.L.J. 494. The provision in S. 22 giving three days of grace affects only instruments which are not written in an oriental language. The instruments written in oriental languages will be governed by any local usage which may be proved in the case. Where it is admitted in the plaint that the hundi in question fell due on a certain date in accordance with the local usage or custom, the operation of S. 22 is excluded, and therefore the three days of grace which are allowed in the case of instruments not expressed in an oriental language cannot be added in such case for computing limitation for a suit on that negotiable instrument. 186 I.C. 693=1940 Lah. 14.

CHAPTER III.

PARTIES TO NOTES, BILLS AND CHEQUES.

Capacity to make, etc., promissory notes, etc.

26. Every person capable of contracting, according to the law to which he is subject, may bind himself and be bound by the making, drawing, acceptance, indorsement, delivery and negotiation of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque.

Minor.

A minor may draw, indorse, deliver and negotiate such instrument so as to bind all parties except himself.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to empower a corporation to make, indorse or accept such instruments except in cases in which, under the law for the time being in force, they are so empowered.

Agency.

27. Every person capable of binding himself or of being bound, as mentioned in section 26, may so bind himself or be bound by a duly authorized agent acting in his name.

A general authority to transact business and to receive and discharge debts does not confer upon an agent the power of accepting or indorsing bills of exchange so as to bind his principal.

An authority to draw bills of exchange does not of itself import an authority to indorse.

NOTES.

Secs. 26 and 27.—Hundi signed by managing proprietor of firm—Personal liability. See 30 Bom.L.R. 1300. Pronote executed by two out of three partners—Executants merely signing their names—Liability of the firm otherwise disclosed in the note—Partners not joining in the execution are also liable. 1928 M. 1196=55 M.L.J. 574. A negotiable instrument drawn by a manager of a Hindu joint family is binding on other members provided it was made for family purposes. 44 A. 393=1922 A. 116. Promissory note executed by karta of a joint Hindu family and signed by him alone—Liability of other family members on the note and on the original debt. 88 I.C. 1025=41 C.L.J. 535. When the manager of a joint Hindu family incurs a debt and gives a promissory note therefor, the creditor may sue him upon the note and make him personally liable, but he cannot make the other members of the family liable by suing on the note. 32 Bom.L.R. 1035=1930 B. 424. See also 115 I.C. 400. A minor can draw a bill or issue a cheque on the banker. A minor is not incompetent to be a payee. 40 M. 308=31 M.L.J. 575 (F.B.); 41 M. 815=35 M.L.J. 90. A person is not precluded under S. 120 of the Act from denying the validity of the note on the ground that he was a minor on the date of the note, as the specific provision in S. 120 is subject to the general rule enacted in S. 26. 117 I.C. 133.

Secs. 26, 27 and 28: ACTION ON PROMISSORY NOTE—LIABILITY OF UNDISCLOSED PRINCIPALS.—In an action on a promissory note against a person whose name properly appears as party to the instrument, it is not open either by way of claim or defence to show that the signatory was in reality acting for an undisclosed principal. The sections of the Contract Act relating to the liability of an undisclosed principal do not override Ss. 26 to 28 of the Negotiable Instruments Act. 32 L.W. 551=66 M.L.J. 671. An objection by an endorser of a negotiable instrument that the signature of the endorser does not appear on face of the negotiable instrument, as it is signed by his agent without any mention being made that he is acting on behalf of his principal, cannot be upheld, when on a fair interpretation of the document, the name of the person liable is disclosed and the evidence shows that the agent signed the negotiable instrument under the implied directions and with the explicit knowledge of his principal. It is only when there is some doubt regarding the identity of the drawer that the matter can be agitated before the Courts. 187 I.C. 650=1939 Lah. 225. Promissory note by guardian of minor—Note not disclosing borrowing on behalf of minor—Debt incurred for purposes binding on minor—Liability of latter's estate. See 50 L.W. 374.

Sec. 27.—Where a partner of a firm executes a promissory note in his individual capacity and not on behalf of the firm, the executant alone is liable under the note. 142 I.C. 837=35 Bom.L.R. 68=1933 B. 101. The name of a person or firm to be charged upon a negotiable instrument must be clearly stated on the face or the back of the instrument, so that the responsibility is made plain and can be instantly recognised. The mere fact that the name is disclosed in "some way" is not sufficient. Consequently, the mere fact that a person executes a promissory note describing himself as the proprietor of a firm or writes on a newspaper with the name and description of a firm printed on it, cannot be held to be sufficient to hold the firm liable on the promissory note. 35 P.L.R. 590=1934 L. 815. Where the intention is to make a firm liable it is not necessary that the name of the firm should be written immediately above the signature of the person signing instrument. A hundi purported to come from a firm; on the instrument were words purporting to show the drawer as the firm. After giving compliments of the firm it proceeded "further we have drawn on you one receipt for Rs. 1,000." The signature of the partner of the firm who signed the hundi was preceded by the word "dustkhat". Held, that the prefixing of "dustkhat" to the signature denoted that the person incurred no personal liability on the instrument. It was the firm which was to be liable on the instrument and not the partner. 1930 S. 4. The effect of S. 27 is that the principal can only be made liable through his agent on a negotiable instrument, when the agent acts in his principal's name, that is, when he signs as agent and that an undisclosed principal cannot be sued on a negotiable instrument. 118 I.C. 673=1929 N. 274. See also 144 I.C. 866=1933 R. 131. Promissory note signed by managing agent of company—Articles of Association not permitting agent to sign—Company whether liable. See 1930 A.L.J. 1052. See also 171 I.C. 412=1938 Lah. 41 (general authority to transact business of a firm does not include power to execute promissory note on behalf of firm). Suit based on a promissory note executed by manager of joint Hindu family, if maintainable against other members of the joint family. See 144 I.C. 411=22 N.L.R. 312=1933 N. 160; 1933 Lah. 494. See also 1925 C. 1153=41 C.L.J. 535; 1928 Lah. 722; 46 C. 663=36 M.L.J. 429 (P.C.); 45 A. 534. An indorsee of a promissory note executed by the managing member of a Hindu joint family is limited to his remedy on the note, unless the indorsement is so worded as to transfer the debt as well and the stamp law is complied with, and, therefore, in the case of an ordinary indorsement the indorsee cannot sue the non-executant coparceners on the ground of their liability under the Hindu Law. It is a fundamental principle of the law relating to negotiable instruments that no one whose name does not appear on the instrument can be held liable thereon. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 568=47 L.W. 309=1938 Mad. 377=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 378 (F.B.). See also 20 Pat.L.T. 321=1939 P.W.N. 305=1939 Pat. 490. Where the original debt was borrowed by the defendant for the benefit of the family and a pronote executed for it and it is renewed by the execution of a fresh pronote by the elder brother of the defendant and a suit is brought on it against the defendant after the death of the executant, S. 27 of the Act can have no application and the defendant would be liable on the new pronote. 1941 O.W.N. 1112=1941 O.A. 827.

Secs. 27 and 28: APPLICATION OF.—S. 28 applies both to instruments in English as well as in vernacular. 14 M.L.T. 502=21 I.C. 650. The principle of S. 28 applies also to the case of a payee. 40 I.C. 347=5 L. W. 721. S. 28 does not apply where the suit is brought not on the pronote but on the consideration. In such a case the suit can be maintained against the principal as well. 27 N.L.R. 324; 1936 O.W.N. 1008=165 I.C. 578 (2)=1937 O. 65 (Case of execution by servant). When deciding whether the maker of a promissory note has executed it as the agent or the representative of another, the Court cannot look into the surrounding circumstances. It cannot look beyond what is stated in the instrument. In India, where a person executing an instrument in an Indian language, after giving his own description, adds that he is the agent of another, it means that he is acting as the other's agent in the matter of the execution of the document, and it is sufficient to exclude his personal responsibility. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 513=1941 Mad. 417=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 441 (F.B.).

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—"Agent" in Ss. 27 and 28 means the agent of a person capable of contracting within the meaning of S. 26; and where the agent is not liable the principal is. 41 Mad. 815=35 M.L.J. 90; 40 M. 1171. Liability of partners executing promissory note as principals. See 4 R. 551. In a promissory note, the name of a person or firm to be charged should be clearly stated so that the responsibility is made plain and the name can be instantly recognised. [46 C. 663 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 138 I.C. 168=15 N.L.J. 5; 1933 R. 131. A promissory note ran as follows: "On demand I the undersigned promise to pay B or order the sum of Rupees.....with interest." The note was signed by the executant and thereafter he was described as agent and attorney of another. Held, that the executant was personally liable and the words as agent and attorney were merely descriptive. 37 C.W.N. 296. So also in the case of "a common manager" under the Bengal Tenancy Act. 40 C.W.N. 92=164 I.C. 728. Hundi signed by the managing proprietor of firm—Personal liability. See 30 Bom.L.R. 1300. See also 70 C.L.J. 307=1940 Cal. 177 (executant signing himself as director of company; 43 C.W.N. 399 (undisclosed principal—Suit on original consideration). In order to make a person liable as principal on a hundi executed by his agent, it is not sufficient that the name is disclosed in such a way that on any fair interpretation of the instrument his name is the name of the person really liable. 46 C. 663=36 M.L.J. 429 (P.C.). See also 92 I.C. 94=1926 O. 248. SEC. 28: SCOPE OF.—This section is an exception to S. 230 of the Contract Act as regards the liability of agent. 18 Pat.L.T. 337= 1937 P.W.N. 344. Where a person executing a promissory note alleges that he executed it on behalf of a firm of which he is a partner, unless the responsibility of the firm is made plain and can instantly be recognised as the instrument passes from hand to hand, ordinarily the person signing alone will be liable. 1936 N. 252. Where a promissory note is executed by a servant for a loan advanced to his master, and the name of the master does not appear as a party on the face of the promissory note, the master cannot be held liable under the instrument. 1936 O.W.N. 1008=1937 O. 65. The essence of a tripartite arrangement between a third person, promisor not an agent of the third person and promisee, was to conceal third person's indebtedness from the promisee and to make him believe that the promisor was the debtor. The promisor lent himself to the scheme fully understanding that its object was the deception of the promisee. Held, that the promisor was not induced by the promisee to believe that he would not be held liable upon his promissory notes within the meaning of S. 28. 34 C.W.N. 145=1929 P.C. 297.

HINDU MINORS—PRONOTE BY MOTHER AS GUARDIAN—NO DESCRIPTION AS GUARDIAN IN SIGNATURE.—Plaintiff instituted a suit on a promissory note executed to him by the mother and guardian of two Hindu minors. The note which was in renewal of a prior note by her (which itself was in renewal of an earlier one executed by the father of the minors) described the minors in the body of the note "as represented by their mother and guardian", but he signed the note without any such description attached to her name. Held, that the intention of the maker, which could be inferred from the surrounding circumstances, the debt being one incurred by the father originally, was to exclude her own personal liability and to make the wards (minors) liable; that the liability of the minors under the Hindu Law was not affected by the mere fact that the promissory note evidencing the debt was by a guardian; and consequently the plaintiff was entitled to a decree against the minors. 155 I.C. 581=68 M.L.J. 540 (F.B.).

PROMISSORY NOTE—EXECUTANT SIGNING HIS OWN NAME AND ALSO SIGNING AS GUARDIAN—PERSONAL LIABILITY.—The material part of the promissory note was as follows: "The balance is Rs. four hundred. This sum of rupees four hundred we have agreed to pay you and so we owe you. On demand we promise to pay you or your order this sum with interest thereon at one anna per mensem and get this returned. To this effect is the promissory note executed with our consent and in the handwriting of T. V. S., the guardian." Then defendant 2 (T.V.S.) signed his name alone across the stamp and again below the stamp as guardian for minor S. Held, that the guardian also made himself personally liable. 154 I.C. 582=1935 M. 160. See also 1936 M. 417=70 M.L.J. 467 (case of principal and agent). See also 18 Pat.L.T. 337; Liability of legal representative signing.

30. The drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque is bound, in case of dishonour by the drawee or acceptor thereof, to compensate the holder, provided due notice of dishonour has been given to, or received by, the drawer as hereinafter provided.

Liability of drawer.

31. The drawee of a cheque having sufficient funds of the drawer in his hands properly applicable to the payment of such cheque must pay the cheque when duly required so to do, and, in default of such payment, must compensate the drawer for any loss or damage caused by such default.

Liability of drawee of cheque.

32. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the maker of a promissory note and the acceptor before maturity of a bill of exchange are bound to pay the amount thereof at maturity according to the apparent tenor of the note or acceptance respectively, and the acceptor of a bill of exchange at or after maturity is bound to pay the amount thereof to the holder on demand.

In default of such payment as aforesaid, such maker or acceptor is bound to compensate any party to the note or bill for any loss or damage sustained by him and caused by such default.

Liability of maker of note and acceptor of bill.

33. No person except the drawee of a bill of exchange, or all or some of several drawees, or a person named therein as a drawee in case of need, or an acceptor for honour, can bind himself by an acceptance.

Only drawee can be acceptor except in need or for honour.

The drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque cannot set up a collateral agreement as a defence to a claim under S. 30. See 30 I.C. 35=9 S.L.R. 32. Secs. 30, 37 and 38.—The drawer of hundi is not a surety for acceptance because the drawee does not become liable until he accepts. Therefore unless and until he does that there is no debt for which he can be held responsible. It follows that there is no principal for whom the drawer can stand surety. Therefore when there is no acceptance the liability of the drawer is as principal debtor under an implied contract of indemnity. His undertaking is conditional only and his liability does not arise unless the instrument is dishonoured, either by non-acceptance or by non-payment. 182 I.C. 842=1938 Nag. 262.

Sec. 31: LIABILITY OF DRAWEE.—A drawee is not liable as such on a hundi till he has accepted the same. The burden of proof is therefore on the holder to show that drawee had accepted the liability to pay the hundis on behalf of his firm. 122 I.C. 406=1930 A. 106.

Every indorser after dishonour is liable as upon an instrument payable on demand.

On this section, see also 16 I.C. 796. Endorser is liable as a surety for the maker, but he is also, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, liable as principal to his endorsee. 17 I.C. 951. The fact of the bill of exchange having been dishonoured and of its intimation to the endorser must be proved before the endorser is made liable. 18 A.L.J. 981=59 I.C. 675.

Sec. 35.—The section does not apply to a promissory note payable on demand. 1930 M.W.N. 1232. The last paragraph of the section cannot be taken to mean that the indorser is liable even without a notice of dishonour being given to him by the indorsee, since that would be in conflict with the mandatory provisions of S. 93. It only means that after dishonour, the indorser is liable as upon an instrument payable on demand, that liability is akin to that of the maker but the liability is subject to the condition fixed in the proviso embodied in the first part of the section. 1930 M.W.N. 1232. The rule is subject to any 'contract to the contrary, by which although the indorsement is ex facie unrestricted, the indorser as between himself and the indorsee, by agreement either express or to be inferred from the nature of the transaction excluded his personal liability. 63 M.L.J. 880=36 L.W. 777. Where a person who is entrusted with moneys by another for being invested on the security of immovable property, lends it out to others on promissory notes taken in his own name without any security, and endorses the notes to the owner of the moneys and also assures him that the moneys are safe and that he would go to the owner with the executants of the notes and clear the loan, he is liable to the indorsee as indorser under S. 35 of the Act. It cannot be said that the endorsements are without consideration within the meaning of S. 43 of the Act. Since the endorsements are part and parcel of the same transaction, the consideration for the same is the money received by him from the owner of the money. Further, the fact that he has taken the instruments in his own name shows his intention to share the liability and his undertaking to go with the makers to the endorsee and clear the loan makes him a guarantor and liable as such. 1939 M.W.N. 496=1939 Mad. 848=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 897. Where at a partition of family properties a promissory note executed by a third party in favour of the father was indorsed by him in favour of his adult son as part of the assets allotted to the latter, held, that the lower Court was justified in drawing an inference from the nature of the transaction that the father intended to exclude his personal liability as endorser and that the son had no right of recourse against the father on default by the maker. 63 M.L.J. 880. The maker of a promissory note or cheque, the drawer of a bill of exchange until acceptance, and the acceptor are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, respectively liable thereon as principal debtors, and the other parties thereto are liable thereon as sureties for the maker, drawer or acceptor, as the case may be.

Maker, drawer and acceptor principals.

NOTES.

Sec. 37.—PROMISSORY NOTE EXECUTED WITHOUT CONSIDERATION—LIABILITY OF MAKER TO ITS PURCHASER.—Under S. 37 the maker of a promissory note is liable to its purchaser, who is a holder within the meaning of S. 8 of the Act. A holder who has paid consideration for the note can recover the amount due on it even if it was originally made without consideration. 1935 O.W.N. 295=1935 Oudh 264.

ACCOMMODATION NOTE.—If the holder of an accommodation note having no notice of its true character at the time of his taking the note but after notice thereof gives indulgence to the payee (the party accommodated), he does not thereby discharge the maker (the accommodation party). Mere knowledge on the part of the endorsee of the fact that the bill or note is one for accommodation whether the knowledge is at the time of the endorsement or afterwards, appears to be absolutely irrelevant under S. 37 unless there is "a contract to the contrary". 57 M. 482=66 M.L.J. 180. On this section, see also 41 Bom.L.R. 1237=1940 Bom. 82.

Secs. 37 and 38.—The maker of a promissory note is liable to the holder of it who pays consideration for it, even if the instrument was originally made without consideration. 19 I.C. 637=11 A.L.J. 481. The drawer of a bill of exchange is entitled to claim set-off from the payee for the amount due to the acceptor of the bill from the payee. 35 I.C. 628=18 Bom.L.R. 689. S. 37 regards as principal debtors those who execute a pronote when there is no other mutual understanding to the contrary. It is not open to one of the executants to prove by oral evidence that he was a surety. 29 I.C. 760. Where the cheque is payable to the bearer, the person to whom the payment is made is a holder and thus a surety under Ss. 37 and 38. He can therefore be made a party with the principal person. 148 I.C. 851 (1)=1934 Pesh. 10.

Sec. 39: ACCOMMODATION NOTE—INDULGENCE GRANTED TO MAKER—SURETY NOT DISCHARGED.—Entering into an agreement with the principal debtor granting him time will not discharge the surety if the right against the surety is reserved. The mere fact that S. 39 provides in respect of a bill of exchange for such reservation does not show that the main principle recognised as part of the law of contracts does not apply to other Negotiable Instruments. S. 39 would appear to be a provision inserted ex abundanti cautela. In the case of a promissory note for accommodation, the endorsee does not lose his rights against the maker-surety by reason of an indulgence to the payee (principal debtor) if the rights of the endorsee have been expressly reserved as against the surety. 57 M. 482=66 M.L.J. 180.

Third indorsement, "Wright & Co".
Fourth indorsement, "John Rozario".
This bill A puts in suit against John Rozario and strikes out, without John Rozario's consent, the indorsements by Peter Williams and Wright & Co. A is not entitled to recover anything from John Rozario.

Acceptor bound although indorsement forged.

41. An acceptor of a bill of exchange already indorsed is not relieved from liability by reason that such indorsement is forged, if he knew or had reason to believe the indorsement to be forged when he accepted the bill.

Acceptance of bill drawn in fictitious name.

42. An acceptor of a bill of exchange drawn in a fictitious name and payable to the drawer's order is not, by reason that such name is fictitious, relieved from liability to any holder in due course claiming under an indorsement by the same hand as the drawer's signature, and purporting to be made by the drawer.

Negotiable instrument made, etc., without consideration.

43. A negotiable instrument made, drawn, accepted, indorsed or transferred without consideration, or for a consideration which fails, creates no obligation of payment between the parties to the transaction. But if any such party has transferred the instrument with or without indorsement to a holder for consideration, such holder, and every subsequent holder deriving title from him, may recover the amount due on such instrument from the transferor for consideration or any prior party thereto.

Exception I.—No party for whose accommodation a negotiable instrument has been made, drawn, accepted or indorsed can, if he have paid the amount thereof, recover thereon such amount from any person who became a party to such instrument for his accommodation.

Exception II.—No party to the instrument who has induced any other party to make, draw, accept, indorse or transfer the same to him for a consideration which he has failed to pay or perform in full shall recover thereon an amount exceeding the value of the consideration (if any) which he has actually paid or performed.

Partial absence or failure of money consideration.

Ss. 43 and 44: 'PARTIES TO THE TRANSACTION'—MEANING — MAKER AMD PAYEE.—'Parties to the transaction' in S. 43, denotes persons standing in immediate relation to each other within the meaning of S. 44. The maker and payee of a cheque must come under parties to the transaction and if it is so they are certainly under the Act, in immediate relation to each other. Explanation.—The drawer of a bill of exchange stands in immediate relation with the acceptor. The maker of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque stands in immediate relation with the payee, and the indorser with his indorsee. Other signers may by agreement stand in immediate relation with a holder.

Partial failure of consideration not consisting of money.

45. Where a part of the consideration for which a person signed a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, though not consisting of money, is ascertainable in money without collateral enquiry, and there has been a failure of that part, the sum which a holder standing in immediate relation with such signer is entitled to receive from him is proportionally reduced.

Holder's right to duplicate of lost bill.

A suit on a pronote having been instituted, the defendant executed a fresh note to the plaintiff for the amount due and full costs of the suit, and the suit was withdrawn. In a suit on the renewed note, it was found, that the defendant had paid plaintiff Rs. 1000 which was not given credit to in the settlement of the figure arrived at when the fresh note was executed, and defendant claimed that his liability under the renewed note should be proportionately reduced. Held, that the case fell under S. 44 and though the payment could not be pleaded in "discharge" of the renewed note, the plea of partial failure of consideration was well founded and that the defendant's liability under the renewed note should be reduced prot tanto. 40 I.W. 706=67 M.L.J. 650.

Secs. 44 and 45.—Where a person pleads that he has signed a promise to pay a large amount by reason of getting two benefits, one a small cash payment and the other the cancellation of an old promissory note, S. 44 does not apply to such case. Nor does S. 45 apply because the consideration is not "ascertainable in money without collateral enquiry." 189 I. C. 384=1940 Rang. 152.

Sec. 45.—S. 45 is based on the English law which is stated by Chalmers in his book on Bills of Exchange as follows:—"Partial failure of consideration is a defence pro tanto against an immediate party when the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount but not otherwise," that is, when a collateral enquiry becomes necessary for the purpose. 22 L.W. 265=49 M. L.J. 530.

Sec. 46.—It is open to the executant of a promissory note to show that there was no presently operative contract between the parties as is embodied in the note that it was delivered only conditionally or for a special purpose only and not for the purpose of transferring absolu-

As between parties standing in immediate relation, delivery to be effectual must be made by the party making, accepting or indorsing the instrument or by a person authorized by him in that behalf.

As between such parties and any holder of the instrument other than a holder in due course, it may be shown that the instrument was delivered conditionally or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring absolutely the property therein.

A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to bearer is negotiable by the delivery thereof.

A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to order is negotiabale by the holder by indorsement and delivery thereof.

Negotiation by delivery.

47. Subject to the provisions of section 58, a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to bearer is negotiable by delivery thereof.

Exception.—A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque delivered on condition that it is not to take effect except in a certain event is not negotiable (except in the hands of a holder for value without notice of the condition) unless such event happens.

tely property therein. 1939 P.W.N. 200=20 Pat.L.T. 514=1939 Pat. 495. Delivery under S. 46 need not be to the person whose name is given in the instrument as payee or to any agent authorised by him in that behalf. There must no doubt be a delivery by the maker, or by some one authorised in that behalf. So long as there is a delivery with the intention of completing the transaction to the person who actually advanced the money under the instrument, that is sufficient to complete the transaction. The maker cannot, in a suit by an indorsee from the payee, question the title of the indorsee or the payee on the ground that the payee was only a benamidar, or on the ground that there was no delivery to the person whose name appears as payee. 50 L.W. 357=1939 Mad. 858=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 501.

Sec. 46, para. (3).—The words "as between such parties and any holder of the instrument other than a holder in due course" mean "as between the maker and the payee or the endorser and the endorsee or the endorsee and any holder other than a holder in due course or as between any one of such parties and any other." 26 A.L.J. 696=1928 A. 289. See also 115 I.C. 771.

Secs. 46 and 50.—Endorsement alone is not sufficient to transfer the property in a negotiable instrument to the indorsee but the indorsement must be followed by delivery. 6 L.L.J. 230=79 I.C. 461. But if the instrument is delivered conditionally or for a specific purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring property therein, the property does not pass to the endorsee. The endorser may limit the right of the endorsee by express words. Where the endorsement contains no explicit words limiting the rights of the endorsee or is a blank endorsement, it is open to the endorser to lead evidence to show that it was really a conditional endorsement for a specific purpose only, namely, that of collection. 38 P.L.R. 918=164 I.C. 833=1936 Pesh. 181 (1924 L. 640 and 5 I. Sec. 47.—A transferee by delivery of a negotiable instrument is not liable on the instrument to a subsequent holder under S. 35 of the Act, nor is he entitled, in the event of dishonour, to enforce liability on the instrument against a prior party to it. 35 L.W. 269=1932 M. 323=62 M.L.J. 239.

Sec. 48.—S. 48 does not restrict the transfer of a negotiable instrument to the operation of endorsement. 16 P. 74=1937 P. 100 (F.B.). Where a promissory note is transferred or assigned by means of a registered instrument, such a transfer is valid and is not prohibited by S. 137 of the Transfer of Property Act. 1937 exchange or cheque [1][payable to order] is negotiable by the holder by indorsement and delivery thereof.

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full.

49. The holder of a negotiable instrument indorsed in blank may, without signing his own name, by writing above the indorser's signature a direction to pay to any other person as indorsee, convert the indorsement in blank into an indorsement in full; and the holder does not thereby incur the responsibility of an indorser.

50. The indorsement of a negotiable instrument followed by delivery transfers to the indorsee the property therein with the right of further negotiation; but the indorsement may, by express words, restrict or exclude such right, or may merely constitute the indorsee an agent to indorse the instrument or to receive its contents for the indorser, or for some other specified person.

These indorsements exclude the right of further negotiation by C.

Secs. 48 and 13 (1) Expl. : PRO-NOTE—RIGHT OF SUIT ON.—A suit on a pro-note can only be maintained by the person named as the payee; and none claiming to be the owner thereof can sue on it without an endorsement by the payee. Therefore. a person to whose share a pro-note in another's name is allotted on partition cannot sue on it without an endorsement by the original payee, as the partition does not transfer the pro-note to the allottee by operation of law. 36 Bom.L.R. 807=1934 B. 356.

In a suit by an indorsee of a promissory note based upon the promissory note, which has been executed by a Hindu coparcener, neither the son nor the father of the executant can be made liable directly on the instrument in which neither of them is mentioned when the indorsement is not so worded as to transfer the debt itself and when no stamp duty has been paid on the indorsement. When what is transferred by the indorsement is only the property in the promissory note and nothing else, S. 8 of the Transfer of Property Act cannot apply and is of no avail to the indorsee. 50 L.W. 336=1939 Mad. 846=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 531.

Who may negotiate.

51. Every sole maker, drawer, payee or indorsee, or all of several joint makers, drawers, payees or indorsees, of a negotiable instrument may, if the negotiability of such instrument has not been restricted or excluded as mentioned in section 50, indorse and negotiate the same.

Explanation.—Nothing in this section enables a maker or drawer to indorse or negotiate an instrument, unless he is in lawful possession or is holder thereof; or enables a payee or indorsee to indorse or negotiate an instrument unless he is holder thereof.

Illustration.

A bill is drawn payable to A or order. A indorses it to B, the indorsement not containing the words "or order" or any equivalent words. B may negotiate the instrument.

Indorser who excludes his own liability or makes it conditional.

52. The indorser of a negotiable instrument may, by express words in the indorsement, exclude his own liability thereon, or make such liability or the right of the indorsee to receive the amount due thereon depend upon the happening of a specified event, although such event may never happen.

Where an indorser so excludes his liability and afterwards becomes the holder of the instrument, all intermediate indorsers are liable to him.

Upon this indorsement he incurs no liability.

(b) A is the payee and holder of a negotiable instrument. Excluding personal liability by an indorsement "without recourse," he transfers the instrument to B, and B indorses it to C, who indorses it to A. A is not only reinstated in his former rights, but has the rights of an indorsee against B and C.

Instrument indorsed in blank.

54. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained as to crossed cheques, a negotiable instrument indorsed in blank is payable to the bearer thereof even although originally payable to order.

Conversion of indorsement in blank into indorsement in full.

55. If a negotiable instrument, after having been indorsed in blank, is indorsed in full, the amount of it cannot be claimed from the indorser in full, except by the person to whom it has been indorsed in full, or by one who derives title through such person.

Indorsement for part of sum due.

56. No writing on a negotiable instrument is valid for the purpose of negotiation if such writing purports to transfer only a part of the amount appearing to be due on the instrument, but, where such amount has been partly paid, a note to that effect may be indorsed on the instrument, which may then be negotiated for the balance.

NOTES.

Sec. 56.—S. 56 does not prohibit the transfer of the balance due under a promissory note. It only prohibits a transfer of a portion only of the sum due upon it. 44 I.C. 264.

57. The legal representative of a deceased person cannot negotiate by delivery only a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque payable to order and indorsed by the deceased but not delivered.

Instrument obtained by unlawful means or for unlawful consideration.

58. When a negotiable instrument has been lost or has been obtained from any maker, acceptor or holder thereof by means of an offence or fraud, or for an unlawful consideration, no possessor or indorsee who claims through the person who found or so obtained the instrument is entitled to receive the amount due thereon from such maker, acceptor or holder, or from any party prior to such holder, unless such possessor or indorsee is, or some person through whom he claims was, a holder thereof in due course.

Instrument acquired after dishonour or when overdue.

OF PRESENTMENT.

Presentment for acceptance.

61. A bill of exchange payable after sight must, if no time or place is specified therein for presentment, be presented to the drawee thereof for acceptance, if he can, after reasonable search, be found, by a person entitled to demand acceptance, within a reasonable time after it is drawn, and in business hours on a business day. In default of such presentment, no party thereto is liable thereon to the person making such default.

If the drawee cannot, after reasonable search, be found, the bill is dishonoured.

If the bill is directed to the drawee at a particular place, it must be presented at that place; and if at the due date for presentment he cannot, after reasonable search, be found there, the bill is dishonoured.

Presentment of promissory note for sight.

62. A promissory note, payable at a certain period after sight, must be presented to the maker thereof for sight (if he can, after reasonable search, be found) by a person entitled to demand payment, within a reasonable time after it is made and in business hours on a business day. In default of such presentment, no party thereto is liable thereon to the person making such default.

Drawee's time for deliberation.

63. The holder must, if so required by the drawee of a bill of exchange presented to him for acceptance, allow the drawee [2][forty-eight] hours (exclusive of public holidays) to consider whether he will accept it.

Presentment for payment.

64. Promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques must be presented for payment to the maker, acceptor or drawee thereof respectively, by or on behalf of the holder as hereinafter provided. In default of such presentment, the other parties thereto are not liable thereon to such holder.

[1][Where authorized by agreement or usage, a presentment through the post office by means of a registered letter is sufficient.]

Exception.—Where a promissory note is payable on demand and is not payable at a specified place, no presentment is necessary in order to charge the maker thereof.

Sec. 63.—Ss. 63 and 83 of the Negotiable Instruments Act regulate the condition under which a presentment for acceptance is valid and consequences of complying with these conditions, and have no application to hundi payable on demand. 1923 A. 345. Even bankruptcy or death of the party or the loss of the bill or the note does not excuse non-presentment. NOTES.

exemption of the acceptor from liability but the exemption of other parties to the hundis. 1930 A.L.J. 818=1930 A. 648. Presentment for payment is necessary to make the indorser of a promissory note payable on demand liable to the indorsee. 1930 M.W.N. 1232. S. 64 absolves from liability all parties except the maker of a promissory note, acceptor of bill of exchange and drawee of a cheque. One of the parties so absolved is the drawer of the bill of exchange. The principle on which this distinction is based is merely that "the maker, accepter or drawee" are the principal debtors, whereas the others are only sureties. On non-presentation of the hundi to the drawee for payment, the drawer is absolved from liability to the holder of the hundi. If the original is lost it is the holder's duty to present the duplicate of the hundi for payment. The loss of a bill or note does not absolve the party who lost it from making an application for payment when it becomes due and to give notice of dishonour to all parties. On default in presentment, the holder of a hundi is bound to lose his remedy against the drawer as well as the endorser. The holder therefore cannot urge the loss as any excuse for non-presentment of the duplicate of the hundi and still claim his remedy against the drawer. 167 I.C. 907= 1936 Nag. 260. A discharge of the principal is a discharge of the surety; the contract or engagement of the surety being but an accessory to the principal's agreement must terminate with it. When as a result of non-presentment of a Hundi to the drawee, the principal debtor, is relieved of his obligation, so will the surety, the drawer of the liability. 167 I.C. 907=1936 Nag. 260. "Other parties" in S. 64 mean parties other than the holder. 59 I.C. 604. In the case of a promissory note the words "the other parties thereto" do not mean parties other than the maker of the promissory note, for in S. 69, Negotiable Instruments Act, it is specifically laid down that a promissory note made payable at a specified place must, in order to charge the maker thereof, be presented for payment at that place. 1935 Pesh. 132. Under the exception to S. 64, where the promissory note is payable on demand and at a specified place presentment is necessary in order to charge the promisor, but where the promisor makes a part-payment on account of the amount due such presentment is not necessary. 1933 L. 133=34 P.L.R. 804; 1935 Pesh. 132. In a case where the drawee and drawer of a hundi are the same, presentation for payment is not necessary, for no question of damage can arise as the facts are all known to the person drawing it. 44 A. 554=20 A.L.J. 437. (See also 8 Lah.L.J. 604, cited under S. 76.) A mere demand for the money does not amount to presentment of the note; the holder must exhibit the note and offer to hand it over on receiving payment. 1935 Pesh. 132. No dishonour can possibly occur unless the instrument is presented for payment by the holder to the drawee as required by the first part of S. 64 which is mandatory. The second part of the section provides the penalty for non-presentment by stating in unequivocal terms that in default of such presentment the other parties thereto are not liable thereon to such holder. 28 N.L.R. 134. Where the holder of hundi sues the drawer and the other parties to it without however having made any presentment of the hundi the onus is on him to prove that the drawer could not suffer damage by such non-presentation. 39 A. 364=39 I.C. 649. See also 1935 L. 623; 48 I.C. 364=41 A. 40; 8 N.L.R. 134.

"SPECIFIED PLACE."—A small town which is sufficient to indicate the address of the maker of a promissory note is a "specified place". 1936 Pesh. 202. Where a promissory note is made payable at a place which is the residential site of a revenue estate where the lender lives, the note is payable at a specified place. 38 P.L.R. 498=164 I.C. 1033=1936 L. 799.

Secs. 64 and 66.—Though the parties to a promissory note (payable three months after date) other than the maker are discharged from their liability by reason of default in making presentment for payment, the maker is nevertheless liable except when the note is payable at a specified place. 10 L. 755=1929 L. 240. See also 1931 L. 758; 1936 Nag. 260.

Secs. 64 and 69.—In view of the provisions of Ss. 64 and 69, presentment is necessary to charge the maker of a promissory note payable on demand, only if the note is payable at a specified place. 1937 L. 259=39 P. L.R. 958=18 Lah. 580.

Secs. 64 and 76 (d): BILL OF EXCHANGE—DRAWER AND DRAWEE SAME PERSON—NO PRESENTATION NECESSARY.—By reason of the word "respectively" used in S. 64 of the Act, the world "maker" has reference to promisory notes, the word "acceptor" to bills of exchange and the word "drawee" to cheques. If this view is correct, no presentation is necessary in the case of a bill of exchange if there is no acceptor of the bill. Even assuming that S. 64 applies to the case of a drawee of a bill of exchange, where the same person is the drawer as well as the drawee, S. 76 (d) can be invoked to dispense with the necessity of presentment for payment as against the drawer, as, from the nature of the case, the drawer could not suffer damage from the want of such presentment. 148 I.C. 1167=11 O.W.N, 660=1934 O. 254. See also 1935 L. 623.

Instrument payable at specified place.

70. A promissory note or bill of exchange not made payable as mentioned in sections 68 and 69, must be presented for payment at the place of business (if any), or at the usual residence, of the maker, drawee or acceptor thereof, as the case may be.

Presentment where no exclusive place specified.

Where the drawer of a hundi is also the drawee, presentment for payment is unnecessary. This rule however does not apply in the case of the indorser of a hundi. 1932 N. 55. See also 1926 L. 328; 99 I.C. 875=1927 L. 72.

Sec. 68.—No presentment is valid unless it is made after the bill had matured. 87 I.C. 488=47 A. 572.

Secs. 68 and 69.—S. 69 discharges the maker of a pro-note, if a proper presentment is not made to him at the place specified in the pro-note, unless S. 76 (d) comes in to relieve the holder against the effect of S. 69, and if no damage could have occurred by the non-presentment. It is open, however, to the maker to prove that damage had been caused to him by the non-presentment and that consequently the holder is not entitled to take advantage of the provisions of S. 76 (d) (1935 Pesh. 132, Foll.) 1936 Pesh. 202. "Specified place" in S. 69 of the Negotiable Instruments Act means a place so particularised that the promisee can know where he must present the instrument for payment. A promissory note which provides for the money under it being paid "at Poona, Bombay or elsewhere" is not a note falling under S. 69; it is not one payable at a "specified place", and so no presentment for payment is necessary. 60 B. 796=38 Bom.L.R. 395=1936 B. 218. But see 1937 L. 259. A city, town or village at large may be taken to be a specified place within the meaning of Ss. 64 and 69, but its presentment is only necessary, or indeed reasonably possible, if the maker has his residence or place of business there. In the absence of such residence or place of business the mere possession of the promissory note by the promisee in the city, town or village mentioned would be sufficient. 18 Lah. 580=39 P.L.R. 958=1937 Lah. 259. See also 39 P.L.R. 765=1937 Lah. 892. (See also notes under S. 86, supra).

Secs. 69 and 76.—S. 69 discharges the maker of a hundi if a proper presentment is not made to him at the place specified in the hundi unless S. 76 (d) comes in to relieve the holder against the effect of S. 69 and if no damage could have occurred by the non-presentment. It is open however to the maker to prove that damage had been caused to him by the non-presentment and that consequently the holder is not entitled to take advantage of the provisions of S. 76 (d). Where the drawer and the drawee are one and the same person, no question of damage to the drawer arises on account of the non-presentation on the due date. 195 I.C. 185=1941 Pesh. 45. See also 1939 Lah. 225.

Sec. 70.—The general principle that a debtor must find out the creditor and make the payment due to him as the latter's place of business or residence is not applicable to the case of a negotiable instrument. The place where the maker of a promissory note resides or carries on business is the only place where a suit on the note can be instituted. 155 I.C. 953=1935 N. 144.

Secs. 70 and 64.—No presentment is necessary in the case of a promissory note which is not payable at a specified place, when the suit

Presentment when maker, etc., has no known place of business or residence.

72. [1][Subject to the provisions of section 84], a cheque must, in order to charge the drawer, be presented at the bank upon which it is drawn before the relation between the drawer and his banker has been altered to the prejudice of the drawer.

Presentment of cheque to charge drawer.

73. A cheque must, in order to charge any person except the drawer, be presented within a reasonable time after delivery thereof by such person.

Presentment of cheque to charge any other person.

74. Subject to the provisions of section 31, a negotiable instrument payable on demand must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after it is received by the holder.

Presentment of instrument payable on demand.

75. Presentment for acceptance or payment may be made to the duly authorised agent of the drawee, maker or acceptor, as the case may be, or, where the drawee, maker or acceptor has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee.

Presentment by or to agent, representative of deceased or assignee of insolvent.

[2][75-A. Delay in presentment [2][for acceptance or payment] is excused if the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, presentment must be made within a reasonable time.]

Excuse for delay in presentment for acceptance or payment.

76. No presentment for payment is necessary, and the instrument is dishonoured at the due date for presentment, in any of the following cases:—

When presentment unnecessary.

if the instrument being payable at his place of business, he closes such place on a business day during the usual business hours, or

Sec. 74.—S. 74 should not be applied with extreme stringency with respect to an instrument intended to be a continuing security. 39 I.C. 205=2 C.W.N. 479. Where, in a suit on a promissory note, the executant pleads that payment has been made, the drawer cannot suffer damage from want of presentation of the note as required by S. 74, and therefore no presentation for payment is necessary under S. 76 (d). 39 P.L.R. 138=1937 L. 58.

Sec. 76.—[See also cases under S. 64, supra.] Presentment of hundi is not necessary, where the drawee has no residence or place of business or a known address at the place at which the hundi is due and on the date on which the hundi is due, nor is he to be found personally present there on that date. So also, presentment is not necessary under S. 76 (b) as against the party sought to be charged therewith, if he has engaged to pay notwithstanding non-presentment. 187 I.C. 650=1939 Lah. 225. The acceptor of a bill of exchange is entitled to set-off on the due date against the payee and pay only the balance. 35 I.C. 628=18 Bom.L.R. 689. A mere demand of money does not amount to a presentment for payment. In order to comply with the law the holder must exhibit the bill to the person from whom he demands payment and offer to deliver it on payment. 55 I.C. 610=1 L. 262. engagement to pay notwithstanding non-presentment: 87 I.C. 488=47 A. 572.

Sec. 76 (b).—A promise to pay within the meaning of S. 76 (b) need not be expressed so long as it is clearly deducible from the language employed by the parties or their conduct. 187 I.C. 650=1939 Lah. 225. An endorsement by the notary public on a negotiable instrument to the effect that "Endorsers state if drawer does not pay will pay at the request of the manager" imports a promise to pay by the endorser within the meaning of S. 76 (b). 187 I.C. 650=1939 Lah. 225.

Sec. 76 (c).—See 34 P.L.R. 804=1933 L. 133.

Sec. 76 (d).—Throughout the Act, a clear distinction has been made between the words "maker" and "drawer", the former word being used in a more general sense as applying to promissory notes, negotiable instruments and cheques, while the word "drawer" is restricted to bills of exchange or cheques only, and is nowhere used in connection with promissory notes. Therefore the operation of cl. (d) of S. 76 is limited to bills of exchange and cheques only and does not extend to promissory notes. 1937 L. 259=18 L. 580=1937 L. 259; 1937 L. 892; 1936 Pesh. 202; 1941 Pesh. 45. Though the plaintiff in a suit on a hundi fails to prove presentation as alleged by him, he could nevertheless show that the case was one in which no presentation was necessary. 1922 A. 422. See also 44 A. 554; 145 I.C. 208 =1933 L. 97. S. 76 (d) applies to a case where the drawer has no funds with the drawee at the time the bill is being drawn or when it should have been presented, as also to a case where the drawer has no reasonable expectation that the drawee will accept for his accommodation. 1935 L. 413. Presentation on the exact date of the maturity of the hundi is not necessary when the drawer and the drawee are one and the same person. In such a case, no question of damage arises on account of the non-presentation on the due date. 8 Lah.L.J. 604=28 Punj.L.R. 24; 27 Punj.L.R. 75=1926 L. 328; 99 I.C. 875=1927 L. 72. See also 1932 N. 55. Where the drawer and drawee are the same person no presentment on due date is necessary, because the drawer cannot suffer damage for want of presentation. No presentment is therefore necessary in the case of a hundi drawn on self in a shahjog form and payable to a respectable person at a particular place. 187 I.C. 650=1939 Lah. 225. See also 1941 Pesh 45. Where no hardship is shown in the case of a note which has not passed into other hands but is still in the hands of the drawee, it is not open to the drawer to contend that he would suffer damage for want of presentation, especially when drawer admits execution of the note, and acknowledges that the money has passed, 1936 C. 489=166 I.C. 747. See also 1939 Lah. 225. The word "drawer" in S. 76 (d) includes the maker of a promiseory note and the definition of "drawer" in S. 7 is not exhaustive. 37 P.L.R. 31=1935 Lah. 153; 1936 Pesh. 202. But see 1937 L. 892, infra. The word 'drawer' as used in Cl. (d) of sec. 76, does not include the 'maker' of a pronote. 39 P.L.R. 765=1937 L 892.

CHAPTER VI.

OF PAYMENT AND INTEREST.

78. Subject to the provisions of section 82, clause (c), payment of the amount due on a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque must, in order to discharge the maker or acceptor, be made to the holder of the instrument.

To whom payment should be made.

NOTES.

Secs. 76 (c) and 64, Excep.—Under the exception to S. 64, where the promissory note is payable on demand and at a specified place, presentment is neeessary in order to charge the promisor, but where the promisor makes a part-payment on account of the amount due, such presentment is not necessary. 1933 L. 133. See qlso 148 I.C. 1167=11 O.W.N. 660=1934 O. 254 (noted under S. 64 and 76, supra).

Sec. 78: RIGHT TO SUE ON PROMISSORY NOTE.—No one can maintain a suit on a promissory note except the holder thereof. 35 C.W.N. 53. See also 15 N.L.J. 45. It may be that the suit can be maintained by the real payee if it had been based on the consideration and not on the note. 35 C.W.N. 53. See also 123 I.C. 395. Where promissory note is executed in favour of one person in lieu of consideration advanced by another, the promisor cannot pay money to the latter and be rid of his liability. 1930 A.L.J. 1509; 1935 O.W.N. 269=1935 O. 278; 149 I.C. 1210=39 L.W. 520=1934 M. 391. S. 78 of the Negotiable Instruments Act should be strictly construed, and a valid discharge of promissory note can be given only by the payee thereof or the holder of the note. There is no such thing for this purpose as a benami promissory note taken in the name of one person but really meant for the benefit of another. No decree on a promissory note can be passed in favour of a person on the ground that he is the beneficial owner of the amount due under a promissory note, when he is neither the payee nor the holder of the promissory note in question. 50 L.W. 917=1940 M. 90=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 812. The object of S. 78 of the Act is to secure a valid discharge to the maker of the note. If the person who is ostensibly the holder of the promissory note is made a party to the suit and in his presence it is alleged that the plaintiff is the real beneficiary and that the ostensible holder was not the real holder of the instrument and he can prove his allegation by evidence or by the admission of the ostensible holder of the instrument, there is no reason why such a suit should not be maintained. 11 Pat.L.T. 255=1930 P. 313; 147 I.C. 726=15 Pat.L.T. 102=1934 P. 85. See also 140 I.C. 572=11 P. 616=1932 P. 346. But see contra 35 C.W.N. 53; 41 L.W. 281=1935 M. 312=68 M.L.J. 713. See also 1930 A.L.J. 1509. When an indorsement bears out no accountability, it is not an indorsement for collection merely and the holder alone can sue on the note. 23 I.C. 545. Each payee of promissory note is not entitled to bring a separate suit for the recovery of his own share. But one or more payee or payees can give a discharge without the concurrence of the others. 36 M. 544=24 M.L.J. 333 (F.B.). The holder in the section must be taken to mean all the payees jointly and not one or more of them. 36 M, 544. See also 1937 Rang.L.R. 1=1937 Rang. 227 (F.B.). Although under S. 78 payments must be made to the holder of the promissory note, yet if the holder who is the manager of a firm elects to treat the payment to his firm as the payment to himself, the payment is payment to the holder within the meaning of S. 78 and the debtor is discharged from the liability under the promissory note. 1936 C. 315. Where a promissory note was executed in the name of one of the partners of a partnership, a suit on the promissory note is maintainable by the partnership itself. 105 I.C. 549. The holder of a pronote is entitled to realise the debt, although the consideration had really come from a firm of which the holder was a member, for the consideration need not come from the promisee. 1932 L. 620 (2). A promissory note can only be discharged by payment to the holder of the note. The Court should not allow evidence to show that the promissory note was not really executed in the plaintiff's favour or evidence that the note has been discharged by payment to the person really interested. 49 A. 457=100 I.C. 703=1927 A. 463. But see 105 I.C. 549=1928 C. 148.

PROMISSORY NOTE EXECUTED IN FAVOUR OF ONE PARTNER—RIGHT OF ANOTHER PARTNER TO SUE.—The holder of a promissory note is the only man who can give a valid discharge within the meaning of S. 78 of the Act. Therefore, one partner cannot sue on a promissory note which was executed in favour of another partner. 152 I.C. 410=1934 R. 280.

PROMISSORY NOTE ALLOTTED TO SHARE OF PERSON BY AWARD—RIGHT OF SUCH PERSON TO SUE ON NOTE WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT.—A promissory note was allotted to the share of a person in a partition by an award. There was a further provision that the promisee was to endorse and hand over the note to the person. Held, that the award operated as a transfer inter alia, of the promissory note and as such he was entitled to maintain a suit on it, even though it was not endorsed. The further provision did not operate so as to make the transfer conditional on such endorsement or postpone the effect of the transfer till such endorsement was actually made. This provision was an additional and a further provision made with the object mentioned therein, namely, in order to facilitate the collection of the amount due under the promissory note. 156 I.C. 335=1935 M. 473.

Secs. 78 and 80: PROMISSORY NOTE—ASSIGNMENT—ASSIGNEE'S RIGHT TO SUE IN HIS OWN NAME, WITHOUT ENDORSEMENT.—See 61 C. 425=38 C.W.N. 465=1934 C. 549 (noted under S. 8, supra).

Secs. 78 and 32: BENAMI ASSIGNMENT OF PRONOTE—RELEASE OF MAKER BY REAL OWNER—ASSIGNEE NOT ENTITLED TO SUE ON NOTE.—Negotiable instruments can be enforced by an assignee only when the assignment has been effected in accordance with the provisions of the

79. When interest at a specified rate is expressly made payable on a promissory note or bill of exchange, interest shall be calculated at the rate specified, on the amount of the principal money due thereon, from the date of the instrument, until tender or realization of such amount, or until such date after the institution of a suit to recover such amount as the Court directs.

Interest when rate specified.

80. When no rate of interest is specified in the instrument, interest on the amount due thereon shall, [1][notwithstanding any agreement relating to interest between any parties to the instrument], be calculated at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date at which the same ought to have been paid by the party charged until tender or realization of the amount due thereon, or until such date after the institution of a suit to recover such amount as the Court directs.

Interest when no rate specified.

Explanation.—When the party charged is the indorser of an instrument dishonoured by non-payment, he is liable to pay interest only from the time that he receives notice of the dishonour.

NOTES.

Act, and transfer of the rights of a party under a note to order to some one else, unless effected by operation of law, must be effected by indorsement and delivery and not otherwise. Where, therefore, a pronote is assigned by the real owner and the benamidar executes an acknowledgment admitting that he was merely a benamidar and the assignor was real beneficiary, the assignee is not entitled to sue on the pronote, specially when the payee of the note has expressly released the maker. No consideration is required for such a release and the fact that it was collusive is immaterial. 13 P. 655=15 P. 576=1934 Pat. 382.

Sec. 79: SCOPE.—In a suit on a promissory note, which expressly specifies the rate of interest payable, the Court cannot reduce such rate to be paid up to a date fixed by it after the institution of the suit, unless it is exorbitant or penal or otherwise offends against the law. At the same time, it is not necessary that the Court should allow the stipulated rate up to the date of realisation. The requirements of S. 79 of the Negotiable Instruments Act are sufficiently complied with, if interest at the rate specified is allowed up to the date of decree of the trial Court and thereafter at 6 per cent. per annum up to the date of realisation. 154 I.C. 470. Where a promissory note mentions specific rate of interest evidence is not admissible to prove an agreement to pay a different rate of interest. S. 79 provides that when a rate is provided, interest should be calculated at the rate specified. No question of awarding interest by way of damages can arise. 1941 N.L.J. 388=1941 Nag. 271.

Secs. 79 and 80.—This Act must be read with other enactments passed subsequent thereto. If under the Usurious Loans Act which was passed after this Act but before the suit promissory note was executed, the Court has a discretion to reduce interest in a proper case, there is nothing in S. 79 of this Act which excludes such a discretion. 1931 A. L.J. 645. The operation of S. 80 of the Act is not excluded by O. 37, R. 2 of the C. P. Code. On the other hand, O. 37, R. 2 makes S. 79 or 80, as the case may be, specifically applicable to a case filed under O. 37 of the C. P. Code. 56 M. 398=64 M.L.J. 117. S. 80 does not bar the recovery of the interest which the debtor subsequent to the execution of the promissory note agrees to pay in consideration of the creditor not pressing his demand immediately. 5 Pat.L.J. 536=58 I.C. 265. See also 35 I.C. 431=1 Pat.L.J. 71. Sec. 80.—Once it is held that a document is not a promissory note the provisions of S. 80 cease to be applicable. 13 L. 516. Sec. 85.—See 50 B. 118=28 Bom.L.R. 226=1926 B. 262. The duty and authority of a Bank to pay a cheque drawn on it by its customer are determined by countermand of payment. If the Bank negligently pays the amount of the cheque thereafter, it cannot debit the customer's account with that amount. Such payment is not a payment made in due course, so as to discharge the Bank. The Bank is not protected by its current account rule which states that "the Bank will register instructions from the drawer regarding cheques lost, stolen, etc., but cannot guarantee constituents against loss in such cases in event of a cheque being paid." The rule is intended, to apply to events happening prior to the time when a cheque reaches the Bank and is presented for payment, not to negligence committed by the Bank after presentation. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 578=1941 Cal. 110. Where owing to the negligence of the employees of a Bank payment was made in respect of a forged cheque, the Bank cannot escape the liability to make good the amount, by relying on the circumstance that the customer was negligent in leaving his cheque book at a place to which others had access. It was the duty of the Bank to verify the signature of its customers. I.L.R. (1938) All. 634=1938 A.L.J. 504=1938 All. 374.

Secs. 85-A, 10 and 16 : PAYMENT IN DUE COURSE—WHAT AMOUNTS TO.—Under S. 16 if the endorser signs his name only, the endorsement is said to be in blank and such an endorsement makes the negotiable instrument payable to the bearer. The endorsement must however be a genuine and valid endorsement. A bank issued a draft drawn on its branch for payment of certain sum to H and G. H alone appeared at the branch of the bank for the first time and presented the draft for payment. At that time the draft purported to be endorsed in blank on reverse by both H and G. The manager of the branch at first refused to cash the draft as he did not know H. Subsequently however he paid the amount when one L who had an account with the bank identified H and H guaranteed the signature of G. The manager took no steps to have the signature of G confirmed or identified by any one. Held, that in these circumstances the payment of the draft could not be Parties not consenting discharged by qualified or limited acceptance.

Explanation.—An acceptance is qualified—

(b) where it undertakes the payment of part only of the sum ordered to be paid;

(c) where, no place of payment being specified on the order, it undertakes the payment at a specified place, and not otherwise or elsewhere; or where, a place of payment being specified in the order, it undertakes the payment at some other place and not otherwise or elsewhere; said to have been made in good faith and without negligence. The payment therefore was not in due course within the meaning of Ss. 85-A and 10 and the bank was liable for the payment. 40 P.L.R. 863=1938 Lah. 520.

Sec. 86 (b).—See 35 I.C. 628.

Sec. 87: MATERIAL ALTERATION.—The question whether the alteration is a material one depends on whether it changes in any way the rights and liabilities of the parties thereto. It is immaterial whether the change is prejudicial or beneficial. And an endorsement postponing the payment which was payable on demand and altering the rate of interest constitutes material alteration. In such cases the actual position of the words written is immaterial. 162 I.C. 358=1936 R. 136. Where the instrument appears to be altered, it is incumbent upon the person suing on the instrument to show that the alteration was not improperly made. 41 P.L.R. 356=1939 Lah. 31. Where it was the common intention of parties that interest was to be paid, but owing to an accidental omission the Sarkhat did not contain any such provision, an alteration to that effect made without reference to the debtors does not make the instrument void, oral evidence to prove the existence of agreement to pay interest is admissible, for proviso (2) to S. 92 of the Evidence Act makes any separate oral agreement as to any matter on which the document is silent, capable of proof and there is no prohibition in that respect. Further S. 87 itself postulates the possibility of such an agreement being proved by oral evidence. 1939 A.L.J. 46=1939 All. 248. The alteration referred to in S. 87 refers to a deliberate alteration by a party to the instrument or by one on whom his interest had devolved and not by a stranger, particularly when no conduct can be imputed to the party in whose favour the alteration has been effected or from which either his complicity, laches or negligence may be inferred. A subsequent alteration by a stranger would not deprive the person who had advanced the money or to whom the money had become payable subsequently on account of the promisee's death, of his remedy to bring a suit for the money advanced to the maker by way of loan. S. 87 would not therefore stand in the way of a minor plaintiff, who was a minor on the date of the alteration in question, getting relief on the original cause of action. 50 L. W. 746=1940 Mad. 62=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 686. S. 87 would only apply to cases of fraudulent alteration by a party and to cases where due to his negligence it becomes possible for a stranger to make the alteration. The holder of a promissory note is not affected by a material alteration in the instrument when it has been made by a meddlesome or maliciously minded stranger and there has been no fraud or laches on the Acceptor or indorser bound notwithstanding previous alteration.

88. An acceptor or indorser of a negotiable instrument is bound by his acceptance or indorsement notwithstanding any previous alteration of the instrument.

Payment of instrument on which alteration is not apparent.

The rule has now been well established that any alteration or change in an instrument which "causes it to speak a different language in legal effect from that which it originally spoke, which changes the legal identity or the character of the instrument either in its terms or the relation of the parties to it," is a material alteration or change. An alteration in the date of the instrument is a material alteration within the meaning of S. 87. Extinguishment of rights of action on bill in acceptors hands.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF NOTICE OF DISHONOUR.

Dishonour by non-acceptance.

91. A bill of exchange is said to be dishonoured by non-acceptance when the drawee, or one of several drawees not being partners, makes default in acceptance upon being duly required to accept the bill, or where presentment is excused and the bill is not accepted.

Where the drawee is incompetent to contract, or the acceptance is qualified, the bill may be treated as dishonoured.

Dishonour by non-payment.

92. A promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is said to be dishonoured by non-payment when the maker of the note, acceptor of the bill or drawee of the cheque makes default in payment upon being duly required to pay the same.

By and to whom notice should be given.

93. When a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder thereof, or some party thereto who remains liable thereon, must give notice that the instrument has been so dishonoured to all other parties whom the holder seeks to make severally liable thereon, and to some one of several parties whom he seeks to make jointly liable thereon.

Nothing in this section renders it necessary to give notice to the maker of the dishonoured promissory note or the drawee or acceptor of the dishonoured bill of exchange or cheque.

Mode in which notice may be given.

94. Notice of dishonour may be given to a duly authorized agent of the person to whom it is required to be given, or, where he has died, to his legal representative, or, where he has been declared an insolvent, to his assignee; may be oral or written; may, if written, be sent by post; and may be in any form; but it must inform the party to whom it is given, either in express terms or by reasonable intendment, that the instrument has been dishonoured, and in what

NOTES.

Sec. 91.—Where there is no allegation that the presentment was excused, the plaintiff must prove that the drawee was required to accept the bill and that he dishonoured it by non-acceptance. 21 L.W. 210=86 I.C. 576. See also 86 I.C. 357.

Sec. 92.—The provisions of Ss. 91, 92 and 93 dealing with dishonour by non-payment are applicable to bills of exchange payable at sight or on demand. 10 L.W. 39=52 I.C. 370. In absence of notice of dishonour, the endorsee of a promissory note is not liable unless a special contract to the contrary is proved. 152 I.C. 129=40 L.W. 666.

Sec. 93.—Notice of dishonour should be given to the indorser of a promissory note payable on demand in order to make him liable on the instrument. 1930 M.W.N. 1232. Where a cheque is dishonoured, it is incumbent on the endorsee to serve the endorser with notice of such dishonour and the failure to do so discharges the endorser from all liability, and the endorsee could not sue even on the original consideration. 38 P.L.R. 240=1936 L. 796. There is no provision in the Negotiable Instruments Act making the notice of dishonour compulsory where a hundi payable at sight has been dishonoured. 1937 Pesh. 103.

Secs. 93 and 98.—The rule as to notice of dishonour does not admit of any departure except in the cases enumerated in S. 98. 1 L. 262=55 I.C. 610.

Sec. 93 and 95.—Where the payee of a promissory note practises fraud in endorsing it over to another after it has become barred by limitation, fabricating an endorsement of payment so as to make it appear that it is not barred, he is not entitled to plead in defence to a suit against him that he is entitled to notice of dishonour. There is no necessity for notice of dishonour in such a case. 50 L.W. 649=1940 Mad. 85=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 760.

way, and that he will be held liable thereon; and it must be given within a reasonable time after dishonour, at the place of business or (in case such party has no place of business) at the residence of the party for whom it is intended.

If the notice is duly directed and sent by post and miscarries, such miscarriage does not render the notice invalid.

Party receiving must transmit notice of dishonour.

95. Any party receiving notice of dishonour must, in order to render any prior party liable to himself, give notice of dishonour to such party within a reasonable time, unless such party otherwise receives due notice as provided by section 93.

Agent for presentment.

96. When the instrument is deposited with an agent for presentment, the agent is entitled to the same time to give notice to his principal as if he were the holder giving notice of dishonour, and the principal is entitled to a further like period to give notice of dishonour.

When party to whom notice given is dead.

97. When the party to whom notice of dishonour is despatched is dead, but the party despatching the notice is ignorant of his death, the notice is sufficient.

When notice of dishonour is unnecessary.

98. No notice of dishonour is necessary—

(a) when it is dispensed with by the party entitled thereto;

(b) in order to charge the drawer when he has countermanded payment;

(c) when the party charged could not suffer damage for want of notice;

(d) when the party entitled to notice cannot after due search be found; or the party bound to give notice is, for any other reason, unable without any fault of his own to give it;

(e) to charge the drawers when the acceptor is also a drawer;

(f) in the case of a promissory note which is not negotiable;

(g) when the party entitled to notice, knowing the facts, promises unconditionally to pay the amount due on the instrument.

CHAPTER IX.

OF NOTING AND PROTEST.

Noting..

99. When a promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may cause such dishonour to be noted by a notary public upon the instrument, or upon a paper attached thereto, or partly upon each.

Such note must be made within a reasonable time after dishonour, and must specify the date of dishonour, the reason, if any, assigned for such dishonour, or, if the instrument has not been expressly dishonoured, the reason why the holder treats it as dishonoured, and the notary's charges.

NOTES.

Sec. 98.—This section contains the exceptions to the general rule requiring notice of dishonour and the person relying upon any such exception must establish all the requirements thereof. 1 L. 262=55 I.C. 610. Undue omission to give due notice of dishonour discharges the persons entitled to such a notice. 116 I.C. 887=1929 L. 577. Notice of dishonour—Failure to give—No damage—Onus of proof. 1932 N. 55.

Sec. 98 (b).—It is not necessary that the actual words "countermanding payment" should be used; it is sufficient if the words used clearly show that the drawer does not want payment to be made in accordance with the tenor of the hundi. The question of countermanding payment is a question of fact. 163 I. C. 743=1936 M. 506.

Sec. 98 (e)—The use of the singular, "drawer" followed by the plural "drawers" in S. 98 shows that if the acceptor is one of the drawers, both the drawers would be liable, even though no notice of dishonour has been given. 51 A. 530=1929 A. 254.

100. When the promissory note or bill of exchange has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause such dishonour to be noted and certified by a notary public. Such certificate is called a protest.

Protest.

When the acceptor of a bill of exchange has become insolvent, or his credit has been publicly impeached, before the maturity of the bill, the holder may, within a reasonable time, cause a notary public to demand better security of the acceptor, and on its being refused may, within a reasonable time, cause such facts to be noted and certified as aforesaid. Such certificate is called a protest for better security.

Protest for better security.

101. A protest under section 100 must contain—

Contents of protest.

(a) either the instrument itself, or a literal transcript of the instrument and of everyhing written or printed thereupon;

(b) the name of the person for whom and against whom the instrument has been protested;

(c) a statement that payment or acceptance, or better security, as the case may be, has been demanded of such person by the notary public; the terms of his answer, if any, or a statement that he gave no answer or that he could not be found;

(d) when the note or bill has been dishonoured, the place and time of dishonour, and, when better security has been refused, the place and time of refusal;

(e) the subscription of the notary public making the protest;

(f) in the event of an acceptance for honour or of a payment for honour, the name of the person by whom, of the person for whom, and the manner in which, such acceptance or payment was offered and effected.

[1][A notary public may make the demand mentioned in clause (c) of this section either in person or by his clerk or, where authorized by agreement or usage, by registered letter.]

102. When a promissory note or bill of exchange is required by law to be protested, notice of such protest must be given instead of notice of dishonour, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions; but the notice may be given by the notary public who makes the protest.

Notice of protest.

103. All bills of exchange drawn payable at some other place than the place mentioned as the residence of the drawee, and which are dishonoured by non-acceptance may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment in the place specified for payment, unless paid before or at maturity.

Protest for non-payment after dishonour by non-acceptance.

104. Foreign bills of exchange must be protested for dishonour when such protest is required by the law of the place where they are drawn.

Protest of foreign bills.

CHAPTER X.

OF REASONABLE TIME.

Reasonable time.

105. In determining what is a reasonable time for presentment for acceptance or payment, for giving notice of dishonour and for noting, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument and the usual course of dealing with respect to similar instruments; and, in calculating such time, public holidays shall be excluded.

Reasonable time of giving notice of dishonour.

106. If the holder and the party to whom notice of dishonour is given carry on business or live (as the case may be) in different places, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched by the next post or on the day next after the day of dishonour.

If the said parties carry on business or live in the same place, such notice is given within a reasonable time if it is despatched in time to reach its destination on the day next after the day of dishonour.

Reasonable time for transmitting such notice.

107. A party receiving notice of dishonur, who seeks to enforce his right against a prior party, transmits the notice within a reasonable time if he transmits it within the same time after its receipt as he would have had to give notice if he had been the holder.

CHAPTER XI.

OF ACCEPTANCE AND PAYMENT FOR HONOUR AND REFERENCE IN CASE OF NEED.

Acceptance for honour.

108. When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or for better security, any person not being a party already liable thereon may, with the consent of the holder, by writing on the bill, accept the same for the honour of any party thereto. [1][* * *]

How acceptance for honour must be made.

109. A person desiring to accept for honour must [2][by writing on the bill under his hand], declare that he accepts under protest the protested bill for the honour of the drawer or of a particular indorser whom he names, or generally for honour. [3][* * *]

LEG. REF.

NOTES.

Sec. 105.—In considering the question of reasonable time, facts such as the distance at which persons live from each other, the course of dealings with respect to similar instruments, the nature of the instrument and all such other circumstances applicable to the case ought to be considered. But when these facts have been ascertained, the reasonableness of the time becomes a mixed question of law and fact. 116 I.C. 887=1929 L. 557=11 L. 34.

Sec. 106.—A perusal of S. 106 of the Act leaves no doubt that the notice of dishonour should be given as soon as the bill is dishonoured. It is the duty of the holder to prove that the notice was given, and if not given, he was excused from doing so for any of the reasons specified in S. 98. The omission to give due notice of dishonour has the effect of discharging the persons who are entitled to such notice. 11 L. 34=116 I.C. 887=1929 L. 577. A delay of 27 days in giving notice of dishonour is unreasonable delay which has the effect of absolving the drawers from liability. 1929 Lah. 577.

Acceptance not satisfying for whose honour it is made.

110. Where the acceptance does not express for whose honour it is made, it shall be deemed to be made for the honour of the drawer.

Liability of acceptor for honour.

111. An acceptor for honour binds himself to all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour he accepts to pay the amount of the bill if the drawee do not: and such party and all prior parties are liable in their respective capacities to compensate the acceptor for honour for all loss or damage sustained by him in consequence of such acceptance.

But an acceptor for honour is not liable to the holder of the bill unless it is presented (or in case the address given by such acceptor on the bill is a place other than the place where the bill is made payable), forwarded for presentment, not later than the day next after the day of its maturity.

When acceptor for honour cay be charged.

112. An acceptor for honour cannot be charged unless the bill has at its maturity been presented to the drawee for payment, and has been dishonoured by him, and noted or protested for such dishonour.

Payment for honour.

113. When a bill of exchange has been noted or protested for non-payment, any person may pay the same for the honour of any party liable to pay the same: provided that the person so paying [1][or his agent in that behalf] has previously declared before a notary public the party for whose honour he pays, and that such declaration has been recorded by such notary public.

Right of payer for honour.

[1]14. Any person so paying is entitled to all the rights, in respect of the bill, of the holder at the time of such payment, and may recover from the party for whose honour he pays all sums so paid with interest thereon and with all expenses properly incurred in making such payment.

Drawee in case of need.

115. Where a drawee in case of need is named in a bill of exchange, or in any indorsement thereon, the bill is not dishonoured until it has been dishonoured by such drawee.

Acceptance and payment without protest.

116. A drawee in case of need may accept and pay the bill of exchange without previous protest.

LEG. REF.

[1]These words were inserted by the Negaotible Instruments Act (II of 1885), S. 9.

NOTES.

Secs. 113 and 115.—S. 113 does not apply to a "drawee in case of need" in a bill of exchange. Where the vendor takes a bill of exchange to his own order, the property in the goods cannot pass to the purchaser until he accepts the bill and meets it on presentation. But when the purchaser accepts the bill and dishonours it on presentation the contract between him and the vendor comes to an end and thereafter when the bill is accepted and met on presentation by the "drawee in case of need" the property in the goods passes to the "drawee in case of need" unless the purchaser can show some new contract between him and the vendor. 1941 Rang. 270.

Sec. 115. NON-PRESENTMENT TO DRAWEE IN CASE OF NEED ABSOLVES DRAWER FROM LIABILITY. —S. 115 makes the presentment to the drawee in case of need obligatory on the holder, and the non-presentment of the bill to him absolves the drawer from liability. 116 I.C. 887=1929 L. 577.

Secs. 115 and 116.—The drawee in case of need of a bill of exchange cannot be made liable upon a bill which has never been accepted by him. When a bill of exchange has been duly accepted by the drawee in the first instance but is dishonoured by him when presented for payment at maturity, the holder cannot make the drawee in case of need, liable upon the bill unless he has previously presented the bill for acceptance to the drawee in case of need. 177 I.C. 484=40 Bom.L.R. 473=1938 Bom. 364.

CHAPTER XII.
OF COMPENSATION.

Rules as to compensation.

117. The compensation payable in case of dishonour of a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque, by any party liable to the holder or any indorsee, shall [1][* * *] be determined by the following rules:—

(a) the holder is entitled to the amount due upon the instrument, together wih the expenses properly incurred in presenting, noting and protesting it;

(b) when the person charged resides at a place different from that at which the instrument was payable, the holder is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places;

(c) an indorser who, being liable, has paid the amount due on the same is entitled to the amount so paid with interest at per centum per annum from the date of payment until tender or realization thereof, together with all expenses caused by the dishonour and payment;

(d) when the person charged and such indorser reside at different places, the indorser is entitled to receive such sum at the current rate of exchange between the two places;

(e) the party entitled to compensation may draw a bill upon the party liable to compensate him, payable at sight or on demand, for the amount due to him, together with all expenses properly incurred by him. Such bill must be accompanied by the instrument dishonoured and the protest thereof (if any. If such bill is dishonoured) the party dishonouring the same is liable to make compensation thereof in the same manner as in the case of the original bill.

CHAPTER XIII.
SPECIAL RULES OF EVIDENCE.

Presumptions as to negotiable instruments—

118. Until the contrary is proved, the following presumptions shall be made:—

LEG. REF.

[1]The words and brackets "(except in cases provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, S. 532)" have been omitted by Act XXX of 1926, S. 3.

NOTES.

Sec. 117: SPECIAL RULES OF EVIDENCE—SCOPE AND EFFECT OF—GENERAL LAW—HOW FAR MODIFIED.—The Act lays down certain special rules of evidence and certain presumptions and precludes certain pleas being raised in particular cases; but it cannot be said that beyond the scope of such rules or necessary implications therefrom, the applicability of the general principles of law or the ordinary rules of evidence is excluded. 1935 M. 181=68 M.L.J. 81 (F.B.)

Sec. 118: GENERAL.—The special rules of evidence laid down in S. 118 are intended to apply as between the parties to the instrument or those claiming under them. In other cases, the presumption can only be in terms enacted in S. 114 of the Evidence Act, ill. (c) which leaves it to the Court to apply the presumption or not according to circumstances. A suit instituted against the undivided sons of a Hindu promisor governed by the Mitakshara law, on a promissory note executed by him cannot be regarded as one against the heirs or representatives of the promisor, because it only seeks to enforce the Hindu Law theory of pious obligation, in respect of property which the sons have taken by survivorship, since the pious obligation can arise only on the assumption of the existence of a debt due by the father, the onus of proving the existence of the debt is on the creditor. He must therefore prove that the promissory note was supported by consideration; and he cannot invoke S. 118 to throw the onus on the sons. I.L.R. (1937) M. 299=1937 M. 182=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 543. Even the onus under S. 118 of the Negotiable Instruments Act need not always be discharged by direct evidence. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 543. The provisions of S. 118 do not affect the question with regard to the admissibility in evidence of a document which depends entirely upon the document as it stands. 90 I.C. 685=27 Bom.L.R. 1122. On this section, see 9 I.C. 79; 8 I.C. 796=12 C.L.J. 470; 5 I.C. 891; 20 B. 367; 2 I.C. 539; 1938 Pat. 612. The presumption as to receipt of full consideration arising from a debtor's signature on a promissory note can only be available against the debtor personally and cannot be invoked against the official receiver or a creditor in insolvency proceedings. 108 I.C. 147=1928 A. 380. Where the promissory note sued upon is not a negotiable instrument, there is no presumption under S. 118 that of consideration.

(a) that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration, and that every such instrument, when it has been accepted, endorsed, negotiated or transferred, was accepted, indorsed, negotiated or transferred for consideration;

NOTES.

it was made for consideration. 84 I.C. 866=6 L.L.J. 542; 13 P.L.T. 506=1932 P. 324. See also 146 I.C. 709=10 O.W.N. 839=1933 O. 394. It is true that under S. 118 there is a presumption of consideration for a promissory note, while in a suit to recover a debt it is for the plaintiff to prove the consideration. But in a suit on the debt. if a promissory note is evidence of the debt, the presumption would still arise. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 342=1940 Sind 217. Holder—Consideration — Presumption — Transferred from payee. 80 I.C. 741. Transferee of a tainted pro-note, if holder in due course—Burden of proof. 1928 M.W.N. 680. In a suit on a promissory note, the defendants contended that they had affixed their signature to a blank paper, that there was no cash consideration and that they had induced plaintiff to give evidence in a case by affixing their signature to the note. The Court thereupon cast the burden of proving consideration on the plaintiff. Held, that the Court erred in not taking into account the presumption under S. 118, Negotiable Instruments Act and in casting the onus on the plaintiff. 54 A. 375=1932 A. 164. A mere admission that the actual consideration was different from that described in the contract does not shift the burden of introducing evidence on to the payee. (1924 A. 256 and 15 C.P.L.R. 24, Foll.) I.L.R. 1936 N. 142=1936 N. 130.

Sec. 118, Cl. (a) : PRESUMPTION AS TO CONSIDERATION—SCOPE AND EXTENT.—It is no doubt true that the ordinary rule is that every negotiable instrument is to be presumed to be for consideration and the burden of proof rests on the defendant admitting execution to prove that it was not for consideration, but in a case where the parties go to trial on the question of want of consideration and the trial Court which hears the evidence and notes the demeanour of the witnesses forms an opinion against the plaintiff, the question as to any presumption of consideration passing under the instrument does not arise. Further, if the defence is minority at the time of the execution of the instrument and there are other suspicious circumstances, viz., the fact that the plaintiff has failed to produce his account books, although he admits that he keeps regular accounts, the presumption cannot be availed of. 11 O.W.N. 1589=1935 O. 41. See also 1935 A. 154. S. 118 is imperative and the Court is bound to draw the initial presumption that every negotiable instrument was made for consideration, when its execution is admitted. Where the plaintiff has led evidence in the first instance to prove the consideration for a promissory note and has failed to establish the passing of consideration, he can fall back on the initial presumption in his favour. But when the Court has after a consideration of the entire evidence recorded a clear finding one way or the other, then the finding is based not on a mere presumption but on the evidence, and has to be accepted in second appeal. 57 A 835=1935 A. 509 Under S. 118 the only presumption that can be raised is that a promissory note has been executed for consideration, i.e., that the amount for which it is executed was advanced. But the section does not raise the further presumption that the amount was advanced for legal necessity. The burden of proving legal necessity for the loan is on the payee. 155 I. C. 607=1935 N. 127. S. 118 (a) does not limit the presumption as to the passing of consideration only to cases of consideration as stated in the negotiable instrument. Where the instrument itself mentions cash payment as the consideration for it and that is also the case of the plaintiff at the hearing, it must not be taken to be without consideration within the meaning of S. 43 of the Act simply because the defendant has succeeded in demolishing the plaintiff's case, when it appears from the evidence on record that there was consideration in a different form. 46 C. W. N. 340. In suits on simple loans it is open to a Court to determine in every case whether person who denies consideration has succeeded in supporting his denial by such direct or circumstantial evidence which may be sufficient in itself to rebut the presumption laid down in S. 118 of the Act. Merely because the debtor is a profligate young man and the creditor is a money-lender, the presumption under S. 118 is not rebutted so as to shift the burden of proof on to the creditor. 1935 L. 599. Sec. 118 and Evidence Act, S. 114 Ill. (c) Explanation —Scope and effect of—Presumption as to consideration. See 1935 L. 599. The presumption that a pro-note was for consideration will not necessarily apply in a criminal trial. 59 I.C. 198=18 A.L.J. 1151. The initial presumption of consideration arising under S. 118, can be rebutted even by circumstantial evidence. 124 I. C. 717=1930 A. 568. Under S. 118 (a) if a pro-note is genuine, there is a presumption that there has been consideration and the onus of proving want of consideration is on the party who pleads want of consideration. 1934 M. 702=67 M.L.J. 658. It must be presumed that consideration passes when a hundi is drawn, unless evidence is given to the contrary. But if the plaintiff chose to open the case and lead evidence as to the passing of consideration which was disbelieved by the Court, no such presumption arises. 28 I. C. 390=13 A. L. J. 322. The mere existence of an antecedent debt is consideration within the meaning of S. 118. 19 I.C. 789=15 Bom.L.R. 333. There is a statutory presumption that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration. This throws the burden of proving failure of consideration upon the maker of the instrument and the burden is not shifted by the mere fact that part of the consideration is shown not to have been paid in cash as represented in the promissory note. 122 I.C. 383=1930 N. 187. The onus of

as to time of acceptance;

before the maturity;

as to time of transfer;

as to order of indorsements,

as to stamp;

(b) that every negotiable instrument bearing a date was made or drawn on such date;

(c) that every accepted bill of exchange was accepted within a reasonable time after its date and

(d) that every transfer of a negotiable instrument was made before its maturity;

(e) that the indorsements appearing upon a negotiable instrument were made in the order in which they appear thereon;

(f) that a lost promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque was duly stamped;

(g) that the holder of a negotiable instrument is a holder in due course: Provided that, where the instrument has been obtained from its lawful owner, or from any person in lawful custody thereof, by means of an offence or fraud, that holder is a holder in due course.

or has been obtained from the maker or acceptor thereof by means of an offence or fraud, or for unlawful consideration, the burden of proving that the holder is a holder in due course lies upon him.

119. In a suit upon an instrument which has been dishonoured, the Court proving want of consideration for a hundi is on the drawer, for there is a statutory presumption in favour of the passing of consideration of hundi. 58 I. C. 982=1 L. 429. Where the executant of a pro-note appeared to be a boy just emerged from minority without any ready money but with large expectation, the payee of the note should show that consideration passed. 31 I. C. 739 (20 B. 367; 29 M.L.J. 23, Foll.). The circumstances showing that the plaintiff did not pay the whole of consideration money of the promissory note shifts on him the burden of proving that the consideration money was paid in full. 30 I.C. 971=29 M. L. J. 236. See also 1933 L. 1029. Notwithstanding S. 118 of the Act, the burden of proving consideration for a promissory note executed by the insolvent is on the insolvent and not the Official Assignee. 26 S. L. R. 279 =1932 S. 197. A debtor who desires to show that there is nothing due on a promissory note executed by him, which is in the creditor's possession with no mark on it showing that it has been discharged, has a very heavy burden of proof. Even if there are a series of transactions between the same parties, if one of them sues upon a promissory note, as a rule it is no answer for the defendant to say that the claim is a matter of account. 151 I. C. 582= 1934 R. 358. If a hand-note mentions one kind of consideration, but it is found that there is a consideration of a different nature, the suit is not liable to be dismissed for this reason. 165 I.C. 809=1936 P. 498. It cannot be said that when there is a denial of execution of a promissory note, the plaintiff is bound to prove not only execution but also the consideration. Once the document is proved the presumption provided by S. 118 applies. 193 I.C. 863=1941 O.W.N. 613. Where a defendant to a suit on promissory note admits the thumb-impression on the note but sets up fraud which he does not substantiate and there is no evidence for the defence, the Court is bound under S. 118, to draw a presumption that the note was for consideration. It is wrong to place the burden of proving the passing of consideration on the plaintiff in such a case and he is not bound to produce any such evidence. 1941 O.W.N. 1161.

Sec. 118, Cl. (b).—If a promissory note is shown to be ante-dated, no presumption arises that it was executed on the date it bears on its face. 34 I.C. 617.

Cl. (d).—Assignment of pro-note—Presumption as to consideration. 1927 L. 864.

Cl. (e).—When there is no satisfactory evidence as to the order of indorsements, the statutory presumption that they were made in the order in which they appear thereon will prevail. 45 I.C. 186.

Cl. (f).—Where a hundi has been lost, a presumption arises under S. 118 (f) that the hundi was duly stamped and the stamp was duly cancelled. 1930 S. 4.

Cl. (g).—An endorsee from the payee of a hundi is presumed until the contrary is proved to be a holder in due course and is unaffected by the absence or failure of consideration as between the drawer and the payee. 27 I.C. 362=15 Bom. L.R. 743. See also 71 M.L. J. 473. So also in the case of an endorsement of a promissory note which has been discharged. 1936 M. 879=71 M.L. J. 473. In order to place the burden of proof on the holder, the defendant must first prove that the circumstances specified in S. 118 (g) exist. When these facts are proved, the holder must prove that he became such in due course; in this onus will include proof that value was given. 101 I.C. 325=1927 L. 137. Transferee of tainted pro-note—Holder in due course—Onus of proof—Remedy against transferor. See 113 I.C. 456. See also 1933 A.L.J. 1241=1933 A. 754; 57 I.C. 304; 28 Punj.L. R. 295=102 I.C. 42.

Sec. 119.—Under S. 119 Court is entitled to presume dishonour if there is a proper protest. 10 L.W. 39=52 I.C. 370.

Presumption on proof of protest.

shall, on proof of the protest, presume the fact of dishonour, unless and until such fact is disproved.

Estoppel against denying original validity of instrument.

120. No maker of a promissory note, and no drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque, and no acceptor of a bill of exchange for the honour of the drawer, shall, in a suit thereon by a holder in due course, be permitted to deny the validity of the instrument as originally made or drawn.

Estoppel against denying capacity of payee to indorse.

121. No maker of a promissory note and no acceptor of a bill of exchange [1][payable to order] shall, in a suit thereon by a holder in due course, be permitted to deny the payee's capacity, at the date of the note or bill, to indorse the same.

Estoppel against denying signature or capacity of prior party.

122. No indorser of a negotiable instrument shall, in a suit thereon by a subsequent holder, be permitted to deny the signature or capacity to contract of any prior party to the instrument.

LEG, REF.

[1] The words "payable to order" were substituted for the words "payable to, or to the order of a specified person" by Act VIII of 1919.

NOTES.

Sec. 120.—The specific provision in S. 120 is subject to the general rule enacted in S. 26. 117 I.C. 133. The fact that no consideration actually passed between the drawer of a cheque and the payee when the cheque was drawn, will not affect the right of the plaintiff who is a bona fide endorsee of the cheque to sue for the recovery of his money as a holder in due course. 12 Luck. 139=1936 O.W.N. 377=1937 Oudh 158. Though S. 120 precludes the maker of promissory note from denying the validity of the note, where money is not advanced as a simple loan unconditionally upon the promissory note, but is advanced after the note had been executed and on certain conditions previously agreed upon, the promisor is entitled to prove circumstances in repudiation of his liability. 34 P.L.R. 470=1933 L. 456. The payee of a negotiable instrument to bearer is not a "holder in due course". 24 I.C. 721. See also 27 A.L.J. 729 (F.B.). The condition precedent to the application of S. 120 is that there must be a properly stamped bill of exchange before the Court at which the Court is entitled to look. 48 A. 332=93 I.C. 63=1926 A. 359. See also 26 A.L.J. 729 (F.B,). As to whether "holder in due course" includes bearer of a promissory note who is made payee, see 26 A.L.J. 729 (F.B.).

Ss. 120 and 121—APPLICABILITY—APPLICATION UNDER S. 19, MADRAS AGRICULTURISTS' RELIEF ACT.—Ss. 120 and 121 do not apply to applications under S. 19 of the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act for relief of debtors who are agriculturists. The words "suit thereon" in Ss. 120 and 121 clearly show that the proceeding intended to be denoted by those words is a proceeding initiated by some one who is entitled to sue or take legal steps to recover the money due on a negotiable instrument, viz., by the promisee or payee; and they cannot apply to proceedings initiated by the maker or promisor for relief under a special Act like the Madras Act IV of 1938. There is consequently no estoppel in the way of an applicant under S. 19 of Madras Act IV of 1938, which prevents him from establishing that a debt evidenced by a negotiable instrument executed after 1932, was really one incurred before 1932, by showing that the instrument was in renewal of an earlier instrument executed prior to 1932. So far as Madras Act IV of 1938 is concerned there is no justification for regarding a debt incurred under a promissory note in a different way from other debts, as the object of the Act is to give relief to agriculturist debtors, whether the original debt was incurred under a negotiable instrument or otherwise. 50 L.W. 587=1940 Mad. 52=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 658. In a suit on a promissory note by the endorsee thereof, the maker or defendant (debtor) is not barred by S. 120 os the Negotiable Instruments Act from pleading or setting up any defence open to the promisor uuder Madras Act IV of 1938. The section only prevents the maker of the note from denying the validity of the instrument as originally made or drawn. It does not bar any defence which is independent of a plea that the instrument as originally made or drawn was invalid. 54 L.W. 577=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 808.

Secs. 120 and 122.—An endorser of a negotiable instrument is estopped as against the endorsee from setting up the invalidity of the instrument. 42 M. 470=36 M.L.J. 301. The fact that no consideration actually passed between the drawer of a cheque and the payee when the cheque was drawn, will not affect the right of the plaintiff who is a bona fide endorsee of the cheque to sue for the recovery of his money as a holder in due course. 161 I.C. 818=1936 O.W.N. 377.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF CROSSED CHEQUES.

Cheque crossed generally.

123. Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of the words "and company" or any abbreviation thereof, between two parallel transverse lines, or of two parallel transverse lines simply, either with or without the words "not negotiable", that addition shall be deemed a crossing, and the cheque shall be deemed to be crossed generally.

Cheque crossed specially.

124. Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of the name of a banker, either with or without the words "not negotiable", that addition shall be deemed a crossing, and the cheque shall be deemed to be crossed specially, and to be crossed to that banker.

Crossing after issue.

125. Where a cheque is uncrossed, the holder may cross it generally or specially.

Where a cheque is crossed generally, the holder may cross it specially.

Where a cheque is crossed generally or specially, the holder may add the words "not negotiable."

Where a cheque is crossed specially, the banker to whom it is crossed may again cross it specially to another banker, his agent, for collection.

Payment of cheque crossed generally.

126. Where a cheque is crossed generally, the banker on whom it is drawn shall not pay it otherwise than to a banker.

Payment of cheque crossed specially.

Where a cheque is crossed specially the banker on whom it is drawn shall not pay it otherwise than to the banker to whom it is crossed, or his agent for collection.

Payment of cheque crossed specially more thon once,

127. Where a cheque is crossed specially to more than one banker, except when crossed to an agent for the purpose of collection, the banker on whom it is drawn shall refuse payment thereof.

Payment in due course of crossed cheque.

128. Where the banker on whom a crossed cheque is drawn has paid the same in due course, the banker paying the cheque, and (in case such cheque has come to the hands of the payee) the drawer thereof, shall respectively be entitled to the same rights, and be placed in the same position in all respects, as they would respectively be entitled to and placed in if the amount of the cheque had been paid to and received by the true owner thereof.

Payment of crossed cheque out of due course.

129. Any banker paying a cheque crossed generally otherwise than to a banker, or a cheque crossed specially otherwise than to the banker to whom the same is crossed, or his agent for collection, being a banker, shall be liable to the true owner of the cheque for any loss he may sustain owing to the cheque having been so paid.

Cheque bearing "not negotiable".

130. A person taking a cheque crossed generally or specially, bearing in either case the words "not negotiable" shall not have and shall not be capable of giving, a better title to the cheque than that which the person from whom he took it had.

131. A banker who has in good faith and without negligence received payment for a customer of a cheque crossed generally or specially to himself shall not, in case the title to the cheque proves defective, incur any liability to the true owner of the cheque by reason only of having received such payment.

Non-liability of banker receiving payment of cheque.

[1][Explanation.—A banker receives payment of a crossed cheque for a customer within the meaning of this section notwithstanding that he credits his customer's account with the amount of the cheque before receiving payment thereof.]

CHAPTER XV.

OF BILLS IN SETS.

132. Bills of exchange may be drawn in parts, each part being numbered and containing a provision that it shall continue payable only so long as the others remain unpaid. All the parts together make a set; but the whole set continues only one bill, and is extinguished when one of the parts, if a separate bill, would be extinguished.

Set of bills.

Exception.—When a person accepts or indorses different parts of the bill in favour of different persons, he and the subsequent indorsers of each part are liable on such part as if it were a separate bill.

133. As between holders in due course of different parts of the same set he who first acquired title to his part is entitled to the other parts and the money represented by the bill.

Holder of first acquired part entitled to all.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

134. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the liability of the maker or drawer of a foreign promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is regulated in all essential matters by the law of the place where he made the instrument, and the respective liabilities of the acceptor and indorser by the law of the place where the instrument is made payable.

Law governing liability of maker, acceptor or indorser of foreign instrument.

Illustration.

A bill of exchange was drawn by A in California, where the rate of interest is 25 per cent., and accepted by B, payable in Washington, where the rate of interest is 6 per cent. The bill is indorsed in British India, and is dishonoured. An action on the bill is brought against B, in British India. He is liable to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent. only; but if A is charged as drawer, A is liable to pay interest at the rate of 25 per cent.

NOTES.

Sec. 131.—In considering the liability of a collecting bank in receiving payment on behalf of a customer of a cheque, the title to which is defective, the test of negligence is whether the transaction of paying in any given cheque coupled with circumstances antecedent and present was so out of the ordinary course that it ought to have aroused doubts in the banker's mind and caused him to make inquiry. 9 R. 585.

Secs. 134 and 137.—A suit was brought upon certain promissory notes executed by the defendant in the Nizam's Dominions. Not having been stamped, they were not admissible in evidence even on payment of a penalty under the law in force in the Nizam's Dominions. It was contended by the defendant in the suit that the documents were void and unenforceable. Held, the result of the provision in the foreign statute was only to make them inadmissible in evidenee in the Nizam's Courts and not void and that they could be sued upon in British India. 53 M. 968=1930 M. 1004 =59 M.L.J. 548.

135. Where a promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque is made payable in a different place from that in which it is made or indorsed, the law of the place where it is made payable determines what constitutes dishonour and what notice of dishonour is sufficient.

Law of place of payment governs dishonour.

Illustration.

A bill of exchange drawn and indorsed in British India, but accepted payable in France, is dishonoured. The indorsee causes it to be protested for such dishonour, and gives notice thereof in accordance with the law of France, though not in accordance with the rules herein contained in respect of bills which are not foreign. The notice is sufficient.

136. If a negotiable instrument is made, drawn, accepted or indorsed out of British India, but in accordance with the law of British India, the circumstance that any agreement evidenced by such instrument is invalid according to the law of the country wherein it was entered into does not invalidate any subsequent acceptance or indorsement made thereon in British India.

Instrument made, etc., out of British India, but in accordance with its law.

137. The law of any foreign country regarding promissory notes, bills of exchange and cheques shall be presumed to be the same as that of British India, unless and until the contrary is proved.

Presumption as to foreign law.

Rules relating to Notaries Public.

No particular form of register is necessary for these purposes, but Notaries Public shall keep a substantial blank book in which to enter copies of all the letters which they may write presenting bills for acceptance or payment or better security; of all bills[1] noted, or protested, or paid for honour, together with all endorsements thereon (including that made by themselves, to the effect that the bill has been noted or protested for non-acceptance or non-payment or want of better security); and of all protests made by themselves and of all declarations made by payers for honour. NOTES.

Sec. 1.—Oaths Act cannot abrogate the provisions of the Evidence Act. 1926 N. 194; 90 I.C. 378. Form of oath—When binding. See L.R. 5 A. 147 (Rev.). Power of Court to go into evidence when party agrees to abide by opponent's oath. 1924 A. 126. An application for an oath under the Act must be one without any conditions, such as if the Court does not hold the evidence to be sufficient then defendants should take an oath. It is not open to a party to ask the Court to adjudicate and if the Court adjudicates against them then ask the Court to start a separate proceeding under the Oaths Act. 138 I.C. 606=1932 A.L.J. 481=1932 A. 404. Evidence given under special oath is conclusive only as against the person who offers to be bound by it. 82 I.C. 359=26 Bom.L.R. 713=25 Cr.L.J. 1287=1924 Bom. 511. Oath affecting third person—Whether admissible—Failure to take oath on the day fixed—Decision by Court without calling for further evidence. 88 I.C. 448=23 A.L.J. 513. Where the complainant offers to be bound by the statement made by the accused, if he made the statement after walking several steps towards the Ganges and the accused made the statement under these conditions, the statement being made on oath was conclusive proof of the facts set forth in it. L.R. 5 A. 147 (Rev.). A party may have a perfectly true case and yet for peculiar reasons be unwilling to bind his conscience by a particular form of oath. The refusal to take the oath in such cases can be considered merely as a piece of evidence and as not proving the falsity of that party's claim. (22 B. 680, relied on). 32 P.L.R. 716. Agreement by parties to abide by the statement of the referee—Re-examination of referee proper. See 48 A. 276=1926 A. 266.

Sec. 4: CASE-LAW.—All Courts are authorized to administer oaths and affirmation. 34 P.R. 1916 (Cr.); 36 I.C. 171. Though the Act extends to the territories of Native Princes and States in alliance with His Majesty so far as regards the subject of His Majesty, the Vyara Court in the Baroda State cannot be treated as (a) all Courts and persons having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence;

(b) the Commanding officer of any military [1][naval], [2][or air force] station [1][or ship] occupied by troops in the service of Her Majesty:

Provided—

(1) that the oath or affirmation be administered within the limits of the station, and

(2) that the oath or affirmation be such as a Justice of the Peace is competent to administer in British India.

III.—Persons by whom Oaths or Affirmations must be made.

Oaths or affirmations to be made by—

5. Oaths or affirmations shall be made by the following persons:—

witnesses;

(a) all witnesses, that is to say, all persons who may lawfully be examined, or give, or be required to give, evidence by or before any Court or person having by law or consent of parties authority to examine such persons or to receive evidence;

interpreters;

(b) interpreters of questions put to, and evidence given by, witnesses; and

[3][Provided that where the witness is a child under twelve years of age, and the Court or person having authority to examine such witness is of opinion that, though he understands the duty of speaking the truth, he does not understand the nature of an oath or affirmation, the foregoing provisions of this section and the provisions of section 6 shall not apply to such witness, but in any such case the absence of an oath or affirmation shall not render inadmissible any evidence given by such witness nor affect the obligation of the witness to state the truth.]

Nothing herein contained shall render it lawful to administer, in a criminal proceeding, an oath or affirmation to the accused person, or necessary to administer to the official interpreter of any Court, after he has entered on the execution of the duties of his office, an oath or affirmation that he will faithfully discharge those duties.

a Court within the meanings of Ss. 4 and 14 of the Act, in relation to proceedings which were held before that Court entirely under the law of that State, and which had nothing to do with any proceedings in British India or under the law in force in British India. 47 Bom. 907=25 Bom.L.R. 772=25 Cr.L.J. 333=1924 Bom. 51.

Sec. 5: APPLICABILITY.—S. 5 was intended to apply to an accused person while he is under trial. 101 I.C. 657=54 C. 52=28 Cr.L.J. 481=1927 C. 307.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—Court deliberately abstaining from administering an oath or affirmation to the only eye-witness to the murder on the ground that she was only 6 to 7 years of age. 6 P.L.J. 147=61 I.C. 705.

EFFECT OF.—In every case where a witness is a competent witness, the provisions of Ss. 5 and 6 should be complied with. 6 P.L.J. 147. Under S. 5, the omission to take any oath or any other irregularity in the form in which it is administered does not invalidate the proceedings. The High Court declined to interfere with the order of a Municipal Commissioner who was the editor of a newspaper, who had, prior to the disposal of the case, made very strong remarks on the case in the newspaper of which he was editor, holding that there was nothing illegal in his order, though he would have exercised a wise discretion if he had refused to sit as one of the Cemmissioners in the case. 21 W.R. (Cr.) 31; 25 W.R. (Cr.) 6.

CHILD.—A child of tender years should be examined as a witness only after the Court has satisfied itself that the child is intellectually sufficiently developed to enable it to understand sufficiently what it has seen and afterwards inform the Court thereof. If the Court is satisfied that the child has such intelligence, it should comply with the provisions of S. 6. 120 I.C. 514=31 Cr.L.J. 114. See also 6 P.L.J. 147=61 I.C. 705. Child's evidence is not inadmissible merely because no oath was administered to it. Although S. 5 is imperative, still S. 13 governs cases of this sort. 22 I.C. 737. See also 47 L.W. 161=1938 M. 490=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 289; 1941 O.W.N. 1246; 1939 Rang. 402=1939 Rang.

Affirmation by natives or by persons objecting to oaths.

6. Where the witness, interpreter or juror is a Hindu or Muhammadan, or has an objection to making an oath,

he shall, instead of making an oath, make an affirmation.

In every other case the witness, interpreter or juror shall make an oath.

IV.—Forms of Oaths and Affirmations.

Forms of oaths and affirmations.

7. All oaths and affirmations made under section 5 shall be administered according to such forms as the High Court may from time to time prescribe.

And until any such forms are prescribed by the High Court, such oaths and affirmations shall be administered according to the forms now in use.

Power of Court to tender certain oaths.

8. If any party to, or witness in, any judicial proceeding offers to give evidence on oath or solemn affirmation in any form common amongst, or held binding by, persons of the race or persuasion to which he belongs, and not repugnant to justice or decency, and not purporting to affect any third person, the Court may, if it thinks fit, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, tender such oath or affirmation to him.

Secs. 5 and 6.—If a Court thinks that a child, though of tender years, is capable of informing the Court of what it has seen or heard, it is obligatory on it to administer oath to the child as in the case of any other witness. Where the Court fails to do so on the ground that the child is not capable of realising the significance of an oath, the defect would be cured by S. 13 of the Oaths Act. 1935 A.L.J. 618=1935 A. 579. See also 1938 Mad. 490=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 289 ; 1939 Rang. 402.

Secs. 5, 6 and 13.—Every person who is examined as a witness shall make an oath or affirmation and there is no exception in the case of a child of tender years. Therefore if a child is adjudged to be a competent witness, an oath or affirmation must be administered to him before he is examined ; but an omission whether deliberate or inadverdent to do so does not render his evidence absolutely inadmissible. But it is for the Court to decide what weight may be given to such unsworn testimony of the child whose evidence must always be received with great caution. 1940 Rang.L.R. 104 =1939 Rang. 402. See now Amending Act XXXIX of 1934. Where on account of her youth, neither an oath nor affirmation was administered to a witness that does not render the evidence of such a witness inadmissible. (See Act XXXIX of 1939.) 1937 A.M.L.J. 134 ; 120 I.C. 514=31 Cr.L.J. 114, noted under S. 5, supra.

Sec. 6.—See 19 C. 355 ; 1939 Rang. 402= 1940 Rang.L.R. 104 ; 38 A. 49=13 A.L.J. 1072=31 I.C. 1005 ; 20 P.R. 1902 (Cr.)=47 P. L.R. 1902 ; 11 A. 183 ; 10 A. 207 ; 16 M. 105 ; 1 Weir. 823. Witnesses, interpreters and jurors, who are Hindus or Muhammadans are exempt from taking oath. As repeating of the Kalma, by a Muhammadan witness, is not in accordance with the form prescribed by Chief Court under S. 7, his refusal to do so cannot be punished under S. 173, I. P. Code. 20 P.R. 1912 (Cr.). The offence of giving false evidence may be committed, although the person giving evidence has been neither sworn nor affirmed. 19 C. 355. The provisions of S. 8-11 of the Act do not apply to criminal proceeding. 5 S.L.R. 129= 13 I.C. 215=13 Cr.L.J. 23. Nor to proceedings before a Village Police Patel under Ss. 14 and 15 of the Bombay Village Police Act, 1867. 58 I.C. 147=45 B. 96=21 Cr.L.J. 723. A person appointed as Local Commissioner for recording evidence in a case cannot administer oath to one of the parties in the circumstances referred to in Ss. 8, 9 and 10 because under the Act a Local Commissioner is not a Court. 89 P.R. 1909=3 I.C. 621. Where the oath dictated by the plaintiff was in these terms : "If I lie in saying that I did not strike the balance and had paid the debt may my wife be considered to have been divorced from me." Held, that the oath was repugnant to decency and affected a third person and was obviously in contravention of S. 8. 66 P.R. 1910=7 I.C. 479.

Secs. 8 and 11 : SCOPE OF.—See 1937 All. 701 ; 1938 Bom. 465.

Sec. 8.—See 13 B. 389=13 Cr.L.J. 23=13 I. C. 215 ; 5 S.L.R. 129. The word 'affect' in S. 8 should be taken to mean 'to re-act upon in any way'. An oath in the name of a third person does not necessarily 'affect' that person. An oath in the form 'I swear by my children' is not one which is prohibited by S. 8. 1937 A.M.L.J. 94. The "oath or solemn affirmation" referred to in S. 8 et seq is in its nature

9. If any party to any judicial proceeding offers to be bound by any such oath or solemn affirmation as is mentioned in section 8, if such oath or affirmation is made by the other party to, or by any witness in, such proceeding, the Court may, if it thinks fit, ask such party or witness, or cause him to be asked, whether or not he will make the oath or affirmation.

Court may ask party or witness whether he will make oath proposed by opposite party.

Provided that no party or witness shall be compelled to attend personally in Court solely for the purpose of answering such question.

NOTES.

and essence quite distinct from the oaths and affirmations contemplated by S. 5. Under S. 8 the oath or solemn affirmation may be as infinite alike in form and contents as racial custom or the dictates of any religious persuasion may sanction or require. Neither an invocation nor an oath or affirmation in the technical sense of these words is in any way an essential part of the so-called oath or solemn affirmation referred to in S. 8 of the Act. 54 I.A. 301=2 Luck. 316=1927 P.C. 165=53 M. L.J. 1 (P.C.) Under S. 8 of the Oaths Act, for an oath to be administered by the Court it is necessary that it should not be against decency and that it should not affect the rights of a third party. Where during the trial the defendant offered to abide by the oath on talak of one of the witnesses for the plaintiff and that witness agreed to take the oath, but the defendant resiled from the offer later on. Held, that divorcing one's wife was not a very respectable form of oath and militated with decency and that it had also the effect of divorcing the wife who was a third party and that in the circumstances the refusal of the defendant to give an illegal oath did not affect the case at all. 189 I.C. 687=1940 Pesh. 26. Under S. 8 the initative should come from the parties and not from the Court. The dismissal of a suit was accordingly set aside on the ground that the lower Court might have been influenced by the refusal of the plaintiff to swear touching sacred books. 139 I.C. 836 (1) =56 C.L.J. 77=36 C.W.N. 786. Form of oath —Denial before deity—Purpose of oath is not to call the attention of God to the witness, but the attention of the witness to God. 84 I.C. 314=1924 Oudh 442. All that is necessary for an oath is an appeal to the Supreme Being and thinking Him as the rewarder of truth and the avenger of falsehood. 1924 Oudh 442. See also 84 I.C. 314=1924 B. 511; 52 B. 295=30 Bom. L.R. 447; 26 A.L.J. 7 (P.C.).

Secs. 8 and 9.—The parties to the suit stated that they constituted a third person J, as a Munhasir Ilahi and that they would be bound by his decision but before he was examined, the plaintiff stated that he would not be bound unless a special kind of oath was administered to J. That request was refused, J's statement recorded and in accordance therewith the plaintiff's suit dismissed. Held, that it was open to the plaintiff to resile from the agreement before the statement of J was recorded without assigning any reasons, S. 8 not being applicable on the ground that the parties had (in the first instance never intended to administer any oath at all to J. 146 I.C. 569=1933 A.L.J. 69=1933 A. 184. See also 1931 A.L.J. 393. Where the mukhtarnamah gave the mukhtar authority to make a compromise, confess judgment or make a reference to arbitration. Held, that the powers were sufficiently wide to include authority to take action under Ss. 8, 9 and 10 of the Oaths Act. 8 O.W.N. 880=1931 Oudh 350.

Secs. 8 and 11.—Where defendant agrees to abide by plaintiff's statement in the witness box but not in the form of any special oath as is referred to in S. 8, the agreement is binding on him even apart from S. 11, and he cannot be allowed to resile from it. 164 I. C. 1116=1936 O.W.N. 841. The evidence given by a person to whom the special oath is administered at the instance of a party to a suit is, when the party offering to be bound by the special oath, is suing in a representative capacity, conclusive not only as against him but also the persons whom he is properly representing in that litigation, and the decree following the taking of the special oath would, therefore, clearly operate as res judicata against the representatives as well in the absence of allegation and proof that the party acting in a representative capacity has been guilty of fraud or collusion or other vitiating circumstances. 40 Bom.L.R 1005=1938 Bom. 465.

Sec. 9.—See 13 B. 389; 13 I.C. 215; 65 I. C. 700; 22 M. 234; 17 M.L.J. 99; 17 M.L.J. 536; 18 A. 46; 20 A. 49; 45 B. 96=22 Bom. L.R. 898; 31 A. 315=2 I.C. 201; 1 Weir. 822. The Act gives the Court a discretion to administer the oath or not and if a party after agreeing to an oath satisfies the Court that there is good ground for retracting, the Court would exercise a wise discretion in refusing to administer the oath but when a party puts forward frivolous reasons for retracting, the Court would be justified in administering the oath notwithstanding the retraction. 49 A. 388=100 I.C. 473=1927 A. 590. See also 1933 A.L.J. 69 =1933 A. 184; 35 C.W.N. 130. Where the plaintiff proposed one form of oath for the defendant and the defendant accepted it the plaintiff cannot insist on another form. 7 M.L.T. 197=5 I.C. 939. See also 1928 M. 488. Where a party agrees that he would be bound by the oath of a witness, though the other parties do not agree to be so bound, he will be bound and the case must be tried only as against the others. 27 A.L.J. 1095=118 I. 10. If such party or witness agrees to make such oath or affirmation, the Court may proceed to administer it, or, if it is of such a nature that it may be more conveniently made out of Court, the Court may issue a commission to any person to administer it, and authorise him to take the evidence of the person to be sworn or affirmed and return it to the Court.

Administration of oath if accepted.

NOTES.

463. Even if a party resiled from taking oaths, in matters to be proved by oaths, it is not equivalent of its proof. No decree can be passed under the circumstances against the resiling party. The Court then can proceed with the suit in the ordinary manner drawing inference from the defaulter's conduct and can impose upon him appropriate costs. 1912 M. W.N. 361=15 I.C. 195. (But see 65 I.C. 700). See also 27 O.C. 217. Where in a suit on a promissory note evidence had been recorded before an agreement to abide by the defendant's oath was entered into by plaintiff. Held, that it was competent to the Court to decide the suit on the evidence already on record. 4 L.W. 258=36 I.C. 1001. An agreement to an oath contained a provision that if owing to the challenger's failure to pay the cost of taking the oath, the same was not taken it should be treated as equivalent to the oath having been taken. Held, that the provision introduced a method of decision which the law did not authorize and can have no legal consequence. (31 M. 1, Ref.) 52 I.C. 619. Where the agreement was to take the oath on a particular day but the oath was taken on a later day the burden lies on the person who relies on oath to show that time was not the essence of the contract. 10 L.W. 140=52 I.C. 619. A duly authorized agent holding a special power of attorney enabling him to conduct the suit in a manner he may deem fit and in particular to withdraw or compromise, can make an offer under S. 9 to be bound by the oath, of the other party and to have the case decided in accordance therewith. 38 A. 131=32 I.C. 348. "Party" as including duly authorized representative — Pleader making offer—Client bound. See 114 I.C. 759=1929 Oudh 56; 8 O.W.N. 880=1931 Oudh 350. Guardian ad litem—Power to consent to offer of special oath—Leave of Court not obtained—Absence of fraud or negligence—Minor if bound. 34 C.W.N. 310. The expression "any party to any judicial proceeding" in S. 9 must be interpreted as including the pleader representing him in the case. If a pleader is authorised by the Vakalatnama in his favour to do all proper pairvi in the case and to represent his client in a litigation and to present all sorts of applications which may become necessary even though no express power to compromise the case on his behalf may have been conferred upon the pleader, still the pleader being a duly authorised person to represent the client would be fully entitled to bind the client by offering to abide by the special oath of the opposite party. For the purposes of S. 9 all that is necessary is that the pleader or the agent should be considered a duly authorised agent on behalf of his party to conduct the case. 1940 O.W.N. 662=1940 Oudh 314=15 Luck. 686. Where the pleader appearing for the defendants made an offer that the suit might be decided on the oath of the opposite party and it appeared that the pleader acted under instructions from one of the defendants who presumably had been authorized by the rest to take the necessary steps. Held, that the parties could not resile from the offer made by the pleader. 34 C.W.N. 310=129 I.C. 408=1930 C. 463. See also 132 I.C. 682=35 C.W.N. 130=1931 Cal. 549. If a pleader has been expressly authorized to make an offer on behalf of his client to be bound by the oath of the other party his action in that respect would be binding on the client. 137 I.C. 810 (2)=33 P.L.R. 470=1932 L. 414. The statement made by one of several defendants in pursuance of an agreement made under the Act is binding as against the parties who had offered to be so bound. Where however the rights and liabilities of the defendants in a particular case are inseparable a decree can be passed even against the defendant, who was not a party to the agreement. 8 O.W.N. 880=1931 O. 350. Where the plaintiff does not offer to be bound by the statement on oath made by the defendant then the plaintiff's application to offer a special oath to the defendant would not come within the terms of S. 9 and the Act would not apply. 138 I.C. 606=1932 A.L.J. 481=1932 A. 404. See also 26 A. Where a decree is passed on the evidence of a witness owing to an agreement to be bound by the oath of that witness, such a decree is not a consent decree under S. 96 (3), C. P. Code. Such a decree is appealable and cannot be questioned by a separate suit. 172 I.C. 421. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 310=1938 Nag. 64. the order on the claim petition might be a continuation of the same proceedings for some purposes, there was an essential difference between the two; and unless it was clearly present to the minds of the parties that the evidence given on oath in the claim petition was in no manner to be challenged in or by a subsequent suit it must be held that an oath in those proceedings must relate to the claim proceedings themselves and to them alone. The burden lay on the applicant to show that the challenge was intended to have any effect upon any possible civil suit which might be filed under R. 103 of O. 21, C. P. Code. 51 L.W. 449=1940 Mad. 627=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 685.

Sec. 12.—A Court does not act irregularly or illegally in taking into consideration plaintiff's refusal to take oath the defendant agreeing to be bound by it. But no weight should be attached to plaintiff's refusal when defendant also refuses. 7 N.L.R. 50=10 I.C. 472, A mere refusal to take a particular oath is not sufficient for deciding the issue against the party refusing it. 32 I.C. 619. See also 93 I.C. 830=1926 C. 817. If a party refuses to make the oath, the Court has no power to compel him to make it. The duty of the Court is to record as part of the proceedings, the nature of the oath proposed, the facts that he was asked whether he would make it and that he refused it together with any reason which he may assign for his refusal. 9 Mys.L.J. 362. No doubt the refusal to take a special oath is conduct which the Court is entitled to consider along with other evidence in the case but the refusal should not automatically be allowed to outweigh the positive evidence which has been adduced. Where therefore the plaintiff has produced his account books which the defendant called on him to produce and he has given all the evidence necessary to support his case, his refusal to take a special oath offered by the defendant which the plaintiff considered derogatory should not be taken as reflecting on the truth of his claim. 142 I.C.137=1933 N. 52. A challenger should not be permitted to resile after his offer has been accepted by the other party unless good ground is shown to the satisfaction of the Court by the challenger. Application of S. 12 to the case of challenger, would be an extension of the provisions of S. 12 in a manner which is not justifiable. Where the challenger who was to light the camphor in accordance with the offer made by him, has refused to perform that which he had undertaken to do, he should be taken to have waived that condition. The Court can order any Commissioner to light the camphor but should see that it is extinguished by the other party when taking the oath. (1938) 1 M.L.J. 368.

OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS ACT (VIII OF 1925).

[The whole of this Act was repealed by Act I of 1938.]

THE OBSTRUCTIONS IN FAIRWAYS ACT (XVI OF 1881).

[Rep. in part by Act X of 1914.]

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill:—

"The object of this Bill is to empower the Government to remove obstructions to navigation which may exist in fairways situate in seas adjacent to British India and to prohibit the creation of such obstructions for the future. The advantages of having such law have been impressed upon the Government by certain cases. In one of these a question has been raised as to the power of Government to remove the fishing stakes which are annually placed during the fine season in the sea off the port of Bombay, and which, having recently been advanced into the approach to the harbour, are now a source of serious danger to vessels frequenting that port. In another case which related to the deposit of ballast by shipmaster, at the mouth of the Rangoon river a practice, which, if permitted, might cause serious impediment and danger to the navigation of the approaches to the Port of Rangoon, the need for some other preventive powers than those which Government now possesses, has been made apparent.

There can be no doubt that it is extremely desirable that the powers of Government officers and the procedure to be followed by them, in relation to matters of this nature, should be clearly defined, and as the Indian Statute Book, as it now stands, does not deal adequately with the subject, the present Bill has been prepared. A precedent for such legislation will be found in the Imperial Statute 40 and 41 Vict., c. 16 (The Removal of Wrecks Act, 1877).

The Bill, while following generally the lines of the statute, goes beyond it in two material respects. The power to remove obstructions conferred by it is not confined, as in the statute, to the case of obstruction caused by wrecks, but extends also to fishing stakes, ballast and any other thing which may form an obstruction or danger to navigation. The other point in which the Bill goes beyond the statute is that, in addition to giving power to remove existing obstruction, it enables the Government to prevent the wilful creation of obstructions in the future. With this object the Governor-General in Council is empowered (section 7) to make rules to regulate or prohibit in any fairway the placing of fishing stakes the casting of ballast, or the doing of any other act which will, in his opinion, cause or be likely to cause danger or obstruction to navigation." THE OFFICIAL TRUSTEES ACT (II OF 1913).[1]

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendments.
1913	II	The Official Trustees Act.	Repealed in part, V of 1917; XII of 1927 Amended, X of 1914; XVIII of 1919; XXI of 1922.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Official Trustees Bill:—"The revision of the law relating to the office of Administrator-General has necessitated revision of the law relating to the Office of Official Trustee. Many of the provisions of the existing law already apply mutatis mutandis to both offices, and it is considered desirable further to approximate the constitution of these offices and the conditions of their tenure as closely as possible since their duties will be normally discharged by the same person. The existing law relating to the office of the Official Trustee is contained in the Official Trustees Act, XVII of 1864, the Probate and Administration Act, II of 1890, and the Administrators-General and Official Trustees Act, V of 1902. The trend of this legislation has, as in the case of the legislation relating to the Administrator-General, been to substitute for a class of Official Trustees remunerated by commission a class of salaried officials whose liabilities are undertaken by the Government in return for fees credited to the Government. The draft Bill carries this process a stage further, and does away with the old system of Official Trustees remunerated by commission.

Under the existing law, Official Trustees are subject to the control of the Government and of the High Court. For obvious reasons such a dual control is undesirable, and bulk of the opinion consulted, including that of the Calcutta High Court, is in favour of the transfer of the whole control to the Government. The Bill gives effect to this object. Since the Indian Law relating to the Office of Official Trustee was enacted, the Public Trustees Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII, Cap. 55, has been passed, and consideration of some of the provisions of that Statute have enabled useful amendments to be made in the Indian Law. The Bill further deals with the qualifications for appointment of Official Trustee, fees, the rule-making power and similar matters on the same lines as those explained in connection with the Bill relating to the office of Administrator-General. Opportunity has been taken to make several minor amendments in the law and to consolidate the enactments relating to the Official Trustee. The more important of the changes are explained in the table of distribution annexed to the Bill and in the Notes on Clauses annexed hereto."

(2) It extends to the whole of British India and, in respect of Parsi subjects of His Majesty, to the whole of India:

Provided that the Central Government may, in respect of territories in India beyond the limits of British India, by notification in the Official Gazette direct that the provisions of this Act relating to the constitution and powers of Parsi Matrimonial Courts, and to appeals from the decisions and orders of such Courts shall apply with such modifications as may be specified in the notification.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette appoint.

LEG. REF.

[1] Inserted by A.O., 1937.

NOTES.

Sec. 1.—The common law of England applies to the Parsis who inhabit the town and island of Bombay. The wife is entitled to pledge her husband's credit and defend herself in any action against her for dissolution of his marriage with her at his cost. The wife's solicitors must secure their costs from the husband before they apply for charging order against her property recovered or preserved in the suit by them. 12 I.C. 554=13 Bom.L.R. 920. On this section, see also 13 B. 302 (infant marriage among Parsis); 10 Bom.L.R. 417; 33 B. 509; 22 B. 430.

Sec. 1 (2).—The effect of S. 1 (2) is to extend the Act even to Native States in India in its application to Parsis, provided that the Parsis are subjects of His Majesty. I.L.R. (1941) B. 589=43 Bom.L.R. 569=1941 Bom. 330. The words "Parsi subjects of His Majesty" in S. 1 (2) refers to the political status of such subjects as opposed to their civil status. The

(2) "Court" means a Court constituted under this Act;

(3) to "desert", together with its grammatical variations and cognate expressions, means to desert the other party to a marriage without reasonable cause and without the consent, or against the will, of such party;

(4) "grievous hurt" means—

(a) emasculation;

(b) permanent privation of the sight of either eye;

(c) permanent privation of the hearing of either ear;

(d) privation of any member or joint;

(e) destruction or permanent impairing of the powers of any member or joint;

(f) permanent disfiguration of the head or face; or

(g) any hurt which endangers life;

(5) "husband" means a Parsi husband;

(6) "marriage" means a marriage between Parsis whether contracted before or after the commencement of this Act;

(7) a "Parsi" means a Parsi Zoroastrian;

(8) "priest" means a Parsi priest and includes Dastur and Mobed; and

(9) "wife" means a Parsi wife.

II.—MARRIAGES BETWEEN PARSIS.

Requisites to validity of Parsi marriages.

3. No marriage shall be valid if—

(a) the contracting parties are related to each other in any of the degrees of consanguinity or affinity set forth in Schedule I; or

(b) such marriage is not solemnized according to the Parsi form of ceremony called "Ashirvad" by a priest in the presence of two Parsi witnesses other than such priest; or

(c) in the case of any Parsi (whether such Parsi has changed his or her religion or domicile or not) who has not completed the age of twenty-one years, the consent of his or her father or guardian has not been previously given to such marriage.

Re-marriage when unlawful.

4. (1) No Parsi (whether such Parsi has changed his or her religion or domicile or not) shall contract any marriage under this Act or any other law in the lifetime of his or her wife or husband, whether a Parsi or not, except jurisdiction of the Court therefore depends upon the political status of the Parsi subject, i.e., his nationality and allegiance, and not upon his domicil. A mere change of domicile does not in any way change a Parsi's nationality or his political status. 43 Bom.L.R. 569=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 589=1941 Bom. 330.

Secs. 2 (2) and 39.—There is a distinct cleavage of functions under the Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act between the presiding Judge of the Court and the delegates who are appointed to aid him in the adjudication of cases. The word "Court" is promiscuously used throughout the Act, but it cannot be read as including the delegates in all cases. Some confusion has crept into the Act by the use of the word "Court" promiscuously, but under the cleavage of functions under the Act, the word must be read in its context in order to determine whether it includes both the Judge and the delegates or the Judge alone. All interlocutory applications, such as those under S. 39, are correctly dealt with by the Judge sitting alone, and an order passed in such applications by the Parsi Matrimonial Judge sitting alone without the delegates cannot be said to be a nullity. 40 Bom.L.R. 50=1938 Bom. 195.

Sec. 3.—See 22 Bom. 430. A Parsi minor who is over 18 and below 21 years of age is competent to maintain a suit for breach of promise of marriage, where the contract of marriage has been made by the minor's guardian and on the minor's behalf and for the minor's benefit. Such a contract is a perfectly valid one and is enforceable in law by the minor. The benefit to the minor need not be pecuniary or proprietary only. 39 Bom.L.R. 486=1937 Bom. 392.

Secs. 3, 6 and 8.—The entry in a register maintained according to Ss. 6 to 12 is not in itself one of the requisites for a valid marriage amongst the Parsis. 22 Bom.L.R. 913=45 B. 146. Where there is no certificate and no entry in the marriage register, any other relevant evidence is admissible to prove the marriage having taken place. 45 Bom. 146.

after his or her lawful divorce from such wife or husband or after his or her marriage with such wife or husband has lawfully been declared null and void or dissolved, and, if the marriage was contracted with such wife or husband under the Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act, 1865, or under this Act, except after a divorce, declaration or dissolution as aforesaid under either of the said Acts.

(2) Every marriage contracted contrary to the provisions of sub-section (1) shall be void.

Punishment of bigamy.

5. Every Parsi who during the lifetime of his or her wife or husband, whether a Parsi or not, contracts a marriage without having been lawfully divorced from such wife or husband, or without his or her marriage with such wife or husband having legally been declared null and void or dissolved, shall be subject to the penalties provided in sections 494 and 495 of the Indian Penal Code for the offence of marrying again during the lifetime of a husband or wife.

Certificate and registry of marriage.

6. Every marriage contracted under this Act shall, immediately on the solemnization thereof, be certified by the officiating priest in the form contained in Schedule II. The certificate shall be signed by the said priest, the contracting parties, or their fathers or guardians when they shall not have completed the age of twenty-one years, and two witnesses present at the marriage; and the said priest shall thereupon send such certificate together with a fee of two rupees to be paid by the husband to the Registrar of the place at which such marriage is solemnized. The Registrar on receipt of the certificate and fee shall enter the certificate in a register to be kept by him for that purpose and shall be entitled to retain the fee.

Appointment of Registrar.

7. For the purposes of this Act a Registrar shall be appointed. Within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, the Registrar shall be appointed by the Chief Justice of such Court, and without such limits, by the Provincial Government. Every Registrar so appointed may be removed by the Chief Justice or Provincial Government appointing him.

Marriage register to be open for public inspection.

8. The register of marriages mentioned in section 6 shall, at all reasonable times, be open for inspection, and certified extracts therefrom shall, on application, be given by the Registrar on payment to him by the applicant of two rupees for each such extract. Every such register shall be evidence of the truth of the statements therein contained.

Copy of certificate to be sent to Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

9. Every Registrar, except the Registrar appointed by the Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay, shall, at such intervals as the Provincial Government by which he was appointed from time to time directs, send to the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories administered by such Provincial Government a true copy certified by him in such form as such Provincial Government from time to time prescribes, of all certificates entered by him in the said register of marriages since the last of such intervals.

Registration of divorces.

10. When a Court passes a decree for divorce, nullity or dissolution, the Court shall send a copy of the decree for registration to the Registrar of Marriages within its jurisdiction appointed under section 7; the Registrar shall enter the same in a register to be kept by him for the purpose, and the provisions of Part II applicable to the Registrars and registers of marriages shall be applicable, so far as may be, to the Registrars and registers of divorces and decrees of nullity and dissolution.

11. Any priest knowingly and wilfully solemnizing any marriage contrary to and in violation of section 4 shall, on conviction thereof, be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.

Penalty for solemnizing marriage contrary to section 4.

12. Any priest neglecting to comply with any of the requisitions affecting him contained in section 6 shall, on conviction thereof, be punished for every such offence with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both.

Penalty for priest's neglect of requirements of section 6.

13. Every other person required by section 6 to subscribe or attest the said certificate who shall wilfully omit or neglect so to do, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished for every such offence with a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Penalty for omitting to subscribe and attest certificate.

14. Every person making or signing or attesting any such certificate containing a statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false, shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both; and if the act amounts to forgery as defined in the Indian Penal Code, then such person shall also be liable, on conviction thereof, to the penalties provided in section 466 of the said Code.

Penalty for making, etc., false certificate.

15. Any Registrar failing to enter the said certificate pursuant to section 6 shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Penalty for failing to register certificate.

16. Any person secreting, destroying, or dishonestly or fraudulently altering the said register in any part thereof, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description as defined in the Indian Penal Code for a term which may extend to two years, or if he be a Registrar, for a term which may extend to five years and shall also be liable to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Penalty for secreting, destroying or altering register.

17. No marriage contracted under this Act shall be deemed to be invalid solely by reason of the fact that it was not certified under section 6, or that the certificate was not sent to the Registrar, or that the certificate was defective, irregular or incorrect.

Formal irregularity not to invalidate marriage.

III.—PARSI MATRIMONIAL COURTS.

18. For the purpose of hearing suits under this Act, a special Court shall be constituted in each of the Presidency-towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, and in such other places in the territories of the several Provincial Governments as such Governments respectively shall think fit.

Constitution of Special Courts under the Act.

19. The Court so constituted in each of the Presidency-towns shall be entitled the Parsi Chief Matrimonial Court of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay as the case may be. The local limits of the jurisdiction of a Parsi Chief Matrimonial Court shall be conterminous with the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. The Chief Justice of the High Parsi Chief Matrimonial Courts.

Court, or such other Judge of the same Court as the Chief Justice shall from time to time appoint, shall be the Judge of such Matrimonial Court, and, in the trial of cases under this Act, he shall be aided by seven delegates.

Parsi District Matrimonial Courts.

20. Every Court so constituted at a place other than a Presidency-town shall be entitled the Parsi District Matrimonial Court of such place. Subject to the provisions contained in section 21, the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court shall be conterminous with the limits of the district in which it is held. The Judge of the principal Court of original civil jurisdiction at such place shall be the Judge of such Matrimonial Court, and in the trial of cases under this Act, he shall be aided by seven delegates.

Power to alter territorial jurisdiction of District Courts.

21. The Provincial Government may from time to time alter the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Parsi District Matrimonial Court, and may include within such limits any number of districts under its Government.

Certain districts to be within jurisdiction of the Chief Matrimonial Courts.

22. Any district which the Provincial Government, on account of the fewness of its Parsi inhabitants, shall deem it inexpedient to include within the jurisdiction of any District Matrimonial Court, shall be included within the jurisdiction of the Parsi Chief Matrimonial Court for the territories under such Provincial Government where there is such a Court.

Court seals.

23. A seal shall be made for every Court constituted under this Act, and all decrees and orders and copies of decrees and orders of such Court shall be sealed with such seal, which shall be kept in the custody of the presiding Judge.

Appointment of delegates.

24. (1) The Provincial Governments shall, in the Presidency-towns and districts subject to their respective Governments, respectively appoint persons to be delegates to aid in the adjudication of cases arising under this Act, after giving the local Parsis an opportunity of expressing their opinion in such manner as the respective Governments may think fit.

(2) The persons so appointed shall be Parsis, their names shall be published in the Official Gazette and their number shall, within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, be not more than thirty, and in districts beyond such limits, not more than twenty.

Power to appoint new delegates.

25. The appointment of a delegate shall be for ten years; but he shall be eligible for reappointment for the like term or terms. Whenever a delegate shall die, or have completed his term of office, or be desirous of relinquishing his office, or refuse or become incapable or unfit to act, or cease to be a Parsi, or be convicted of an offence under the Indian Penal Code or other law for the time being in force, or be adjudged insolvent, then and so often the Provincial Government may appoint any person being a Parsi to be a delegate in his stead; and the name of the person so appointed shall be published in the Official Gazette.

Delegates to be deemed public servants.

26. All delegates appointed under this Act shall be considered to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

NOTES.

Sec. 20.—No trial under the Act can be satisfactory in which a delegate who is to all intents and purposes a member of a jury, cannot understand the proceedings. 43 I.C. 71.

A delegate under the Act is in a similar position to a juror, and cannot be challenged in appeal. 43 I.C. 71. See also 1938 Bom. 195=40 Bom.L.R. 50.

Selection of delegates under sections 19 and 20 to be from those appointed under section 24.

27. The delegates selected under sections 19 and 20 to aid in the adjudication of suits under this Act, shall be taken under the orders of the presiding Judge of the Court in due rotation from the delegates appointed by the Provincial Government under section 24:

Provided that each party to the suit may, without cause assigned challenge any three of the delegates attending the Court before such delegates are selected and no delegate so challenged shall be selected.

Practitioners in Matrimonial Courts.

28. All legal practitioners entitled to practice in a High Court shall be entitled to practise in any Court constituted under this Act, and all legal practitioners entitled to practise in a District Court shall be entitled to practise in any Parsi District Matrimonial Court constituted under this Act.

Court in which suits to be brought.

29. (1) All suits instituted under this Act shall be brought in the Court within the limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant resides at the time of the institution of the suit.

(2) When the defendant shall at such time have left British India such suit shall be brought in the Court at the place where the plaintiff and defendant last resided together.

(3) In any case, whether the defendant resides in British India or not, such suit may be brought in the Court at the place where the plaintiff resides or at the place where the plaintiff and the defendant last resided together, if such Court, after recording its reasons in writing, grants leave so to do.

IV.—MATRIMONIAL SUITS.

Suits for nullity.

30. In any case in which consummation of the marriage is from natural causes impossible, such marriage may, at the instance of either party thereto, be declared to be null and void.

Suits for dissolution.

31. If a husband or wife shall have been continually absent from his or her wife or husband for the space of seven years, and shall not have been heard of as being alive within that time by those persons who would have naturally heard

---

NOTES.

Sec. 29 (3).—The term "resides" is an elastic term and the meaning to be given to it must depend upon the circumstances of the case. It is not essential for the purpose of residence that a person should have a house of his own. If a person resides permanently at a particular place, there can be no doubt that it is his or her residence. But the residence need not necessarily be permanent. It is enough if it is bona fide, with an element of continuity about it, it should not be merely casual or for a temporary or passing purpose. 43 Bom.L.R. 569=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 589=1941 Bom. 330.

Sec. 29 (3) and 47 (b).—An application under O. 13, R. 14 (a) of the Original Side Rules of the Madras High Court for revocation of leave granted to a Parsi wife under S. 29 (3) to present her proceedings in the Parsi Chief Matrimonial Court in Madras (High Court), would be incompetent as the remedy could be sought only by way of an appeal under S. 47 (b) of the Act from the order granting leave. 1942 Mad. 159=54 L.W. 668=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 935.

Sec. 30.—In March, 1882, the plaintiff and defendant, Parsis, were married according t the rites and ceremonies of their religion. On October, 1882, the plaintiff attained puberty and for 17 months from that time she lived with the defendant in his parent's house, but there was no consummation of the marriage. There was no physical defect in either plaintiff or defendant nor any unwillingness in the plaintiff to consummate the marriage; but the defendant had always entertained such hatred and disgust for the plaintiff as to result, in the opinion of the medical experts, in an incurable impotency in the defendant as regards the plaintiff. The delegates unanimously found, on the evidence, that the consummation of this marriage had from its commencement been impossible; because the defendant was from a physical cause, namely, impotency as regards the plaintiff, unable to effect consummation. They also found that there was no collusion or connivance between the parties. Held, on this finding, that such impotency quoad the plaintiff must be regarded as one of the causes going to make consummation of a marriage impossible under S. 28 of Act XV of 1865, there being nothing in the Act to suggest a contrary opinion. 16 B. 639. See also 17 B. 146 (150).

of him or her, had he or she been alive, the marriage of such husband or wife may, at the instance of either party thereto, be dissolved.

Grounds for divorce.

32. Any married person may sue for divorce on any one or more of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that the marriage has not been consummated within one year after its solemnization owing to the wilful refusal of the defendant to consummate it;

(b) that the defendant at the time of the marriage was of unsound mind and has been habitually so up to the date of the suit:

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground, unless the plaintiff (1) was ignorant of the fact at the time of the marriage, and (2) has filed the suit within three years from the date of the marriage;

(c) that the defendant was at the time of marriage pregnant by some person other than the plaintiff:

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground, unless (1) the plaintiff was at the time of the marriage ignorant of the fact alleged, (2) the suit has been filed within two years of the date of marriage, and (3) marital intercourse has not taken place after the plaintiff came to know of the fact;

(d) that the defendant has since the marriage committed adultery or fornication or bigamy or rape or an unnatural offence:

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground, if the suit has been filed more than two years after the plaintiff came to know of the fact;

(e) that the defendant has since the marriage voluntarily caused grievous hurt to the plaintiff or has infected the plaintiff with venereal disease or, where the defendant is the husband, has compelled the wife to submit herself to prostitution:

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground if the suit has been filed more than two years (i) after the infliction of the grievous hurt, or (ii) after the plaintiff came to know of the infection, or (iii) after the last act of compulsory prostitution;

(f) that the defendant is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment for seven years or more for an offence as defined in the Indian Penal Code:

NOTES.

Sec. 32 : SECOND MARRIAGE AFTER THE ACT BUT BEFORE IT CAME INTO OPERATION.—A Parsi residing in Bombay, after the passing of Act XV of 1865, but before it came into operation, contracted a second marriage, during the lifetime of his first wife, from whom he had not been divorced. and whom he, moreover, wilfully deserted for two years. On appeal from an order by the Judge of the Parsi Chief Matrimonial Court, rejecting a plaint for divorce by the first wife, on the ground that the subject-matter of the plaint did not constitute, a cause of action, under S. 30 of Act XV of 1865. Held, that the facts alleged in the plaint did not amount to "bigamy coupled with adultery," nor to "adultery coupled with wilful desertion," within the meaning of S. 30 of Act XV of 1865; as a second marriage contracted by a Parsi husband during the lifetime of his first wife, was not unlawful before the Act came into operation; nor did the provisions of the Act in any way affect the validity of the consequences of such a marriage. 3 Bom.H.C. R. (A.C.J.) 113. See also 1936 Bom. 442=60 B. 868=38 Bom.L.R. 836.

PROCEDURE.—In a suit by a husband for divorce under S. 30 of the Parsi Marriage Act, XV of 1865, the defendant, if under the age o 21 years, although more than 18, must be deemed to be a minor, and a guardian for the suit of the defendant must be appointed. 18 B. 366. See also 22 B. 430 (435). See 16 B. 136; 18 B. 366; 3 B.H.C. (A.C.) 113; 22 B. 430.

Sec. 32 (b) Proviso.—The conditions laid down in the proviso to S. 32 (b) are cumulative and both of them have to be fulfilled before a plaintiff can maintain a suit for divorce on the ground that the defendant at the time of the marriage was of unsound mind and has been habitually so up to the date of the suit; the plaintiff must therefore show that he was ignorant of his spouse's unsoundness of mind at the date of the marriage, and secondly, that the suit has been brought within three years, not from the date of his knowledge of his wife's unsoundness but within three years from the date of the marriage. 1938 B. 65=39 Bom.L.R. 1146.

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground, unless the defendant has prior to the filing of the suit undergone at least one year's imprisonment out of the said period;

(g) that the defendant has deserted the plaintiff for at least three years;

(h) that a decree or order for judicial separation has been passed against the defendant, or an order has been passed against the defendant by a Magistrate awarding separate maintenance to the plaintiff, and the parties have not had marital intercourse for three years or more since such decree or order;

(i) that the defendant has failed to comply with a decree for restitution of conjugal rights for a year or more; and

(j) that the defendant has ceased to be a Parsi:

Provided that divorce shall not be granted on this ground if the suit has been filed more than two years after the plaintiff came to know of the fact.

Joining of co-defendant.

33. In every such suit for divorce on the ground of adultery, the plaintiff shall, unless the Court shall otherwise order, make the person with whom the adultery is alleged to have been committed a co-defendant, and in any such suit by the husband, the Court may order the adulterer to pay the whole or any part of the costs of the proceedings.

Suits for judicial separation.

34. Any married person may sue for judicial separation on any of the grounds for which such person could have filed a suit for divorce, or on the ground that the defendant has been guilty of such cruelty to him or her or their children, or has used such personal violence, or has behaved in such a way as to render it in the judgment of the Court improper to compel him or her to live with the defendant.

NOTES.

Sec. 32 (g).—A wife suing her husband for dissolution of marriage on the ground of desertion under S. 32 (g) have to prove (a) that she has been deserted by the defendant for at least three years, and (b) that she has been deserted without reasonable cause and without her consent or against her will. Desertion under S. 32 (g) read with S. 2 (3) of the Act, in its essence, is the abandonment of one spouse by the other with the intention of breaking off matrimonial relations between them, and thereby bringing the cohabitation to an end. The question of desertion cannot be decided merely by enquiring which party left the matrimonial home first. If the party who by his or her conduct brings the cohabitation to an end that is guilty of desertion. 1938 Bom. 86=39 Bom.L.R. 1141.

Sec. 32 (j).—A wife suing her husband for dissolution of marriage on the ground set forth in S. 32 (j) has the burden of proof on her. In order to succeed she must prove that her husband had ceased to be a Parsi Zoroastrian and that she has filed the suit within two years after she came to know of the fact that the defendant, her husband, had ceased to be a Parsi. A mere doubt or suspicion on the part of the plaintiff that the defendant had ceased to be a Parsi will not suffice. It is enough for the plaintiff to prove that her husband had ceased to be a Parsi Zoroastrian during their married lives. It is not necessary to prove that the defendant continues to be a non-Parsi till the date of the suit or for any particular period of time. It is not consequently open to the defendant in such a suit to show that he had become a Parsi Zoroastrian again, either when the suit was filed or before the hearing. 1938 Bom. 68=39 Bom.L.R. 1143.

Sec. 34.—The Bombay High Court, if can grant an order of judicial separation between a Parsi husband and wife. See 38 B. 615=16 Bom.L.R. 211. The Parsi Matrimonial Court has exclusive jurisdiction to entertain suits concerning matrimonial disputes among Parsis. 38 B. 615. On this section, see also 13 Bom.L.R. 920=12 I.C. 554. Adultery of the petitioner is a legal ground on which the Court can refuse the petition for divorce. 10 Bom.L.R. 1019. "Cruelty" in S. 34 means legal cruelty as understood in English law, namely, injury causing danger to life or limb or health, or reasonable apprehension of such injury. Such cruelty need not necessarily be physical violence. It may even consist in a course of harsh conduct pursued by the husband towards his wife or their children, and also vice versa by the wife; and even a single act of gross cruelty may be enough to constitute legal cruelty, if it is such as to lead to a reasonable apprehension of further acts of cruelty towards the aggrieved party. 1938 Bom. 81=39 Bom.L.R. 1138. In order to constitute a ground for judicial separation there must be not merely improper behaviour, but behaviour of such a nature as to make it improper for husband and wife to live together in future. What has to be considered is the course of conduct of the parties towards each other during their married lives

Decrees in certain suits.

35. In any suit under section 30, 31, 32 or 34, whether defended or not if the Court be satisfied that any of the grounds set forth in those sections for granting relief exist, that none of the grounds therein set forth for withholding relief exist and that—

(a) the act or omission set forth in the plaint has not been condoned;

(b) the husband and wife are not colluding together;

(c) the plaintiff has not connived at or been accessory to the said act or omission:

(d) (save where a definite period of limitation is provided by this Act) there has been no unnecessary or improper delay in instituting the suit; and then and in such case, but not otherwise, the Court shall decree such relief accordingly.

(e) there is no other legal ground why relief should not be granted;

Suit for restitution of conjugal rights.

36. Where a husband shall have deserted or without lawful cause ceased to cohabit with his wife, or where a wife shall have deserted, or without lawful cause ceased to cohabit with her husband, the party so deserted or with whom cohabitation shall have so ceased may sue for the restitution of his or her conjugal rights and the Court, if satisfied of the truth of the allegations contained in the plaint, and that there is no just ground why relief should not be granted, may proceed to decree such restitution of conjugal rights accordingly.

Counter-claim by defendant for any relief.

37. In any suit under this Act, the defendant may make a counter-claim for any relief he or she may be entitled to under this Act.

No suit to be brought to enforce marriage or contract arising out of marriage when husband is under sixteen years or wife under fourteen years.

38. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained no suit shall be brought in any Court to enforce any marriage or any contract connected with or arising out of any marriage, if, at the date of the institution of the suit the husband shall not have completed the age of sixteen years, or the wife shall not have completed the age of fourteen years.

Alimony pendente lite.

39. In any suit under this Act if the wife shall not have an independent income sufficient for her support and the necessary expenses of the suit, the Court, on the application of the wife, may order the husband to pay her monthly or weekly during the suit such sum not exceeding one fifth of her husband's net income as the Court, considering the circumstances of the parties, shall think reasonable.

NOTES.

and whether the plaintiff has shown just and lawful grounds not only for living separately from his or her spouse, but for asking for a decree of the Court for judicial separation. It is not enough to say merely that it would not be possible for the parties to live happily together hereafter. The Court has to be satisfied that the causes of disagreement between the husband and wife are grave and weighty, and such as to show an absolute moral impossibility that the duties of married life can be discharged. In determining what is moral impossibility the Court should take into consideration the feelings and customs of the community to which the parties belong. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 75=39 Bom.L.R. 1138=1938 Bom. 81.

Sec. 36.—See 2 Bom.L.R. 845. A decree for restitution of conjugal rights under the Act is enforceable only in the manner provided in S. 36 of the Act; such provision is in substitution of, and not in addition to, the ordinary remedies provided by the Code of Civil Procedure. 9 Bom.H.C. R. (A.C.J.) 290.

Sec. 39—S. 39 applies merely to orders pending the suit and the payments are merely payments during the suit. It does not limit or qualify the liability of the husband to the wife's solicitors. 12 I.C. 554=13 Bom.L.R. 920. The table of fees of the High Court contemplates merely party costs between the parties to a Parsi Matrimonial suit and does not relate to the rights of the wife's solicitors to recover their attorney and client's costs from the husband. 13 Bom.L.R. 920. A wife sued her husband for judicial separation in the Parsi Matrimonial Court. Alimony was granted to be paid by an order dated 11th July, 1891, which directed the Permanent alimony.

40. (1) The Court may, if it shall think fit at the time of passing any decree under this Act or subsequently thereto on application made to it for the purpose, order that the husband shall [1][while the wife remains chaste and unmarried]—

(a) to the satisfaction of the Court, secure to the wife [2][* *] such gross sum or such monthly or periodical payment of money for a term not exceeding her life as, having regard to her own property, if any, her husband's ability and the conduct of the parties, shall be deemed just, and for that purpose may require a proper instrument to be executed by all necessary parties and suspend the pronouncing of its decree until such instrument shall have been duly executed, or

In case any such order shall not be obeyed by her husband, it may be enforced in the manner provided for the execution of decrees and orders under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and further the husband may be sued by any person supplying the wife with necessaries during the time of such disobedience for the price of such necessaries.

(2) The Court, if satisfied that there is a change in the circumstances of either party at any time, may at the instance of either party vary, modify or rescind such order in such manner as the Court may deem just.

Payment of alimony to wife or to her trustee.

In all cases in which the Court shall make any decree or order for alimony it may direct the same to be paid either to the wife herself, or to any trustee on her behalf to be approved by the Court, and may impose any terms or restrictions which to the Court may seem expedient, and may from time to time appoint a new trustee, if for any reason it shall appear to the Court expedient so to do.

On the 18th July, 1891, the suit was dismissed, and after that date the defendant ceased to pay alimony. The plaintiff obtained a rule for review of judgment, which was dischared on the 27th January, 1892, and on the 18th March, 1892, she filed an appeal against the decree dismissing the suit and against the order refusing a review. She now applied for an order directing the defendant to pay her all the arrears of alimony "pendente lite" from the date of filing the suit or so much as had not been paid, and that he should pay her further alimony until the final disposal of the appeal. Held, dismissing the application, that the words "final decree herein" contained in the order of the 11th July, 1891, by which alimony was granted, meant the decree in the suit and not in the appeal, that the Parsi Matrimonial Court constituted under Act XV of 1865 had no power to award alimony "pendente lite" after decree and pending appeal and that an unsuccessful wife is not entitled to claim alimony after final decree and pending appeal, nor for the period during which she is seeking review of judgment. 17 B. 146. NOTES.

Sec. 45: WIFE'S COSTS IN MATRIMONIAL SUITS.—Under the Common Law, the wife is entitled to pledge her husband's credit and defend herself at his cost in any action that he may file against her for dissolution of his marriage with her. It is not necessary that the wife should be successful in the proceedings. The costs of the wife payable by the husband are not limited to the amount paid into the Court or secured by the husband for that purpose. The solicitors of the wife must make all efforts to secure their costs from their real debtor, the husband, before they can be allowed to apply for a charging order against the wife's property 'recovered or preserved' in the suit through their exertion. 13 Bom.L.R. 920.

dissolved, but not sooner, it shall be lawful for the respective parties thereto to marry again, as if the prior marriage had been terminated by death.

V.—CHILDREN OF THE PARTIES.

Custody of children.

49. In any suit under this Act, the Court may from time to time pass such interim orders and make such provisions in the final decree as it may deem just and proper with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of the children under the age of sixteen years, the marriage of whose parents is the subject of such suit, and may, after the final decree upon application, by petition for this purpose, make, revoke, suspend or vary from time to time all such orders and provisions with respect to the custody, maintenance and education of such children as might have been made by such final decree or by interim orders in case the suit for obtaining such decree were still pending.

Settlement of wife's property for benefit of children.

50. In any case in which the Court shall pronounce a decree of divorce or judicial separation for adultery of the wife, if it shall be made to appear to the Court that the wife is entitled to any property either in possession or reversion, the Court may order such settlement as it shall think reasonable to be made of any part of such property, not exceeding one half thereof, for the benefit of the children of the marriage or any of them.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Superintendence of High Court.

51. The High Court shall have superintendence over all Courts constituted under this Act subject to its appellate jurisdiction in the same manner as it has over other Courts under section 107 of the Government of India Act, and all the provisions of that section shall apply to such Courts.

Applicability of provisions of the Act.

52. (1) The provisions of this Act shall apply to all suits to which the same are applicable whether the circumstances relied on occurred before or after the passing of this Act, and whether any decree or order referred to was passed under this Act or under the law in force before the passing of this Act, and where any proceedings are pending in any Court at the time of the commencement of this Act, the Court shall allow such amendment of the pleadings as may be necessary as the result of the coming into operation of this Act.

(2) A Parsi who has contracted a marriage under the Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act, 1865, or under this Act, even though such Parsi may change his or her religion or domicile, so long as his or her wife or husband is alive and so long as such Parsi has not been lawfully divorced from such wife or husband or such marriage has not lawfully been declared null and void or dissolved under the decree of a competent Court under either of the said Acts, shall remain bound by the provisions of this Act.

NOTES.

Sec. 52.—The relief by way of declaration of nullity of marriage on the ground of unsoundness of mind which was available under S. 27 of Act XV of 1865 has been abrogated and done away with under the new Act of 1936, which only gives a right to have the marriage dissolved on the ground of unsoundness of mind provided the suit is brought within three years of the marriage. In view of S. 52 of the new Act, the new Act has to be applied to a suit brought after the new Act, though the circumtances relied on by the plaintiff for relief in the suit actually occurred before the passing of the new Act. 1938 Bom. 65=39 Bom.L.R. 1146.

THE PARTITION ACT (IV OF 1893).

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendments.
1893	IV	Partition Act.	Repealed in part, X of 1914, Am., Act XIII of 1898.

PARTITION BILL.—The Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Law relating to partition. He said:—"I promise to state briefly the present condition of the law on the subject, the alteration it is proposed to introduce, and the grounds on which such alterations would seem to be desirable. In this country, where coparcenary is one of the commonest modes of holding property, the proper method of effecting a partition must always be a question of considerable importance. But if we except the different local laws concerned with the division of revenue-paying estates, the only statutory enactment on the subject is to be found in section 396 of the C.P. Code. Under this section which embodies the practice of the Eglish Court of Chancery prior to the Partition Act of 1868, a commission is issued by the Court to certain persons; the canonical number is three, who are directed in the first instance to ascertain and inspect the property and to divide it into requisite number of shares, with authority in some cases to make payments in money by way of equality of partition. The next duty of the Commissioners is to prepare a report, or, if they cannot agree, separate reports which are, however, liable to be quashed by the Court, when a new commission is issued in the same terms and with possibly the same result. In England this cumbrous, dilatory and expensive procedure has been replaced, in most cases by statute by the much simpler method of a sale of the property and a division of the proceeds. Under the old Chancery practice, which has been reproduced in our Code, no amount of inconvenience or practical difficulty, however great, could prevail against a claim for partition. I will here give only one illustration. In the well-known case of Turner v. Morgan reported not in the pages of Dickens but in Vesey, where a house had to be divided between two persons, and one of the parties insisted upon a partition by metes and bounds, the Lord Chancellor said that out of mercy to the parties he would let the case stand over, as the worst thing for the parties would be a decree for partition and his Lordship suggested a reference as to the value and to which party the option of buying or selling should be given. The suggestion was not accepted, and when the commissioners allotted to one of the parties the whole stack of chimneys, all the fire places, the only stair case and all the conveniences in the yard, the Lord Chancellor declined to interfere because he did not know how to make a better partition. The well-known Greek saying that the half is better than the whole points a moral which I am afraid is too often lost sight of by suitors. In India cases like Turner v. Morgan are, as might be expected, of frequent occurrence, and as observed by Babu Amrito Lal Chatterjee, a Subordinate Judge of mature experience, one perverse member of a family may by his obstinacy practically ruin the whole property. The learned Judge mentions what he calls a typical case of its kind and adds, such cases though not very common, are not very rare in the country." Mr. Neill, the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces, also speaks of the extreme difficulty of partitioning some kinds of property under the present law, and points out that partition is not, unfrequently, made the occasion of annoyance by ill-conditioned coparceners. Cases, adds Mr. Neill, have remained pending for years simply on account of the difficulty of making a partition under the present state of the law. Other learned Judges have also expressed similar opinions, and if some Judges have been more fortunate, it is due probably to mere accident if not to the occasional display of a rigour beyond the reach of law. I trust I have said enough to show that it cannot be affirmed that no amendment of the law is called for as a state of things in which a judicial deadlock, so to speak is possible can never be viewed with indifference by the Legislature. I may add that the question of amending the present law has been mooted from time to time and a mass of valuable opinion, not the less valuable on account of the divergence of views which the communications disclose, has been collected by Government and through the courtesy of the Honourable Member in charge of the Home Department placed at my disposal. In England as I have already pointed out, the old procedure has been, in a very large measure, rendered obsolete by legislation. In this country owing to the division and sub-division of landed property which is constantly taking place under the Hindu and Muhammadan Laws of Inheritance, the evil from one point of view is undoubtedly much greater, but the strong attachment of my countrymen to landed property, especially when it is ancestral, should make us extremely cautious in replacing in any particular case the usual remedy of an equal partition by a sale of the property and a division of the proceeds. Whether the sentiment which animates my countrymen is economically wise or not, I need not pause here to discuss. I will only say that man does not live by political economy alone. There are currents of thought and feeling deeper than any ever sounded by the economist's plummet. Speaking for myself, and as a Hindu, I am bound to say that I fully sympathise with the sentiment which attaches us to our landed possessions and should be sorry to see it disappear. It is a healthy sentiment and furnishes one of the best securities for the maintenance of laws. We cannot therefore proceed too varily and accordingly the power with which it is proposed to invest the Court is only given subject to very stringent conditions, and only to the extent necessary to meet an acknowledged evil. These conditions are, (1) that the property cannot conveniently be divided; (2) that it would be more beneficial for parties that it should be sold; (3) that at least one half of the shareholders must concur in the sale. But in order to prevent the possibility of a request for sale being made on inadequate grounds or from improper motives, provision is made for the compulsory transfer of their shares by the parties who desire a sale to the other shareholders at a valuation to be made by the Court. But even when all these conditions exist, a large measure of discretion is left to the Court which I trust will never be crystallised into a cluster of right rules.

The result therefore is that, although the Court would be wholly unable to sell the property in the absence of any of the conditions imposed on the power, it may refuse to do so notwithstanding the existence, of all these conditions, if in the exercise of a sound discretion it is of opinion that no sale should take place in any particular case. I venture to think that with these safeguards, the measure while meeting an acknowledged evil cannot fairly be charged with introducing any serious innovation or with trenching in any degree on the rights of persons holding property in common. The question is one really of procedure, and the present Bill will merely affect the mode of relief and nothing else. Indeed even under the present practice when the Court gives compensation in money by way of equality of partition, it really make a transfer of a part of the property, although the transaction is disguised under a slightly different name. The present Bill is only an extension of this practice to some very exceptional cases in which, in the absence of such law. the common property might be destroyed or rendered comparatively valueless. I ought to add that it is a great satisfaction to me to find that the fathers of Hindu law, who shaped out and elaborated our jurisprudence, anticipated by several centuries the improvements only recently grafted on the old Chancery practice in England. Speaking of indivisible property—a class in which Shankha and Likhita place dwelling-houses, Vrihaspati declares:—"They (the sages) by whom it is ordained that clothes and the like are not liable to partition have not decided (as to what should be done with respect to such things). The estate of opulent men consisting of vehicles and ornaments if held in common (by his heirs) would be enjoyed, for it cannot be allotted to any one (the co-heirs). Therefore it must be divided in an equitable manner; else it would be useless. An equitable partition is made by distribution of the price after the sale of clothes and ornaments, by distribution of a written debt after recovery, by exchanging the dressed food with an equal allotment of undressed grain by drawing water of a single well or pond for use according to need." Digest V, 366; Vivada Ratnakara, Asiatic Society's Sanskrit edition, 505. The practice of giving money compensation in certain cases is also, I am glad to find, recognized in Muhammadan Law (Hedaya-Bk. 39, Ch. 3). "I should add that when the Court finds it necessary to direct a sale of the property the co-sharers will not only be at liberty to bid but a right in the nature of pre-emption has been conceded to them." The only other section of the Bill to which it is necessary to call attention is section 4, which compels a stranger who has brought a share of dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family to transfer it to the members of the family if they undertake to buy it upon a valuation to be made by the Court. To those who are familiar with the habits, usages and feelings of my countrymen, I need hardly say that the intrusion of a stranger into the family dwelling-house is regarded as nothing short of a calamity. The mischief has been remedied to a certain extent by section 44, paragraph 2 of the Transfer of Property Act, an enactment, which recognizes and if I may say so very properly recognizes, the truth of the poet's saying not always perhaps borne in mind that right too rigid hardens into wrong. In conclusion, I will only say that whatever hostile criticism may be levelled against the other parts of the Bill, a provision which protects the family dwelling-house from the instrusion of a stranger into any portion of it will be welcomed as a boon, and a blessing by my countrymen, of every creed and of every shade of opinion. joint property, the presumption is that it is liable to be partitioned. 39 P.L.R. 876. In partition cases, the rights and claims of each party in the matter of possession and improvements effected should be taken into consideration, and possession should be maintained in an equitable manner. 18 Lah.L.T. 10. The most ordinary method when one co-sharer has put up buildings on the land is to allot to him for his share a portion of the land which contains his building. When this cannot be done or would not be fair, it may nevertheless be unreasonable and unnecessary to treat such co-sharer exactly as the others. 41 C.W.N. 613= 39 Bom.L.R. 748=1937 P.C. 61=(1937) 2 M. L.J. 114 (P.C.). A partition of property can always be made by oral agreement; if the terms of the partition are reduced to writing then the document must be registered; but there is no necessity for any writing whatever in carrying out a partition. (6 L.B.R. 170 and 1931 Cal. 223, Foll.) 164 I.C. 392=1936 Rang. 336. Where it is a part of the arrangement between the parties that a deed of partition should be executed in terms of a partition made orally between them, the oral agreement, so long as the deed is not executed, is not complete so as to be binding upon them. 1936 O.W.N. 1162 =1937 Oudh 53. The general rule is that a suit for partition must embrate all the joint properties. But there are certain recognised exceptions to this rule. One of them is that where properties are held jointly by all the co-sharers jointly with strangers who cannot conveniently be added as parties to the suit for partition between members of the joint family, such joint properties should be excluded from partition as forming an exception to the general rule. 40 C.W.N. 1237. A suit for partition of common properties, and not joint properties, is not liable to be dismissed on the ground that the suit does not include all the common properties available for partition. In the case of tenants-in-common or in a case where an award has taken place between several persons, a person who files a suit to enforce the award is not bound to include each and every property that is given under the award. The rule against partial partition which applies to the case of a joint Hindu family does not apply to the case of tenants-in-common, especially when there has been an award by which rights have been created in favour of the parties in specific properties, and it is not incumbent on a person to include in his suit all the properties which are awarded to him under the award. 41 Bom. L.R. 170=1939 Bom. 114. Apart from the Act, the Court has an inherent power to refuse to divide the property by metes and bounds and to adopt such other means as may appear equitable for effecting a just partition. 34 L.W. 730 =61 M.L.J. 552. Partition of a house, with a single latrine left for common use. See 17 C. P.L.R. 45. On this section, see also 52 P.W.R. 1907; 1 I.C. 697. The ordinary rule is that a suit for partition must embrace all joint properties owned by the parties thereto. But there is also the complementary rule that a suit for partition cannot include properties in which each of the parties does not claim an interest. 40 P.L.R. 767=1939 Lah. 34. A previous partition for convenience of possession by itself cannot stand in the way of a decree for partition so long as it is not found that it was in conformity with the shares of the respective parties. (21 C.W.N. 229, Rel. on.) 43 C.W.N. 181=69 C.L.J. 527. The partition proceedings require that the partition should be chakbat as far as possible; but if other considerations are more important, the necessity compactness of the chaks will have to be waived. 1940 R.D. 441= 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 216. Where there is bitter dispute between groups of co-sharers it is desirable that the plots should be divided up and allotted. The fact that such a course would result in the formation of pattis of very small area should not by itself be treated as a factor contributing to the refusal of a partition. 1938 R.D. 869. No doubt in a partition suit every party, whether arrayed as a plaintiff or as a defendant, is substantially a plaintiff in the suit and is entitled to a decree, and he can move the Court, on payment of the proper stamp duty, to take steps to put him in posession of the share allotted to him. But if the Court merely passes a final decree in favour of the plaintiffs and directs that they be put in possession of their shares and it does not allot shares to the defendants, the latter cannot put in an application praying that a decree sheet be prepared and on payment of the requisite stamp duty they may be put in possession of the shares allotted to them. Before doing so, they must apply for an amendment of the decree so as to direct that they also be put in possession of their shares. 42 P.L.R. 148=1940 Lah. 202. A partition necessarily affects the interest of a mortgagee of an undivided share, since after the partition his security is upon the divided share or the separate allotment. He may be prejudiced if that share does not receive a proper allotment in severalty, and it is not for the benefit of all other persons interested in the joint property that he should be bound by the. allotment. Hence it will in general meet the case if he is allowed to attend and be heard at that stage at which the making of a proper allotment is effected. If, however, the mortgagee has proceeded to a sale pending partition, the purchaser will become a necessary party to the partition suit, I.L.R.

Power to Court to order sale instead of division in partition suits.

2. Whenever in any suit for partition in which, if instituted prior to the commencement of this Act, a decree for partition might have been made, it appears to the Court that, by reason of the nature of the property to which the suit relates, or of the number of the shareholders therein or of any other special circumstance, a division of the property cannot reasonably or conveniently be made and that a sale of the property, and distribution of the proceeds would be more beneficial for all the shareholders, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the request of any of such shareholders interested individually or collectively to the extent of one moiety or upwards, direct a sale of the property and a distribution of the proceeds.

(1940) 1 Cal. 255=67 I.A. 11=44 C.W.N. 233 =42 Bom.L.R. 331=1940 P.C. 11=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 97 (P.C.). Where in a suit for partition a preliminary decree was passed, the fact that an appeal had been preferred from that decree does not oust the jurisdiction of the trial Court to entertain a petition of compromise and an application for permission to compromise on behalf of the minor defendants. A partition suit in which a preliminary decree has been passed must be deemed to be pending until the passing of the final decree. 12 Luck. 260=1936 Oudh 320. A partition suit in which a preliminary decree has been passed is still a pending suit and the rights of parties who are added after the preliminary decree have to be adjusted at the time of final decree. 67 I.A. 11=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 255=44 C.W.N. 233=1940 P.C. 11=(1940) 1 M. L. J. 97 (P. C.). An order dismissing a partition suit in default after a preliminary decree has been passed is illegal. The Court cannot, however, ignore that order and take further proceedings in the suit, unless it is set aside in due course of law. An order appointing a commissioner to effect partition cannot be deemed to be tantamount to an order setting aside the dismissal of the suit in default. 162 I.C. 412=1936 Lah. 875. The costs mentioned in the partition proceedings are only an estimate and the liability arises on the date the partition is actually confirmed. The person whose name stands in the khewat on that date is liable in respect of it. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 199=1940 O.W.N. 1043. See also 40 C.W.N. 1237. Where there is discrepancy between the partition papers consisting of the chitta and the dole on the one hand and the partition map on the other, the rule that is to be followed is that the partition papers should prevail over the map in as much as the map simply purports to delineate the plots that are allotted to the co-sharers by the partition papers. 46 C.W.N. 509. Where two persons jointly purchased land but one of them advanced more than his half-share of the purchase-money on the promise of the other person to pay the excess amount, the latter cannot have partition and possession of his half-share without paying the excess amount to the other. 22 L.W. 782. What amounts to partition—Award directing a partition, if a partition deed—Stamp duty. See 101 I.C. 401.

Secs. 1 (4) and 2.—Where a mortgagee right in a zemindari property is sought to be partitioned the party to the suit, owning at least a moiety, can request the Court to have the property sold to the highest bidder and to distribute the sale proceeds amongst the sharers. 35 A. 387=19 I.C. 651=11 A.L.J. 534.

SEC. 2.—APPLICABILITY—"REQUEST" MEANOF.—S. 2 authorises the Court to apply S. 2 only on the previous request of the parties. The consent of parties must appear in the record prior to judgment. 1942 N.L.J. 134. Where the request made by the co-sharer is that a sale may be held and that whoever among the co-sharers offers the highest bid may be given the property, the request does not amount to a request under S. 2, and so the provisions of the Act do not apply. 27 A.L.J. 651=1929 A. 443. Where, on the report of the Official Commissioner recommending a sale, notice is issued to all the parties and the sale is held, it should not be set aside for want of a requisition under S. 2 of the Act, if it is valid otherwise. 142 I. C. 461=1933 S. 40. As to allowing 5 per cent. of purchase-money as solatium to auction purchaser on setting aside sale, see 1933 S. 40. In the absence of a finding that a division of the propery cannot reasonably or conveniently be made, action cannot be taken under S. 2 of the Partition Act. 36 P.L.R. 258=1934 L. 965.

SCOPE.—Where a suit for partition of property situated in business area of a town is instituted, a prayer that the partition should take place according to the Partition Act can be made at any stage of the litigation where the parties own more than a moiety of the property in dispute. 1930 L. 639. Shareholders of different grades may sue for partition, because the right of partition exists when two persons are in joint possession of land under permanent titles those titles though may not be identical. A shareholder, however small, may sue for partition of the entire property. But an application under S. 2 contemplates a somewhat different set of circumstances. There may be partition as between persons possessing one moiety of the property in the zemindari right and other persons possessing the other moiety in permanent tenancy right. But if there is an application by the tenants representing only the tenant's interest, it would be anomalous if that would give them a right to have a direction from the Court for the sale of the entire property, even though the zamindars were not willing. 52 C.L.J. 68=1930 C. 616. A claim by a co-owner to partition of a party wall cannot ordinarily be resisted, even where the claim causes inconvenience and difficulty of partition. In the case of a party wall, it is impracticable to take any action under S. 2, Partition Act. 1934 L. 893.

IRREGULARITIY IN PROCEEDING—De novo PROCEEDINGS—PROCEDURE.—Where partition proceedings are badly drawn up, they may be quashed and proceedings started de novo, but there should be as little disturbance as possible of any agreement or orders passed in the prior proceedings. 18 R.D. 6=11 O.W.N. 94.

MORTGAGE BY JOINT OWNER PRIOR TO PARTITION—RIGHTS OF MORTGAGEE.—Where the property is joint at the time of the execution of a mortgage by a joint owner, he could only mortgage his undivided share in the property, and such a right is always subject to the right of the other co-owners to effect a partition, and when such partition is carried out, the mortgagee can only enforce his rights against such property as falls to the share of his mortgagor unless he can show that the partition was fraudulent. It is not essential that the mortgagee should have been made a party to the partition proceedings. 1934 L. 809=16 L. 392.

PARTITION DECREE—DELIVERY OF POSSESSION.—In execution of a final decree for partition, A's share was delivered, but it was found that A could not get actual possession of his share as some huts belonging to other co-sharers were standing on it: Held that Court's order for a fresh delivery of possession by removing the huts was wtthin jurisdiction. 38 C.W.N. 832=1934 C. 793.

SUIT FOR PARTITION,—DUTY OF COURT.—In a suit for partition, it is not incumbent on the Court to effect a partition of the property only if the parties agree to abide by the partition or agree to the appointment of a particular person as a local commissioner. 36 P.L.R. 258=1934 L. 965.

SUIT FOR PARTITION—RIGHTS OF DEFENDANTS inter se—IF SHOULD BE DECIDED.—It is no doubt usual in partition suits to decide the shares of all the parties. But where the defendants agreed to have a preliminary decree being passed in favour of the plaintiff for partition of his share without their rights being decided, and the preliminary decree was not appealed against, it is not open to the defendants in subsequent proceedings to contend that their rights inter se should have been decided. 36 P.L.R. 112=1934 L. 172.

SUBSEQUENT EVENTS.—As to power of Court to take into consideration, see 1933 S. 371.

Secs. 2 and 3: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—S. 3 comes into play only when a sale has been applied for under S. 2 by a shareholder or shareholders interested to the extent of at least one-half of the property. It is at that stage and before the sale is actually ordered that the right to apply, for leave to buy at a valuation can be exercised under S. 3. But that can be done only by a shareholder other than the large shareholder who applied for sale under S. 2. The effect, curiously enough, is to favour the smaller shareholder at the expense of the larger and that explains why Ss. 2 and 3 have been so strictly construed by the Courts. If a sale is directed under S. 2 and S. 3 does not apply either because the application was not of the nature, or the applicant was not the one specified in the section, then the sale is governed by S. 6, and shareholders and strangers alike may bid at the sale. 34 L.W. 730=61 M.L.J. 552. The provisions of the Act apply to the stage at which the suit is in the Court of first instance. 1923 A. 293 (1). The principle underlying S. 2 is that partition ought not to be made, if by partition the intrinsic value of the property would be destroyed. 103 I.C. 367=1927 A. 686. The sale which a Court directing partition can order under the section is only of a complete share, and not a mere portion thereof. 91 I.C. 1009 =1926 O. 230. An appellate Court can order sale of property, when the partitioning is inconvenient,provided objection was taken to the mode of partitioning in the trial Court and the made suggested by the party was disallowed. 33 I.C. 810=14 A.L.J. 35. See also 5 C.W.N. 128; 24 M. 639; 32 B. 103. If any party to a decree for partition finds it inconvenient in actual practice, it is open to him to apply under S. 2 of the Act. 20 A.L.J. 90=1922 A. 185. See 1924 L. 325=3 Lah.L.J. 102=66 I.C. 885. The proper time to apply under S. 3 is before the Court makes an order under S. 2 and after the request had been made by one of the parties that the property should be sold. 48 M. 920=49 M.L.J. 411. "Such shareholder" occurring in the latter part of S. 3 (1) must necessarily mean the shareholder who applied for leave to buy. 48 M. 920. See also 91 I.C. 516=1925 M. 1234. Consent order direcing sale—Subsequent application claiming to buy property at a valuation—S. 3, if applicable to the case. See 91 I.C. 516=1925 M. 1234. In a suit by plaintiff for purchase of defendant's share at a valuation by Court, defendant has the option of asking the Court that the plaintiff's share may be sold to him at a valuation fixed by the Court. 97 I.C. 690=1926 C. 1190. Dwelling-house—Reasonably or conveniently partitioned—Application for withdrawal of suit. 47 I.C. 904=16 A.L.J. 584. If, in a suit for partition, there are two parcels of land, one capable of partition, and the other not so capable, the Court can order the sale of the latter. 36 C.L.J. 217=49 C. 1043. But an order directing the sale of one of the allotments obtained after partition is not within Ss. 2 and 9 of the Act. 49 C. 1043. Order for sale—When inappropriate. 96 P.R. 1916= 34 I.C. 587. Any of the parties consenting to a sale under the Act may withdraw his consent, but the withdrawal must be made before the order for sale is made. 62 I.C. 430=13 L.W. 429. Suit for partition—Consent order directing sale—Subsequent application claiming to buy property at a valuation—S. 3 if applies to the case. 48 M. 920=49 M.L.J. 411.

Secs. 2 and 4.—Where the passage in a dwelling-house giving access to the rooms of different co-sharers must perforce be left joint, the property is not susceptible of partition by metes and bounds. 24 I.C. 273=7 S.L.R. 117. A co-sharer who applies for sale of the property has no right to buy up the shares of other co-

Procedure when sharer undertakes to buy.

3. (1) If, in any case in which the Court is requested under the last foregoing section to direct a sale, any other shareholder applies for leave to buy at a valuation the share or shares of the party or parties asking for a sale, the Court shall order a valuation of the share or shares in such manner as it may think fit and offer to sell the same to such shareholder at the price so ascertained, and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

(2) If two or more shareholders severally apply for leave to buy as provided in sub-section (1), the Court shall order a sale of the share or shares to the shareholder who offers to pay the highest price above the valuation made by the Court.

(3) If no such shareholder is willing to buy such share or shares at the price so ascertained, the applicant or applicants shall be liable to pay all costs of or incident to the application or applications.

4. (1) Where a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such family and such transferee sues for partition, the Court shall, if any member of the family being a shareholder shall undertake to buy the share of such transferee, make a valuation of such share in such manner as it thinks fit and direct the sale of such share to such shareholder, and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

Sec. 3.—See under S. 2. Where two or more co-sharers apply for leave to buy the property, the procedure laid down in S. 3 (2) of the Act must be followed. 103 I.C. 367=1927 A. 686. Court is not authorized to hold a public auction. 40 C.W.N. 955.

Sec. 4: CONDITIONS TO BE FULFILLED FOR APPLICATION OF S. 4.—S. 4 should be liberally construed and not strictly construed. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 73=19 N.L.J. 241=1937 Nag. 4. For the application of S. 4, four conditions ought to be fulfilled: (1) The house should be owned by an undivided family ; (2) the share of a co-sharer should have been transferred to a person who was a stranger to the family; (3) the purchaser should have sued for partition ; and (4) a member of the family being a shareholder claims or undertakes to buy the share of the stranger transferee. 119 I.C. 523=1929 A. 414. See also 34 L.W. 730=61 M.L.J. 552. S. 4 will apply even to a house, a portion of which is already separated owing to one member selling his interest in it. 119 IC. 523=1929 A. 414. The operation of S. 4 comes into play after it is found that a stranger transferee is entitled to partition. In fact no order can be passed under the Act before such a transferee establishes his claim. 90 I.C. 121 ; 39 A. 672= 41 I.C. 867. See also 15 C.W.N. 555 (Note)= 11 I.C. 370. The section must be strictly construed. 15 C.W.N. 555 (Note). See also 1937 Nag. 4. But see 19 N.L.J. 241=165 I.C. 930. The object of S. 4 is to enable the members to buy out an outsider who is a transferee from one of the co-sharers. Ordinarily an application of this kind would be made before a preliminary decree is passed. 64 I.C. 917=23 Bom.L. R. 1083. See also 12 C.L.J. 525 ; 7 C.L.J. 98. An application under S. 4 can be made at any stage of a suit even in an appellate Court ; a party in a partition suit whether a plaintiff or a defendant is at the same time a plaintiff as well as a defendant. This dual capacity of a party in a partition suit does not preclude even a defendant who claims a share in the dwelling-house from being treated as plaintiff for purposes of S. 4. 49 C.L.J. 136=116 I.C. 161=1929 C. 269. See also 19 N.L.J. 241=165 I.C. 930 (word 'sons' interpreted). It may be made even after a preliminary decree in the suit. 45 C. 873=22 C.W.N. 515. The transferee of a share in undivided property is entitled under S. 44, Transfer of Property Act, to his transferor's right to joint possession or other common or part enjoyment of the property in all cases except where the subject matter of the transfer is a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family of which he (the transferor) is not a member in which case he is not entitled to joint possession or other common or part enjoyment of the property but is entitled to a partition of the property which, however, must be denied to him under S. 4, Partition Act, in the event of a member of the family being a shareholder undertakes to buy the share of the transferee. 1940 Rang. 53. Option of purchase given under this section is not taken away by the preliminary decree. 1922 C. 129. See also 12 C.L.J. 525 ; 45 C. 873. S. 4 refers to cases where a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such a family the principle being that property must so far as possible be left in the possession of the person in occupation. 73 I.C. 748. "Dwelling-house" in S. 4 includes the land and appurtenances which are ordinarily and reasonably necessary for its enjoyment. The section is not inapplicable for portions of houses left undivided. 190 I.C. 117. A "dwelling-house" in S. 4 means not only the house itself but also the land and appurtenances which are ordinarily and reasonably necessary for its enjoyment. The Court must therefore make a valuation of such land and appurtenances also, if any. 18 Pat.L.T. 866=1937 P.W.N. 902= 1938 Pat. 13. The expression "dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family" appearing in S. 4, Partition Act, has been borrowed from S. 44, Transfer of Property Act, and bears the same meaning. The word 'family' includes a group of persons related in blood, who live in one house under one head or management and it is not restricted to a body of persons who can trace their descent from a common ancestor. 1940 Rang. 53. Section also applies to Muhammadan family. See 30 A. 324=5 A.L.J. 352; 38 Bom.L.R. 261=162 I.C. 941=1936 B. 197. The term "undivided family" has not been used in a technical sense and is applicable to Hindus and Mahomedans alike and must be held to have much the same meaning as the words "undivided family" in cl. (2), S. 44, T. P. Act. 119 I.C. 523=1929 A. 414. See also 1936 L. 291. It is not restricted to joint Hindu family divided in status and possessed of a dwelling-house which has not been actually divided or partitioned among the members of the famiiy. 53 M. 417=1930 M. 561=58 M.L.J. 341; 97 I. C. 416. It means undivided qua the property sought to be divided and a family owning it without dividing the same. 30 I.C. 936=9 S. L.R. 84. It is sufficient if the parties are co-owners, whether as joint tenants or tenants-in-common. 30 I.C. 936 (30 A. 324, Ref.). A Court of appeal is as much entitled to pass an order under the section as a trial Court. It can do so even after the records are sent back to the trial Court, though that Court also may have jurisdiction in the matter. 30 I.C. 936. The powers can be exercised at any time before the final allotments are made. The section does not indicate when the willingness should be signified to the judge. 30 I.C. 936. It cannot be held as a matter of law that two Mahomedan sisters married or unmarried cannot form an undivided family within the meaning of S. 4 of the Act. The phrase 'undivided family' in the section is used in a very wide and general sense and two Mahomedan married daughters too may be regarded as members of an undivided family within the meaning of the Act if the house is undivided and if one of them permanently occupies the house and the other though she lives mostly with her husband, has not permanently abandoned all intention of occupying the house should it become necessary io do so. 1941 A.L.J. 284=1941 O.W.N. 707= 1941 All. 281. A widow in a joint Hindu family is a member of the "undivided family" 19 N.L.J. 241=165 I.C. 930. Where a widow had, though she re-married long ago, continued to live in the family house, she retains her status as a member of an 'undivided family' qua the family house and as such is entitled to purchase any share which might have been sold. 1939 A.L.J. 629=1939 All. 640. Though the determining principle under the section is ownership rather than occupation, an owner, who is not in occupation and who has no intention of occupying, is not entitled to the benefit of the section, merely because he is an owner. 38 Bom.L.R. 261=1936 B. 197. A Mahomedan daughter who has married and is living with her husband but not in the dwelling house which is the subject of partition is not entitled to the benefit of S. 4 of the Act, as she is not a member of an undivided family with reference to the dwelling-house. 1936 Bom. 197. The word 'transferred' in the section includes also a Court auction-purchaser. 1936 L. 291. The word 'transfer' in S. 4 is not conferred only to a transfer by private agreement. It also means a transfer by operation of law. S. 2 (d) of the Transfer of Property Act does not govern the meaning of the word 'transfer.' 66 C.L.J. 87= 1938 Cal. 171. Order under S. 4 when can be passed—Powers of appellate Court. 1926 C. 95. It is necessary for a Court, when a suit is instituted by a stranger to an undivided family for partition of a house to find first whether the house in question is a dwelling-house and belongs to an undivided family and further that, if a member of an undivided family who is a share-holder in that dwelling-house undertakes to buy his share, to value the share the valuation to be decided in any manner that the Court should think fit. 123 I.C. 336=1930 A. 509. Under S. 4 the question for consideration is whether the purchaser was a member of the undivided family to which the dwelling house belonged at the time of the sale. The fact that he was a member of the family to which the property originally belonged is quite irrelevant. 45 C.W,N. 74=1941 Cal. 311. The mere fact that the purchaser has obtained possession of the property is not sufficient to defeat the claim of a member of a family under S. 4 of the Partition Act. Unless it can be shown that the purchaser's possession was such that he could be regarded as having become a membor of the family, no possession would serve to defeat the claim. 45 C.W.N. 74=1941 Cal. 311. The word "Court" in S. 4 means not merely the trial Court, but also includes an appellate Court; an appellate Court has therefore power to act under the section though no such application has been made in the trial Court. 18 Pat.L.T. 866 = 1937 P.W.N. 902 = 1938 Pat. 13 ; 12 C.L.J. 525 (application under the section may be made after preliminary decree). See also 10 C.L.J. 503; 5 C.W.N. 128; 24 M. 639; 32 B. 103. The word "sues" may be applied indifferently either to the defendant or the plaintiff, for the suit of one party or of the other must be followed. The word signifies not only "to prosecute" but also "to defend" or to do something which the law requires for the better prosecution or defence of the cause. In view of the clear intention of the Act, where in the course of a suit by a member of a joint family, the defendant, a transferee from another member, applies to have a partition under the Partition Act, he is correctly regarded as having "sued" for partition within the meaning of S. 4; and the plaintiffs (members) can therefore apply to buy his share. DECREE—FORM OF—PROCEDURE.—In a case under S. 4 of the Partition Act, ordinarily the purchaser should be asked to deposit in Court the purchase money by a time fixed by theCourt, the time to be fixed and extended at the discretion of the Court. If the purchaser deposits the said purchase money within the time allowed by the Court a decree should be passed in the suit in favour of the purchaser declaring that all rights of the plaintiff or persons claiming partition in the property in suit have been transferred by a Court sale in favour of the defendant on payment of the said sale price and plaintiff's claim for partition is dismissed, If necessary a sale certificate may also be issued to the purchaser. In case the defendant or the purchaser makes default in payment of purchase money a decree for partition should be made in favour of plaintiff and the partition proceeded with. 1941 A.L.J. 284 = 1941 O.W.N. 707 = 1941 All. 281.

PRELIMINARY DECREE—FORM AND CONTENTS. —A preliminary decree in a partition suit must contain the following classes:—(1) Declaration of properties belonging to the estate; (2) Declaration of shares of the parties; (3) Order for partition, division and allotment; (4) Appointment of Commissioner for the purpose of partition setting out the conditions, powers and duties; (5) Receiver, if appointed; (6) Special Referee to take accounts; (7) Costs prior and subsequent to preliminary decree, and a provision for the ascertainment of costs before the filing of the return at the instance of the Commissioner; (8) Provisions relating to conveyances and documents of title, etc.; (9) Liberty to apply including liberty to bring on the matter for further directions in the Partition List at the instance of the commissioner or at the instance of any party with the Commissioner's consent or with the sanction of the special officer. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 410.

COMMISSIONER'S ACCOUNTS—METHOD OF PREPARATION.—The Commissioner of partition has to prepare the following five accounts and annex them to his final return : (1) Property account: On the credit side should be the receipts and on the debit side the amounts credited to the parties in respect of their shares. (2) Cash account : All receipts and disbursements should find place in such account with the respective references to the other accounts, for instance, payment to the pool account. (3) The ledger account should show on the credit side the share of the sale-proceeds with which each party is credited, on the debit side the amounts paid to the parties or on their account. On the debit side also should be debited the share of the pooled costs payable by each party. (4) Costs adjustment account: On one side. the costs of the partition which have to be dealt with by the Commissioner. First, costs of the Commissioner. Then the ascertained party and party costs of each party. On the other side of the account, the liability of the parties for the aggregate of the said costs. (5) The costs pool account is designed mainly to meet the difficulties of advances to the parties and to the parties' solicitors. On one side should appear the amounts payable by the parties in respect of pooled costs. On the other side must be brought in all advances to the solicitors in respect of such costs. Also on this side must appear the actual amounts payable and paid to the solicitors before the final return is filed. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 410.

RECEIVER'S ACCOUNTS—METHOD OF PREPARATION.—Receivers in partition suits should prepare a classified statement of account from which the Commissioner can at once enter up his accounts:—(1) Property account; (2) Cash accounts; (3) Parties' ledger accounts; (4) Costs adjustment account; and (5) Pool account. Receiver's costs must be taxed or assessed, and included in the above account. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 410.

and the amount of such bidding shall be fixed by the Court in such manner as it may think fit and may be varied from time to time.

(2) On any such sale any of the shareholders shall be at liberty to bid at the sale on such terms as to non-payment of depositor as to setting off or accounting for the purchase-money or any part thereof, instead of paying the same, as to the Court may seem reasonable.

(3) If two or more persons, of whom one is shareholder in the property, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding at such sale, such bidding shall be deemed to be bidding of the shareholder.

Procedure to be followed in case of sales.

7. Save as hereinbefore provided, when any property is directed to be sold under this Act, the following procedure shall, as far as practicable, be adopted, namely:

(a) if the property be sold under a decree or order of the High Court of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, [1][* *] the procedure of such Court in its original civll jurisdiction for the sale of property by the Registrar;

(b) if the property be sold under a decree or order of any other Court, such procedure as the High Ccurt may from time to time by rules prescribe in this behalf, and until such rules are made, the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure in respect of sales in execution of decrees.

Orders for sale to be deemed decrees.

8. Any order for sale made by the Court under section 2, 3 or 4 shall be deemed to be a decree within the meaning of section 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

NOTES.

partition, the Court should direct the sale to be held among the parties and the property should be given to the party who offers the highest price above the valuation of the Court. 52 C. L.J. 68=1930 C. 616. It is incumbent upon the Court, whether it is moved in that behalf or not, to fix a reserved bidding under S. 6, and the non-observance of such a statutory provision which results in the realization of an inadequate price is a sufficient ground, where minors are concerned, to refuse to confirm the sale. 142 I. C. 461=1933 Sind 40.

See. 7: OBJECTIONS TO SALE—ORDER ON—APPEAL.—As defendants are entitled to prefer objections to a sale held under the provisions of S. 7 just as in execution proceedings, an appeal lies against the decision on such objections. 30 Punj.L.R. 604=118 I.C. 530=1929 L. 245. The Partition Act provides for the case of a deadlock where certain parties do not agree. It does not however prevent the parties from bringing to sale the property by consent even in a suit for partition under the Act. Where therefore in a partition suit, a consent decree is passed by which the parties agree to a sale of certain property by the Commissianer at his discretion, the sale held under such decree is not a sale under the Partition Act and therefore the Commissioner is not bound to follow the rules of the Calcutta High Court in Chap. 27 of the Rules and Orders of that Court framed under that Act. 172 I.C. 482=1937 Cal, 384. In a partition suit under the Act, the parties arrived at a compromise and a consent decree was passed and the parties agreed that the property in question should be sold by the Commissioner for that purpose. On this the Court directed the Commissioner to fix a reserve, while holding the sale. Held, that the mere fact that the Commissioner was directed to fix a reserve did not mean that he was bound to sell above the reserve and that failing that he was bound to get the directions of the Court. It might have been better to do so but it was not a failure to carry out the terms of any order 172 I.C. 482=1937 Cal. 384.

Sec. 8.—Where the trial Court allows a sale, but the appellate Court refuses to pass an order for sale reversing the trail Court's order, the appellate order is a decree and is appealable, if the requirements of a second appeal under S. 100, C. P. Code, are fulfilled. 49 C. L. J. 136=1929 C. 269. An order passed on an application made under S. 4 is a decree by reason of the provisions of S. 8 and is therefore appealable. I. L. R. (1937) Nag. 73=19 N. L. J. 241=A. I. R. 1937 Nag. 4. An order rejecting an application for sale under S. 4 is not a "decree" and is, therefore, not appealable as such. The correctness of that order can, therefore, be questioned in an appeal filed against the final decree. 45 C. W. N. 74=A. I. R. 1941 Cal. 311.

Saving of power to order partly partition and partly sale.

9. In any suit for partition the Court may, if it shall think fit, make a decree for a partition of part of the property to which the suit relates and a sale of the remainder under this Act.

Application of Act to pending suits.

10. This Act shall apply to suits instituted before the commencement thereof, in which no scheme for the partition of the property has been finally approved by the Court.

THE INDIAN PARTNERSHIP ACT (IX OF 1932).

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendment.
1932	IX	Thc Indian Partnership Act.	Amended by Act XXIV of 1934.

PREFATORY NOTE: History of the Act.—Till very recent times, the main body of the law relating to partnership in India was contained in Chapter XI of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. On or about the beginning of 1930, a bill to define and amend the law relating to partnership, with notes setting forth the reasons for its various provisions, was prepared in the Legislative Department, was placed before a Select Committee consisting of four eminent lawyers with Sir B. L. Mitter, Law Member of the Governor-General in Council, as Chairman and formed the basis of their discussions. The Select Committee examined the bill very closely and in the course of their report, said:—

"In paragraph 8 of the report of the Special Committee on the Sale of Goods Bill, which was adopted as the Statement of Objects and Reasons to that bill, it was said:—

"When Sir James Stephen moved the Indian Contract Bill, he admitted that it was not and could not pretend to be, a complete code upon the branch of law to which it related. He, however, expressed a hope that in later years it would be easy to enact supplementary chapters relating to the several branches of the law of contract which the bill did not touch. This hope has never been fulfilled. In the later years it was found more convenient to have separate enactments for the several branches of the law of contract, e.g., the Transfer of Property Act, the Negotiable Instruments Act, and the Merchant Shipping Act. In our opinion, in view of the complexity of modern conditions, the time has now come when this process should be accelerated by embodying the different branches of law relating to contract in separate self-contained enactments; and we hope that the bill which we attach to our report may be passed into law at an early date and may be but the first of the series required to complete the task which we have outlined above."

The present bill is the second of the series foreshadowed by the Special Committee, and like its prdecessor it is based on the corresponding English Act, in this case the Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vic., c. 39). The law relating to partnership is at present contained in Chapter XI, of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, which was based on the rules included in the Report of the Indian Law Commission presided over by Lord Romilly, in 1866. These rules were based on English precedents. The main object then in view was, in the words of Sir James Stephen who piloted the Indian Contract Bill through the Council, "that of providing a body of law to the Government of the country so expressed that it might be readily understood both by English and Indian Government servants without extrinsic help from the English law libraries." With that object in view the Select Committee on the Indian Contract Bill, in its report, dated 22nd February, 1870, said that many important matters relating to partnership were left unnoticed in Chapter XI. In addition to these omissions the development of trade in India has shown further matters on which legislation is now required. In the absence of clear and definite rules on these points, Indian Courts have held that Chapter XI of the Indian Contract Act is not exhaustive and have relied on analogies drawn from the English law. In regard to partnership the position is much the same as that in regard to the sale of goods, and the remarks of the Special Committee on the Sale of Goods Bill in paragraph 6 of their Report may be repeated with cogency:—

"Whatever merit the simple and elementary rules embodied in the Indian Contract Act may have had, and however sufficient and suitable they may have been for the needs which they were intended to meet in 1872, the passage of time has revealed defects the removal of which has become necessary in order to keep the law abreast of the developments of modern business relations."

The Special Committee showed that the English Sale of Goods Bill was "a very successful and correct codification of this branch of mercantile law" and that it had been adopted in most of the British Possessions and many of the United States of America, with only such small variations as were found necessary to adapt its provisions to local circumstances. The Special Committee, therefore, adopted the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, as the source of the Indian Sale of Goods Bill, and modified it only to the small extent required to adapt it to Indian conditions. The bill as drafted by them became the Indian Sale of Goods Act (III of 1930), with a few minor modifications.

The English Partnership Act, 1890, affords both a comparison with and a contrast to the Sale of Goods Act, 1893. The law it contains has been adopted in nearly all the British Dominions and Colonies and it also forms the basis of a uniform Partnership Act which is in force in the United States of America. Herein it affords a comparison with the Sale of Goods Act and there can be no doubt that, if its provisions are closely followed in India, the commercial community will derive great advantages: Sir Courtney Illbert has remarked:

"Experience shows that whenever Parliament passes a good law carefully framed like the Bills of Exchange Act or the Sale of Goods Act, Legislatures in other parts of the British Dominions readily copy it or adapt it. This would presumably be the best mode of obtaining such kind and amount of uniformity in commercial legislation throughout the Empire as is in existing circumstances feasible and desirable." (Vide the article on Unification of Commercial Law in Volume II of the Journal of Comparative Legislation.)

The Partnership Act, 1890, has received some approval from legal commentators, and generally recognised as a useful code embodying most of the law applicable to modern partnerships. In the Introduction to the 9th Edition of Lindley on Partnership it is said that the Act "has the merit of reducing a mass of law, previously undigested except by private authors, into a series of propositions authoritatively expressed."

The Partnership Act, 1890, however, has not been such a successful piece of codification as the English Sale of Goods Act, 1893, and herein lies the contrast. The full context of the quotation from Lindley given above runs as follows:—

"Opinions will naturally differ as to the utility of statutes which deal with important branches of law, but which do not profess to deal with them exhaustively. No doubt an incomplete piece of work is unsatisfactory, but it does not follow that such a work is not worth executing; it is well done as far as it goes, it may be a great boon; and the Partnership Ait, 1890, although imperfect, has the merit of reducing a mass of law, previously undigested except by private authors, into a series of propositions authoritatively expressed and as carefully considered as any Act of Parliament is likely to be."

The learned author of the treatise proceeds to discuss the difficulty of passing a considered code of law on a technical subject through a democratic legislature like Parliament and he concludes:

"Taken as a whole the law of England, both civil and criminal, is well adapted to the requirements of the English people; but it sadly wants methodising and authoritative revision; and any such revision of any branch of it is a distinct gain. From this point of view the Act in question (i.e., the Partnership Act, 1890), is decidedly useful, although it is by no means a perfect measure, nor even as good as Parliament might have made it."

These remarks have encouraged us to depart from the precedent of the sale of Goods Bill, where the English Act was modified in a few particulars only, and to use the Partnership Act, 1890, with some degree of freedom. Nevertheless, the bill does not alter in any substantial way the English law of partnership or the Indian law of partnership, which is based thereon. The main principles are the same, and likewise all important details. The deviations in principle it does show are on minor points, and have been introduced in order to adapt the law to Indian conditions or to supplement it in places where it is incomplete, or are supported by the views of authoritative commentators. Further, the wording of clearly defined principles in the Partnership Act, 1890, has been freely adopted. Admittedly, any change in the wording of the English Act may have the disadvantage of making useful English decisions difficult to apply to Indian cases, but it is anticipated that the practical identity in substance of the two Acts and the similarity in wording of important provisions will avoid this undesirable result and will attract to difficult cases in India the benefits of English judicial experience.

The main source of the difference between the bill and the Partnership Act, 1890, lies in the greater emphasis given in the bill to the personality of a firm. On this subject Lindley remarks:—

"One feature peculiar to the English law of partnership, and distinguishing it from the laws of other European countries and of Scotland, was the persistency with which the firm, as distinguished from the partners composing it, was ignored both at law and in equity. As no one can owe money to himself it was held that no debt could exist between any member of a firm and the firm itself; and although Courts of Equity, in winding up the concerns of a firm, treated the firm as the debtor or creditor of its members as the case might be, yet this was only for purposes of book-keeping, and in order to arrive at the net balance to be paid to or by each of the partners on the ultimate settlement of their accounts. This non-recognition of the firm was a defect in the law of partnership; and it is to be regretted that the Partnership Act did not go further than it did in the direction of assimilating the English law to the Scotch. Had it done so, the difficulties of suing and being sued, and of dealing with partners abroad, would have been greatly diminished."

The bill goes some way to meet Lindley's criticism but it adheres strictly to the old established English and Indian view that a firm is not a legal person. 49 Bom. 245=1925 Bom. 69. The emphasis above referred to arises from two causes, the first of which is a mere matter of wording. The English Act defines the word "partnership" as being "the relation which subsists between persons carrying on a business in common with a view to profit", and, as regards a "firm" it says that "persons who have entered into partnership with one another are for the purposes of this Act called collectively a firm." It appears that the framers of the English Act, wished throughout to lay stress on the abstract relation of partnership and to avoid giving colour to the view that the firm has any degree of personality, for in the Act the term "partnership" is frequently used in the sense of "firm", and also as an adjective in the sense of "belonging to a firm" or "relating to a firm." The use of the defined word "firm" seems almost to be avoided. The bill confines the word "partnership" to its legimate defined meaning of the relation which exists between partners, and wherever the partners themselves are referred to collectively it uses the word "firm". Hence the word "firm" occurs very frequently in the bill, whereas the word "partnership" occurs rarely, and thereby the bill, as compared with the English Act, emphasises the concrete thing the firm, as against the abstract relation, the partnership.

The second cause of the emphasis is very largely a matter of arrangement. The strict view of the existing law placing full stress upon the abstract relation of partnership, is that "on any change amongst the persons comprising a partnership, there is in fact a new partnership". (Lindley, page 166.) This, however, is not the practical or commercial view of a firm, whereunder a firm has a sufficient degree of personality and of continuity to justify such common places as advertisements which claim that a firm has been established for a century. Even the English Law as expressed in the Partnership Act, 1890, has been forced to depart from the strict legal view of the firm, for it speaks of changes in a firm, or person dealing with a firm after a change in its constitution, of debts due from the firm to a partner, and uses other phrases conceding some degree of personality to the firm, and of continuity in its existence in spite of internal changes. The bill goes in this direction to the limits which are already implied in the English Act and it collects together in a separate Chapter, entitled "Incoming and outgoing partners" all provisions which directly bear upon the introduction, retirement, expulsion, insolvency and death of partners in those cases where the business of the firm is carried on without a dissolution of partnership. The result is that, apart from the preliminary Chapter and the Chapter on "The nature of partnership," the Bill has three Chapters which deal with the working firm, namely,—

Chapter III.—Relations of partners to one another,
Chapter IV.—Relations of partners to third parties,
Chapter V.—Incoming and outgoing partners, and one Chapter relating to the extinction of a firm, namely,—

Chapter VI.—Dissolution of a firm.

This re-arrangement of the English Act, 1890, has been done with a view to secure practical convenience to lawyers and business men in that very numerous class of cases where there is a change in the constitution of a firm without a dissolution. The new Chapter V contains a number of concise propositions setting out the legal consequences flowing from changes in the personnel of the firm when there is no dissolution, which are embodied in various sections of the English Act, scattered throughout all three of its parts. The rearrangement has also the advantage of confining Chapter VI strictly to provisions relating to the dissolution of a firm and its legal consequences. But in so re-arranging the English Act, the framers of the Indian Act have not departed from any of the outstanding conceptions or principles of English Law. Chapter VII contains provisions relating to the Registration of Firms.

"It has already been indicated that the bill contains other provisions, which are not contained in the Partnership Act, 1890. These are considered in detail in the Notes on Clauses attached to the bill, but one set of provisions is important enough to justify its mention in this Report. In the Introduction to Lindley, page 8, it is said, under the marginal head "Goodwill:"

"One matter of great practical importance and of some difficulty is unfortunately dealt with, i.e., the goodwill of a dissolved firm and the extent to which, and the persons by whom, the use of its name may be continued. Sir Frederick Pollock's bill dealt with these points; as did also the bill which passed the House of Commons in 1889, and the bill which was brought into the House of Lords in 1890. But owing, it is believed, to differences of opinion, and to the difficulty of arriving at a conclusion which would be acceptable to both Houses of Parliament, the clauses relating to these subjects were struck out. The law upon them must be extracted from judicial decisions and the doubts and difficulties which beset question arising on these subjects must remain for future judicial or legislative solution."

Perhaps a reason for the differences of opinion on the clauses relating to goodwill was that they were framed generally, and not with application to the goodwill of firms only. Sir Frederick Pollock himself says in his Digest of the Law of Partnership (12th edition, pages 121-122) :

"The Act does not make any express provision for disposing of the goodwill on the dissolution of a firm. Probably this is due to the consideration that the rules of law relating to goodwill are not confined to cases where a business has been carried on in partnership, and therefore do not belong to the law of partnership in any exact sense. Nevertheless, the rules have been settled chiefly by decisions in partnership cases, and the question of goodwill is one of those which ought always to be considered and provided for in the formation of a partnership, and constantly has to be considered on its dissolution, whether provided for or not."

It is considered that the views of these two eminent writers should be followed, and accordingly provision is made in the bill for the disposal of the goodwill of a firm. Provisions governing the sale of goodwill generally would be out of place, but they are of sufficient importance in their bearing on firms to justify their inclusion in a restricted form. There is perhaps no statute on the Indian Statute Book where general provisions could find a logical place, but it is hoped that the provisions now proposed for the goodwill of firms will be found to contain principles which may be used as a general guide". THE INDIAN PARTNERSHIP ACT (IX OF 1932).

[8th April, 1932.

An Act to define and amend the law relating to partnership.

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend the law relating to partnership; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN PARTNERSHIP ACT, 1932.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of October, 1932, except section 69, which shall come into force on the 1st day of October, 1933.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) an "act of a firm" means any act or omission by all the partners, or by any partner or agent of the firm which gives rise to a right enforceable by or against the firm;

(b) "business" includes every trade, occupation and profession;

NOTES.

Sec. 1 (3)—Sec. 1. (3) of the Act enacts that S. 69 of the Act did not come into force before the 1st October, 1933. This was intended to give time to unregistered firms to get themselves registered in order to enable them to bring suits. 15 Pat, 810=17 Pat. L. T. 713=1937 Pat. 16. The meaning of the provision that "the Act shall come into force on 1st October, 1932, except S. 69 which shall come into force on 1st October, 1933", in S. 1 (3), is that after 1st October, 1933, S. 69 will become operative and a firm which is not registered and which sues to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be non-suited. 161 I. C. 741=1936 Cal. 133.

Sec. 2 (b), 4 & 69.—S. 2, Cl, (b) read with S. 4 is intended to mean a continued participation of two or more persons in a trade, occupation or profession with the intention of sharing profits accruing from it. An adventure or an undertaking mentioned in S. 8 of the Act presumes the existence of a partnership as defined in S. 4 and therefore a fortiori the existence of a business mentioned in S. 2, Cl. (b). A solitary transaction in which two persons have jointly lent money to another would not make those persons partners in a firm and hence their registration is not necessary under S. 69 of the Act. 193 I. C. 51=1941 Pesh. 6. See also 1938 Nag. 550; 1940 Nag. 211; 1940 A. 230.

(c) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(d) "third party" used in relation to a firm or to a partner therein means any person who is not a partner in the firm; and

(e) "expressions used but not defined in this Act and defined in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, shall have the meanings assigned to them in that Act."

Application of provisions of Act IX of 1872.

3. The unrepealed provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, save in so far as they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Act, shall continue to apply to firms.

CHAPTER II.

THE NATURE OF PARTNERSHIP.

Definition of "partnership"

4. "Partnership" is the relation between persons who have agreed to share the profits of a business carried on by all or any of them acting for all.

NOTES.

Sec. 4 : ELEMENTS OF "PARTNERSHIP".—"(1) There must be an agreement entered into by all the persons concerned. See 51 A. 827=1929 A. 536=118 I.C. 145. See also 18 I.C. 141 and S. 5, infra; (2) the agreement must be to share the profits of a business; and (3) the business must be carried on by all or any of the persons concerned, acting for all. All these elements must be present before a group of associates can be held to be partners. These three elements may appear to overlap, but they are nevertheless distinct. The first element relates to the voluntary contractual nature of partnership; the second gives the motive which leads to the formation of firms, i.e., the acquisition of gain; and the third shows that the persons of the group who conduct the business do so as agents for all the persons in group, and are therefore liable to account to all." Under the law as it stood before this Act a firm as such had no existence in law. The law regarded only the individual partners. This Act has to some extent recognised that the firm is some sort of legal entity apart from its partners. 62 C. 510=39 C.W N. 606. See also 1937 O.W.N. 344=1937 Oudh 438; 20 Pat.L.T. 825=1939 Pat. 323; 1937 Nag. 68=19 N.L.J. 306; 1936 Cal. 133. Partnership rests on agreement and so long as the agreement contemplates an outgoing and an incoming on the joint account in respect of a business, the partnership is complete and all subsequent rights and liabilities are governed by laws which relate to partnership. It is not the subsequent happenings, which determine the question but the initial agreement. If S. 4 has effected a change, it has been in the direction of widening the definition of partnership and not of narrowing it. The change in the definition of partnership has not affected the efficacy of illustrations (a) and (b) to S. 239 of the Contract Act, now repealed. 1940 N.L.J. 50=1940 Nag. 211. The mere circumstance that a person is to share profits only and not losses does not by itself militate against the presumption of partnership. 18 Lah. 306=39 P.L.R. 998=1937 Lah. 338 (F.B.). There may be a partnership in a single transaction, and it is also clear that sharing profits and contributing to losses are indications of a partnership, but by themselves they are not enough to constitute a partnership. One essential element of a partnership is that there should be agency. The words "acting for all" in S. 4 were inserted to emphasise that partners are agents and not merely principals. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 616=41 Bom.L.R. 899=1939 Bom. 410. The mere fact that a committee is not a registered body and has no independent existence in law, cannot make the servants of the committee personally liable. Although the association as such cannot be sued, its members will be jointly liable. 1933 L. 93. Whether the relation of partners exist between two or more persons is a question of fact depending in each case upon the real intention and contract of the parties ascertained from the contents of the written instruments (if any), and from their conduct. 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424. The use of the word "partner" or "partnership" in the agreement does not necessarily show that there is a partnership. 65 I.C. 368=1922 N. 67. See also 51 B. 342=1927 B. 187; nor does the omission of the word necessarily mean its absence. 51 B. 342; 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424. The law regards the body and substance of the agreement and its real character. (1932 S. 218, Ref.) The question whether certain persons are partners in the legal sense depends on the legal relation proved to exist between the partners. 139 I.C. 860=1932 S. 78. Where one firm enters into an agreement of partnership with another, what happens in law and in fact, is that the individual partners of the one firm join with the individual partners in the other firm, the result being that all the individual partners of the two firms become partners individually in the new firm. 62 C. 510=39 C. W.N. 606. See also 1936 Lah. 514.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where husband took his wife in partnership and fixed her share, but reserved power to take more partners or determine her share, held, there was a partnership. 25 Bom.L.R. 1225=1924 B. 182. If parties to a contract agree to become partners they need not say that they agree to combine property, labour or skill, this may be implied. That one of them plays a dominant part is not inconsis-

"partner," "firm" and "firm name".

Persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called individually "partners" and collectively "a firm", and the name under which their business is carried on is called the "firm name."

tent with partnership. 25 Bom.L.R. 1225=1924 B. 182=77 I.C. 699.

CONTRACTS AMOUNTING TO PARTNERSHIP.—An agreement of partnership need not be express. It can arise out of a mutual understanding evidenced by a consistent course of conduct, and indeed, by the express admission of the parties concerned. 177 I.C. 831=1938 Nag. 324. Where four creditors of a debtor agree to sue the debtor for their individual debts, to share costs and to divide the profits of all the suits, the transaction is of the nature of a partnership in the four suits. A suit between the creditors must be brought as a suit between partners for accounts. 9 B.H.C.R. 418. Where in a partnership of four persons, three were to contribute capital, the other person who had a share in the profits for contributing labour is also a partner. 1928 A. 549=111 I.C. 686. To constitute a contract of cultivating partnership as distinguished from a contract of tenancy, it is enough that the person providing the land furnishes a portion of the working capital, as a part of the transaction by which he provides the land and not as a loan. Such person need not actually take part in tilling it. 10 C.P.L. R. 29.

PARTNERSHIP TO WORK MINES.—A contract to work certain mines on condition that the plaintiff was to receive a sum of money as a bonus down and also a certain amount as rent and that the profits and losses were to be divided in the proportion of one-fourth to plaintiff and three-fourths to defendant, is a contract of partnership; and the payment of money, which went by the name of rent, was in the nature of a fixed sum to be received by the plaintiff in consideration of the land which represented his portion of the capital. 9 W.R. 499. See also 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424. Where there is an agreement between two persons for the joint acquisition of a business and for the sharing of its profits in proportion to the contributions of each and the partnership is registered under the Partnership Act, there is a valid partnership and it is not affected either by the fact that the sale-deed refers to the partners individually and not as partners or that one of them had not paid his contribution at all. 1942 O.W.N. 269=1942 O.A. 205. A clerk or gumastha sharing in profits and losses may be a partner. 155 P.L.R. 1917=44 I.C. 283. See also 1922 N. 67=65 I.C. 368; 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424.

PARTNERSHIP WITH EXCISE LICENSEE.—It is not unlawful for an excise licensee to admit an unlicensed person into partnership. 14 C.P.L.R. 67 (dissenting from 11 C.P.L.R. 62). There is nothing illegal in persons combining to bid for and take a licence to conduct a toddy shop in their joint names. 1928 M. 1197=114 I.C. 655. So also, where one of the terms of a icence granted under the Excise Act was that he licence was non-transferable, an agreement, by which the licensee admitted certain persons to a share in the profits of the business carried on, under the licence, in consideration of their assisting him in the liquor sales, cannot render the partnership invalid, inasmuch as the agreement cannot amount to a transfer of the licence. 114 P.R. 1906. See also 1937 Nag. 250; 70 M. L.J. 691.

CONTRCT NOT AMOUNTING TO PARTNERSHIP.—An agreement to share the trees cut in a forest does not create a partnership. 8 L. 310=1927 L. 333=100 I.C. 846. Where there is no combination of property, labour or skill, and the labour or skill or property were all on the side of the defendant, the plaintiff simply supplying the defendant with certain sums of money, the agreement between the parties is not a partnership. 4 A. 74 (80). Creditors jointly advancing money do not become partners, even though they possess a right to share the profits. 1922 N. 67 =65 I.C. 368. But persons making an agreement to carry on a money-lending business and share the profits therefrom, are partners and constitute a firm under S. 4. 1937 N. 134 Marriage is not a partnership as defined under the Act and property acquired during marriage under the Mahomedan Law cannot be regarded as partnership property. U.B.R. [December, 1901 (Mahomedan Law.)]. Where the substantial purpose of an association is not to carry on a business for gain (as for instance in the case of subscribers to the General Family Pension Fund) the fact that gain may accrue incidentally, or may arise from merely subsidiary provisions, does not make registration necessary. 17 C. 786.) (808). A firm is not 'a person' so as to be a member of a partnership concern. 1932 A.L.J. 999. See also 1932 C. 768. Before a minor can be admitted to benefits of partnership under S. 30 of this Act, there must be at least two adult partners who are capable of contracting. 164 I.C. 806=1936 M. 707=71 M.L.J. 373. Under the Mahomedan Law wakf property being vested in the Almighty, there can be no partnership in law with a wakf. 41 C.W.N. 629. A person cannot be at one and the same time a partner in his individual capacity and also in his representative capacity. 41 C.W.N. 629=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 160.

PARTNERSHIP AND TRADE UNION.—When several businessmen by an arrangement form themselves into a combination for the common purpose of enriching themselves by preventing the cutting of prices for which various rules were made, and besides provision was made for the payment into a common pool and a sharing out of it, for arbitration in case of disputes, etc., on a question whether it amounted to a partnership, it was held that it was simply a case of a combination of various businesses inter se to benefit the members and it was a case of a combination and not a case of a partnership and that it fell within the definition of Trade Union. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 702=1940 N.L.J. 239=1940 Nag. 228.

Partnership not created by status.

5. The relation of partnership arises from contract and not from status;

NOTES.

ESSENTIALS OF PARTNERSHIP.—In dealing with the subject of partnership too much attention cannot be paid to the consideration of the question:—What is a partnership and who is a partner? For it is a question of no mere academic interest, because if the relation of private partnership exists, then whatever may be the arrangements between the partners inter se as to how the losses are to be borne, each partner will, as between himself and the creditors of the firm, be liable to the last farthing of his fortune, See 51 B. 342=1927 B. 187. The foundation of this rule is "that each individual partner constitutes the others his agents for the purpose of entering into all contracts for him within the scope of the partnership concern, and consequently is liable to the performance of such contracts in the same manner as if entered into personally by himself." (See 163 P.L.R. 1911=10 I.C. 250.) Therefore, if once the relation of partners is established between one who actively carries on a business and another who passively participates in the profits, the latter will become equally liable with the former for the debts and liabilities of the firm. Although two persons may hold themselves out as partners and be liable to third parties accordingly, yet it does not necessarily follow that they would be partners inter se. 51 B. 342=29 Bom.L.R. 207 =1927 B. 187. The right to control the partnership property, the right to receive profits and the liability to share in losses are elements which help one in finding whether a partnership exists. 27 B. 157 (161). There are two essentials—(1) an agreement between persons to combine their property, labour or skill, and (2) an agreement to share the profits. U.B.R. December, 1901 (Mahomedan Law), 1. See also 12 Mys. L.J. 404; 1937 O. 438=167 I.C. 839. An agreement express or implied, is necessary for the creation of a partnership. 51 A. 827=1929 A. 536. An agreement to share losses is not a necessary ingredient. 51 A. 827 See also 168 I.C. 549=1937 L. 338. Before there can be a partnership in respect of a single transaction, there must be present the other requisites of a partnership. Under S. 4, there must be a 'business,' an agreement to share its profits, and carrying on of it by all or any one acting on behalf of all. A mere isolated act of money-lending on joint security cannot be regarded as constituting business within the meaning of that definition. 1938 N.L.J. 403=1938 Nag. 550. See also 1940 All. 230=1940 N.L.J. 50= 1940 Nag. 211. A single transaction or venture does not amount to 'business' as mentioned in S. 4 and hence S. 69 does not apply to such a transaction. I.L.R. (1940) All. 256=1940 A.L. J. 179=1940 All. 230. See also 1938 Nag. 550. Where certain persons refer to themselves as a firm, it must be presumed even in absence of evidence, that they are parties who have entered into partnership with one another and are a partnership firm. 161 I.C. 741=1936 C. 133. Once it is established beyond doubt that a person is sharing in profits and losses in a fixed proportion in a firm, there arises a strong presumption in favour of his being a partner, and it lies on him to explain or get rid of that presumption. When it is further shown that he has acted as manager of the firm and has a powerful voice in its affairs, there is no doubt of his being a partner. 153 I.C. 969=1935 L. 209. Although a right to participate in the profits of trade is a strong test of partnership, and there may be cases where from such participation alone, it may, as a presumption, not of law, but of fact, be inferred, yet whether that relation does or does not exist must depend on the real intention and contract of the parties. To constitute a partnership, the parties must have agreed to carry on business and to share profits in some way in common. 18 W.R. 384 (387)=10 B.L.R. 312 (P.C.), followed in 6 C.W.N. 429 and 10 C.W.N. 313; 51 M 308= 1928 M. 890=55 M.L.J. 12. But wherever the agreement between parties creates a relation, which is, in substance, a partnership no more words or declarations to the contrary will prevent, as regards third persons, the consequences flowing from the real contract. 18 W.R. 384 (P.C.) Participation in profits is not always conclusive evidence of a partnership. It is however a very cogent evidence, and if it stands alone, may be conclusive evidence. But the fact of participation in profits must be considered in the light of other circumstances. 51 M. 308=55 M.L.J. 12. See also 1939 Pat. 323. On the death of a Mahomedan who is the sole proprietor of a business, his heirs inherit the business as tenants in common, but do not automatically become partners. But if they continue to carry on the business and to share the profits, the necessary inference must be that they had entered into an implied, if not express, agreement to become partners of the new firm. The relationship of partners existing between the parties is confined to the stock-in-trade, outstandings and cash, etc., belonging to the firm, and cannot be extended to the immovable properties acquired with the income of the firm but not in the name of the firm, when such properties have nothing to do with the business of the firm which is a trading partnership carrying on a furniture business. The relationship between the parties in regard to these immoveable properties is that of co-tenants. 1937 O. 438=167 I.C. 839=1937 O W.N. 344. Hindu joint family a partner with strangers—Suit by a co-parcener for his share on the basis of dissolution before suit—Denial of dissolution—Maintainability of suit—Procedure. See 1938 Mad. 388=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 106. The onus is on the party who alleges a change in the firm to establish it. 32 S.L.R. 765=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 966 (P.C.).

Sce. 5: PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION.—"Our law has always treated the partnership relation as founded on voluntary contract. It does not surprise parties into a partnership against their and, in particular, the members of a Hindu undivided family carrying on a family business as such, or a Burmese Buddhist husband and wife carrying on business as such are not partners in such business.

will, although it does not require an express agreement between them. 51 A. 827; nor is it bound by their statements of intention in associating themselves together for business transactions. It will regard their conduct rather than their language in determining whether their voluntary association in a business enterprise amounts to a partnership or not." See 51 B. 342=1927 B. 187; 51 A. 827=1929 A. 536. To determine whether a particular contract constitutes a partnerhip between the parties thereto, its controlling purpose is to ascertain their intention as disclosed by the entire transaction. 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424=81 I.C. 17. But the intention is the legal intention deducible from the acts of the parties. 51 B. 342. If the entire agreement between the parties has been committed to writing, every clause is to be considered and effect given to each, if possible. If the agreement is partly in writing, partly oral, and partly evidenced only by conduct then all the steps taken by the parties in connection with the enterprise are to be considered. 51 B. 342 Hence, the general rule always is that a person can become partner only by his own consent and that of the other members. Hence a minor's incapacity to become a partner by his own consent. 118 I.C. 141. See also 26 C. 349 (354); 25 A. 378 (384); see S. 30, infra. Minor cannot become a partner by contract. 49 C. 560=43 M.L.J. 41=1922 P.C. 237=49 I.A. 108 (P.C.). See also 142 I.C. 203=34 P.L.R. 346; 10 Mys. L.J. 316. The agreement or consent to form a partnership may be express or implied but is necessary for the creation of a partnership. One member of a joint Hindu family entering into partnership does not make the others liable in the absence of proof of agency or consensus. 51 A. 827=1929 A. 536. See also 56 C.L.J. 440. A manager of a joint Hindu family, who enters into a partnership business with a stranger, cannot by such act, ipso facto make the other members of the family partners in the business so as to clothe them with all the rights and obligations of a partner as defined by this Act. In such a case the family as a unit does not become a partner, but only such of its members as in fact enter into a contractual relation with the stranger. 38 C.W.N. 1186=150 I.C. 802 =67 M.L.J. 366 (P.C.). See also 1927 S. 247= 107 I.C. 221; 34 P.L.R. 166=1933 L. 68. But see also 19 A.L.J. 525=63 I.C. 548. A joint Hindu family cannot be a partnership of itself; nor can two joint families be brought into relation with one another by an agreement to be a partnership. But there can be a partnership between the managing member of one joint family, and the manager of another family, the partnership being between the two persons and not between the families. 39 C.W.N. 357. A Hindu joint family which carries on a trade or business is not a partnership under S. 4 of the Partnership Act. 39 C.W.N. 275. As to the position of an ancestral trading firm, see 61 C. 975=152 I.C. 991=38 C.W.N. 914=1934 C. 810; 5 B. 38; 25 A. 378; 9 Bom.L.R. 278; 9 B. 311; 5 C. 792; 1 C. 470; 6 C. 815; 7 B. 217; 23 B. 144; 9 Bom.L.R. 274; I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 369=1939 Cal. 92. The assumption that a joint Hindu family firm can come into existence only if the business has descended from father to son, is obviously wrong. There is no provision of law which prohibits the members of a Hindu coparcenary to start family business out of joint funds at any time, after the death of their father or other ancestor. Such a firm is exempt from registration under S. 5 of the Act. 40 P.L.R. 456=1938 Lah. 563. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 130. Where a stranger is associated with the members of a joint Hindu family in a business whose capital is derived from the property of the joint family and the stranger, the rights and liabilities are determined more by the Contract Act than by the Hindu Law. 1933 A. 311. See also 65 C.L.J. 426. Where a stranger is associated with the joint family from the very beginning in the trade and another stranger is introduced into the partnership at a time when the family consists only of minors, the new firm cannot be said to be an ancestral firm or its offshoot and the minors are not liable for the debts of the firm, unless they have been admitted to the benefits of the partnership. 1933 A. 311. Cutchi Memons are only governed by tho Hindu Law as regards succession and inheritance, and the Hindu Law cannot be applied to their property. A Cutchi Memon family carrying on business does not fall under the latter part of S. 5 of the Partnership Act. Consequently a suit by an unregistered partnership composed of the members of a Cutchi Memon family is not maintainable under S. 69 of the Partnership Act. 1937 Mad. 666=(1937) 2 M. LJ.. 221. Where a husband took his wife in parnership and fixed her share, but reserved to himself the power to take more partners, held there was a partnership. 25 Bom.L.R. 1225= 1924 B. 182=77 I.C. 699. The mere fact that a number of Indian Christians with ties of relationship are living together in a house and have a common mess would not confer on such a group of persons the rights and obligations recognised by Hindu Law in respect of a joint Hindu family, nor can the family be treated as a partnership in the legal sense if some members thereof have been carrying on some trade. In the absence of an express or implied agency, a debt borrowed by tne managers of the trade by executing a promissory note is not binding on the other members. 1934 M. 327=66 M.L.J. 671.

Sec. 4, 5 and 6.—When more than one businessman associate together for the purpose of carrying on a business, it is legitimate to infer that they are not doing it for philanthropic purposes but intend to make a profit out of it; also that they all intend to share in the benefit of the proceeds. The person who actually conducts the business acts on behalf of all his associates, that is to say, on behalf of all who are joint proprietors with him. He does not act for his Mode of determining existence of partnership.

16. In determining whether a group of persons is or is not a firm, or whether a person is or is not a partner in a firm, regard shall be had to the real relation between the parties, as shown by all relevant facts taken together.

Explanation I.—The sharing of profits or of gross returns arising from property by persons holding a joint or common interest in that property does not of itself make such persons partners.

Explanation II.—The receipt by a person of a share of the profits of a business, or of a payment contingent upon the earning of profits or varying with the profits earned by a business, does not of itself make him a partner with the persons carrying on the business; and, in particular, the receipt of such share or payment—

own separate and exclusive benefit. His intention is obviously to further the business as a whole for the benefit of all who own the concern. That is all that is necessary to constitute a partnership within the meaning of Ss. 4, 5 and 6 of the Act. 177 I.C. 831=1938 Nag. 324. Partnership—Test to determine— Agreement reciting that one party appointed another to carry on business—Power conferred on former to dismiss latter for mismanagement—Provision for sharing of profits and losses does not constitute partnership. See 20 Pat.L.T. 798=1940 Pat. 116. See also 1940 Pat. 683=19 Pat.L.T 715.

Sec. 6.—Persons may be partners in the eye of law, though they state in the document that they should not be such; and though they represent themselves to be such and be liable to third parties, they may not be partners inter se. 51 B. 342=29 Bom.L.R. 107. See also 1922 N. 67=65 I.C. 368; 56 C.L.J. 172. It is not necessary that all the partners should share the losses, and they may agree to draw a salary instead of a share in profits. 51 B. 342=1927 B. 187=100 I.C. 846. See also 43 C. 733=21 C.W.N. 632. Mere co-ownership of land does not make the co-owners partners nor the mere receipt of their share of income. Where two of the co-owners not only shared the profits out of the land between themselves, but jointly worked the land, jointly engaged coolies and both took active part in raising the crops: Held, that they were partners. 1933 R. 120. A partner may after full disclosure buy partnership property for a fair price. 43 C. 733=21 C.W.N. 632=31 I.C. 430. Persons filing suits and signing processes in the name of a firm do not necessarily become partners, for even salaried managers conduct proceedings in their own names describing themselves as managing proprietors. 1927 S. 247=107 I.C. 321.

Expl. I.—A right to participate in profits is a strong but not conclusive test of partnership. The true test is whether there is really a common business carried on by or on behalf of the alleged partner. 1925 N. 436=89 I.C. 283. See S. 4, supra. "Partnership" does not mean that the partners should necessarily divide the profits at any time. Each may leave his share in the business. The real test is whether he has power to withdraw it. 1930 N. 6=121 I.C. 38. The question of partnership is a question of intention, which must be decided on a consideration of the conduct of the parties and of all the surrounding circumstances. Participation in profits, though not conclusive, is a cogent piece of evidence which must be given due weight in the light of other circumstances. 167 I.C. 839=1937 O.W.N. 344=1937 Oudh 438. An arrangement to share in the profits does not necessarily show that the person who shares in such profits is a partner of the firm, but this fact will have to be considered along with the evidence relating to other characteristics of a parthership, such as sharing of losses, etc., in arriving at a conclusion whether the parties intented to carry on the business in partnership. 1925 M. 768=48 M. L.J. 518; 56C.L.J. 172.

Expl. II (a).—Even an agreement that the lender shall receive a share of the borrower's profits in addition to the statutory rate of interest on the loan does not make them partners. See 52 M.L.J. 303=1927 M. 1096. Partnership is not created from the mere use of the word. If a person is merely to advance money and be re-paid by a share in profits, or if a person, acting as servant, is to be paid by a share in the profits and is not to be liable for losses not occasioned by his neglect or default, no partnership is created. 1922 N. 67=65 I.C. 368. See also 136 I.C. 396=1932 P.C. 63 (P.C.) U.B.R. Dec. 1903. Contract, p. 10 (11)=1927 M. 1096= 52 M.L.J. 303. Even the fact that the lender took an active interest in the business, is not consistent with his position as a lender. 10 C. W.N. 313. See also 4 A. 74 (80). Creditors jointly advancing money do not become partners, even though they possess a right to share profits. 1922 N. 67=65 I.C. 368. Muthalalis in a Labbai or Ejman partnership in Madras Presidency are not partners and will rank as other creditors when the firm becomes insolvent. Though participation in profits is a strong test of partnership and a presumption of fact to that effect arises, yet the test is not conclusive. 51 M. 308=55 M.L.J. 12=1928 M. 890. But one person can both be a partner and creditor; as cre-

(d) by a previous owner or part owner of the business, as consideration for the sale of the goodwill or share thereof, does not of itself make the receiver a partner with the persons carrying on the business.

Partnership at will.

7. Where no provision is made by contract between the partners for the duration of their partnership, or for the determination of their partnership, the partnership is "partnership at will."

Particular partnership.

8. A person may become a partner with another person in particular adventures or undertakings.

CHAPTER III.

RELATIONS OF PARTNERS TO ONE ANOTHER.

General duties of partners,

9. Partners are bound to carry on the business of the firm to the greatest common advantage, to be just and faithful to each other, and to render true accounts and full information of all things affecting the firm to any partner or his legal representative.

NOTES.

ditor for amount advanced beyond the agreed capital, he is entitled to interest and to demand of the other partners their respective shares under S. 43 of the Contract Act. 1921 N. 45=64 I.C. 183.

Expl. II (b).—A gumastha of a firm, who is paid by a share of the profits, according to the long understood practice in this country, is not a partner. 14 C. 791 (793). See also 54 M.L.J. 219=1927 M. 1053=106 I.C. 308. So also the fact that an assistant in a firm of brokers received over and above his salary, a share in the profits, and that, with the knowledge of the partners, he also occasionally signed on delivery orders, which came from buyers in favour of the firm, that he occasionally signed, with his own signature, letters dealing with mere matters of detail, that he purported to make firm offers to buyers and sellers and initialled alterations on some contracts, does not constitute him a partner in that firm. 6 C.W.N. 429. But a gumastha sharing in profits and losses may become a partner. 155 P.L.R. 1917=44 I.C. 283. A servant whose remuneration varies with the profits may be partner in a popular sense, but is not necessarily legally so. 1922 N. 96=69 I.C. 781. See also 1922 N. 67=65 I.C. 368. Where in addition to his salary the person was to receive a certain percentage "as commission" on net profits, held, the said percentage was a share in profits. 28 C.W.N. 34=1924 C. 424=81 I.C. 17.

Expl. II (c).—Where the sole proprietor of a firm dies, his heirs only succeed to his assets, and do not become partners, unless they agreed expressly or impliedly to continue the old firm. Such agreement can be inferred from the continuance of the old business on the same lines and in the same manner. 23 A.L.J. 961=1926 A. 161. Property left by a deceased partner and used in the business is to be treated as a loan to the partnership. 37 B. 158=19 I.C. 406

POSITION OF RETIRING PARTNER.—Retiring partner can, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, claim not only interest but, at his option, either a share of the profits of the business interest on the amount of his share of the partnership assets. 52 M. 672=1929 M. 456=56 M.L.J. 657. He is not bound to make his election until the share of the profits has been ascertained. It is not necessary that the whole of the partneship assets should be used by the remaining partners. 56 M.L.J. 657.

Sec. 7.—Cf. Ss. 26, 27 and 32 of the Partnership Act.

Sec. 8.—This section is new and is inserted to meet cases which are probably much more frequent in India than in England. The practice of establishing "particular partnership" is much favoured by Indian firms with numerous branches, and the practice should not be hampered by doubts regarding the extent of the liabilities of the "particular partner". (Statement of Objects and Reasons.) A partnership may be organized for the prosecution of a single adventure as well as for the conduct of a continuous business. See S. 17, infra.

Sec. 9.—Cf. Contract Act, S. 257, and English Partnership Act, S. 28.

PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION.—Parties, when treating for a contract of partnership, are bound to exercise the utmost good faith towards each other. See 1930 M. 141=123 I.C. 596. See also 11 A.L.J. 423=19 I.C. 250. All the sections subsequent to S. 9 of the Act dealing with the relations of partners to one another are no more than amplifications and illustrations of the principles contained in S. 9. 194 I.C. 380=1941 Sind. 73. A secret agreement between two partners to the prejudice of a third partner is unlawful and void. U.B.R. 1903, Jan. (Contract), pp. 4-5. So also surviving partners are treated as trustees for the benefit of the representatives of a deceased partner. 1 Bom.H.C.R. App. 51 (62). See also 67 I.C. 10=34 C.L.J.

Duty to indemnity for loss caused by fraud.

10. Every partner shall indemnify the firm for any loss caused to it by his fraud in the conduct of the business of the firm.

Determination of rights and duties of partners by contract between the partners.

11. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the mutual rights and duties of the partners of a firm may be determined by contract between the partners, and such contract may be express or may be implied by a course of dealing.

Such contract may be varied by consent of all the partners and such consent may be express or may be implied by a course of dealing.

Agreements in restraint of trade.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such contracts may provide that a partner shall not carry on any business other than that of the firm while he is a partner.

The conduct of the business.

12. Subject to contract between the partners—

(a) every partner has a right to take part in the conduct of the business;

(b) every partner is bound to attend diligently to his duties in the conduct of the business;

(c) any difference arising as to ordinary matters connected with the business may be decided by a majority of the partners, and every partner shall have the right to express his opinion before the matter is decided, but no change may be made in the nature of the business without the consent of all the partners; and

(d) every partner has a right to have access to and to inspect and copy any of the books of the firm.

Mutual rights and liabilities.

13. Subject to contract between the partners—

(a) a partner is not entitled to receive remuneration for taking part in the conduct of the business;

(b) the partners are entitled to share equally in the profits earned and shall contribute equally to the losses sustained by the firm;

Good faith and utmost bona fides are required in dealings between working and sleeping partners when matters relating to accounts are cocerned, and when, as a result of the accounts produced by the working partners, they induce the other partners to execute in their favour a promissory note in respect of the amounts so found to be due to the working partners according to the accounts produced by them. 123 I.C. 569=1930 M. 141. All the partners are deemed to have such knowledge and notice of the acts of any of their partners relative to their business, as in discharge of their plain duty they might or ought to have obtained. 27 S.L.R. 41=1933 S. 176.

Sec. 11.—Cf. S. 252 and S. 27, Contract Act and S. 19, English Partnership Act, The opening words of S. 11 'subject to the provisions of this Act' mean that the relation of partners shall be governed by contract unless the contract that they enter into is one which is prohibited by any provision in the Act. S. 11 has deliberately been so worded by the Legislature as to make it clear that the relationship of the partners shall be determined by the contract between them, subject of course to the provisions of the Act. Cl. (b): PRESUMED EQUALITY OF PARTNERS' SHARES.—The presumption is about the equality of the partner's shares in profits and loss. The burden of proof is on the party who alleges a special agreement about the shares being unequal. 26 C. 281 (282). See also 40 P.R. 1908; 12 B.H.C. (A.C.J.) 165. (f) a partner shall indemnify the firm for any loss caused to it by his wilful neglect in the conduct of the business of the firm.

The property of the firm.

14. Subject to contract between the partners, the property of the firm includes all property and rights and interest in property originally brought into the stock of the firm, or acquired, by purchase or otherwise, by or for the firm or for the purposes and in the course of the business of the firm, and includes also the goodwill of the business.

partners. 46 L.W. 520=1938 Mad. 5=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 760. The right to interest on capital contributed by one of the partners, even when there is a stipulation for payment of such interest, ordinarily ceases at the date of the dissolution of the partnership, and in the taking of accounts between the parties, no interest under this head should be allowed after the date of dissolution. Interest on capital is payable only out of profits under S. 13 (b) except where there is an express contract providing for payment of interest regardless of profits. 51 L.W. 108= 1940 M.W.N. 29=1940 Mad. 505. On dissolution, a capitalist partner has no higher rights than the other partners. 1926 S. 49=89 I.C. 577. He cannot compel working partners to sell their rights to him. 192 6 S. 49 Under this section the share of each partner in the partnership property is the value of his original contribution, and partners must contribute equally to losses sustained by the partnership. In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the share of loss or profit is ascertained by dividing the total loss or profit by the number of partners. The rule laid down is, that, if the assets of the partnership will not suffice to pay the amount of capital to be credited to each partner, the deficiency is a loss of capital; and is to be borne or made good by the partners. 40 P.R. 1908. The fact that the partners contributed capital in unequal shares will not exclude the presumption of equality in profit and loss (see cases supra), though it is a matter to be taken into consideration on the final statement of accounts (Part. Act, 1890, S. 44). As to suit for accounts in a partnership where partners contributed in unequal shares, see 8 L. 241=1927 L. 485. The fact that certain persons perform several acts in the expectation that a partnership would be created, such as the advance of money for purchase of partnership material, the taking of a house on rent expecting that it would be required for the partnership, cannot lead to the conclusion that a partnership has been created. Where the cardinal points have been definitely agreed upon, the fact that reference has been made to a more formal agreement in future will not prevent the Court from coming to the conclusion that the contract of partnership has been concluded. But when a cardinal point has never been agreed upon, namely, as to when the partnership is to come into force, and that date is left blank in the agreement, it cannot be held that the partnership has come into existence or that the parties are partners. 19 N.L.J. 306= 1937 Nag. 68.

INTEREST ON ADVANCES AND CAPITAL.—A partner is not only entitled to be repaid any actual payments or advances made by him for the purposes of the partnership beyond the amount of capital he has agreed to subscribe, but is also entitled to interest thereon and this even though the partners may not have been aware of the outlay. Ex parte Chippandale, (1854) 4 De.G., M. & G. 36; 43 E.R. 415. See also 1932 L. 301; 137 I.C. 162=1932 L. 389; 23 S.L.R. 313=1928 S. 133; 64 I.C. 183; 1931 N. 45. Partners are not as regards partnership dealings considered as debtor and creditor inter see until the concern is wound up or until there is a binding settlement of the accounts. It follows that one partner has no right of action against another for the balance owing to him until after final settlement of the account; but a partner may have a right of action against another for a debt which is independent of the partnership accounts. The only remedy between partners is one for partnership accounts. 62 Cal. 510=39 C.W.N. 606=1938 Cal. 377 See also 38 Bom. L. R. 486=1936 B. 246.

Where a partnership firm is styled 'X factory' it is improbable that the ownership rights of the partners of that firm would be confined to the business and machinery and would not include the building in which the business is conducted and the machinery is contained. I.L.R. (1938) All 638=1938 A.L.J. 610=1938 All 452. It does not neeessarily follow because certain partners jointly own immovable property which they use for the purposes of the partnership business that that property is partnership property. Whether it is or is not depends upon the agreement between the partners. From the mere fact that two brothers who jointly inherited a house set up a business in that house in partnership, it could not be inferred that they were intending to transfer their shares in the house to their partnership business. 162 I.C. 143= 1936 All. 270.

Secs. 14 and 15.—See English Partnership Aet, Ss. 20 and 21 and S. 253, Contract Act.

PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.—The expression "partnership pioperty" denotes everything to which all the partners are entitled as partners; persons may be entitled to property jointly or in common and may also be partners; yet that property may not be partnership property. Whether any particular property is or is not partnership property depends upon the agreement between the partners and, in the absence of any express agreement,upon the circumstances under which it was acquired. 30 I.C. 24; 55 B. 795=1931 B. 422. Purchase of immovable property in the name of the firm with the funds of the firm and making costly improvements with the same funds are indications showing that the property so purchased is the property of the firm. 1929 S. 189. See also 29 M. 149; 49 P.W,R. 1916=32 I.C. 853. Land purchased by partners in a trading concern out of partnership fund does not of necessity become partnership Property. Whether they hold such land as co-owners or as partners depends upon the purpose for which it is purchased. Therefore when the land is purchased out of partnership funds, and not used for its business, the question is one to be determined on general evidence. 30 I.C. 24=9 S.L.R. 11. In the absence of any allegation or proof to the effect that portions of the assets of partnership were, by the agreement of the partners, withdrawn from the partnership and converted into land or house to be owned by the partners as co-owners, lands and houses bought in the name of one partner and paid for by the firm or from the profits of the partnership business are prima facie partnership properties. 25 M. 149 (165). But a contract on the part of a company to continue to employ a firm as its agents, is not to be regarded as an asset of the firm, in which the legal representative of a deceased partner of the firm would be entitled to participate, as the contract is determinable at any time by the company the profits of which would be derived entirely by the services of the surviving partners, and in respect of which no liability could be incurred by the deceased. But contracts, which would render the estate of the deceased liable in the event of loss, and in the profits of which, therefore, such estate is entitled to participate, constitute assets of the partnership. 9 B. 536 (555, 556).

LOAN BY PARTNER TO FIRM—RIGHT TO INTEREST ON.—The general rule is that the interest is not allowed between partners. But when a partner advances moneys of his own to the partnership, over and above the amount of his capital, such advances will be treated as loans by him, and he is entitled to interest on the same in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary. 12 Mys.L.J. 404=39 Mys. Sec. 16.—Cf. Ss. 29 and 30 of the English Partnership Act and Ss. 258 and 259 of the Contract Act.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE said :—Ss. 29 (1) and 30 of the English Act, corresponding to Ss. 258 and 259 of the Indian Act, have been run together into this clause, without change of substance. Sub-s. (2) of S. 29 of the English Act has been placed in the Chapter on the dissolution of the firm, where it appears as cl. 50.

CASE-LAW.—A plaintiff (partner) who is liable to account should give credit for defendant's share of profits, even though the claim be barred by time. "He who seeks equity must do equity." 42 P.L.R. 1917=35 I.C. 910. Where one partner is carrying on a different business, the mere fact that some knowledge and information are useful in both does not create liability to account. 34 C.L.J. 405=67 I.C. 10. A minor representative of a deceased partner is not personally liable to account to survivor for partnership business carried on during deceased's lifetime. His liability is confined to the extent of assets received. 40 A. 446=16 A.L.J. 305=45 I.C. 31. One partner can recover profits from his other partner who carries on a rival trade to the prejudice of the partnership business. 19 I.C. 250=11 A.L.J. 423. A firm cannot claim commission on goods purchased on its own

(a) if a partner derives any profit for himself from any transaction of the firm, or from the use of the property or business connection of the firm or the firm name, he shall account for that profit and pay it to the firm;

(b) if a partner carries on any business of the same nature as and competing with that of the firm, he shall account for and pay to the firm all profits made by him in that business.

17. Subject to contract between the partners—

Rights and duties of partners after a change in the firm.

after the expiry of the term of the firm, and

(b) where a firm constituted for a fixed term continues to carry on business after the expiry of that term, the mutual rights and duties of the partners remain the same as they were before the expiry, so far as they may be consistent with the incidents of partnership at will; and where additional undertakings are carried out.

(c) where a firm constituted to carry out one or more adventures or undertakings carries out other adventures or undertakings, the mutual rights and duties of the partners in respect of the other adventures or undertakings, are the same as those in respect of the original adventures or undertakings.

RELATIONS OF PARTNERS TO THIRD PARTIES.

Partner to be agent of the firm.

18. Subject to the provisions of this Act, a partner is the agent of the firm for the purposes of the business of the firm.

Implied authority of partner as agent of the firm.

Sec. 17.—Cf. S. 256 of the Contract Act and S. 27 of the English Partnership Act. The share of deceased partner is not liable for debts incurred by the surviving partners after his death. 22 S.L.R. 105=1928 S. 121=110 I.C. 730.

Chap. IV. INTRODUCTORY.—This Chapter is mostly taken up with the statement and development of the principle that each partner is an agent of the firm. In arrangement, it differs widely from the corresponding part of the English Act. It elaborates some of the provisions of that part and omits others and introduces some new matter. (Report of the Select Committee.)

Sec. 18—The agency of partners arises not by reason of contract but by reason of the existence of the relationship of parties as partners. From the fact that in a deed one party is made the agent of another for some porposes it does not follow that the relationship of partners exists between them. 19 Pat. 715=1940 Pat. 683.

Secs. 18 and 19: PRINCIPLES OF THE SECTIONS.—The Special Committee said: "Cl. 19 begins with the first principle given in S. 5 of the English Act—that every partner is an agent of the firm. It also contains the next important principle in S. 5 of the English Act, which defines the general extent of a partner's agency, namely, that an act of a partner, which (a) is done to carry on business, of the kind carried on by the firm, and (b) is done in the way usual in such a business, binds the firm. The remainder of the English section is contained in S. 20. The second paragraph in sub-s. (1) of S. 19 introduces a convenient term intended to avoid confusion when references are made to the authority of a partner as agent. The authority defined in the first paragraph of the sub-clause has been variously designated as "implied," "ordinary," "apparent" and "ostensible", and it is sometimes not clear what the exact meaning of these terms may be. The word "implied" is favoured by Lindley and seems to be the most suitable, as the kind of agency contemplated is one which flows from, or is implied by the partnership of a partner. Sub-S. (2) has no statutory precedent, but has been extracted from S. 2 of Chapter I of Book II of Lindley's work, which contains an exhaustive account of the subject of the extent and limitations of a partner's implied authority. The selection has been made with regard to Indian conditions.

Sec. 19.—Cl. (a) reproduces Stead v. Salt (3 Bing. 101), which has been followed in 22 A. 135 See also 148 I.C. 1080=35 P.L.R. 417=1934 L. 483.

Cl. (c) is a proposition on the law of agency contained in many rulings, see Lindley, p. 195.

Cl. (d) is contrary to Harwood v. Edwards cited by Lindley at p. 354, a case which seems to be unreported. It seems unreasonable to hold that a partner cannot compromise a claim by the firm but that he can withdraw a suit. The clause as drafted seems best suited to Indian conditions.

Cl. (e).—This is Hambidge v. De la Crouee (3 C.B 742).

Cl. (f) follows Sharp v. Milligan (22 Beav. 606 and 16 B. 568, setting aside 19 M. 471).

Cl. (g) is covered by Harrison v. Jackson (7 T.R. 207).

Cl. (h) is from Singleton v. Knight (13 A. C. 788). (Special Committee's Report.)

AUTHORITY OF A PARTNER TO BIND THE FIRM BY HIS ACTS—GENERAL—ACT TO BE WITHIN THE SCOPE OF THE PARTNERSHIP.—Every partner is, in contemplation of law, the general and accredited agent of the partnership and may, consequently, bind all the other partners by his acts in all matters which are within the scope and objects of the partnership. See Story on Agency, Chap. VI, Ss. 124, 125, cited in 6 Moo. P.C. at 193, 194: 81 I.C. 513=28 C.W.N. 824=1925 C. 29. "Ordinary partnerships are by the law assumed and presumed to be based on the mutual trust and confidence of each partner in the skill, knowledge and integrity of every other partner. As between the partners and the outside world (whatever may be their private arrangements between themselves) each partner is the unlimited agent of every other in every matter which is partnership business and not being in its nature beyond the scope of the partner, ship." Per Lord Justice James in Baird's Case (1870) L.R. 5 Ch. 725, 733. See also 101 I.C. 742=1927 L. 385; 8 C. 678=11 C.L.R. 225; 83 I.C. 539=17 S.L.R. 164. The acts done by a partner in violation of his duty to the firm cannot bind it when the other party to the transaction is cognizant of, or co-operates in, such breach of duty. See Story on Agency, Chap. VI. cited in 6 Moo. P.C. 193, 194. A partner is not liable for purchases made by a co-partner, out of the scope of partnership business and without the authority of the other. 15 B.L.R. 372. Where terms of partnership cannot be ascertained, no relation of principal and agent between the parties arises. 185 P. W.R. 1916=31 I.C. 632. The mere fact that a party makes no reference to his partners or sharers in the profits does not really affect his right in assigning the actionable claim, for, as a managing partner, he has a right to assign such a claim, and the only remedy of the partners or sharers in the firm is by a suit for accounts against the managing proprietor. 1933 S. 210.

ANY REPRESENTATION BY ONE OF THE PARTNERS will not bind the other partner. 1935 C. 275.

THE ACT MUST BE DONE TO CARRY ON THE BUSINESS IN THE USUAL WAY.—Every partner is an agent of the firm, and his other partners for the purpose of the business of the partnership; and prima facie the acts of every partner who does any act for carrying on in the usual way business of the kind carried on by the firm of which he is a member, bind the firm and his partners (Partnership Act, 1890, S. 5). See 83 I.C. 539=17 S.L.R. 164=1924 S. 29; 1926 M. 114=50 M.L.J. 67. See also 56 C. 536=1929 C. 714. A partner's implied or apparent authority to bind his firm is limited to acts which are necessary for carrying on the partnership business in the way in which such businesses are usually carried on, and does not extend to acts which, however urgent, are in this sense unusual. Hawtayne v. Bourne, 7 Mee. & W. 595; 56 R.R. 806; Simpson's Claim, 36 Ch. rity to draw and accept bills on behalf of the firm, and even if such implied authority has been expressly cancelled but such cancellation is not brought to the discounting banks, the discounting banks are entitled to recover against the other partners. 1930 P.C. 238 (13 M.I.A. 358, Ref.). A partner in a trading firm may draw, endorse, etc., hundis for the purposes of partnership. 9 Bom. I.. R. 274.

POWER TO REFER TO ARBITRATION.—One partner of a firm cannot enter into an agreement to refer a matter in dispute to arbitration on behalf of a firm unless all parties join in it. 35 P.L.R. 417=1934 L. 483.

POWER TO ENTER INTO CONTRACT.—A partner is liable for a bona fide contract entered into by other partners. 106 I.C. 516=46 C.L.]. 362=1928 C. 57; 1924 C. 1056; 1925 C. 29. See also 9 B. 311. It is a mistake to suppose that, because a firm obtains the benefit of a contract made with one of its partners, it must needs be bound by the contract. 14 C.P.L.R. 22 (26). If a partner, who entertains customers, wishes to be reimbursed, he should take the precaution of having an agreement made for an allowance. 108 I.C. 813=23 S.L.R. 313=1928 S. 133. See also 1937 L. 715. (Lease of premises in name of one partner—Other partners also are liable for rent).

IMPLIED POWER TO BORROW.—Any partner in a trading firm has an implied authority to borrow money for the purposes of the business on the credit of the firm. 48 B. 176=77 I.C. 548. See also 34 Bom.L.R. 1137=1932 B. 539; 10 R. 204=1932 R. 118; 123 I.C. 358=1930 M. 168; 40 M. 727; 28 C.W.N. 824=1925 C. 293; (1847) 6 Moo.P.C. at pp. 193, 194; 79 R.R. 53. Where, however, the business is not of a commercial nature, e.g., where it is a professional business, or even the business of a farmer or a quarry worker, where there is no buying and selling of goods, or an auctioneer, no partner can borrow or pledge the partnership property so as to bind his co-partners. 48 B. 176. A partnership in rice mill is not a trading partnership and one partner cannot bind the others by negotiable instruments without express authority. 66 I.C. 584=11 L.B.R. 137. The presumption as to the existence of an authority to borrow is, however, not confined to trading partnership only, but it applies to every business which cannot be carried on in the usual way without such power. 21 S.L.R. 267=1926 S. 291. A bond or promissory note executed by the managing partner, for the joint purpose of the firm and within the ordinary scope of his authority is binding on the remaining partners. 24 W.R. 60 (61). See also 62 I.C. 315=10 L.B.R. 321; 33 P.L.R. 411; 10 R. 204=138 I.C. 210=1932 R. 119. Where a partner of a firm executes a promissory note in his individual capacity and not on behalf of the firm, the executant alone is liable under the note. 142 I.C. 837=35 Bom.L.R. 68=1933 B. 101. A partner is always liable for the partnership debt unless there is a restriction expressed or implied on the liability to be incurred by one partner on a bill or a promissory note which may be incurred by another partner for partnership purposes. 40 M. 727=31 M.L.J. 138. See also 9 Bom.L.R. 274. So far as the question of the authority of a partner to sign and endorse promissory notes on behalf of others is concerned, it is sufficient if such authority can be inferred from the surrounding circumstances. 84 I.C. 391=2 R. 367=1925 R. 30. See also 35 Bom.L.R. 68=1933 B. 101. Dormant partner is liable only to the extent of sums borrowed by the active partner in his capacity as a member of the firm. 28 C.W.N. 824=1925 C. 29; 142 I.C. 837=1933 B. 101=35 Bom.L.R. 68. Every one of the partners, in a mercantile firm of ordinary trading partnership, is liable upon a bill drawn by a partner in the recognized trading name of the firm for a transaction incident to the business of the firm, although his name does not appear on the face of the instrument and although he be a sleeping and secret partner. In order to take a case out of this general rule, it must be shown that the holder of the bill knew, at the time he received it, that the transaction was the private affair of single partner. 13 W.R.P.C. 29 (30)=13 M.I.A. 358. Where there is a contract with the partnership and a promissory note is signed by a partner in his own name and not in the name of the partnership, as evidence of such contract, all the partners will be liable. 123 I.C. 358=1930 M. 168; 35 Bom.L.R. 68=1933 B. 101. Where one of partners of a firm signs a promissory note, in order that all the partners are liable under it, it is necessary that not merely the firm's name should be disclosed "in some way", but it must be disclosed in such a way that, on any fair interpretation of the instrument, the firm must be the real person liable upon the bill. One of the partners of a firm signed a pro-note describing himself as "Proprietor, Punjab Alliance Auction Rooms, Lahore". Held, that this description was not sufficient to justify the other partners in the firm being held liable. 15 L. 652=1934 L. 358. The joint liability of each partner being the ordinary incident of the partnership, one of the partners has no authority, without the consent of the co-partners, to change the joint liability into a joint and several liability. 24 B. 77 (84). Where two of the partners of a firm execute a promissory note in favour of a third agreeing to pay him a certain sum of money as being due to him on taking partnership accounts, the remaining partners of the firm will not be bound by the promissory note. 117 I.C. 108=1929 A. 542. In the case of a running money-lending business one partner can borrow and mortgage firm's assets; but when it is being wound up this cannot be done except for necessity. 8 L.B.R. 363=36 I.C. 225.

POWER TO SETTLE AN ACCOUNT.—A partner has power to settle an account between the partnership and a third person, so as to bind the other partner. 12 M.L.J. 444=26 M. 186 (P.C.). See also 45 P.R. 1899=5 P.L.R. 1900 (a case of a Hindu joint family business). In a working partnership there is a presumption that a partner has authority to strike balances in the firm account. 1929 L. 512.

POWER TO PAY THE DEBTS OF THE FIRM.—One partner can apply assets in paying debts that would be otherwise barred. 19 Bom.L.R. 86=38 I.C. 873.

NOTES.

POWER TO MAKE PART-PAYMENTS, ENDORSE OR ACKNOWLEDGE TO SAVE LIMITATION.—On the same principle he can pass acknowledgments to save off the claims of creditors and to save the claims from being barred by limitation. 19 Bom.L.R. 86=38 I.C. 873; 33 P.L.R. 584=1932 L. 456. See also on the point 41 M. 427=34 M.L.J. 373 (F.B.), following. 37 M. 146=25 M.L.J. 507 and overruling 32 M. 421 and 35 M. 142; 15 Mys.L.J. 3. If one partner has authority to discharge a debt he can also make part-payments and endorse them. 2 R. 367=1925 R. 30=84 I.C. 391. See also 123 I.C. 358=1930 M. 168; 1931 L. 136. In the case of a mercantile firm, each partner is entrusted by his co-partners with a general authority to do any act necessary for, or usually done in, carrying on the business of such partnership; a partner's authority extends to making an acknowledgment by part-payment so as to bind his partners. 1926 M. 114=50 M.L.J. 67. See also 56 C. 556=33 C.W.N. 412=1929 C. 714; 10 B. 358 (362); 5 P.L.R. 1900=45 P.R. 1889. Acknowledgment by a partner, during the subsistence of the partnership, must, in order to save limitation, be an act necessary for, or usually done in, carrying on the business of the partnership. 26 B. 42=3 Bom.L.R. 484. But an acknowledgment by a partner, after dissolution of the business, cannot save limitation, if the creditor had, at the date of acknowledgment, notice of the dissolution. 26 B. 42=3 Bom.L.R. 484. See also 8 L.B.R. 363=36 I.C. 225. Similarly, where a partnership is dissolved by the death of one of the partners, the surviving partners cannot bind the representatives of the deceased by their acknowledgment, unless they are specially authorised to do so. 8 M.L.J. 261. See also 85 I.C. 775=1925 N. 268. An acknowledgment made by one partner does not bind the other partners in the absence of proof that they authorised such an acknowledgment or payment; and such authority cannot be presumed. 85 I.C. 775=1925 N. 268.

POWER TO RECEIVE DEBTS DUE TO THE FIRM.—Though payment to a partner of a firm debt is a valid discharge of the debt, an agreement to set-off a debt due to the firm against a private debt due from one partner must be presumed to be in fraud of the partnership and does not amount to a valid discharge of the debt due to the firm. 9 I.C. 116=13 C.L.J. 234. See also 19 M. 471 (475). But see 12 L. 270=1931 L. 136, holding that such mere adjustment does not necessarily amount to a fraud and does not prejudice the plaintiff firm, and in the absence or proof of fraud or prejudice, it is binding on the plaintiff firm. Son of a deceased partner cannot give a complete discharge of a debt due to the partnership. 109 I.C. 50=1928 L. 832. An authority to give discharge for a debt on payment would not include a power to compromise or settle it in any way a partner liked. 59 M. 1036=1936 M. 593=71 M.L.J. 378.

POWERS TO EXECUTE A RELEASE.—A partnership firm is not a legal entity like a limited liability company. Consequently, a conveyance to the firm operates as a conveyance to the individual partners. Release of property mortgaged to a firm as a whole is useless, unless it is known who the individual partners are and whether the executant of the release is authorised by them to act on their behalf. 49 B. 245=1925 B. 69.

Sub-Sec. 2 Cl. (a): POWER TO SUBMIT A DISPUTE TO ARBITRATION.—A partner has no authority to bind his firm by a submission to arbitration. Stead v. Salt, 1825, 3 Bing. 101; 34 Bom.L.R. 1112=1932 B. 516; 59 I.C. 501=39 M.L.J. 269; 92 I.C. 705=1926 L. 91; 133 I.C. 558. See also 107 I.C. 793=1928 M. 107; 83 I.C. 539=17 S.L.R. 164. Special authority, express or implied, is necessary to bind the other partners by submission to arbitration. 7 L.W. 114=43 I.C. 508; 76 I.C. 359=1924 S. 41. But a partner who ratifies the submission will be bound by it. 7 L.W. 114=43 I.C. 508. See also 22 A. 135 (138). Where the suit is brought against a firm, the reference to arbitration is made by a firm, and the award is against a firm and not against the individual members thereof, the award is valid, though the submission is signed by the managing members of the firm only and not by all members. 71 I.C. 734=1923 L. 212. Where the submission has been made in good faith and the partner has to make payment in accordance with the award, the partner is entitled to claim contribution from his partners on the basis of the award. 59 I.C. 501=39 M.L.J. 269. When one or some of the partners pays off a debt due by the partnership, he is entitled to file a suit to compel contribution from his or their other partners. Such a suit cannot be regarded as one for account of partnership. 1941 N.L.J. 667. Where a creditor obtains a joint decree against some of the partners of a firm in respect of a partnership debt contracted by them, one of the judgment-debtors by paying the entire decretal amount is not entitled to sue his co-judgment-debtors alone for contribution in the absence of the other partners, unless there are special circumstances. Such special circumstances generally arise where there is an express promise by the co-judgment-debtors to indemnify the plaintiff. If, on the other hand, the debt that is paid by the plaintiff is not a partnership debt but a debt contracted by the partners on their own personal liability quite independently of the partnership business, a suit for contribution would undoubtedly lie. The mere fact that a joint decree is passed against some of the partners is not sufficient for the purpose of showing that it is a separate liability incurred by them jointly. 43 C.W.N. 1214; see also I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 340 =1942 Nag. 72.

Sub-sec. (2), cls. (c) and (d).—Now a partner has no authority to compromise or relinquish any portion of a claim by the firm. Prior to the Act, it was held by Kincaid, J.C. and Aston, A.J.C. (Kennedy, A.J.C., dissenting) that one partner might release a cause of action in which all the partners were jointly interested in the absence of fraud. 80 I.C. 583=1925 S. 63. See also 76 I.C. 359=1924 S. 41. The right of one partner to claim a share in a debt fraudulently released by the Extention and restriction of partner's implied authority.

20. The partners in a firm may, by contract between the partners, extend or restrict the implied authority of any partner.

Notwithstanding any such restriction, any act done by a partner on behalf of the firm which falls within his implied authority binds the firm, unless the person with whom he is dealing knows of the restriction or does not know or believe that partner to be a partner.

Partner's authority in an emergency.

21. A partner has authority, in an emergency to do all such acts for the purpose of protecting the firm from loss as would be done by a person of ordinary prudence, in his own case, acting under similar circumstances, and such acts bind the firm.

NOTES.

others is a personal one not passing to his legal representatives. 41 M. 446=34 M.L.J. 41=44 I.C. 466. This cl. (c) would apply even where the compromise is effected in the form of "an assignment" of a decree in favour of the firm. 59 M. 1036 (noted supra). But see 1936 A.M.L.J. 79. A partner in a trading firm has an applied authority to assign a debt due to the firm; but he has no such authority to assign a decree for money obtained by the firm for an amount which is less than the decretal amount. 43 Bom. L.R. 888=1942 Bom. 22.

Cl. (f).—A lease taken by two partners without the concurrence of the third, cannot bind the latter, when such concurrence is a necessary condition of the partnership. 21 I.C. 3=7 L.B.R. 42. Where, by agreement between the partners, any one of them is empowered to take a lease and execute any necessary documents, it must be taken that such documents were intended to operate, as if all the members were parties thereto, although the other members are not mentioned in the agreement and did not execute them. 19 M. 471 (476). But see 16 B. 568 (574), holding that the other partners are not liable to be directly sued by the lessor for the rent reserved by the lease.

Cl. (g): PARTNER'S POWER TO MORTGAGE PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.—Prior to the Act, the Courts were of the view that a partner can effect a legal as well as an equitable mortgage of partnership property. It is settled law in England that a partner can effect a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds. See Lindley on Partnership, pp. 156 and 165; and In re Clough, (1885) 31 Ch. D. 324; and In re Bourne, Bourne v. Bourne. (1906) 2 Ch. 427. This clause would seem to prohibit even such a mortgage, because a mortgage by deposit of title.deeds would be a transter of the immoveable property, by the operation of S. 58 of the T. P. Act. (See Sel. Com. Report.) The case-law in India prior to the Act is summarised below:—Power to borrow is incidental to power to trade and power to pledge the business assets is incidental to power to borrow. See 31 M. 206; 2 M.I.A. 487 (P.C.); 4 A. 437 (460). If the partnership be of a general commercial nature, one partner may even pledge or sell the partnership property. 81 I.C. 513=28 C.W.N. 824=1925 C. 29. The managing partner has power to execute mortgage of partnership property in order to raise money to carry on the business. 107 I.C. 453=1928 P.C. 135 (P.C.). In a partnership whose business it is to buy and deal in land, a partner can mortgage the partnership land. 10 I.C. 776.

RELATION OF PARTNERS—RIGHT OF SUIT OF INTER SE.—Partners are not, as regards partnership dealings, considered as debtor and creditor inter se until the concern is wound up or accounts settled. One partner has, therefore, no right of action against another for the balance owing to him until after final settlement of accounts; but he can proceed against another for a debt which is independent of the partnership account. The only suit possible between the parties is one for partnership accounts. 62 C. 510=39 C.W.N. 606.

RIGHT OF SURVIVING PARTNER.—A surviving partner can file a suit without impleading the representatives of a deceased partner for the recovery of a partnership debt which accrued due during the lifetime of the deceased partner. 11 Mys.L.J. 344.

SUIT NOT IN FIRM NAME—ALL PARTNERS MUST BE IMPLEADED.—If a suit is not brought in the name of a firm, all the partners should be impleaded. A suit by a person as the sole owner of a firm, at the time of the institution of the suit cannot be said to be one on behalf of the firm. 35 P.L.R. 616=1934 L. 459. Individual partners may be sued personally along with the firm and a decree can be passed against the partners as well as the firm. 187 I.C. 373=1940 Sind 19. See also 1938 Rang. 205. Suit against partners—Partnership business carried on by some members of joint Hindu family—Relief against other members on footing that business is joint Hindu family business—Pleadings—Relief. See 1938 Rang. 205.

Sec. 20.—Cf. Ss. 5 and 8, English Partnership Act and S. 251, Contract Act. Partner cannot by notice absolve himself from liability for other partners' acts. But unauthorised dealings by one partner contrary to resolution by majority are not binding on partnership as against party with notice of resolution. 1928 S. 37=105 I.C. 862. Where the contract of hire of a partnership lorry is made by one partner personally, such partner acts as an agent of other partners, and the former is entitled to sue upon the contract in his own name. 1933 N. 221 (2). PRINCIPLES OF THE SECTION—FIRM WHEN BOUND BY ACTS OF ITS AGENT.—See British Homes Ass. Corp., Ltd. v. Paterson, (1902) 2 Ch. 404; 126 I.C. 741=1928 B. 516; 1926 M. 390; 1930 S. 4. See also 13 I.C. 255=5 S.L. R. 168; 35 Bom.L.R. 68=1933 B. 101. One partner cannot bind the others by guarantee apparently unconnected with the partnership. [Duncan v. Lowndes, (1813) 3 Camp. 478; 20 N.L.R. 140=1924 N. 411]. A partner is not liable for the action of other partners unless the same is on behalf of the partnership. 20 N.L.R. 140=1924 N. 411. A bill given for partnership purposes by one partner in his own name, and not in the firm's name, does not bind the other partner. Re Adansonia Fibre Co., Miles' Claim, (1874) 9 Ch. Where two persons form a partnership for the purpose of a trading adventure, and goods are purchased or moneys raised, ostensibly by an individual adventurer but truly and substantially, for the purpose of the joint adventure, the adventurers are liable as partners. But there is no such responsibility for goods purchased upon the credit of an individual adventurer, though they are afterwards brought into stock as his contribution to the joint adventure. The test to be applied to each case, to find out whether the transaction is or is not a partnership transaction, is laid down in (1810) 12 East 421. 39 B. 261=42 I.A. 48=28 M.L.J. 515=26 I.C. 915 (P.C.). Where some of the partners signed an agreement without any words following their signatures to show in what capacity they signed, but the instrument sufficiently disclosed that the agreement was made on behalf of the firm, it was held that the other partners also were bound by the agreement. 113 I.C. 380=1928 M. 1196=55 M.L.J 574. Words which may be construed as merely a description or as showing the designation of the person signing the instrument will not be sufficient to make a firm liable. 1930 S. 4.

Sec. 23.—"S. 23 is based on S. 15 of the English Act." (Report of the Select Committee.)

"IF IT IS MADE IN THE ORDINARY COURSE OF BUSINESS".—If the transaction in connection with which a representation or an admission is made is within the scope of the partner's authority as agent of the firm, such representation or admission will bind all of the partners, otherwise it will not, unless actually authorized or ratified by them. See 84 I.C. 199. It is receivable against the partner making it, although not ordinarily conclusive against him.

Sec. 24.—Cf. S. 16 of the English Partnership Act.

Sec. 25.—Cf. English Partnership Act, Ss. 9 and 12 and Indian Contract Act, Ss. 249 and 250. Partners are jointly and severally liable for the acts or omissions of any of them which cause loss or damage to third persons, if such acts are either done by a partner in the ordinary course of the firm's business or with the authority of his partners (S. 26). They are also jointly and severally liable where a partner receives and misapplies the money or property of a third person while acting within the scope of his apparent authority, and where the firm receives, in the ordinary course of its business, money or property which is misapplied by one or more of the partners while in the firm's custody (S. 27). See 48 B. 176=1924 B. 260. Liability of firm for misapplication by partners.

27. Where—

(a) a partner acting within his apparent authority receives money or property from a third party and misapplies it, or

(b) a firm in the course of its business receives money or property from a third party, and the money or property is misapplied by any of the partners while it is in the custody of the firm, the firm is liable to make good the loss.

Holding out.

28. (1) Any one who by words spoken or written or by conduct represents himself, or knowingly permits himself to be represented, to be a partner in a firm, is liable as a partner in that firm to any one who has on the faith of any such representation given credit to the firm, whether the person representing himself or represented to be a partner does or does not know that the representation has reached the person so giving credit.

(2) Where after a partner's death the business is continued in the old firm name, the continued use of that name or of the deceased partner's name as a part thereof shall not of itself make his legal representative or his estate liable for any act of the firm done after his death.

the surviviug partner to enable him to perform a contract entered into during the lifetime of the former. The suit debt being binding on the partnership assets, the surviving partner has power to pledge the partnership assets in discharge of it. As regards that amount, a personal decree against the partnership assets n his hands can be passed. 42 M. 15=35 M.L.J. 669 =47 I.C. 958. Except on dissolution of the partnership, no suit could be maintained by a partner or his assignee for contribution against the other partner in respect of a partnership debt. 33 M.L.J. 509=43 I.C. 217. A partner is always liable for the partnership debt, unless there is a restriction expressed or implied on the liability to be incurred by one partner on a bill or promissory note which may be executed by another partner for partnership purposes. 40 M. 727=31 M.L.J. 138. Where a partnership is rescinded on the ground of fraud, the partners at fault cannot ask the other partners to contribute to the loss which may have resulted in the partnership. 60 I.C. 709.

Sec 26.—See S. 10, English Partnership Act. "Ss. 26 and 27 describe the tortious acts for which a firm is liable. They reproduce Ss. 10 and 11 of the English Act, with very little change." (Report of the Select Committee.) The mere fact that a partner, in instituting a malicious prosecution against a stranger, described himself as the agent of the partnership, acting in the matter of the complaint against the stranger on behalf of the firm, is not sufficient to render the firm or all the partners liable in damages to the stranger. There must be evidence to show that the firm was in some way or other concerned in the prosecution and had instigated it, 28 B. 226 (231). As to liability of partner for criminal breach of trust, see 41 P.L.R. 37; 1939 Sind 21.

Sec. 27.—See S. 11, English Partnership Act. Any partner in a trading firm has an implied authority to borrow money for the purposes of the business on the credit of the firm. A firm would be a trading firm if its business consists in buying and selling. In such a case, there is no duty cast on the person who advances the money to make any further enquiries and the other partners are responsible though the borrowing partner may misappropriate the money. 48 B. 176=77 I.C. 548=1924 B. 260.

Sec. 28.—See S. 14, English Partnership Act and Ss. 245 and 246 of the Indian Contract Act. "S. 28 introduces the doctrine of 'holding out.'"

PRINCIPLES OF THE SECTION.—See 10 C.W.N. 513; 18 W.R. 384; 78 P.R. 1903. Any conduct on the part of a person reasonably calculated to lead others to suppose that he is a partner in a particular business amounts to a holding out on his part; for by such conduct he lends his credit to the concern. A frequent method of holding out consists in the use of one's name as a part of the firm style. Such use is a virtual representation that the person thus named is a member of the firm. See 88 I.C. 584=1925 O. 451; 87 I.C. 508=29 C.W.N. 496=1925 C. 937. The addition of "& Co." to the name of an individual does not indicate that any particular person is designated by those words. Still a person may be held out as a partner, without having his name appear in the firm style,or being disclosed in any way. 1925 O. 451. Under this Act the rule of liability by "holding out" can be relied on only by the persons to whom the representation has been made and who have acted on the faith of its being true. 87 I.C. 905=1925 S. 310. See also 10 C.W.N.

29. (1) A transfer by a partner of his interest in the firm, either absolute or by mortgage, or by the creation by him of a charge on such interest, does not entitle the transferee, during the continuance of the firm, to interfere in the conduct of the business, or to require accounts, or to inspect the books of the firm, but entitles the transferee only to receive the share of profits of the transferring partner, and the transferee shall accept the account of profits agreed to by the partners.

Rights of transferee of a partner's interest.

(2) If the firm is dissolved or if the transferring partner ceases to be a partner, the transferee is entitled as against the remaining partners, to receive the share of the assets of the firm to which the transferring partner is entitled, and, for the purpose of ascertaining that share, to an account as from the date of the dissolution.

NOTES.

513; 18 W.R. 384 (387); 78 P.R. 1903. As to liability of retiring partner, see 137 P.L.R. 1908 =102 P.W.R. 1908. But there may be cases in which the holding out has been so public and so long continued that the Court may infer that one dealing with the parties knew it, and relied upon it, without direct testimony to that effect.

Sec. 29.—See S. 31, English Partition Act.

CHANGE OF MEMBERSHIP OF FIRM BY TRANSFER OF A PARTNER'S INTEREST IN THE FIRM.—It is perfectly competent for a partner to sell his interest in the firm and retire therefrom. Such transaction does not prevent the continuance of the partnership by the other partners. On the contrary, if the business is thereafter carried on by the other partners, it will be presumed that their original contract remains in force, so far as it is consistent with the change of members. Without the retirement of a partner, the members of an existing firm may admit a new member into the firm. If the incoming partner is induced to become a member of the firm by false and fraudulent representations, he may rescind or maintain an action on the ground of fraud. As to the effect of fraud on creditors, see 18 N.L.R. 186=64 I.C. 719=1922 N. 70. The fundamental principle underlying the law of partnership is that a stranger cannot be foisted upon the partners against their will; consequently even when a partner transfers his interests in a firm the transferor does not cease to be a partner nor does the transferee become one. 1942 N.L.J. 229. The assignee of a partner is not bound by any settlement of accounts entered into by the remaining partners behind his back and after notice of assignment. 52 M. 509=1929 M. 627=56 M.L.J. 776. The legal power of a partner to make a transfer of his interest to a third person is unquestioned. The transferee, however, does not become a tenant-in-common with the other partners in any specific goods, but acquires only the interest his vendor had, which is his share of the residue after the affairs of the firm are settled and the debts paid, including, debts due from the firm to a partner. Such a purchase does not make the buyer a partner in the firm, without the concurrence of all the partners, either given expressly or implied from conduct. The assignee or mortgagee of the share of a partner is entitled to receive a share of the profits to which the assigning partner would be entitled and the assignee must accept the accounts of profits agreed to by the partners. 10 P. 792=12 Pat.L.T. 361=1932 P. 15. See also 4 L.W. 10=34 I.C. 543. Where two out of a firm of three partners assigned their shares to two others and it was not proved that the third partner relinquished his claim upon the assignors as a partner, although he might have had knowledge of the assignment, he is entitled to sue for the winding up of the partnership and for a decree for account as against the assignor-partners and the assignees. 27 C. 93. One partner cannot by his action introduce a third party without the consent of the other partners, so as to give the third party a right to interfere in the management of the business or to ask for an account. It is only when dissolution occurs that the right of the assignee arises to take action in the same way as his assignor could have done, to claim an account as from the date of the dissolution. But it is the assignor and not the assignee who can sue for dissolution. 27 Bom.L.R. 409=1925 B. 347. See also 10 P. 792, supra. That is the law as laid down in the English Partnership Act (see Sec. 31) and that also represents and always represented the law in India, although there was, before the enactment of this section, no statutory provision to that effect. 10 P. 792. The purchaser of the right of one of the partners of a mill, pending a suit for dissolution and accounts, is not entitled to maintain a separate suit for damages for use and occupation of the mill even though the mill solely belonged to his vendor. 19 C.W.N. 1115=31 I.C. 707. A receiver appointed at the instance of an assignee of the share of a partner cannot, any more than the assignee himself, sue the other partners for accounts before dissolution. 10 P. 792=133 I.C. 40=12 Pat.L.T. 361. As to exceptional circumstances, under which the right to account may be recognised, see 10 P. 792=133 I.C. 40=12 Pat.L.T. 361. A partner has no right to any specific items of partnership property, but a partner in a firm, unlike a shareholder in a joint stock company, is a 'joint owner' and holds an interest in the partnership property, and dissolution of property, operates as a transfer of that interest. An agreement to assign his interests in a firm owning immoveable property requires to be registered. 132 I.C. 305=1931 M. 580=60 M

30. (1) A person who is a minor according to the law to which he is subject may not be a partner in a firm, but, with the consent of all the partners for the time being, he may be admitted to the benefits of partnership.

Minors admitted to the benefits of partnership.

NOTES.

L.J. 527. In a suit by a transferee or an assignee from an ex-partner in a firm after the dissolution of the partnership for accounts of the dissolved partnership as a whole and not for accounts after the date of the dissolution only the assignors are necessary parties. Consequently, when they are not joined either as plaintiffs or defendants till more than three years after the dissolution of the partnership the entire suit must stand dismissed. Sec. 130 (2), T. P. Act, does not obviate the necessity of impleading the assignor in such a suit. 194 I.C. 380=1941 Sind 73.

Sec. 30.—Cf. Ss. 247 and 248, Contract Act. There is nothing corresponding to this section in the English Act. A minor on attaining majority cannot be adjudicated insolvent for the debts of the firm. 36 I.C. 787=1917 M.W.N. 150; 58 I.C. 558. Though a minor partner cannot be adjudicated insolvent, the firm can be and its profits can be dealt with for the benefit of the creditors. Minor has a right to share in the property still left. 21 S.L.R. 280=1927 S. 18=97 I.C. 446. See also 42 A. 515=18 A. L.J. 611; 58 I.C. 557; 42 C. 225=26 I.C. 836; 42 I.C. 98. Sec. 247, Contract Act, in stating the position which an infant partner occupies, does not seem to accord with the English cases. Under Sec. 247, the infant, while entitled to share the profits of the business, is not liable for the losses except to the extent of his own share in the partnership property. According to the English cases, a minor is no more bound by a contract of partnership than by any other contract. Moreover, under Sec. 247, the minor's share in the property of the firm is liable for its obligations, whether he has derived benefit from the business or not. 20 B. 767 (777). Sec 248, Contract Act, seems to place the creditors of the firm in a more favourable position than in England. 25 C.W.N. 847=66 I.C. 811. "Benefits of partnership" include benefits which minor would enjoy if he were major. 86 I.C. 944=18 S.L.R. 96 =1925 S. 272. As to the scope of this section, see 23 B. 146 (161). As to what amounts to the admission of a minor to the benefits of a partnership, see 1917 M.W.N. 150=36 I.C. 787. This section is subject to the provisions of Sec. 11, Contract Act, and a minor cannot simultaneously create a partnership and admit himself to its benefits. There must be a partnership already in existence before a minor can be admitted to the benefits thereof. 1922 L. 441 =67 I.C. 95. The question whether a minor has been admitted to the benefit of a partnership is one of fact to be pleaded and proved at the trial and cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time on appeal. 49 C. 560=49 I.A. 108=43 M.L.J. 41 (P.C.). Where one of two partners died leaving a minor son, but the business was carried on under the old name and style with the partnership funds, held, that the minor could not enter into a contract with the surviving partner and was consequently not a partner. 53 A. 479=130 I.C. 704=1931 A. 327. In a such case the partnership having come to an end on the death of one of the partners, there was no question of the minor being admitted to the benefit of the partnership. 53 A. 479. Although a minor cannot be a member of partnership by his own contract, yet, if he is admitted to the benefits of the partnership by the other members, he can bind the others by his dealings in respect of the partnership business. 42 I.C. 98. The Secs. 247 and 48, Contract Act, are independent of Hindu law and apply to all persons. 36 I.C. 787. See, however, 41 M. 824, infra. Secs. 247 and 248, Contract Act, do not apply to minor members in a joint family trade whether started by manager or inherited. The minor's interest depends on his belonging to the family, not on his agreement or admission. Minor is not liable for debts contracted during his minority. 41 M. 824=35 M.L.J. 473=49 I.C. 220. See also 23 C.W.N. 500=29 C.L.J. 280=51 I.C. 597. A Hindu infant, who, by birth or inheritance, becomes entitled to an interest in a joint family business, does not necessarily become a member of the trading partnership, which carries on the business. He can only become a member of the partnership by a consentient act on the part of himself and his partners. 26 C. 349 (354). Members of the family, who are minors and are not shown to have been admitted into a trading firm and to have taken part in its business, need not be made parties as plaintiff to a suit to recover arrears due to a family trading firm. 25 A. 378 (384). The guardian of a Hindu minor is competent to carry on an ancestral trade on behalf of the minor; but the minor is not personally liable for the debts of the business, and, on the analogy of the rule in S. 247 with regard to his liability on being admitted to partnership contracts, the share of the minor in the property is alone liable. 3 C. 738. S. 247 is not strictly applicable, however, where the minor is the sole owner of the firm, as there is no case of partnership there. But, in such a case, where the ancestral trade is carried on under the superintendence of the natural guardian of the minor for the benefit of herself (she having a claim to maintenance) and the said minor, the latter will be bound by all the acts of the natural guardian, which are necessarily incidental to or flowing out of the carrying on of that trade. 20 B. 767 (777, 779).

POSITION OF MINOR PARTNER.—Minor, though participating in profits of a firm, is not a partner. See 23 B. 146 (161). A person who is under the age of majority cannot be a member of the "firm" as defined in S. 4. He may be admitted to the benefits of a firm but cannot be made personally liable for any obligations of the firm. His share in the property of the firm is liable for the obli-

(2) Such minor has a right to such share of the property and of the profits of the firm as may be agreed upon, and he may have access to and inspect and copy any of the accounts of the firm.

(3) Such minor's share is liable for the acts of the firm, but the minor is not personally liable for any such act.

(4) Such minor may not sue the partners for an account or payment of his share of the property or profits of the firm, save when severing his connection with the firm, and in such case the amount of his share shall be determined by a valuation made as far as possible in accordance with the rules contained in section 48:

Provided that all the partners acting together or any partner entitled to dissolve the firm upon notice to other partners may elect in such suit to dissolve the firm, and thereupon the Court shall proceed with the suit as one for dissolution and for settling accounts between the partners and the amount of the share of the minor shall be determined along with the shares of the partners.

(5) At any time within six months of his attaining majority, or of his obtaining knowledge that he had been admitted to the benefits of the partnership, whichever date is later, such person may give public notice that he has elected to become or that he has elected not to become a partner in the firm, and such notice shall determine his position as regards the firm:

Provided that, if he fails to give such notice, he shall become a partner in the firm on the expiry of the said six months.

(6) Where any person has been admitted as a minor to the benefits of partnership in a firm, the burden of proving the fact that such person had no knowledge of such admission until a particular date after the expiry of six months of his attaining majority shall lie on the persons asserting that fact.

gations of the firm and that share is no more than his right to participate in the property of the firm, after its obligations have been satisfied. 21 S.L.R. 280=97 I.C. 446; 30 C. 539 (P.C.) and 1922 P.C. 237; 49 C. 560=43 M.L.J. 41=49 I.A. 108 (P.C.). See also 25 C.W.N. 847=66 I.C. 811; and 43 I.C. 76=7 L.W. 218. By merely being admitted to the benefits of a partnership, a minor does not become a partner. It is only by his acquiescence after he attains majority that he can be said to have accepted the position of a partner, with all the liabilities of a partner. 62 I.C. 802=40 M.L.J. 153.

Sec. 30 (2).—A minor admitted to the benefits of partnership is entitled to participate in the property of the firm after its obligations are discharged. 49 C. 560=43 M.L.J. 41=61 I.C. 124. See also 86 I.C. 944=18 S.L.R. 96=1925 S. 272; 21 S.L.R. 280=1927 S. 18=97 I.C. 446; 42 A. 515; 42 C. 225; 58 I.C. 557. Minors admitted to partnership are liable to the extent of their shares for partnership debts, but they are not personally liable. 20 Bom.L.R. 762=1928 P.C. 135 (P.C.). See also 51 I.C. 597=22 C.W.N. 500; 21 S.L.R. 280=97 I.C. 446; 71 M L.J. 373; 66 I.C. 811=25 C.W.N. 847; 43 I.C. 76=7 L.W. 218; 3 C. 738; 41 M. 824=35 M. RIGHTS OF MINOR SONS OF DECEASED PARTNER.—Where, on the death of one of two partners, widow and her minor sons agreed to continue the partnership, but later sued for dissolution, held, the minors were like partners but not liable for losses, and the surviving partner was liable to account to deceased partner's representatives for his share of the profits and assets at his death, deducting a reasonable amount as remuneration for his services since then. 6 R. 198=1928 R. 160. But see also 53 A. 497=1931 A. 327, cited supra. In a suit against a partnership firm, there cannot be a personal decree against the minor partners. They would be liable only to the extent of their interest in the assets of the firm. 35 P.L.R. 539.

MINOR REPRESENTATIVE OF DECEASED PARTNER, LIABILITY OF.—A minor representative of deceased partner managing the firm is liable to account to the survivor for partnership business carried on during the deceased's lifetime. The liability of the minor is not taken away by minor's want of personal knowledge. This liability is however confined to the extent of assets received by the minor representative. 40 A. 446=16 A.L.J. 305=45 I.C. 31. See also 71 M.L.J. 373.

FRAUD BY MINOR.—The exception of an infant is not made in S. 115, Evidence Act, and therefore, a minor, who executed a registered sale-deed representing himself to be of full age, is estopped from subsequently seeking to set aside the sale, on the ground of his minority. 21 B. 198 (201); 23 B. 146 (155).

(7) Where such person becomes a partner,—

(a) his rights and liabilities as a minor continue up to the date on which he becomes a partner, but he also becomes personally liable to third parties for all acts of the firm done since he was admitted to the benefits of partnership, and

(b) his share in the property and profits of the firm shall be the share to which he was entitled as a minor.

(8) Where such person elects not to become a partner,—

(a) his rights and liabilities shall continue to be those of a minor under this section up to the date on which he gives public notice,

(b) his share shall not be liable for any acts of the firm done after the date of the notice, and

(c) he shall be entitled to sue the partners for his share of the property and profits in accordance with sub-section (4).

(9) Nothing in sub-sections (7) and (8) shall affect the provisions of section 28.

CHAPTER V.

INCOMING AND OUTGOING PARTNERS.

Introduction of a partner.

31. (1) Subject to contract between the partners and to the provisions of section 30, no person shall be introduced as a partner into a firm without the consent of all the existing partners.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sectoin 30, a person who is introduced as a partner into a firm does not thereby become liable for any act of the firm done before he became a partner.

NOTES.

Chap. V.—"Though Chapter VII on the Registration of Firms is the most important departure in the Act as regards substance, this Chapter is the most important departure as regards form. As mentioned in the Select Committee's Report, it contains no material change in the law of partnership, but it collects together and sets out in a convenient form all rules relating to the coming in of a partner, and all rules relating to the going out of a partner in so far as these rules do not relate to the dissolution of the firm or to the consequences of dissolution. As a result of the limitation on the selection of these provisions, they relate chiefly to what is referred to in various places in the Act as a 'change in the firm', that is, a change in the constitution of the firm which has not resulted in the dissolution of the firm. However, a few provisions, such as S. 34 (1) and S. 37 are of general application, that is, they apply where the firm continues without dissolution, and also where a dissolved firm is reconstituted and carries on the business with the property and assets of the dissolved firm. For this reason, the Chapter is given the non-committal title of 'Incoming and Outgoing Partners,' rather than the restricted title of 'Change in a Firm,' which would otherwise have been more suitable". Report of Select Committee.)

Sec. 31.—Cf. Ss. 249 and 253 (6) of the Contract Act and Ss. 17 and 24 of the English Act. S. 249. Contract Act, had no application to cases where, by arrangement between the parties, a person becomes entitled to the profits and liable for the debts accruing to and incurred by the firm, before his admission as a partner. 9 C.L.R. 21.

Sec. 31 (2) : LIABILITY OF INCOMING PARTNER—COMMENCEMENT.—If a newly constituted partnership agrees among its members that the members of the new partnership shall have the power to bind it for the taking on of the debts of the previous firm which the new partnership had taken over, that would be binding on the new partnership, provided, however, there is anything in the transaction to show that the persons who executed the bills or notes or whatever are relied upon, were purporting to act on behalf of the new partnership. 1927 M. 889=53 M.L.J. 303. Even if the incoming partner has agreed with his co-partners that as between themselves, the partnership shall be deemed to have commenced at an earlier date, or that the debts of the old firm shall be taken over by the new, this is not of itself sufficient to give creditors who are no parties to the agreement, any right to sue the new partner for anything done before he in fact become a partner. 51 M.L.J. 506=49 M. 930=1926 M. 1138. To give the creditors this right, there must be some agreement to that effect between the new partners and the creditors. 51 M.L.J. 506=49 M. 930. Apart from privity of contract, a creditor cannot rely on agreement between partners inter se such as that the new partner would be liable for antecedent debts. (Ibid.) To determine whether a new partner becomes liable to an existing creditor of the firm, two questions have to be considered (1) whether the new Retirement of a partner.

32. (1) A partner may retire—

(a) with the consent of all the other partners,

(b) in accordance with an express agreement by the partners, or

(c) where the partnership is at will, by giving notice in writing to all the other partners of his intention to retire.

(2) A retiring partner may be discharged from any liability to any third paty for acts of the firm done before his retirement by an agreement made by him with such third party and the partners of the reconstituted firm, and such agreement may be implied by a course of dealing between such third party and the reconstituted firm after he had knowledge of the retirement.

(3) Notwithstanding the retirement of a partner from a firm, he and firm has assumed the liability to pay the debt, and (2) whether the creditor has agreed to accept the new firm, as his debtors and to discharge the old partnership from its liability. 35 C.W.N. 593. If a partner of a firm retires after he has entered into a contract and a new partner joins the firm, the newly constituted firm is different from the old firm and cannot institute a suit on the contract entered into by the latter, except when the new took over all the liabilities and outstandings of the old firm. 65 I.C. 26=1922 S. 13.

PURCHASER OF STOCK OF OLD FIRM—NO LIABILITY FOR THE DEBTS OF OLD FIRM.—S. 262, Contract Act, does not provide for a statutory charge on the property. Hence where a person purchases the stock of an old firm, he is not liable for the debts of the firm, unless such debts are made a charge on the property purchased. 1933 A.L.J. 170=1933 A. 175.

Sec. 32 (2): PRINCIPLE OF SUB-S. (2).—The law that the creditor is not bound by the arrangements between the partners new and old is more for the benefit of the creditor than to his detriment. If a partner retires after the debt was contracted with an arrangement with his co-partners for extinction of his personal liability, such an arrangement does not affect the right of the creditor who can hold all the partners who dealt with him liable. 35 C.W.N. 593. As a general rule, however, a partner who retires from a firm often takes from the continuing partners a contract indemnifying him against firm debts. Such contracts of indemnity do not, however, relieve the retiring partner from liability to firm creditors. If a person has retired from a firm, he is quite entitled to show that immediately after the date of retirement, he wrote to the Bank and informed them that he had severed his connection with the firm and could not continue to guarantee its account. If he does that, any statement by him made at the time as the reason for his refusing to continue to gurantee is admissible to explain his conduct. 35 C.W.N. 705. A continuing guarantee given to a firm, or in respect of the transactions of a firm, is, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, revoked as to the future by a change in the firm. The reason is that such a change destroys its identity. (See S. 38, infra.) Acknowledgment by one of the several partners in the absence of notice of dissolution by resigning partner is binding on resigning partner. 56 C. 556=33 C.W.N. 412=1929 C. 714. See also 1926 M. 114=50 M.L.J. 867; 26 B. 42. Where notice of dissolution was sent to the branches and the arthias of the firm, and there was no attempt at concealment of the change in its constitution, the mere fact that the continuing partner retained the old firm's name, which does not disclose the identity of the retired partners, cannot render them liable for debts contracted by the continuing partner, after their retirement. 78 P.R. 1903. But where the persons who intended to retire from business did in fact continue to associate with its work, a presumption may legitimately be drawn in favour of the continuance of the partnership. 67 IC. 10=34 C.L.J. 405. A partner who has retired before a certain transaction with the firm to which he had belonged takes place, cannot be held responsible, unless it can be shown that the transaction was with either a previous customer or one who was aware that the retired partner had been a partner. 137 P.L.R. 1908=102 P.W.R. 1908; 68 I.C. 932=1922 L. 466; see also 14 L. 188=1933 L. 417; or that he has actually held himself out to be a partner, a position which gives rise to a different class of consideration. 137 P.L.R. 1908=102 P.W.R. 1908. If a person is a member of a firm, and known to be such, persons dealing with the firm may be influenced by his credit, and unless he takes proper steps to make his retirement clear, he will be held responsible to them, who knew of his partnership and might have been influenced by the fact. But it is definite personal knowledge which is required. It cannot be held as a principle that when a person has dealings with a man who was once a member of a joint Hindu family and competent to pledge the resources of that family such person can hold all the members, who once constituted a joint Hindu family responsible, unless they have taken the precaution publicly to proclaim their partition. If it be shown that the father of a minor son, had notice of a fact, such minor cannot say that he had no notice. 137 P.L.R. 1908=102 P.W.R. 1908. The outgoing partner has a right to be indemnified against the partnership debts by the appropriation thereto of the partnership assets unless such right has been taken away by any deed or agreement to which he is a party. 1933 S. 182.

Sec. 32, sub-sec. (3): PRINCIPLE OF SUB-CL. (3).—Obligations resulting from contracts entered into before a partner's retirement are binding upon him, even though such obliga-

the partners continue to be liable as partners to third parties for any act done by any of them which would have been an act of the firm if done before the retirement, until public notice is given of the retirement:

Provided that a retired partner is not liable to any third party who deals with the firm without knowing that he was a partner.

(4) Notices under sub-section (3) may be given by the retired partner or by any partner of the reconstituted firm.

Expulsion of a partner.

33. (1) A partner may not be expelled from a firm by any majority of the partners, save in the exercise in good faith of powers conferred by contract between the partners.

(2) The provisions of sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) of section 32 shall apply to an expelled partner as if he were a retired partner.

Insolvency of a partnership.

34. (1) Where a partner in a firm is adjudicated an insolvent he ceases to be a partner on the date on which the order of adjudication is made whether or not the firm is thereby dissolved.

(2) Where under a contract between the partners the firm is not dissolved by the adjudication of a partner as an insolvent, the estate of a partner so adjudicated is not liable for any act of the firm and the firm is not liable for any act of the insolvent, done after the date on which the order of adjudication is made.

Liability of estate of deceased partner.

35. Where under a contract between the partners the firm is not dissolved by the death of a partner, the estate of a deceased partner is not liable for any act of the firm done after his death.

The same is true of obligations incurred after his retirement, and before notice thereof has been duly given unless he is a dormant partner. See 75 P.R. 1908=122 P.W.R. 1908; 28 B. 606 (614). But for liabilities incurred by the new firm after his retirement, which has been duly notified, he is not responsible. See also 1922 L. 466; 9 M. 492. The phrase Shikmi Sharik, by its etymological sense, means a partner whose name is not disclosed, that is, a dormant partner. Therefore, on the retirement of a Shikmi Sharik, no notice of the dissolution of the partnership need be given. But he is liable to all the claims on the partnership till the date of his retirement. The onus of proving that he has retired from the partnership at a specific period lies on him, on general principles as well as under S. 105, Evidence Act. 75 P.R. 1908=122 P.W.R. 1908. Where the goods are sent to a firm on inspection during the continuance of a partnership and out of them those that are not required are returned after the dissolution of the partnership, though the cause of action may not arise till the unrequired goods are returned, yet all those persons who were members of the firm at the time the goods were sent to it on inspection will be liable for the goods taken. 26 C.W.N. 496=1925 C. 937.

NOTICE.—See 28 B. 606; 9 M. 492 (494). When a dormant partner ceases to be a member of the firm, the real authority of his co-partners to bind him is thereby withdrawn; and as ex hypothesi no one knows of the authority, no one is entitled to rely upon its continuance. 1930 B. 449 following 1927 B. 560 and 1929 P.C. 132. See also 1938 A.L.J. 907=1938 A. 619; 1936 Pat. 539. Secs. 32, 33 and 45.—Though a partner's connection with a firm may have ceased, the firm would nevertheless continue to be bound by the transactions of that partner made with third parties, until public notice of the severance is given or it is shown that the third party was aware of the severance on the date of transaction. 1938 A.L.J. 907=1938 A. 619.

Agreements in restraint of trade

(2) A partner may make an agreement with his partners that on ceasing to be a partner he will not carry on any business similar to that of the firm within a specified period or within specified local limits; and, notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such agreement shall be valid if the restrictions imposed are reasonable.

Right of outgoing partner in certain cases to share subsequent profits.

37. Where any member of a firm has died or otherwise ceased to be a partner, and the surviving or continuing partners carry on the business of the firm with th property of the firm without any final settlement of accounts as between them and the outgoing partner or his estate, then, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the outgoing partner, or his estate is entitled at the option of himself or his representatives to such share of the profits made since he ceased to be a partner as may be attributable to the use of his share of the property of the firm or to interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum on the amount of his share in the property of the firm:

Provided that where by contract between the partners an option is given to surviving or continuing partners to purchase the interest of a deceased or outgoing partner, and that option is duly exercised, the estate of the deceased partner, or the outgoing partner or his estate, as the case may be, is not entitled to any further or other share of profits; but if any partner, assuming to act in exercise of the option does not in all material respects comply with the terms thereof, he is liable to account under the foregoing provisions of this section.

name, after the retirement of a partner, may, be acquired by an express agreement with such partner. 1922 L. 466. Where, after dissolution of a certain firm, the assets are divided between the partners, one of the partners, can make use of the old firm's name in suits and execution proceedings for the recovery of the debts which fell to his share at the division, unless that causes any risk of liability to the others, and an injunction cannot be granted to restrain such use at the instance of the others. (22 Hals. Para, 162, Rel. on.) 9 R. 85=1931 R. 138. Mere passive acquiescence or even consent to the use of the firm's name by a partner who has left the firm would not make him liable to persons dealing with the firm after he has left it. 3 I. SEC. 37.—Section corresponds to S. 42 of the English Partnership Act.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—Where a partner, on the death of another partner, retains the partnership capital in his hands and employs it in trade, he is bound to render an account of the profits of the partnership to the other partner's son from the time of the death of that partner up to the date when the final decree is made. 53 A. 479 =1931 A. 327. Where on the dissolution of a firm one of the partners retains assets of the firm in his hands without any settlement of accounts and applies them in continuing the business for his benefit, he may be ordered to account for these assets with interest thereon, even in the absence of fraud or misconduct in the nature of fraud. 42 C. 914=42 I.A. 91=29 M.L.J. 70 (P.C.). The assets of the deceased partner are a loan to the firm if they are retained in the business after his death, and the arrangement he makes at the time of death binds his estate. 37 B. 158=19 I.C. 406=15 Bom.L.R. 192. Where on an assignment of a partner's share the partnership is dissolved and a new firm is formed by the remaining partners, the assignee is entitled at his option either to the profits of the new firm or interest at 6 per cent. 52 M. 509=1929 M. 627=56 M.L.J. 776.

PROFITS ATTRIBUTABLE TO THE SHARE OF THE OUTGOING PARTNER'S CAPITAL.—A minor who is entitled to claim the assets of his deceased father in a partnership cannot claim as of right a share in the profits of the concern. There is no fiduciary relation between the surviving partners and the legal representatives of the deceased partner. The amount due to the deceased is a loan and nothing more. 4 L.W. 521=37 I.C. 728.

He is not bound to make his election until the share of the profits that would fall to him has been ascertained and hence his final election must be postponed until the accounts have been taken. And for such retiring partner to be able to claim his share of the profits, it is not necessary that the whole of the partnership assets should be used by the remaining partners, and it is enough if any portion of the assets are so used. 52 M. 672=1929 M. 456=56 M.L.J. 657. Where a partner invests capital of his own in the partnership business, he should in equity be allowed to charge interest on the capital so employed in making up the profit and loss account of the business. 110 I.C. 639=23 S.L.R. 471=1929 S. 85. In an action to dissolve and wind up the affairs of a partnership, until the accounts have been taken, it is impossible to say what if anything is due from any partner or co-partners; interest, therefore, should only be allowed to the plaintiffs from the date of final decree by which amount (if any) is found to be due from the defendants to the plaintiffs and not from the date of plaint. 34 C W.N. 737=1930 P.C. 185 (P.C.). Chapter VI.—This Chapter is derived from that part of the English Act which is headed "Dissolution of Partnership and its consequences," but it excludes certain matters already included in the previous Chapter, and introduces some new matter, notably S. 55 on goodwill. Sec. 39.—As to the position of parties in a partnership suit being in some particulars different from that of the position of parties in an ordinary money suit, see 11 L. 359=1930 L. 725. Where a member of a joint Hindu family enters into a partnership, he might be representing the family of which he may be a member and may as such be accountable to the other members of the family; but so far as other parties to the deed of partnership are concerned, they must confine themselves to the terms of the deed itself and cannot be permitted to travel beyond it by arising a plea that his brother, a person not party to the said deed should have been impleaded in a suit for dissolution of partnership. 1930 L. 655=11 L. 359. See also Notes under S. 42, cl. (c), infra. The presumption of agency does not exist in the case of a partnership which has ceased to be a going concern. 1925 N. 268=85 I.C. 775. Though it be true that a mere suspension of business of partnership does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that there has been a dissolution of the partnership, still the cessation of business coupled with other circumstances may legitimately lead to the inference that the partnership had been dissolved. 107 I.C. 673=26 A.L.J. 240=1928 A. 58; 1927 P.C. 70 and 1925 A. 786, Dist. After a partnership has been dissolved and accounts settled, any balance struck by a partner is one without authority and consideration. It does not create any liability on the firm. 95 I.C. 88 =1926 L. 522.

SUIT FOR DISSOLUTION AND ACCOUNT—PROCEDURE.—Where a suit is filed for dissolution and settlement of accounts of a partnership business, ordinarily the liabilities have to be paid and assets to be collected and the business has to be wound up. Sometimes this is begun by ascertaining the liabilities and assigning them either to the parties with the consent of the creditors or by discharging them out of the sale proceeds of the assets of the business. The amounts due to the partnership are valued and assigned to the parties, or auctioned between them, or sold to third parties. 160 I.C. 642=1936 Lah. 458. When a partnership at will is formed, apart from the circumstances in which the Court may dissolve it, it can come to an end by a notice of dissolution or abandonment by one of the partners of the partnership. The fact that no further partnership business is done does not result in a dissolution of the partnership. The distinction between the closing of a business and the dissolution of a partnership must be kept in view. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 505=42 Bom.L.R. 511=1940 Bom. 263. See also 1938 Sind 82.

DECREE—FORM OF.—The proper form of an order in dissolution of partnership is given in Form 21, Appendix D to the C. P. Code where there is a form given for a preliminary decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership and the taking of partnership accounts. and incorporating those as an order instead of making an order as contemplated by the first schedule is bad and ought to be discouraged. 179 I.C. 64=1938 Rang. 478. A suit for dissolution of a partnership by one partner against another, without impleading all the partners of the business is not maintainable and must fail. 46 Mys.H.C.R. 234=19 Mys.L.J. 351. Even an assignee of a partner's rights cannot intervene until after dissolution, still less can a person who claims to be a mortgagee of partnership property from a partner for a non-partnership purpose. Such a person claiming under a title which is a nullity as against the firm and the other partners cannot be joined in a suit for dissolution. 1941 N.L.J. 657.

Sec. 40 covers the case where all the partners agree that the firm should then be dissolved; and also the case where the dissolution occurs in pursuance of a contract previously made, for example, in the articles of partnership. (Report of Select Committee.) It is open to the partners of a partnership to come together and agree to an account among themselves, even after the expiry of three years from date of dissolution; and such a settlement is supported by consideration, as all of them make mutual promises to abide by such settlement. 142 I.C. 549=37 C.W.N. 580=1933 P.C. 120=64 M.L.J. 596 (P.C.). A firm carries on business so long as its business debts remain undischarged. The mere fact that no new business was done after a particular date does not amount to a dissolution of the firm. 32 S.L.R. 672=1938 Sind. 82; 1938 Rang. 478. See also 1937 Mad. 599; 1940 B. 63. Where the predominant intention of the executants of a deed of partnership is that the firm shall continue to carry on business without running the risk of dissolution at the instance of one of the partners who did not agree with the rest and wherein machinery is provided by which a partner apprehending loss can obtain adequate relief and finally there is a provision for settlement of disputes by arbitration, it is clear that it was the intention of the executants that the partnership shall not be dissolved on the happening of the contingencies mentioned in the Partnership Act. In such a case one of the partners has no right to bring a suit for dissolution of the partnership on the ground that the managing partner does not manage the business in a manner which may be profitable to the partners. I.L.R. (1939) A. 577=1939 A.L.J. 440=1939 All. 548.

Sec. 41 relates to events whose occurrence unavoidably dissolves a firm. Cl. (a) is new, but needs no comment. Cl. (b) is S. 34 of the English Act and S. 255 of the Indian Contract Act. The proviso incorporates a suggestion made by Lindley at page 682. (Report of Select Committee.)

Cl. (a).—As to the dissolution of the partnership by the bankruptcy or insolvency of the partners, it may be remarked that this naturally, and indeed, upon just reasoning, necessarily produces this effect, for the bankrupt partners are thereby disabled to perform their portion of the partnership contract, since all their preperty, is by operation of law immediately upon the declaration of bankruptcy or insolvency, divested out of them and it passes by assignment to the persons who are duly designated as the assignees thereof, to dispose of the same, and to distribute the proceeds among their creditors. The assignees are not, on the one hand, compellable to become partners, nor, on the other hand, are the other partners compellable to admit them into the partnership. But a more important and an absolutely conconclusive ground is that the further continuation of the partnership is utterly incompatible with the whole policy and objects of the bankrupt and insolvent systems. These systems contemplate an immediate sale and distribution of the assets among the creditors; and the assignees have no authority whatever to enter into any further engagements in any trade or business on account of the creditors, or at their risk. (Story, S. 313); 1928 S. 71=106 I. C. 54; 1925 S. 410=87 I.C. 905. A fortiori, the like doctrine applies where all the partners become bankrupt, for then the whole property is divested out of all of them. (Story, S. 313.) But the mere failure of a company does not dissolve a partnership. 1929 A. 236=117 I.C. 824. On this section, see also 1932 S. 71; 1932 S. 164; 1932 B. 316.

Sec. 41, Cl. (b).—The illegality of the partnership is no answer to a demand against it arising out of a transaction to which it is a party if the other person was not aware of it. If a business is carried on by two partners and is legal only so far as one is concerned, the presumption is that he has benefited by one half of the loan and a decree should be given against that partner only for half the amount borrowed by the partnership. 43 M. 141=38 M.L.J. 123 =54 I.C. 45. S. 25, Punjab Laws Act, only applies to a person's misconduct previous to his being declared an insolvent, and the bankruptcy of a firm does not necessarily involve a legal prohibition of its business. The partners themselves are thereby prevented from carrying on the business, but it does not follow that the business itself is prohibited by law. 37 P.R.

Provided that, where more than one separate adventure or undertaking is carried on by the firm, the illegality of one or more shall not of itself cause the dissolution of the firm in respect of its lawful adventures and undertakings.

Dissolution on the happening of certain contingencies.

Sec. 42.—It is the duty of the Courts to bring about the fulfilment of the expectations of the parties, and when a partnership has been entered into for a fixed term, the Courts should not permit a partner to drive the others to a dissolution. 66 I.C. 473=2 L. 351=1922 L. 195. Where plaintiff and defendant entered into partnership for a fixed term, but plaintiff failed to carry out his part of the partnership work, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to compensation for certain work done by him, that the defendant could not be expected to wait indefinitely for plaintiff to do his share of work, but that he was entitled to the nett share of profits. 6 P.L.R. 1915=27 I.C. 650. On this section, see also 86 I.C. 950=1925 S. 300. When a partner dies, his representative has an interest in and a lien upon the partnership assets and can claim a taking of accounts as upon dissolution caused by the death of the deceased. Where the surviving partners alienate any property, the proper remedy of the personal representative of the deceased partner is to ask for the taking of a general partnership account and not by a suit for a half-share in the alienated property. I.L.R. (1939 Nag. 396=1938 Nag. 182.

Cls. (b) and (c).—See 80 I.C. 378=46 M.L.J. 503; 46 I.C. 467=118 P.W.R. 1918; 1939 A. 217. The principle of this sub-cl. (c) is that partners cannot be expected to acquiesce in new partners being forced upon them. In the event of a partner dying, they may well object to the executors or administrators or other heirs coming into the business. See 101 P.R. 1914=27 I.C. 69=218 P.L.R. 1915. Even where there is a period fixed, the death of one partner dissolves the partnership and the case of a partnership for a particular adventure is no better than the case where there is an express period. 52 M.L.J. 318=1927 M. 491.

EFFECT OF PROVISIONS IN THE ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION CONCERNING DEATH.—But although a dissolution of the partnership takes place by law upon the death of any one of the partners, this proposition must be understood with the limitation that, by the articles of co-partnership, or other agreement between the partners, it is not otherwise stipulated by the parties. For it is entirely competent for the parties to vary this general result of law by an express agreement; and if such an agreement exists, it will depend upon the particular terms thereof. 66 I.C. 811=25 C.W.N. 847; 124 I.C. 19; 68 I.C. 722=1922 L. 349, 16 C.W.N. 299=13 I.C. 23. A contract to the contrary (i.e.) death should not necessarily dissolve the partnership, need not be always express. It may be inferred from certain facts; but the mere existence of an adventure is not such a fact as leads to the inference of an agreement to the contrary. The mere fact that the accounts were intended to be taken after all the stock is sold cannot be held to mean that there is an agreement that if there is a death before all the stock is sold there is to be no dissolution. 1927 M. 491=52 M.L.J. 318. See also 8 Bom.L.R. 8; 94 I.C. 547=1925 S. 103; 25 C.W.N. 847=66 I.C. 811. It may be inferred also from the conduct of the parties. 1935 L. 350. Where, on the death of a partner, the business was carried on the assumption that his widow was a partner, held, that the conduct of the parties showed that there must have been a contract between the original parties, that the partnership would not be dissolved by the death of a partner, but should be continued with the representative of the deceased as a partner. 16 C.W.N. 299=15 C.L.J. 204. See also 25 C.W.N. 847=1921 C. 538; 124 I.C. 19. Dissolution by notice of partnership at will.

43. (1) Where the partnership is at will, the firm may be dissolved by any partner giving notice in writing to all the other partners of his intention to dissolve the firm.

NOTES.

of profits, would not reconstitute the partnership but rather indicates a contrary intention. 25 W.R. 49. Where one of the terms of an agreement among the partners of a firm was that, in case of a vacancy caused by the death or retirement of any of them, his nominee should be admitted into the partnership, the business must, in default of such nomination, be intended to be carried on by the continuing or surviving partners. Where the will of such a partner did not refer to the firm or nominate a successor in the partnership, the mere fact that he left all his property to his executor cannot be construed, so as to make the executor a partner in the place of the testator. 9 B. 536 (555). Such an executor is entitled to an account up to the date of the testator's death, but not to a share in the "goodwill" of the business as an asset of the firm, when the goodwill is attached to the name of the firm, which, by the partnership agreement itself, is to be used by the surviving partners for their own benefit. 9 B. 536 (555). Even if a partnership continues after the death of a partner, the estate of the deceased is not liable in respect of subsequent obligation, in the absence of an express agreement. 8 Bom.L.R. 8. On this section, see also 114 I.C. 881=1929 A. 148; 31 I.C. 45; 38 I.C. 278; 74 I.C. 721=1924 A. 277; 101 P.R. 1914=27 I.C. 69. It was decided in some of the older cases that an injunction may be granted in cases in which a member of a joint Hindu family was prevented from taking part in the business of the firm. See 23 B. 144. See also 20 B. 467; 19 B. 269. It is doubtful if this is still good law. See S. 5, supra, and notes thereunder. A partnership between the manager of a joint Hindu family and a stranger does not make every member of the family a partner so as to clothe him with all the rights and all obligations of a partner. The effect of a partition in the family is to confer on the coparcener a right to call on the manager to get in the assets of the firm due to him as partner by proper proceedings against his copartners. 34 M.L.J. 271=41 M. 454=43 I.C. 9. See also 1934 P.C. 192=67 M.L.J. 366 (P.C.); 39 C.W.N 357; 101 P.R. 1914=27 I.C. 69. Where the divided members of a Hindu family run a business, they are partners and where one member puts an end to such partnership, S. 253 (8) of the Contract Act will apply. 63 I.C. 548=19 A.L.J. 525. Where subsequent to the partition of a Hindu joint family, the family business is carried on jointly by two of the members on the one side and another member on the other, the death of the latter dissolves the partnership. 47 A. 784=1925 A. 595. A power-of-attorney executed by two members of a joint Hindu family is not terminated by the death of one of them when the interest of the deceased member passes to the surviving member. 35 M.L.J. 294; 23 M. L.J. 213=44 I.C. 849. Where the manager of a joint Hindu family enters into a partnership for the family benefit with a person, a stranger to the family, the partnership is dissolved on the death of the manager in the absence of any agreement with the survivors, who have no right in such a case against the other partners even to sue for any assets received by them, subsequently to the dissolution of the partnership. 78 I. C. 198=20 N.L.R. 49. But see also 61 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 45. A covenant by a deceased partner of a firm binding his heirs and representatives to continue the partnership cannot be specifically enforced against the heirs and representatives; the effect of the death of the partner coupled with the refusal of the heirs and representatives to continue the partnership would be the dissolution of the firm. Where a Hindu father enters into a partnership with strangers under a deed of partnership which contains a covenant to the effect, that "on the death of any partner, his heir or representative shall thereafter be a partner in his place, being entitled to the right and interest of the said partner, and shall get the business done subjecting himself to the aforesaid terms and that on that account neither the partnership should be cancelled nor would it come to an end," and his sons after the death do not become partners or take part in the management of the business, they cannot be made liable for any loss incurred by the partnership after their father's death as sons of the deceased father. 50 L.W. 151=A.I.R. 1939 Mad 891=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 279.

MAHOMEDAN TRADING FAMILY. — Under Mahomedan Law, there is no such thing as a family trading partnership as under Hindu Law and any partnership transaction between two Mahomedan brothers must be governed by the contract between the parties as regards the partnership. Ordinarily the partnership terminates on the death of one of the partners, unless there is evidence to the contrary. 104 I.C. 833 =54 C. 687=1927 C. 836.

Sec. 42 Cl. (d).—As to the effect of the insolvency of a partner, see 87 I.C. 905=1925 S. 310; 106 I.C. 54=1928 S. 71; 1931 R. 191= 131 I.C. 62. There is no automatic dissolution of partnership upon the insolvency of a partner. If two out of four parties are insolvent the partnership continues to subsist. 14 Pat.L.T. 252=1933 P. 239. Where one of the partners becomes insolvent before the coming into force of the Partnership Act, the provisions of the Partnership Act do not apply to such a case but the Contract Act applies. The insolvency therefore of one of the partners does not by itself operate as a dissolution of the partnership. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 28=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 314.

Sec. 43.—S. 43 relates to the dissolution of partnership at will. It is taken from cl. (c)

(2) The firm is dissolved as from the date mentioned in the notice as the date of dissolution or, if no date is so mentioned, as from the date of the communication of the notice.

Dissolution of the Court.

44. At the suit of a partner, the Court may dissolve a firm on any of the following grounds, namely :—

and the last paragraph of S. 32 of the English Partition Act. (Report of Select Committee.)

PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION. In respect to partnerships where no certain limit of their duration is fixed, they are deemed to be mere partnerships at will (see S. 7, supra) and therefore are ordinarily at the common law dissolvable at the will of any one or more of the partners. 67 I.C. 10=34 C.L.J. 405. The intention to dissolve may be inferred in the case of partnership at will from circumstances showing that a partner has in fact abandoned his interest. 49 P.W.R. 1916=32 I.C. 853. See also 35 P.L.R.557=1934 L. 557. A partnership is not necessarily dissolved merely because it is closed or its business has stopped. It must be dissolved in one way or the other known to and recognised by the law (89 I.C. 122; 1930 L. 378; 66 I.C. 811; Ref.) 37 L.W. 288=1933 M. 353. Where no term is expressly limited for its duration, and there is nothing in the contract to fix it, the partnership may be terminated at a moment's notice by either party. See 67 I.C. 10=1921 C. 722 ; 63 I.C. 548=1921 A. 411. In a partnership at will, a partner is entitled to dissolution. It is not an equitable right but it is a legal right under the Code and under the contract. 79 I.C. 944=51 I.A. 154=46 M.L.J. 158 (P.C.). The dissolution takes place as from the date of the notice (67 I.C. 10=34 C.L.J. 405), and without regard to the state of mind of the partner to whom the notice is given. Partnership at will is dissolved from the date on which one partner retires and no notice of the retirement is necessary. 25 I.C. 183. In cases where the partnership is not at will, it is the duty of the Courts to bring about the fulfilment of the expectations of the parties; and when a partnership has been entered into for a fixed term the Courts should not permit a partner to drive the others to a dissolution. 66 I.C. 473=2 L. 351. In the case of a dissolution by notice if the assistance of the Court is required by means of a decree for dissolution, the suit for dissolution must follow the notice. Where the notice is given more than 4 months after the institution of the suit, the relief for dissolution of partnership cannot be granted in that suit. 167 I.C. 839=1937 O.W.N. 344=1937 O. 438. Filing a plaint in a suit for dissolution by one partner is enough in itself to put an end to a partnership at will. 1927 P.C. 70=53 M.L.J. 245 (P.C.). A partnership at will is presumed to endure only so long as the parties are in life and have a capacity to continue it. The dissolution of it, either by death or by a supervenient incapacity, will come under consideration when we speak of dissolution by mere operation of law. See secs. 42 and 44. See also 100 I.C. 616=1927 M. 491. Where a partnership had come into existence for a fixed period with a clause enabling one partner to dissolve by giving notice of a specified period to the other, then any other method of dissolution by agreement between the partners must be strictly proved, and where the party on whom the onus of proof lies relies on the document to prove the dissolution and the document can with equal justification be read as having two different meanings, then the party fails to satisfy the onus which would lie upon him. 28 Bom. L.R. 1275=50 B. 655=1926 B. 585.

Sec. 44: LUNACY.—The lunacy of a partner does not of itself dissolve the partnership, but confirmed lunacy is a ground for dissolution if the other partners apply to the Court for a decree of dissolution on that ground. 53 C. 214=1928 C. 271.

CASE-LAW.—The adultery of one partner with his co-partner's wife is a sufficient ground for dissolving the partnership. 5 B.L.R. 109. Partner aggrieved by gross misconduct of other partners towards him which makes it impossible for him to continue as partner—Proper remedy is to sue for dissolution under this section. 64 I.C. 204. See also 11 C.W.N. 311. A partner guilty of misconduct cannot sue for dissolution of the partnership or for any other relief. The law is the same on this point as in England. Partner who either destroys the old account books of the firm, makes such interpolations in the account books which make them worthless and unreliable, falsely prepares the balance sheet or tries to deprive his firm of a valuable asset is guilty of misconduct. 1 L. 6=57 I.C. 185. Even when a partnership is entered into for a fixed term, a decree for dissolution may be passed, when the mutual confidence, which the partners reposed in each other at the time when the partnership was entered into, has ceased. 89 I.C. 333=1926 L. 145. See also 30 C.W.N. 440=1926 C. 745. But neither stoppage of business nor refusal of a partner to make further advances on capital account can be treated as dissolution of the firm. 66 I.C. 811=25 C.W.N. 847. When a partnership is rescinded on the ground of fraud or misconduct, the partner at fraud is not entitled to ask the other members of the partnership to contribute to the losses which may have occurred in the partnership business due to his fraud. 60 I.C. 709=1921 L. 130. One partner is not liable in a suit for accounts upon a dissolution of partnership, for the probable loss sustained by them owing to his neglect or failure to carry out duties imposed upon him by the partnership agreement to the prejudice of the firm's business. 87 I.C. 735=27 Bom.L.R. 500=1925 B. 324. Refusal and neglect on the part of any one partner to perform the duties undertaken by him would give to any other partner the right to apply for dissolution. In such a case the partnership could also be dissolved by agreement without legal proceedings. But for such an agreement the

(a) that a partner has become of unsound mind, in which case the suit may be brought as well by the next friend of the partner who has become of unsound mind as by any other partner;

(b) that a partner, other than the partner suing, has become in any way permanently incapable of performing his duties as partner;

(c) that a partner, other than the partner suing, is guilty of conduct which is likely to affect prejudicially the carrying on of the business, regard being had to the nature of the business;

(d) that a partner, other than the partner suing, wilfully or persistently commits breach of agreements relating to the management of the affairs of the firm or the conduct of its business, or otherwise so conducts himself in matters relating to the business that it is not reasonably practicable for the other partners to carry on the business in parnership with him;

(e) that a partner, other than the partner suing, has in any way transferred the whole of his interest in the firm to a third party, or has allowed his share to be charged under the provisions of Rule 49 of Order XXI of the First Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or has allowed it to be sold in the recovery of arrears of land-revenue or of any dues recoverable as arrears of land-revenue due by the partner;

(f) that the business of the firm cannot be carried on save at a loss; or (g) on any other ground which renders it just and equitable that the firm should be dissolved.

NOTES.

consent of all the partners is necessary; otherwise the partnership can come to an end only by efflux of time or decree of Court. 57 I.C. 713=39 M.L.J. 257 (P.C.). Mere refusal of a partner to supply capital when demanded is not conclusive proof of intention to retire. 66 I.C. 811=25 C.W.N. 847. If a partner fall into an error in the management from want of a larger measure of prudence and skill than he is master of, he is not liable for the consequences. In the absence of any specific agreement to the contrary, the rule of diligence among partners is not that they should employ the middle kind of diligence which prudent men employ in their affairs, but that they are safe if they show they acted in the partnership affairs as they would have acted in their own. Good faith is required in a partner as well as diligence and if a partner is guilty of gross negligence, unskilfulness, fraud, or wanton misconduct in the course of the partnership business, he is ordinarily responsible to the other partners, for the losses and damages sustained thereby. 53 I.C. 2 [Law v. Law, (1905) 1 Ch. 140, Foll.]. One partner neglecting partnership (affairs) is not by itself enough to dissolve the partnership. A partner can retire, but that retirement can only be by and upon notice to the other side. 89 I.C. 122=47 A. 756. Neither stoppage of business nor refusal of a partner to make further advances on capital account can be treated as dissolution of the firm. 66 I.C. 811=25 C.W.N. 847. The question whether there has been an abandonment of the business by a partner depends on the facts of each case. 25 C.W.N. 847.

Sec. 44, cl. (e).—See 27 I.C. 344=8 S.L.R. 69. Although the subject-matter of a partnership is precarious and speculative, it is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts of each case, whether or not there has been abandonment by a partner of his share, or loss of interest by laches. The mere fact that a partner suing for partnership account and for winding up, had previously declined to advance more money for the business and left the management to a co-partner is not sufficient to infer that the former abandoned or lost by laches, his position as a partner. 28 C. 53 (59)=27 I.A. 139 (P.C.). See also 25 M. 149 (164); 12 P.R. 1881. Consent to attachment of deceased co-partner's share of partnership assets for personal debts of latter amounts to declaration of cessation of partnership. 51 C. 161=1924 C. 801. As to effect of attachment of half-share of partners, see also 8 S.L.R. 67.

Sec. 44, cl. (f).—The expectation of profit being implied in every partnership, if a partnership is entered into, and everything has been done which was agreed to be done, but certain loss is the only result of going on, any partner is entitled to have the concern dissolved, although he may have agreed that the partnership should continue for some definite time, and that time has not yet expired. 1 B. 468 (474)=3 I.A. 200 (P.C.), on appeal from 8 B.H.C. (O.C.) 209. Partners have an inherent right of winding it up, or to apply to have it wound up, in the event of its not being able to be carried on with success. This inherent right, however, may be shown to have been relinquished by any provision in the agreement, from which it can be fairly inferred. 1 B. 468=3 I.A. 200 (P.C.). Courts can dissolve a partnership working at loss even before the period fixed for its continuance. 42 B. 380=35 M. L.J. 262=45 I.A. 61 (P. C.) See also 1924 B. 57=81 I.C. 463. Where there has been a complete destruction of mutual confidence, and it is impracticable to continue the partnership

45. (1) Notwithstanding the dissolution of a firm, the partners continue to be liable as such to third parties for any act done by any of them which would have been an act of the firm if done before the dissolution, until public notice is given of the dissolution :

Liability for acts of partners done after dissolution.

Provided that the estate of a partner who dies, or who is adjudicated an insolvent, or of a partner who, not having been known to the person dealing with the firm to be a partner, retires from the firm, is not liable under this section for acts done after the date on which he ceases to be partner.

(2) Notices under sub-section (1) may be given by any partner, business with advantage to the partners, or they can no longer perform their duties properly, the partnership should be dissolved. 30 C.W.N. 440=94 I.C. 381. See also 89 I.C. 333 =1926 L. 145. The mere failure of a company does not ipso facto dissolve a partnership. 117 I.C. 824=1929 A. 236.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Where the partners composing a firm as one entity form a partnership with another person, the dissolution of the latter partnership does not dissolve the partnership. 90 I.C. 242=1926 S. 75. A suit for dissolution and winding up of a firm and its branch firm which consist of certain additional partners who have no interest in the main firm is bad for multifariousness. 90 I.C. 970=19 S.L.R. 395=1926 S. 66. Forum for dissolution and rendition of accounts is not the place where the capital is subscribed. 42 P.R. 1916=33 I.C. 953. In the case of a partnership which is wound up, the date on which the winding up was completed is the proper date for calculating the conversion of foregin currency into British Indian currency. 52 M. 509=1929 M. 627=56 M.L.J. 776. See also 38 I.C. 873=19 Bom. L.R. 86 ; 25 W.R. 511 ; 12 P.R. 1881 ; 28 C. 53 (59). Where a partner withholds the annual profits of a concern from a member of the firm, the partner excluded from the profits may bring a suit for an account and for his share of the profits, and such a suit shall not be dismissed for the reason that the plaintiff does not claim a dissolution. 66 I.C. 478=2 L. 351. It is only under exceptional circumstances that partners can bring actions against their co-partners, except when the action is for dissolution of partnership, in which case they may claim an account and payment over of moneys that may be found to be due to them on accounts being taken. Actions between partners, which involve the taking of partnership accounts prior to dissolution, are almost unheard of. 9 A. 120 (121). Where, in a suit for dissolution of partnership, a Subordinate Court signally failed to do its duty, and there has not been any patent neglect on the part of the plaintiff to enforce his rights, the High Court has power, by way of superintendence, under S. 15 of the Charter Act, to direct the Subordinate Court to do its duty and to dispose of the matter according to law. 18 A. 4 (8).

Sec. 45 : PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION.—If a firm is dissolved and no notice is given and people continue to trade with the firm under the firm's name they are not to be affected by a secret dissolution. Their right to sue the retiring partner upon post-dissolution transactions does not depend on the question whether they knew that he was a partner prior to the dissolution. 35 C.W.N. 705. See now proviso to this section. 1930 B. 449 ; 104 I.C. 520= 1927 B. 560. In the absence of notice of dissolution all partners are liable to persons dealing with the firm, though after dissolution. 1930 S. 83=121 I.C. 865. On dissolution or retirement, the agency as between the partners ceases, but as regards third persons agency continues until termination is notified. Old customers must be given specific notice and for others reasonable public notice is sufficient. 1925 S. 90=93 I.C. 448. In the case of old customers of a firm publication of notice of dissolution in the public press is not sufficient to relieve a retiring partner from liability. 1 R. 47=1924 R. 133. [But now under the Act, notice under S. 72 is sufficient.] In the absence of notice of dissolution, persons dealing with a firm are entitled to assume that the partnership still continues, though it has actually been dissolved. 50 M.L.J. 67=1926 M. 114. See also 1936 Pat. 539. In cases of withdrawal of a partner from the firm or in cases of dissolution, the constituents who have dealings with the firm should have notice of the fact. Mere publication in the Calcutta Exchange Gazette is not in law sufficient notice. 1927 M. 661= 104 I.C. 120. See also 56 I.A. 174=53 B. 414 =1929 P.C. 132=56 M.L.J. 739 (P.C.) ; 115 I.C. 707 ; 104 I.C. 520=1927 B. 560. Customers old or new dealing with partnership with knowledge of partnership are not affected by dissolution in the absence of notice. 1928 M. 125=106 I.C. 904. See also 1927 S. 155=100 I.C. 389. An acknowledgment of partnership debt by a salaried partner of a joint family firm after its dissolution but before general notice thereof is binding on all partners. 1930 B. 236=125 I. C. 442. See also 110 I.C. 484= 1928 M. 588.

PROVISO.—This section does not apply to cases of dormant partners nor to cases of death 1927 B. 560=104 I.C. 520 ; 1930 B. 447 ; 35 C.W.N. 705. The section cannot be held to cover the case of a person dealing with the firm, for the first time, after a change from its original constitution, so as to make the partner, who had already retired liable. Such a person has had no dealings with the "firm" originally constituted at all, and cannot be said to be a person having dealings with a firm, who will not be affected by any subsequent dissolution, of which no public notice has been given, unless

46. On the dissolution of a firm every partner or his representative is entitled, as against all the other partners or their representatives, to have the property of the firm applied in payment of the debts and liabilities of the firm, and to have the surplus distributed among the partners or their representatives according to their rights.

Right of partners to have business wound up after dissolution.

47. After the dissolution of a firm the authority of each partner to bind the firm, and the other mutual rights and obligations of the partners, continue notwithstanding the dissolution, so far as may be necessary to wind up the affairs of the firm and to complete transactions begun but unfinished at the time of the dissolution, but not otherwise:

Continuing authority of partners for purposes of winding up.

Provided that the firm is in no case bound by the acts of a partner who has been adjudicated insolvent; but this proviso does not affect the liability of any person who has after the adjudication represented himself or knowingly permitted himself to be represented as a partner of the insolvent.

This section applies not only to persons who dealt with the firm before the dissolution, but also to persons dealing with the firm after the dissolution or change of partners. 53 C. 214=1926 C. 271=91 I.C. 824. See also 1928 S. 121=110 I.C. 730; 87 I.C. 663; 109 I. Sec. 46: PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION.—The right is available, and may be enforced not only against the partnership assets and the other partners, but also against all persons claiming through them in respect of their interests as partners, for example, assignees, personal representatives, trustees in bankruptcy, or judgment-creditors, except purchasers or pledgees of specific assets of the partnership who might reasonably suppose that all the partnership debts had been paid or barred by lapse of time, or who otherwise deal with the surviving or continuing partner in good faith. See 55 M.L.J. 404=1930 M. 393 This lien of the partner is subject to valid rights of a bona fide purchaser for value from surviving partners of specific property belonging to the firm. 57 M.L.J. 404=1930 M. 393 (396). If it is necessary to examine the account books of the firm from an earlier date in order to discover what credits are still due to the partnership, the examination of these accounts would not be barred out by the plaintiff's acceptance of the existing accounts as correct. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 178=1938 Lah. 758. A suit to enforce the right provided in Sec. 46 is generally called a suit for an account, which means an account taken by a Court. The right is not affected by the fact that the retiring partner may have already inspected the accounts of the firm. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 178=40 P.L.R. 753=1938 Lah. 758.

Sec. 47.—This section follows Sec. 38 of the English Partnership Act. As to the construction and scope of section, see 38 Bom.L.R. 1058.

PRINCIPLE OF THE SECTION.—If the dissolution be caused by death or bankruptcy of a partner, this authority to wind up the concern devolves on the surviving or solvent partners alone, to the exclusion of the personal representatives, or trustee in bankruptcy, of the deceased or bankrupt partner. 9 I. C. 450=4 Bur.L.T. 10. Both Sec. 263 of the Contract Act and S. 47 of the Partnership Act refer to the mutual rights and obligations of the partners after dissolution the only distinction between the two sections being that instead of the words "the rights and obligations of the partners" in S. 263, there is, in S. 47 of the Partnership Act, a fuller expression, viz, "the authority of each partner to bind the firm, and the other mutual rights and obligations of the partners." Though the dissolution of a firm causes a dissolution of the partnership between the partners, the partnership still subsists, but merely for the purpose of winding up its business and adjusting the rights of the partners inter se, and for this purpose the authority of the partners to bind the firm, and all their other mutual rights and obligations, continue notwithstanding the dissolution. The power of each partner, however, extends only so far as it is necessary to wind up the affairs of the firm and to complete transactions already begun. He can recover paymet of a debt due to the firm and effectually release the debtor, and also give a valid receipt for the debt, provided it is not done in fraud of his co-partners or in collusion with the debtor. A partner can also accept a bill of exchange for a debt, but he has no authority to acknowledge a debt, or by his act or admission to involve his co-partners in any new legal liability. The act or dealing in order to be binding on the co-partners, must be an act necessary in the winding up of the partnership. Only the winding up can be proceeded with after dissolution, and no other business can be carried on in the name of the firm. 39 Bom.L.R. 1058=1937 Bom. 81.

Mode of settlement of accounts between partners.

48. In settling the accounts of a firm after dissolution, the following rules shall, subject to agreement by the partners, be observed:—

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—A partner can give a valid discharge of a debt due to the partnership after its dissolution. 52 I.C. 456. (See also 36 M. 544; 34 M.L.J. 41, Foll.) An individual partner of a firm which has been dissolved has authority to assign a decree obtained by the firm. Realising what is due under the decree would come under winding up the affairs of the firm. 1936 A.M.L.J. 79. The surviving partners can release a debt due to the firm, after dissolution by the death of one partner. 41 M. 446=34 M.L.J. 41=44 I.C. 466. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 79. The question whether the legal personal representatives of a deceased partner were bound by a reference to arbitration by the surviving partners in relation to a partnership contract is not a pure question of law to be decided without reference to the facts of the case. 27 M.L.J. 192=24 I.C. 307 (P.C.). One of two partners dying—Surviving partners to wind up business, and do acts necessary therefor, such as realising assets, paying off debts and fulfilling obligations. 57 M.L.J. 404=1930 M. 393=126 I.C. 97. Surviving partners are entitled to dispose of the property of the firm in connection with winding up—Sale otherwise than in connection with the winding up gives no title to the alienee. 57 M.L.J. 404=1930 M. 393. See also 9 I.C. 450. A partner can validly sign and verify a plaint on behalf of the firm, though dissolved. As to the powers of the manager, see 1930 B. 236=125 I.C. 442, cited under S. 45, supra. Where there is a receiver in existence winding up the affairs of the firm under the Court, and he has been given full powers to collect all outstandings and to pay debts and to distribute the surplus, it is not possible for the managing partner of the firm to refer to arbitration a question as to whether the firm owes anything to any one. 92 I.C 705. It is not competent to a partner of a dissolved firm to enter into a havala transaction in respect of a debt due to the firm, and thereby transfer the credit of an amount due to the firm by one person to another thereby making the latter the debtor of the firm instead of the former. 38 Bom. L.R. 1058. One of the partners of a firm has no power to transfer any asset of the firm after its dissolution. 175 I.C. 567=1937 Lah. 934.

Sec. 48.—This is the "accounting" section and is most important. It is copied with only very slight verbal alterations, from S. 44 of the English Partnership Act and requires little explanation. That section has stood with success the incessant and vigilant scrutiny of lawyers, accountants and businessmen in England for nearly forty years, and may safely be followed. (Report of the Select Committee.)

ASSETS TO BE DISTRIBUTED: SUB-CL. (b).—On the dissolution of the partnership and in the absence of any contract to the contrary, every partner has a right to have all the partnership property sold and to have the proceeds of the sale after discharging all the partnership debts and liabilities divided among all the partners according to their respective shares. 89 I.C. 577=1926 S. 49. Outstandings due to the firm may in distributing the assets of the firm, be assigned to individual partners. Outstandings assigned to partners on dissolution—Partner entitled to use of firm name in collection thereof, unless risk of causing liability to others exists. Injunction against such use of name improper. 1931 R. 74. When partnership is dissolved and accounts are settled, a partner must have some remedy at law to enforce the manner of settlement agreed upon. 113 I. C. 669=1928 M. 733. No partner has on dissolution a right to insist that any particular item of the partnership property shall remain unsold and that it should be either divided in specie are allotted to him at an arbitrary value. 89 I.C. 577=1926 S. 49. Ordinarily a partner is not entitled to partial accounts; before such a suit can be instituted a special ground must be made out. If he wants an account of partnership dealings he must sue for a general account. 166 I.C. 953=1937 Pat. 55. Although after dissolution, the managing partner has, for purposes of winding up, a right to put up items of property to sale, yet the Court can go into propriety of alienations if they are suspicious. 52 M. 509=56 M.L.J. 776=1929 M. 627. A firm is not entitled to commission in respect of goods purchased on its own behalf. 36 I.C. 210. Profits made by sale of goods ordered before dissolution, and paid for by firm's money, are divisible among partners, though goods were received and sold subsequently. 1923 O. 23=74 I.C. 324. If, on a dissolution of partnership, there is an amicable settlement of accounts and if items not included in the settlement are received later on, they are to be divided between all the partners. 1929 P. C. 184=116 I.C. 727 (P.C.). In all cases where, after the dissolution and complete winding up of partnership, an asset which had not been taken into account fell in, it ought to be divided between the expartners or their representatives according to their shares in the former partnership. 45 M. 378=49 I.A. 181=43 M.L.J. 305 (P.C.).

PARTNRRSHIP SUIT—PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE—FRAME OF SUIT—An action does not lie, by one partner against the other, for an account during the pendency of the partnership, without asking for its dissolution. 9 A. 120. But a departure from this general rule may be made (a) Losses including deficiencies of capital, shall be paid first out of profits, next out of capital, and, lastly, if necessary, by the partners individually in the proportions in which they were entitled to share profits.

NOTES.

in certain special circumstances which will depend upon the facts of each case. 1 A.L.J. 94. See also 2 M.H.C.R. 28. The rule is that as between partners ordinarily, no suit will lie except one for general account. 101 I.C. 390 =1927 M. 650. A particular item or claim should not be made the subject of a distinct suit. 2 N.W.P. 90. So, a partner cannot sue for money lent by him to his firm, as the advance is only one item in the partnership accounts. 25 B. 606 (612). See also 21 W.R. 300 (301). A partner cannot sue his co-partner for his share of profits, which accrued up to a particular time. He must, if he desires relief, sue for an account. 16 W.R. 141 (142). Where a partner withholds the annual profits of a concern from a firm, the partner excluded from the profits may bring a suit for an account and for his share of the profits without claiming dissolution: 66 I.C. 478=2 L. 351=1922 L. 195. When there has been a partnership, there can be no suit for the recovery of money due until it is known what amount is due. 117 I.C. 824= 1929 A. 236. Unless the claim by a partner to recover a sum of money from the other partners in respect of a transaction of the partnership forms part of the inquiry in the action for winding up the partnership, it is not sustainable, no suit will lie therefore after limitation has expired for a suit for an account. 85 I.C. 991 = 43 M. 432=47 M.L.J. 829. No suit lies by one partner against another for damages for breach of certain covenants in the partnership deed. In such cases the proper course is to bring a suit for general accounts and debit the defaulting partner with any loss that might have been incurred by his action, in the general account. 101 I.C. 390=1927 M. 650. When the suit only seeks to compel the partners to discharge the obligation undertaken by them under the agreement of partnership, e.g., to render accounts annually, the Courts will not be justified in refusing relief for the simple reason that no dissolution had been prayed for or that their mutual relations should be settled without the intervention of Court. 141 I.C. 277 (2)=1933 N. 127. The plaintiff suing only for accounts during the currency of the partnership has got to allege special grounds for seeking that relief alone and the defendant should have an opportunity of showing cause against it. 54 M. 671=1931 M. 300=60 M.L. J. 315. See also 88 I.C. 153=1925 M. 737=48 M.L.J. 444. A suit will lie between partners, without dissolution, for rescission of a contract entered into between them and for damages on the ground of false representation. 130 I. C. 644=1931 L. 390. So also when advances are made by one partner to another partner, in respect of what he is to contribute to the joint capital. 18 M. 134. See also 97 I.C. 757 =1927 M. 68; 1925 M. 737=48 M.L.J. 444; or when two partners borrow from a bank on their joint promissory note and apply the money to a partnership concern, and one of the partners is compelled to pay more than his share of the debt. 18 M. 134. The liability in respect of advances made by one partner to another, though made for the purpose of the acquisition of his share in the partnership property, is a personal one, and not being a debt of the partnership, it could not be recovered from the partnership property. The creditor partner is in no better position than the other ordinary creditors of the debtor partner, and he is not entitled to any priority over the other creditors. 49 L.W. 126=41 Bom.L.R. 663=1938 P.C. 277 (P.C.). A suit to recover an amount advanced in pursuance of a partnership agreement is not maintainable without suing for a general account, where the agreement came into force on the date on which it was executed. It is immaterial that the partnership business did not actually commence. 39 P.L.R. 896=1938 Lah. 43. If the amount paid up by one partner was a liability of the partnership, then the mere fact of his having been compelled to pay the whole of the partnership debt would not entitle him to sue his co-partners or any of them for contribution, in the absence of any special circumstance, though he would be entitled to charge the sum paid in the partnership account. 20 C. 262 (264). See also 5 Bom.L.R. 912 (913) =28 B. 179; 33 M.L.J. 509=43 I.C. 217. If, on the other hand, the liability was not a joint liability of the whole partnership, but a joint liability only of himself and some of the other partners, a separate suit would lie in that case. 26 C. 262 (264). See also 12 B.H.C.R. 97. A partner of a firm to whom the other partners have executed a promissory note as a result of the adjustment of a part of the partnership account can maintain an independent suit on the promissory note without being obliged to bring a general suit for accounts of the partnership. 41 Bom.L.R. 1263=1940 Bom. 54. After dissolution, until the accounts of the partnership are completely settled, individual partners cannot sue for their share of any separate part of the partnership assets. Such suit will lie if the partnership has been completely wound up and the asset has become available to the partnership thereafter. 178 I.C. 53=1938 Lah. 259. Where, in an agreement, every partner is at liberty to borrow money on his individual credit and apply the same for the benefit of the business, the fact that such money is applied to the partnership business does not render it an item in the partnership business, so as to preclude a partner, who had borrowed money and used it in the business, from maintaining a suit for contribution against the other partners. 26 C. 254. It will be for the Court to determine under what circumstances it will be equitable to order a partial account, having regard to the rights of the parties under the contract. There is no rule of law now in force that a partial account can be ordered only under exceptional circumstances. 66 I.C. 478=2 L. 351. See also 20 N.L.J. 196.

PARTIES.—In a suit for accounts of the partnership on the death of a partner, all the representatives of the deceased partner should join. S. 7 of the Limitation Act applies to the case. 33 I.C. 564. In a suit about the partnership, the purchaser of the interest of a partner is properly joined as a defendant. 4 A. 437. Where in a suit for partnership accounts, a necessary party defendant has been omitted, the suit will be dismissed, if such party is afterwards added, at a time when the suit is barred as against him. 14 C. 791. In a suit for contribution after dissolution, all partners are necessary parties—Plaintiff liable to account should give credit for defendant's share of profits. 42 P.L.R. 1917=35 I.C. 910. Where in a suit for dissolution of a partnership and an account, the accounting party alleges that certain sums of money due to the firm had been set-off against cross-claims made against, the firm, he must establish the validity of the claims against the firm so as to show the propriety of his action in compromising in respect of them. 1937 O.W.N. 991. See also 1936 Lah. 831.

FORUM.—A suit for partnership accounts may be filed at the place where the contract of partnership is entered into (41 A. 513=50 I. C. 156); or where the business of partnership is carried on. 1916 P.R. 42=33 I.C. 953; 50 M.L.J. 298=92 I.C. 915; 132 I.C. 218=1931 L. 673.

LIMITATION.— A suit for an account of partnership, dissolved more than three years before the suit, is barred by limitation, even if the instrument of partition was registered. 22 M. 14; 57 M. 378=1934 M. 162=66 M.L.J. 625; 153 I.C. 969=1935 L. 209. See also 25 M. 26 (where plaintiff was a minor).

CONSIDERATIONS IN SETTLEMENT OF ACCOUNTS. —The facts that certain partners deliberately withheld their due services under the contract should be taken into consideration in a suit for accounts of the partnership. 57 I.C. 713=1921 P.C. 91=39 M.L.J. 257 (P.C.). Illegal payments made by the partners by way of bribes for the purpose of securing contracts for the partnership cannot be taken into account in taking accounts and ascertaining the shares of profits in the partnership. If any partner has been foolish enough to give a bribe in the hope that his partner would bear his share of the expenditure, he cannot use the Court to recover that share. Therefore items of expenditure shown to be for an unlawful purpose should be excluded in taking accounts. 49 L. W. 705=1939 Mad. 670=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 905. In a suit for accounts of a dissolved partnership there is no law that an enquiry to determine in whose possession the account books are, must be held before the passing of a preliminary decree, though normally that should be the practice. The person in whose possession the books are and who has kept the accounts and knows all about them is entitled to file a suit for accounts. Normally there is no accounting party in such a suit, though if a partner withholds the books the Court may draw an inference against him when finally settling the accounts. 174 I.C. 837=1937 Lah. 312. See also 1936 Lah. 146=161 I.C. 669. Generally one partner cannot charge his co-partners with any sums in the shape of salary or commission, but where a pardanashin lady is a partner and the responsibility is thrown upon other partners, allowance should be made in favour of other partners. 16 C.W.N. 299=13 I.C. 23. In an action to dissolve and wind up the affairs of partnership, until the accounts have been taken, it is impossible to say what, if anything, is due from any partner or partners; interest, therefore, should only be allowed to the plaintiffs from the date of final decree by which amount (if any) is found to be due from the defendants to the plaintiffs and not from the date of plaint: 1930 P.C. 185=57 I.A. 245=58 C. 208=59 M.L.J. 121 (P.C.). See also 39 P.L.R. 466=1937 Lah. 254. The principle of the common law, which is applicable to a partnership to which neither S. 13 (c) of the Partnership Act nor the English Law of partnership applies, is that any agreed interest on the capital brought in by a partner into the business is, unless the contrary is clearly expressed, a payment in lieu, or on account, of profits, and accordingly chargeable to profits only. 38 Bom. L.R. 1058=1937 Bom. 81. See also 1941 N.L. J. 657. If a partner makes an advance to the partnership on a promissory note, he can recover it from his partners without general accounts of the partnership being taken. It is not correct to say that no suit could lie on the note if the parties had partnership dealings. 1938 A.M.L.J. 11. Partners are not entitled to interest on their respective capitals unless there is some agreement, express or implied, to that effect. Such an agreement may be inferred if they have themselves been in the habit of charging such interest in their accounts. Where interest on capital is payable, the interest stops at the date of dissolution unless otherwise agreed. An agreement for payment of such interest can also be implied from the usage of their trade or from the practice of their firm. 31 Bom.L.R. 1058=1937 Bom. 81. See also 1941 N.L.J. 657; 1937 Sind 103; 1938 Mad. 38; 15 Mys.L.J. 3. In the case of a partnership which is wound up, the date on which the winding up was completed is the proper date for calculating the conversion of foreign currency into British Indian currency. 52 M. 509=1929 M. 627=56 M.L.J. 676. Where, in a suit for dissolution of partnership, the plaintiff, who is appointed as receiver, appropriated a large amount of partnership amount to his own use, without sanction from the Court, held, the proper order to pass is one charging the plaintiff with the sums withdrawn by him with interest from the dates of withdrawal. 92 I.C. 274= 1925 P.C. 257.

PROCEDURE IN SUIT.—So far as the suit was concerned, the partnership account should be adjusted between all the parties, irrespective of any private arrangements between two or more of them inter se. 1930 L. 655. Partnership accounts should be taken from commencement of partnership, unless later adjustment is proved. Mere fact that regular staff kept such accounts which were open to partners' inspection is not sufficient proof of final settlement. 33 C.W.N. 1104=1930 C. 154. Where a new partnership

(b) The assets of the firm, including any sums contributed by the partners to make up deficiencies of capital, shall be applied in the following manner and order:—

(i) in paying the debts of the firm to third parties;

(ii) in paying to each partner rateably what is due to him from the firm for advances as distinguished from capital;

(iii) in paying to each partner rateably what is due to him on account of capital; and

(iv) the residue, if any, shall be divided among the partners in the proportions in which they were entitled to share profits.

based on the old partnership is revived or reconstituted, by the consent of all the partners and their legal representatives, for the purpose of accounts, it is permissible to go into the accounts of the old partnership on the basis of which the new one is constituted. 102 I.C. 694=1927 L. 249. See also 1924 M. 708=46 M.L.J. 503. In such cases, the Limitation Act is no bar to taking the accounts of the new partnership by going into the accounts of the old partnership, which have been carried on into the new partnership without interruption or settlement. 25 M. 26 (31, 32). See also 1929 S. 930=118 I. C. 741. All questions arising between the partners out of the partnership business must be disposed of in the winding-up suit. 8 B.H. C. (O.C.J.) 209. See also 12 B.H.C. 165; 70 I. C. 833=1923 A. 17. (Partnership of patent right). In a dissolution of partnership and accounts, either the partnership accounts should be taken as they stand, or if any items are objected to by the other side as false, the parties should be given an opportunity of proving the accounts. It is not equitable to reject certain items without giving an opportunity of proving them. 7 N.L.J. 212=1925 N. 183. Where plaintiff alleges certain proportion of shares, the defendant while admitting partnership alleges different proportion, it is incumbent on the Courts to weigh carefully the evidence led by both sides and to give a decision as far as possible according to the weight of that evidence. 8 L. 241=1927 L. 485. If a partner has kept accounts relating to the partnership in private books of his own, he must produce such books, for he should have kept his private accounts elsewhere, if he did not want them to be seen. After a dissolution, if books relate to the accounts which have to be taken, they must be produced. 25 S.L.R. 313=1928 S. 133. A suit by a sub-partner for an account of the partnership is maintainable against his partner and he must accept the accounts in the main partnership as settled between the partners of that partnership unless mala fides or mistake has been shown. 60 I.C. 967=14 S.L.R. 193. Ordinarily in a suit for settlement of account of a dissolved partnership and of any sub-partnership in which there are additional partners, the act or series of acts which give rise to relief for settlement of accounts of the main partnership are not the same as those which give rise to the relief for settlement of accounts of the sub-partnership. 90 I.C. 973=1926 S. 66. As to suit for accounts in the case of continuance of partnership business after death of partner, see 57 M. 378=1934 M. 162=66 M.L.J. 625.

COSTS OF PARTNERSHIP SUIT.—The costs of partnership suits should generally be paid out of the assets of the partnership, or in default of assets by the partners in proportion to their respective shares. 7 C. 428. See also 28 Bom. L.R. 386=1926 B. 289. Once the rights and liabilities of partners are fixed in the preliminary decree for accounts, they cannot be varried by a Judge in proceedings taken thereafter. 169 I.C. 635=1937 Sind. 103.

EXECUTION OF DECREE.—A decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership is, for the purposes of execution, to be regarded as a money decree. It can be attached, but cannot be sold. 27 B. 556=5 Bom.L.R. 529. See also 43 C.W.N. 997. When once the decree dissolving the partnership is passed, and a receiver is appointed to take the account of the partnership and pay its debts, the creditors of the partnership should not execute his decree against any of the partners, but must go to the Court, which has appointed the receiver, and take its directions. 5 Bom.L. R. 912 (914)=28 Bom. 179. A decree obtained against a partnership can be executed against a partner not only to the extent of the assets of the partnership in his possession but also against the other properties which he may own, unless the partner is able to prove that for some reasons his liability is limited to the extent of the assets of the firm in his hand. 43 P.L.R. J. & K. 153. Where partnership funds are in the hands of the Court receiver, a Court of equity will not allow one of the whole body of creditors to gain priority over the remainder, by the simple expedient of attaching money in Court's hands. 16 B. 575.

RECEIVER.—The ordinary rule that no party is appointed as receiver except by consent has been departed from only in exceptional cases, as for instance, in a case of partnership where there are no allegations of fraud and where the carrying on of the business depends on the personal credit of one of the members of the firm. 148 I.C. 459=1934 C. 444. Court does not take upon itself the management of a partnership except as incidental to winding up. 1934 Cal. 444.

Sec. 49.—This section reproduces S. 262 of the Indian Contract Act.

PROPERTY OF THE FIRM.—The property of the firm affected by this section is that property which belonged to the firm at the time of its dissolu-debts due from any partner, the property of the firm shall be applied in the first instance in payment of the debts of the firm, and, if there is any surplus, then the share of each partner shall be applied in payment of his separate debts or paid to him. The separate property of any partner shall be applied first in the payment of his separate debts, and the surplus (if any) in the payment of the debts of the firm.

Personal profits earned after dissolution.

50. Subject to contract between the partners, the provisions of clause (a) of section 16 shall apply to transactions by any surviving partner or by the representatives of a deceased partner, undertaken after the firm is dissolved on account of the death of a partner and before its affairs have been completely wound up:

Provided that where any partner or his representative has bought the good will of the firm, nothing in this section shall affect his right to use the firm name.

Return of premium on premature dissolution.

51. Where a partner has paid a premium on entering into partnership for a fixed term, and the firm is dissolved before the expiration of that term otherwise than by the death of a partner, he shall be entitled to repayment of the premium or of such part thereof as may be reasonable, regard being had to the tion. It includes all that was, at the commencement of the partnership, thrown into the common stock, and whatever has, during its continuance, by means thereof, been added to it. (See S. 14, supra.) Separate property is that in which the partners are separately interested at the time of the dissolution. Property, therefore, which has been acquired in the partnership after its dissolution, is not to be treated as partnership property; and that which, though originally partnership property has, by virtue of a bona fide agreement, been converted into separate property before the dissolution, cannot be claimed by joint-creditors as partnership property. Separate property may similarly be converted into joint property; but the agreement by which the conversion is effected must, in any case, be completely executed and must be made in good faith. (Ex parte Owen, 4 D. & Sm., 351; Ex parte Ruffin, 6 Ves., 119; 5 R.R. 237.) See also 64 I.C. 719=1922 N. 70.

PARTNERS' LIEN.—Although partnership property has annexed to it a paramount liability for partnership debts, yet there is nothing in law which prevents partners from disposing of it as they like or allowing it to be treated as the sole property of one partner and obliges them to preserve it as partnership property for the benefit of the creditors of the partnership. Any disposition of the property by the agreement of the partners is effective unless made with a view to defraud the creditors; and the creditor is not entitled to be consulted in the matter. 64 I.C. 719=18 N.L.R. 186=1922 N. 70. See also 40 A. 446=45 I.C. 31=16 A.L.J. 305. Money or property given away does not continue to be the assets of the firm when it is given over to a third party. 54 C. 687=1927 C. 836. Debt by one partner to another—Money advanced to acquire share in partnership property—Lien on debtor partner's share. 15 L. 471=1934 L. 336.

Sec. 50.—This section corresponds to sub-s. (2) of S. 29 of the English Act, with necessary verbal changes. (Report of Select Committee.) N.B.—In Ss. 50 and 53 the second Select Committee have inserted a proviso which will protect the right of a partner who has brought the goodwill of the firm (Report of Second Select Committee.) After dissolution the relationship between surviving and former partner is fiduciary. 57 M.L.J. 404=1930 M. 393. In the absence of any term agreed upon by the parties, any partner may determine the partnership at any time on giving notice of intention to do so. The dissolution takes places as from the date of the communication of the notice. If persons intending to retire from the partnership business continue to take things from the business and to associate otherwise with its works, a presumption may be drawn in favour of the continuance of the partnership. The accounts on a dissolution of partnership have to be taken for the benefit of all the partners concerned and there must be a full enquiry into them irrespective of the relief sought for in the plaint. If a partner without the permission of the other partner carries on a competing business with the firm, he must account for and pay over to the firm all profits made by him in such business and also make compensation to the firm for any loss occasioned thereby. The rule is not however applicable to a different business though the same knowledge and information may be useful in both. 67 I.C. 10=34 C.L.J. 405. After dissolution no ex-partner has power to do any act to bind another ex-partner. 50 M.L.J. 67=1926 M 114.

terms upon which he became a partner, and to the length of time during which he was a partner, unless—

(a) the dissolution is mainly due to his own misconduct, or

(b) the dissolution is in pursuance of an agreement containing no provision for the return of the premium or any part of it.

Rights where partnership contract is rescinded for fraud or misrepresentation.

52. Where a contract creating partnership is rescinded on the ground of the fraud or misrepresentation of any of the parties thereto, the party entitled to rescind is, without prejudice to any other right, entitled—

(a) to a lien on, or a right of retention of, the surplus of the assets of the firm remaining after the debts of the firm have been paid, for any sum paid by him for the purchase of a share in the firm and for any capital contributed by him;

(b) to rank as a creditor of the firm in respect of any payment made by him towards the debts of the firm; and

(c) to be indemnified by the partner or partners guilty of the fraud or misrepresentation against all the debts of the firm.

Right to restrain from use of firm name or firm property.

53. After a firm is dissolved, every partner or his representative may, in the absence of a contract between the partners to the contrary, restrain any other partner or his representative from carrying on a similar business in the firm name or from using any of the property of the firm for his own benefit, until the affairs of the firm have been completely wound up:

Provided that where any partner or his representative has bought the goodwill of the firm, nothing in this section shall affect his right to use the firm name.

Agreements in restraint of trade.

54. Partners may, upon or in anticipation of the dissolution of the firm, make an agreement that some or all of them will not carry on a business similar to that of the firm within a specified period or within specified local limits; and notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such agreement shall be valid if the restrictions imposed are reasonable.

NOTES.

Sec. 52.—This corresponds with S. 41 of the English partnership Act with a few verbal changes.

PRINCIPLE OF SECTION.—An agreement entered into on a dissolution will be set aside if it can be shown to have been based upon error or to have been tainted with fraud, whether in the shape of positive misrepresentation or of concealment of truth. 123 I.C. 596=1930 M. 141. The utmost good faith is required in dealings between working and sleeping partners in matters relating to the partnership accounts. 1930 M. 141.

Sec. 54.—This section reproduces the second exception to S. 27 of the Contract Act, with amendments to assimilate it to S. 36 (2) (See also notes under Ss. 36 and 55).

GOODWILL OF THE FIRM.—The terms "partnership assets" must be deemed to include the goodwill of the business, for the plaintiff is entitled to a share in the goodwill as well as to a share in the actual assets of the business. 52 M. 772=1929 M. 456=50 M.L.J. 657. See also 43 I.C. 661. In a suit for dissolution of partnership while taking accounts the goodwill of the partnership firm should be included in the assets and should be brought into the common account. 1930 A.L.J. 868=34 C.W. N. 737=1930 P.C. 185 (P.C.).

DEFINITION.—The term "goodwill" has been defined as "the expectation of continued public patronage."

The goodwill of a business means every affirmative advantage, as contrasted with negative advantage that has been acquired in carrying on the business, whether connected with or carrying with it the benefit of its own name or style or everything connected with or carrying with it the benefit of the business. 23 S.L.R. 471=1929 S. 85.

VALUE OF GOODWILL.—The value of the goodwill of a dissolved partnership is considerably decreased by the rule laid down in the recent case of Treqo v. Hunt, (1896) A.C. 7, namely, that the sale of the good-will does not prevent the partners from carrying on a competing business with the purchaser. (See sub-S. 2.) It is true that the quondam partners may be restrained by injunction from soliciting

55. (1) In settling the accounts of a firm after dissolution, the goodwill shall, subject to contract between the partners, be included in the assets, and it may be sold either separately or along with other property of the firm.

Sale of goodwill after dissolution.

(2) Where the goodwill of a firm is sold after dissolution, a partner may carry on a business competing with that of the buyer and he may advertise such business, but, subject to agreement between him and the buyer, he may not—

Rights of buyer and seller of goodwill.

(a) use the firm name,

(b) represent himself as carrying on the business of the firm,

(c) solicit the custom of persons who were dealing with the firm before its dissolution.

(3) Any partner may, upon the sale of the goodwill of a firm, make an agreement with the buyer that such partner will not carry on any business similar to that of the firm within a specified period or within specified local limits, and, notwithstanding anything contained in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, such agreement shall be valid if the restrictions imposed are reasonable.

any person who was a customer of the old firm [sub-s. 2, Cl. (c)] or from representing themselves as continuing the old business [sub-s. 2, Cl. (b)] or from using the firm name [sub-s. 2, Cl. (a).] Still, the mere fact that they may compete is a serious factor in the case, and cannot fail to affect the saleable value of the firm's goodwill. See 110 I.C. 639=1929 S. 85. The effect of possible or probable competition should be one of the main determining factors in the valuation of the goodwill. 23 S.L.R. 471=1929 S. 85.

Sec. 58. Where a suit is brought by a partnership firm, which has not been registered under S. 58, Partnership Act, a plea that the suit by it is not maintainable can be raised even after a written statement is filed by the defendant (52 I.A. 126, Rel. on.) 161 I.C. 741=1936 C. 133. (3) A firm name shall not contain any of the following words namely:—

"Crown," "Emperor," "Empress," "Empire," "Imperial," "King," "Queen," "Royal," or words expressing or implying the sanction, approval or patronage of the Crown or [1][the Central Government or any Provincial Government or the Crown Representative] except when the [2][Provincial Government] signifies [2][its] consent to the use of such words as part of the firm name by order in writing [3][* * *].

60. (1) When an alteration is made in the firm name or in the location of the principal place of business of a registered firm, a statement may be sent to the Registrar accompanied by the prescribed fee specifying the alteration, and signed and verified in the manner required under section 58.

(2) When the Registrar is satisfied that the provisions of sub-section (1) have been duly complied with, he shall amend the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms in accordance with the statement, and shall file it along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 59.

Noting of closing and opening of branches.

61. When a registered firm discontinues business at any place or begins to carry on business at any place, such place not being its principal place of business, any partner or agent of the firm may send intimation thereof to the Registrar, who shall make a note of such intimation in the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms, and shall file the intimation along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 59.

Noting of changes in names and addresses of partners.

62. When any partner in a registered firm alters his name or permanent address, an intimation of the alteration may be sent by any partner or agent of the firm to the Registrar, who shall deal with it in the manner provided in section 61.

NOTES.

Sec. 59.—S. 59 contemplates that when a firm has been registered, in the case of a dissolution of the firm by death of a partner, notwithstanding such death the firm should be treated as still registered for the purpose of the Act. The surviving partners whose names are n the register can sue in the name and on behalf of the firm without fresh registration after the death of the other partner. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 715=42 Bom.L.R. 497=1940 Bom. 257. The mere fact that a joint Hindu family trading firm gets itself registered under the Partnership Act in the name of some of the members of the family does not, by itself and without more, destroy its character as such. 42 P.L.R. 418=1940 Lah. 425.

Secs. 59 and 68—EFFECT OF REGISTRATION —INDEPENDENT PROOF OF MEMBERSHIP.—The registration of a firm raises a presumption that the parties shown as members of the firm and registered as such are actually members of it; but it is no doubt a rebuttable presumption. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, no further proof is necessary as to membership, nor is it necessary to prove that the application for registration bore the signature of the member concerned. 194 I.C. 168=16 Luck. 727=1941 Oudh 376.

Recording of changes in and dissolution of a firm.

63. (1) When a change occurs in the constitution of a registered firm, any incoming, continuing or outgoing partner, and when a registered firm is dissolved, any person who was a partner immediately before the dissolution, or the agent of any such partner or person specially authorized in this behalf, may give notice to the Registrar of such change or dissolution, specifying the date thereof; and the Registrar shall make a record of the notice in the entry relating to the firm in the Register of Firms, and shall file the notice along with the statement relating to the firm filed under section 59.

Recording of withdrawal of a minor.

(2) When a minor who has been admitted to the benefits of partnership in a firm attains majority and elects to become or not to become a partner, and the firm is then a registered firm, he, or his agent specially authorized in this behalf, may give notice to the Registrar that he has or has not become a partner, and the Registrar shall deal with the notice in the manner provided in sub-section (1).

Rectification of mistakes.

64. (1) The Registrar shall have power at all times to rectify any mistake in order to bring the entry in the Register of Firms relating to any firm into conformity with the documents relating to that firm filed under this Chapter.

(2) On application made by all the parties who have signed any document relating to a firm filed under this Chapter, the Registrar may rectify any mistake in such document or in the record or note thereof made in the Register of Firms.

Amendment of Register by order of Court.

65. A Court deciding any matter relating to a registered firm may direct that the Registrar shall make any amendment in the entry in the Register of Firms relating to such firm which is consequential upon its decision; and the Registrar shall amend the entry accordingly.

Inspection of Register and filed documents.

66. (1) The Register of Firms shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of such fee as may be prescribed.

(2) All statements, notices and intimations filed under this Chapter shall be open to inspection, subject to such conditions and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed.

Grant of copies.

67. The Registrar shall on application furnish to any person, on payment of such fee as may be prescribed, a copy, certified under his hand, of any entry or portion thereof in the Register of Firms.

Rules of evidence.

68. (1) Any statement, intimation or notice recorded or noted in the Register of Firms shall, as against any person by whom or on whose behalf such statement, intimation or notice was signed, be conclusive proof of any fact therein stated.

(2) A certified copy of an entry relating to a firm in the Register of Firms may be produced in proof of the fact of the registration of such firm, and of the contents of any statement, intimation or notice recorded or noted therein.

NOTES.

Sec. 68 : PRODUCTION OF CERTIFICATE—EFFECT.—It is impossible to permit a litigant to tender in evidence such a document as is referred to in S. 68 and then to say that the registration was a nullity because the firm had been dissolved long before. The Act appears to expressly preclude any contention by those making statements which find their way on to the Registrar of firms that such statements can be mistaken. 1940 Rang. L.R. 552=1940 Rang. 294. Entry in register as to place of business —Evidentiary value. See I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 199=1940 Cal. 134.

69. (1) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by this Act shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of any person suing as a partner in a firm against the firm or any person alleged to be or to have been a partner in the firm unless the firm is registered and the person suing is or has been shown in the Register of Firms as a partner in the firm.

Effect of non-registration.

NOTES.

Sec. 69: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY.—The language of sub-Ss. (1) and (2) of S. 69 is wide enough to cover suits relating to a dissolved firm. S. 69 (1) covers a suit by a plaintiff suing in respect of a right vested in him or acquired by him as a partner in a firm, and it is not essential that the firm should be actually in existence at the date of the institution of the suit. 39 Bom.L.R. 260 ; 1940 Nag. 78; 1937 Bom. 225. Though Berar is not in British India, this Act is made applicable to it by notification. 1937 Nag. 134. As to application of this section to a suit by a money-lending firm carrying on business at a place in Berar, see 1937 Nag. 134. The partnership Act does nowhere enjoin registration. It is optional and not obligatory. There is no implied obligation on the partners to concur in effecting registration, in a contract of partnership. Even if there is such an obligation, then the obligation would arise out of the partnership agreement (i.e.) out of a contract, and the rights flowing from the obligation, of a partner to compel his co-partners to effect registration would be a "right arising from a contract", and a suit to enforce such a right brought by one partner against the other partners of an unregistered firm is expressly barred by the provisions of S. 69 (1). In such a case the proper and indeed the only available remedy is a suit for dissolution and not a suit for a mandatory injunction. 1941 Rang.L.R. 219=1941 Rang. 196.

SUITS BY UNREGISTERED FIRM.—Provisionr of the section are imperative. A plaint filed by an unregistered firm cannot be validated by subsequent registration and amendment of plaint 44 L.W. 648=165 I.C. 939 (2)=1936 M. 991=71 M.L.J. 663. But see 41 C.W.N. 534, where it was held that where a firm is registered after suit, and the plea in bar of suit is not taken till in the course of arguments, the suit should not be thrown out but should be treated as properly instituted on the day when the firm is registered. The withdrawal of a suit by an unregistered firm is no bar to a fresh suit on the same cause of action after registration of the firm, as the later suit is technically a suit by a different plaintiff. 44 L.W. 247 (1)=164 I.C. 748=1936 M. 697. The object of S. 69 was to make sure that the general policy of the Legislature that all partnerships, should be registered will be carried out; it is not right to hold that the provision contained in S. 69 was really in the nature of "processual" law in the sense in which that term is used in the cases dealing with the principle of retrospective operation of statutes; 1938 M. 688=(1938) 2 M.L. J. 44. S. 69 has to be interpreted strictly and a suit instituted contrary to its provisions is bad and cannot be subsequently validated by compliance with those provisions. The fact that objection to the maintainability of the suit on the score of non-registration is taken late at the stage of arguments is no ground for holding that the suit should be treated as valid at least from the date of compliance with the section. 1938 Mad. 185=(1937) 2 M.L J 717. Though a suit is filed by the individual partners of a firm, in respect of a debt due to the firm the suit is undoubtedly one, on behalf of the firm and S. 69 applies to such a suit,. 1937 A.M.L.J. 86. Under S. 69 two conditions must exist before a suit can be dismissed. The contract must be with an unregistered firm and the person suing to recover the amount must be that firm or another unregistered firm; it is only then, that there can be an objection to the maintainability of the suit. The mere fact that the contract was with an unregistered firm is not sufficient to dismiss a suit if the plaintiff is otherwise competent to maintain it. Therefore the dismissal of a previous suit by an unregistered firm cannot operate as res judicata against the assignee of that firm which is a registerd firm, because even the unregistered firm is competent to maintain another suit for the recovery of the same amount after its registration. 1937 L. 241. S. 69 is not confined either by the general law or by S. 74 to suits in respect of obligations incurred after the coming into force of S. 69, i,e., 1-10-1933, but it applies to all suits filed after that date, though in respect of obligations incurred before that date. The section does not take away any vested rights of the parties, but only enacts a processual rule by stating that prior to bringing a suit a firm must do a certain act, namely, get itself registered. 1938 Mad. 185=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 717. S. 69 prevents a Court from taking cognizance of a suit brought by an unregistered firm, in the saue way a Court shall not take cognizance of a suit barred by limitation; and to hold that because as the result of ignorance or mistake objection was not taken by the defendant in the suit, so the provisions of the law could be flouted, would be to frustrate the intention of the Legislature clearly expressed. Therefore the Judge is right in allowing to be taken or himself taking the objection under S. 69 in appeal for the first time. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 765=1939 Sind 206. Whether S. 69 contains a prohibiiton against the passing of decrees in favour of unregistered partnerships or whether it only contains a prohibition against the filing of suits by unregistered partnerships, see 51 L.W. 683=1940 Mad. 628=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 329 ; see also 40 C.W.N· 1180. Where a suit by a firm has been disposed of on the ground that owing to non-registration the suit is not maintainable, the subsequent registration cannot validate the proceedings, and entitle an appellate Court

(2) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the persons suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firms as partners in the firm.

(3) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) shall apply also to a claim of set-off or other proceeding to enforce a right arising from a contract, but shall not affect :—

to look into the merits of the case. If registration had been done during the pendency of the suit, it might no doubt have legally proceeded from that date unless there was a bar of limitation. 1939 Nag. 301. The law does not require that a plaint by a firm must expressly note that it has been registered. If the defendant opposes the suit on the ground of non-registration of the firm, he must take the objection in his pleas. The plaintiffs cannot be called upon to show at the time of arguments that they are a registered firm and the suit should not then be dismissed on ground of want of proof of registration. 39 P.L.R. 777= 1938 Lah. 96.

A suit instituted in the name of a firm not being a registered firm is not properly constituted and cannot proceed in that form. The Partnership Act has been in force for a very limited time and the Bar as well as business people in outlying districts may not be yet so familiar with its provisions that it would be appropriate to enforce them too rigidly at present in cases where the institution of the suit under the wrong name may have been due to mistake. The plaintiff in such a case should, therefore, be allowed an opportunity to amend his plaint subject to conditions. The amendment can be allowed even at a late stage as it does not amount to an addition of parties but merely the substitution of the name in order to correct a misdescription. 1937 P.W.N. 36=1937 Pat. 526. A transferee of a debt due to an unregistered firm is not entitled to bring a suit to recover the amount of the debt, since the firm itself had no right of suing for that debt under S. 69 (2). The fact that the original cause of action arose before that Act came into force does not affect the matter, where the debt is transferred after the passing of that Act. 71 C.L.J. 553=44 C.W.N.387=1940 Cal. 528. See also 1938 M. 688=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 44; 1937 M. 419; 1940 N.L.J. 63. A suit of the value of above Rs. 100 by an unregistered firm is hit by S. 69 and a decree cannot be passed for Rs. 100 in such a suit. 42 C,W.N. 841.

APPLICABILITY TO ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS. —Only a 'suit' as used in forensic language is excluded by this section, and not applications as are contemplated in para. 20, Sch. II, C. P. Code. 162 I.C. 670=1936 L. 136; 16 Pat. 742.

APPLICABILITY—FIRM OF FATHER AND SON FORMING A JOINT HINDU FAMILY.—S. 69 does not apply to a firm of father and son who form a joint Hindu family and therefore a suit by such a firm is maintainable even though the firm is not registered. 153 I.C. 510= 1935 A.L.J. 260=1935 A. 280. A Hindu joint family firm need not be registered under the Partnership Act and is not subject to the restrictions imposed by S. 69 of that Act. 1937 A.L.J. 823=1937 All. 650. Where after the death of a Mahomedan his sons carry on the business and some of them are minors, it is a partnership requiring registration. The contract of partnership may be implied and though minors could not contract, there is nothing to prevent their guardian from contracting on their behalf, If such a partnership is unregistered, it cannot maintain a suit. 1939 N.L,J. 427=1939 Nag. 301.

Sec. 69.—Applicability to Cutchi Memon family firm—Firm not registered—Suit by—Maintainability—If Hindu joint family business. See 1937 M.W.N. 412=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 221.

Sec. 69 (2).—Where a registered firm has been dissolved by the retirement of one of its partners and notice of the dissolution has been given to the Registrar, the firm so far as registration is concerned is to be deemed to be still registered and can sue. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 289. S. 69 of the Partnership Act is mandatory. Registration of the firm is a condition precedent to its right to institute a suit. If a firm was not registered at the time a suit was filed by it the subsequent registration of the firm does not entitle the Court to proceed with the suit and the only course open to the Court is to dismiss the suit. ((1937) 2 M.L.J. 273, Overruled.) 1942 Mad. 252=54 L.W. 676= (1941) 2 M.L.J. 968. See also 40 P.L.R. 667= 1938 Lah. 767=1940 A.M.L.J 81. The provisions of S. 69 (2) are imperative, and a plaint filed by an unregistered firm is in effect no plaint at all. A suit which is not maintainable by reason of non-compliance with the section cannot become maintainable at a later stage by reason of subsequent registration. The crucial date is the date of institution of the suit, and if the firm is unregistered at the date of the institution of the suit the suit must fail; and subsequent registration before the hearing of the suit cannot cure the initial defect. 18 Pat. 114= 20 Pat. L.T. 33=1939 Pat. 239. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 20.

Sec. 69 (3).—In a suit for dissolution of an unregistered partnership, the Court has power to pass a preliminary decree directing inter alia that accounts be taken. A prayer for "dissolution of partnership" through Court is a compendious mode of asking a fourfold relief: (a) a declaration that the partnership stands dissolved from a certain date; (b) a declaration as to who the partners are and what are their proportionate shares: (c) a prayer that accounts be taken and the assets and liabilities of the partnership as on the date of dissolution be determined; and (d) a final decree be passed. These prayers are implicit in the prayer for dissolution made in a "suit for dissolution of partner-

(a) the enforcement of any right to sue for the dissolution of a firm or for accounts of a dissolved firm, or any right or power to realize the property of a dissolved firm, or

(b) the powers of an official assignee, receiver or Court under the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, to realize the property of an insolvent partner.

(4) This section shall not apply—

(a) to firms or to partners in firms which have no place of business in British India, or whose places of business in British India are situated in areas to which, by notification under [1][section 56], this Chapter does not apply, or ship" and it is in this sense that this expression is used in S. 69 (3). 39 P.L.R. 197=1937 Lah. 633. A petition by a creditor firm for the adjudication of a debtor as an insolvent is not "a proceeding to enforce a right arising from a contract", within the meaning of S. 69 (3) of the Partnership Act. The right of a creditor to file an insolvency petition against his debtor is a right conferred upon him by statute and is not a right arising out of a particular contract of loan between the petitioning creditor and the debtor. The fact that the creditor happens to be a firm and that a suit to recover the loan is not maintainable by reason of the firm being unregistered, does not deprive the unregistered firm of its right to file a petition in insolvency against its debtor. 48 L.W. 901 =1939 Mad. 145. Under S. 69. sub-S. 3 (a), the provisions of sub-S. (1) are not to affect the enforcing of any right to sue for the dissolution of partnership. Where therefore arbitration proceedings are on the face of them taken for the purposes of the dissolution of partnership of an unregistered firm, the proceedings under Sch. II, para. 20, C. P. Code, would be protected from the application of S. 69. 162 I.C. 670=1936 L. 136. The terms of sub-S. (3) of S. 69 does not contemplate an execution proceeding. The fact that the decree in question was a consent decree cannot make a difference in a case where the decree-holder does not repudiate the compromise but only questions the right of the decree holder to execute the decree. In such a case neither was the execution proceeding meant to enforce a right arising from the contract nor was the objection of judgment debtor directed against its validity. So S. 69 (3) of the Act cannot come into play. 1939 N.L.J. 148. A suit to recover a debt due to a firm brought by persons who were the only members of a firm at the date of dissolution, is a suit to enforce a right to 'realise the property of a dissolved firm' and as such falls within the exception (a) to sub-S. (3) of S. 69 and hence is maintainable even though the partnership was an unregistered one. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 102=39 Bom.L.R. 1214=1938 Bom. 108. See also 1937 Mad. 730. S. 69 (3) (a) of the Partnership Act cannot be construed as permitting a suit for accounts by a partner of an unregistered firm only if the partnership was dissolved before the date of the institution of the suit or prohibiting a prayer for accounts from being joined with the prayer for dissolution of an existing firm. A suit for dissolution of the firm and also for settlement of accounts is maintainable, and the plaintiff can be given a decree for both. 1937 A.L J. 825=1937 A. 674.

Sec. 69 (3) (a)—UNREGISTERED FIRM—MEMBER, IF CAN SUE FOR DISSOLUTION AND ACCOUNTS. —The right of a partner of an unregistered firm to sue and obtain a decree for dissolution and accounts remain unaffected by the provisions of S. 69 of the Partnership Act in view of the proviso contained in sub-S. (3) thereof. I.L.R. (1940) All. 26=1939 A.L.J. 964=A.I.R. 1939 All. 735 (F.B.)

Secs. 69 and 5. Where the plaint is not clearly worded though it is stated therein that the business is a long standing one and the plaintiffs are relations descended from the same ancestor and reside in the same house, and the cause title also does not describe the plaintiffs as constituting a firm and the defendants in their original written statement did not raise any plea on the point of the non-maintainability of the suit for non-registration of the plaintiff's firm but raised that plea in the additional written statement filed by them very late, the Court should not straightaway dismiss the suit on the ground that the provision of S. 69 of the Partnership Act had not been complied with. The Court should take evidence to clear up the matter as to whether the plaintiffs really constituted a partnership firm or were carrying on a joint family business which would come within the exception provided for in S. 5 of the Act. 65 C.L.J. 426.

Secs. 69 and 48—UNREGISTERED FIRM—SUIT FOR DISSOLUTION AND ACCOUNT—DECREE THAT COULD BE PASSED.—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and for accounts in respect of an unregistered firm, while the prayer for dissolution could be decreed, the plaintiff cannot obtain a decree for rendition of accounts against the defendant because, the decree to be granted under O. 20, R. 15, C.P. Code, must be modified in accordance with the provisions of law in S. 69 of the Partnership Act. But the prayer

Any person who signs any statement, amending statement, notice or intimation under this Chapter containing any particular which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true, or containing particulars which he knows to be incomplete or does not believe to be complete, shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine, or with both.

Power to make rules.

71. (1) The [1][Provincial Government] may make rules prescribing the fees which shall accompany documents sent to the Registrar of Firms or which shall be payable for the inspection of documents in the custody of the Registrar of Firms, or for copies from the Register of Firms:

Provided that such fees shall not exceed the maximum fees specified in Schedule I.

(2) The Provincial Government may [2][also] make rules—

(a) prescribing the form of statement submitted under section 58, and of the verification thereof;

(b) requiring statements, intimations and notices under sections 60, 61, 62 and 63, to be in prescribed form, and prescribing the form thereof; that an account be taken may be granted in the limited terms of S. 48; that is to say the decree in question will be under O. 20, R. 15 and Form No. 21 of Appendix D and if the plaintiff desires a receiver may be appointed to take accounts of the firm. But the decree will state that the relief of making the defendant an accounting party is not granted. I.L.R. (1939) All. 563=1939 A. L.J. 405=A.I.R. 1939 All. 535.

Secs. 69 and 74 (b): OPERATION OF S. 69.—S. 69 of the Act applies to suits for enforcement of claims accrued before the commencement of the Act, if such suits are started after S. 69 begins to operate. S. 69 being an enactment which deals with procedure only, may be considered as retrospective in its operation and may be held to apply prima facie to all actions pending as well as future. Therefore the pending litigations in respect of rights already accrued are saved from the operation of S. 69 under S. 74 (b). But S. 74 (b) does not save litigations started after 1st October, 1938. 39 C.W.N. 67= 1934 C. 754. See also 40 C.W.N. 1180; 17 Pat. L.T. 713; 1936 A.M.L.J. 20; 1937 M. 419=45 L.W. 276; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 610=1937 M. 528.

Secs. 69 and 74.—The bar imposed by S. 69 does not apply to a suit to enforce a right accrued before the Act came into force by virtue of S. 74 of the Act. The effect of S. 74 is that the Act is not to affect any right already acquired before the commencement of the Act. S. 74 (a) saves from the operation of the Act, a suit to enforce a right which accrued before S. 69 came into operation, though the suit is instituted after S. 69 cannot come into operation. The words "or anything done or suffered" before the commencement of the Act in S. 74 (b) must be taken to be governed by the previous words "any legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right," and these words apply to legal proceedings to enforce any subsisting rights which are saved by Cl. (c) of S. 74. Sub-Cls. (a) and (c) of S. 74 save existing rights, and sub-Cl. (b) saves any legal proceeding or remedy in respect of such rights. S. 74 (b) deals with procedure and nothing else, that is to say, it deals with methods of enforcing rights and not with the rights themselves. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 104=40 Bom.L.R. 1275=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 61. See also 1938 Mad. 688; I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 648=1941 Nag. 367; (1938) 2 M.L.J. 44; 1936 All. 3; 1940 A.M.L.J. 81; 15 Pat. 810=1937 Pat. 16; 1937 Mad. 528; 1940 Sind 125; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 329=1940 Mad. 628; (1937) 1 M.L.J. 610. S.74 which saves rights and remedies which existed before the Act came into force should not be read as being subordinate to S. 69 (2), but should prevail over S. 69 (2). The rights and remedies which accrued before the commencement of the Act are left entirely untouched. S. 74 is a saving section and if effect is to is to be given to the words used, Sec. 69 (2) cannot apply in a case where a suit is filed by a firm which had not been registered but whose registration is effected during the pendency of the suit, when the suit is in respect of a liability arising prior to the Act, Sec. 69 does not bar such a suit. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 980= 1939 Mad. 860=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 489. See also 1940 Mad. 628=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 329. From the opening words 'any legal proceeding or remedy' in sub-Sec. (b) of Sec. 74, it is clear that the sub-section relates to those legal proceedings or remedies which were open to a party in respect of any right, title, interest, obligation or liability which had already been accrued or incurred before the commencement of the Act. The absence of the words 'pending' and 'taken' indicate that it was not the intention of the legislature to exempt from the operation of Sec. 69 only proceedings which had been instituted. I.L.R. CHAPTER VIII.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Mode of giving public notice.

72. A public notice under this Act is given—

(a) where it relates to the retirement or explusion of a partner from a registered firm, or to the dissolution of a registered firm, or to the election to become or not to become a partner in a registered firm by a person attaining majority who was admitted as a minor to the benefits of partnership, by notice to the Registrar of Firms under section 63, and by publication in the Official Gazette and in at least one vernacular newspaper circulating in the district where the firm to which it relates has its place or principal place of business, and

(b) in any other case, by publication in the Official Gazette and in at least one vernacular newspaper circulating in the district where the firm to which it relates has its place or principal place of business.

Repeals.

73. The enactments mentioned in schedule II are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof. [Repealed by Act I of 1938.]

Savings.

74. Nothing in this Act or any repeal effected thereby shall affect or be deemed to affect—

NOTES.

Sec. 74—[See notes under 69, supra.] Sec. 74 not only saves the rights but also the suit to enforce these rights. There is no reason to restrict Sec. 74 by saying that it covers only a right not dependent upon the adjudication of a Court. Hence a suit by an unregistered firm for rent due up to October, 1933, is not barred but is saved by Sec. 74. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 765=1939 Sind 206. The legal proceedings indicated in S. 74 (b) should not be interpreted as meaning proceedings pending at the time of the commencement of the Act. 1938 Mad. 185=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 717. The Act must be construed in its plain terms, and where its terms admit of no doubt, anything in the nature of speculation as to the intention of the Legislature should be avoided. Sec. 74 (a) says that nothing in the Act shall affect any right acquired before the commencement of the Act; and Sec. 74 (b) extends this saving clause to any legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right; that is, any such right as is mentioned in sub-Sec. (a) and has accrued before the commencement of this Act. I would be wrong to say that Sec. 74 (b) saves only suits which are pending at the time when the Act comes into force. It saves a remedy, which connotes the right to institute a suit as well. Hence when a suit has been instituted after 1st October, 1933, by a firm not registered under the Partnership Act for recovery of a debt accruing before that date, the suit is not barred by Sec. 69 of the Act but is saved by the provisions of Sec. 74 (b). 1938 Rang.L.R. 371 =1938 Rang. 273 (F.B.). The wording of Sec. 74 seems to state in express words that none of the provision of the Act, which includes the provisions of S. 69 shall affect any remedy in respect of any obligation or liability which had arisen before the commencement of the Act. Both cases are covered namely (1) where the legal proceeding has been started before the Act and (2) where the legal proceeding arising out of a remedy that existed before the Act, has been started after the Act. 1940 N.L.J. 63= 1940 Nag. 137.

(a) any right, title, interest, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred before the commencement of this Act, or

(b) any legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right, title, interest, obligation or liability, or anything done or suffered before the commencement of this Act, or

(c) anything done or suffered before the commencement of this Act, or

(d) any enactment relating to partnership not expressly repealed by this Act, or (e) any rule of insolvency relating to partnership, or

(f) any rule of law not inconsistent with this Act.

NOTES.

Sec. 1.—Scope and object of Act. 41 A. 68 =48 I.C. 450=16 A.L.J. 941. An exclusive privilege in respect of an invention under the Invention and Designs Act, 1888, was under the Patents and Designs Act, 1911, converted into a patent and extended throughout the British India. 54 I.C. 417. As to whether Act applies to Berar, see 54 I.C. 417. See also 27 M.L.J. 573 (law applicable to suits instituted before this Act). In the case of infringement of patents, the test is to see whether a man grappling with the problem solved by the patent attacked and having no knowledge of it can say that his anticipation has solved the problem. In order to render a document a prior publication, it must publish to the world the whole invention, i.e., all that is material to instruct the public to put the patent in practice. Mere suggestions are not enough. Invention is finding out something which other people have not found out. The quid to the patentee is the monopoly; the qua is that it presents to the public knowledge which they have not got. The real invention may often be the last element of the combination; an invention may further consist only in simplification. 1929 A.C. 269=116 I.C. 593=1929 P. C. 38 (P.C.). Any information as to the alleged invention given by any prior publication must be for the purpose of practical utility, equal to that given by the subsequent patent. The later invention must be described in the earlier publication that is held to anticipate it, in order to sustain the defences of anticipation. Where the question is solely one of prior publication, it is not enough to prove that an apparatus described in an earlier specification could have been used to produce this or that result. It must also be shown that the specifieations contained clear and unmistakable directions so to use it. It must be shown that the public have been so presented with the invention that it is out of the power for any subsequent persons to claim the invention as his own. 124 I.C. 569=1930 P.C. 1 (P.C.). There must be a substantial exercise of the inventive power or inventive genius though it may in cases be very slight. Slight alterations or improvements may produce important results, and may disclose great ingenuity. Sometimes it is a combination that is the invention, if the invention requires independent thought, ingenuity and skill, producing in a distinctive form a more efficient result converting a comparatively defective apparatus into a useful and efficient one, rejecting what is bad and useless in former attempts and retaining what is useful, and uniting them all into an apparatus which, taken as a whole, is novel, there is subject-matter of invention. A new combination of well-known devices and the application thereof to a new and useful purpose, may require invention to produce it, and may be good subject-matter for a patent. Having regard to the conditions of the art of wireless telegraphy there is sufficient invention for claiming a patent even though the same consists only of a small step if it is a step for ward. 1930 P.C. 1=31 L.W. 126 (P.C.). The question whether a specification of a prior invention describes the invention claimed by the subsequent inventor is a question of construction and parol evidence is only admissible for the purpose of explaining words or symbols of art and other such like technical matters and of informing the Court of relevant surrounding circumstances. The date of the knowledge or use by any other person is a date before the invention not before the patent. 1930 P.C. 1. The statute relating to patents [Patent Act (Canada), 1935] does not contemplate or authorize a contingent disclaimer. As soon as a disclaimer is filed and recorded in the office

(3) "Controller" means the Controller of Patents and Designs appointed under this Act:

(4) "copyright" means the exclusive right to apply a design to any article in any class in which the design is registered:

[1][(5) "design" means only the features of shape, configuration, pattern or ornament applied to any article by any industrial process or means, whether manual, mechanical or chemical, separate or combined, which in the finished article appeal to and are judged solely by the eye; but does not include any mode or principle of construction or anything which is in substance a mere mechanical device, and does not include any trade-mark as defined in section 478, or property mark as defined in section 479 of the Indian Penal Code]:

(6) "District Court" has the meaning assigned to that expression by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908:

[2 "High Court" means a High Court as defined in sub-section (1) of section 219 of the Government of India Act, 1935].

(8) "invention" means any manner of new manufacture and includes an improvement and an alleged invention:

of the Commissioner it is made part of the patent; the only existing claims are the claims as amended by virtue of the disclaimer and the only invention protected by the Letters Patent is the invention, the description whereof is contained in the specification as so amended. 181 I.C. 958=1939 P.C. 91 (P.C.).

Sec. 2 (3).—See 54 I.C. 417.

Sec. 2 (5).—Where a design covers the whole body of goods and is part and parcel thereof, it is not a trade-mark but a 'design' nor is it a 'trade description' within S. 2 (2) of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1889. 25 I.C. 998=15 Cr,L.J. 670. Where there was no difference in shape, configuration, pattern or ornament although there was a different mode and principle of construction. Held, that this was not a "new" or "original" design within the meaning of the Act. 190 I.C. 281=1940 Pesh. 38. In determining whether there was novelty in the patent which is alleged to be infringed, if it can be shown that the new result was long sought for, that persons skilled in the art had been working without success to attain it, and had long regarded it as a problem and that the invention of the patentee successfully solved the problem —then such a state of affairs constitutes evidence of the strongest kind that the prior knowledge did not in fact give an obvious clue to the solution and ought not to be considered as destroying "subject-matter". Mere simplicity is not necessarily an objection; a mere scintilla of invention is sufficient, especially where the appreciation of a desideratum is one of the important features of the invention and there may be invention in improvements in what is merely simplification, though matters of ordinary skilled designing or workshop improvements cannot be considered as requiring the exercise of invention. The practical utility and commercial success of the invention may be a material factor in determining whether the new result was obvious or not. The fact that the patent has been infringed is evidence of its utility. Better evidence of the utility of the invention cannot possibly be had. 40 Bom.L.R. 478=1938 Bom. 347.

Sec. 2 (8).—See 17 A. 490. A new manufacture means not only a new article of manufacture, but also a new process or method of manufacturing something new. It does not mean a new principle of manufacture—a principle cannot be an invention—but means a new application of the principles so as to produce a new method or a new manufacture. 36 Bom. L.R. 881=1934 B. 407.

"INVENTION" — MEANING.— The question whether there is an invention is a question of fact. A new and useful application of an old principle may be a good subject-matter of patent. An improvement on something known may also afford subject-matter, so also a new combination of different matters already known. A patentable combination is one in which the component elements are so combined as to produce a new result or to arrive at an old result in a better or more expeditious or more economical manner. If the result of the combination is either a new article or a better or a cheaper article than before, the combination may afford subject-matter for a patent. The mere collocation of two or more things, without some exercise of inventive faculty, is not however, a subject-matter for a patent. 1936 B. 99 =37 Bom.L.R. 665.

Sec. 2 (8) and (10) : INVENTION WHICH CAN BE SUBJECT-MATTER OF PATENT.—It is of course true that a patent may be granted for a combination which is one producing a new result, or arriving at an old result in a better or cheaper way or giving a useful choice of means but different considerations are applicable to each of these cases in order to arrive at a conclusion as to whether or not there is good "subject-matter" in any particular combination. The fact that the result is new is of itself no doubt cogent evidence of invention, and if it has been necessary to make modifications in the form o construction of all or any of the separate ol

(9) "legal representative" means a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person:

(10) "manufacture" includes any art, process or manner of producing, preparing or making an article, and also any article prepared or produced by manufacture:

(11) "patent" means a patent granted under the provisions of this Act:

(12) [1]["patentee" means the person for the time being entered on the register of patents kept under this Act as the grantee or proprietor of the patent]:

(13) "prescribed" includes prescribed by rules under this Act; and

(14) "proprietor of a [2][new or original] design,"—

(a) where the author of the design, for good consideration, executes the work for some other person, means the person for whom the design is so executed; and

(b) where any person acquires the design or the right to apply the design to any article, either exclusively of any other person or otherwise, means, in the respect and to the extent in and to which the design or right has been so acquired, the person by whom the design or right is so acquired; and

(c) in any other case, means the author of the design; and where the property in, or the right to apply, the design has devolved from the original proprietor upon any other person, includes that other person.

3. (1) An application for a patent may be made by any person whether he is a British subject or not, and whether alone or jointly with any other person.

(2) The application must be made in the prescribed form, and must be left at the Patent Office in the prescribed manner.

(3) The application must contain a declaration to the effect that the applicant is in possession of an invention, whereof he, or in the case of a joint application one at least of the applicants, claims to be the true and first inventor or the legal representative or assign of such inventor and for which he desires integers included in the combination in order to ensure their more perfect interaction, there is a strong presumption that there has been invention. It is immaterial whether the "invention" comes into existence by accident or by design, but on the other hand there must have been some inventive step even though the inventive step is but slight. Otherwise the patent is invalid for want of subject-matter. 43 C.W.N. 697.

Sec. 2 (10).—See 43 C.W.N. 697.

Sec. 2 (12).—See 41 C W.N. 603.

Sec. 2 (13).—See 23 C. 702. "Manufacture," as defined by S. 2 (10) comprehends not only the production of an article but also the means or method of producing it, so that a new process or an improvement of an old process can be a manufacture. The subject-matter of a patent must be a new manufacture or art, for if there is no new manufacture or art, there is no subject-matter and therefore no invention. 37 Bom. L.R. 665.

Sec. 2 (14): 'PROPRIETOR'—MEANING.—The proprietor must be the author or one who has acquired the design from the author or a person on whom such rights have devolved. 56 A. 1032=1934 A.L.J. 664=1934 A. 798.

"ACQUIRE DESIGN"—MEANING.—To acquire a design within the meaning of S. 2 (14) (b) of the Act, means the transfer of proprietary rights in a design and not merely learning a design. 56 A. 1032=1934 A.L.J. 664=1934 A. 798.

to obtain a patent, and must be accompanied by a specification and by the prescribed fee.

(4) Where the true and first inventor is not a party to the application, the application must contain a statement of his name, and such particulars for his identification as may be prescribed, and the applicant must show that he is the legal representative or assign of such inventor.

Specification.

4. (1) The specification must particularly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention and the manner in which the same is to be performed.

(2) Where the Controller deems it desirable, he may require that suitable drawings shall be supplied with the specification, or at any time before the acceptance of the application, and such drawings shall be deemed to form part of the specification.

(3) The specification must commence with the title, and must end with a distinct statement of the invention claimed.

(4) If in any particular case the Controller considers that an application should be further supplemented by a model or sample of anything illustrating the invention or alleged to constitute an invention, such model or sample as he may require shall be furnished before the acceptance of the application, but such model or sample shall not be deemed to form part of the specification.

Proceedings upon application.

5. (1) The Controller shall [1][refer every application to an Examiner and if satisfied on the report of the Examiner] that—

(a) the nature of the invention is not fairly described, or

(b) the application, specification and drawings have not been prepared in the prescribed manner [2][* * *], or

(c) the title [3][of the specification] does not sufficiently indicate the subject-matter of the invention, or

(d) the statement of claim does not sufficiently define the invention, or

(e) the invention as described and claimed is prima facie not a [3][manner of] new manufacture or improvement,

1 the specification relates to more than one invention, or

(g) in the case of an application claiming priority under section 78-A, the specification describes and claims an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from the invention disclosed in the specification filed with the application made outside British India by virtue of which priority is claimed, or

(h) in the case of an application for a patent of addition under section 15-A, the invention described and claimed in the specification is not an improvement or modification of that described and claimed in the original specification]; he may refuse to accept the application or require that the application, specification or drawings be amended before he proceeds with the application; and in the latter case the application shall, if the Controller so directs, bear date as from the time when the requirement is complied with:

[4][Provided that, when a specification comprises more than one invention, the application shall, if the Controller or the applicant so requires, be restricted to one invention and the other inventions may be made the subject-matter of fresh application; and any such fresh application shall be proceeded with as a substantive application, but the Controller may, in his discretion, direct that any such fresh application made before the acceptance of the original application shall bear the date of the original application or such later date as he may fix, and the fresh application shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, to have been made on the date which it bears in accordance with such direction.]

Sec. 4: SPECIFICATION OF PATENT—DUTY OF PATENTEE.—It is incumbent on the patentee to particularly describe and ascertain the nature of his invention in the specification, as the ambit of his invention is circumscribed by the claims, 37 Bom. L.R. 665=1936 B. 99.

[1][(1-A. If the Controller considers, at any time before the acceptance of an application, that the invention claimed therein has been wholly or in part claimed in a specification published on or after the date which the patent applied for would bear if granted, appertaining to an application for a patent which if granted will be of prior date to the patent applied for, he may require that the applicant's specification be amended by the insertion of a reference to such other specification, by way of notice to the public.]

(2) Where the Controller refuses to accept an application or requires an amendment, [1][or the insertion of a reference] the applicant may appeal from his decision to the Central Government.

(3) The investigations required by this section shall not be held in any way to guarantee the validity of any patent, and no liability shall be incurred by the Central Government or any officer by reason of, or in connection with, any such investigation, or any proceeding consequent thereon.

(4) Unless an application is accepted within twelve months from the date of the application, the application shall (except where an appeal has been lodged [2][be deemed to have been refused].

[3][Provided that where, before, or within three months after, the expiration of the said period of twelve months, a request is made to the Controller for an extension of time [4][* * *] the application shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, be continued [1][for any period so requested not exceeding in all three months from the expiration of the said period of twelve months].

Advertisement on acceptance of application.

6. On the acceptance of an application the Controller shall give notice thereof to the applicant and shall advertise the acceptance; and the application and specification, with the drawings (if any), shall be open to public inspection.

Use of invention on acceptance of application.

7. Where an application for a patent in respect of an invention has been accepted any use or publication of the invention during the period between the date of application and the date of sealing such patent shall not prejudice the patent to be granted for the invention:

Provided that an applicant shall not be entitled to institute any proceedings for infringement unless and until a patent for the invention has been granted to him.

within [1][four] months from the date of the advertisement of the acceptance of an application, give notice at the Patent Office of opposition to the grant of the patent on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that the applicant obtained the invention from him, or from a person of whom he is the legal representative or assign; or

(b) that the invention has been claimed in any specification filed in British India which is or will be of prior date to the patent, the grant of which is opposed; or

(c) that the nature of the invention or the manner in which it is to be performed is not sufficiently or fairly described and ascertained in the specification; or

(d) that the invention has been publicly used in any part of British India or has been publicly known in any part of British India;

but on no other ground.

(2) Where such notice is given, the Controller shall give notice of the opposition to the applicant, and shall, on the expiration of those [2][four] months after hearing the applicant and the opponent, if desirous of being heard, decide on the case.

(3) The decision of the Controller shall be subject to appeal to the Central Government.

Grant and sealing of patent.

10. (1) If there is no opposition, or, in case of opposition, if the determination is in favour of the grant of a patent, a patent shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, be granted subject to such conditions (if any) as the Central Government thinks expedient to the applicant, or in the case of a joint application to the applicants jointly, and the Controller shall cause the patent to be sealed with the seal of the Patent Office.

(a) an applicant has agreed in writing that on the grant to him of a patent he will assign it to another party or to a joint applicant and refuses to proceed with the application, or taking does not come to an end with the decision of the original Court. "The decision of this application must be construed to mean the final decision, i.e., decision of the appellate Court; the undertaking will remain in force until then, or until the time for filing the appeal runs out," 62 C. 596=39 C.W.N. 573.

CONTROLLER OF PATENTS—DISCRETION TO GRANT OR REFUSE THE ISSUE OF SUBPOENAS.—The Controller of Patents must under S. 9 of the Act issue subpoenas on witnesses, if asked for by either of the parties; the words "after hearing the applicant and the opponent" in S. 9 cannot be read as meaning that the Controller need only hear the applicant and the opponent and can refuse to hear any evidence which either or both wish to adduce. "Hearing" means 'hearing the party and his evidence". 62 C. 596=39 C.W.N. 573.

Sec. 9 (3). APPEAL UNDER—GOVERNER-GENERAL'S POWER TO REMAND.—The Governor General has, in an appeal against an order of the Controller, power to remand the case to the Controller. The power of remand is not specifically given under the Patents and Designs Act. But all the Courts of appeal have inherent powers of remand, and the Governor-General in Council, as a Court of appeal, has such power. 62 C. 596=39 C.W.N. 573.

may proceed with the application accordingly and may grant a patent to him or them, as the case may be:

Provided that—

(i) the Controller shall not give any such direction until every party interested has had an opportunity of being heard by him, and (ii) an appeal from any such direction shall lie to the Central Government.

(2) A patent shall be sealed as soon as may be, and not after the expiration of eighteen months from the date of application:

Provided that,—

(a) Where the Controller has allowed an extension of the time within which an application may be accepted, a further extension of four months after the said eighteen months shall be allowed for the sealing of the patent;

(b) where the sealing is delaying by an appeal to the Central Government [1][* * *] or by opposition to the grant of the patent [2][or by any proceedings taken for obtaining a direction of the controller under the provisions of sub-section (1-A)] the patent may be sealed at such time as the controller may direct;

(c) where the patent is granted to the legal representative of an applicant who has died before the expiration of the time which would otherwise be allowed for sealing the patent, the patent may be sealed at any time within twelve months after the date of his death;

(d) where [1][for any reason] a patent cannot be sealed within the period allowed by [1][any of the foregoing provisions of], this section, that period may, on payment of the prescribed fee and on compliance with the prescribed conditions, be extended [1][to the extent applied for but not exceeding three months].

Date of patent.

11. Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, a patent shall be dated and sealed as of the date of the application:

Provided that no proceedings shall be taken in respect of an infringement committed before the [3][advertisement of the acceptance of the application.]

Effect, extent and form of patent.

12. (1) A patent sealed with the seal of the Patent Office shall, subject to the other provisions of this Act, confer on the patentee the exclusive privilege of making, selling and using the invention throughout British India and of authorizing others so to do.

(2) Every patent may be in the prescribed form and shall be granted for one invention only, but the specification may contain more than one claim; and it shall not be competent for any person in a suit or other proceeding to take any objection to a patent on the ground that it has been granted for more than one invention.

Fraudulent applications for patents.

13. (1) A patent granted to the true and first inventor or his legal representative or assign shall not be invalidated by an application in fraud of him, or by protection obtained thereon or by any use or publication of the invention subsequent to that fraudulent application during the period of protection.

Provided that no suit shall be brought for any infringement of the patent so granted committed before the actual date when such patent was granted.]

Term of patent.

14. (1) The term limited in every patent for the duration thereof shall, save as otherwise expressly provided by this Act, be [2][sixteen] years from its date,

Term of Patent.

[2][(1-A) Any patent the original term of which had not expired on or before the 1st day of July, 1930, shall have effect as if the term mentioned therein was sixteen years instead of fourteen years, and any licence existing at that date which has been granted for the term of the patent shall be treated as having been granted for the term as so extended if the licensee so desires.

(1-B) Where any party to a contract with the patentee or any other person entered into before the 1st day of January, 1930, is subjected to loss or liability by reason of the extension of the term of any patent under this section, any District Court having jurisdiction [3][may on application made in this behalf, determine] in what manner and by which parties such loss or liability shall be borne.]

(3) If any proceeding is taken in respect of an infringement of the patent committed after a failure to pay any fee within the prescribed time, and before any enlargement thereof, the Court before which the proceeding is taken may, if it thinks fit, refuse to award any damages in respect of such infringement.

15. (3) Where a petition is presented under sub-section (1), the Central Government may, as [1][it] thinks fit, dispose of the petition [1][itself] or refer it to a High Court for decision.

(4) If the petition be referred to a High Court, then on the hearing of such petition under this section, the patentee, and any person who has given notice under sub-section (2) of objections, shall be made parties to the proceeding, and the Controller shall be entitled to appear and be heard.

[2][(5) The Central Government or the High Court to which a petition is referred shall in considering the petition have regard to the nature and merits of the invention in relation to the public, to the profits made on the patent and to all the circumstances of the case.

(6) If it appears to the Central Government or to the High Court when the petition is referred to it, that the patent has not been sufficiently remunerative, the Central Government or the High Court, as the case may be, may by order extend the term of the patent for a further term not exceeding five or in exceptional cases ten years or may order the grant of a new patent for such term not exceeding ten years as may be specified in the order and subject to any restriction, conditions and provisions which the Central Government or the High Court, as the case may be, may think fit].

Patents of addition.

[3]After S. 15 the new S. 15-A has been inserted by Act VII of 1930.

NOTES.

Sec. 15 (4): REFERENCE UNDER—FRESH PETITION TO COURT—NECESSITY.—Under S. 15 of the Act, when a petition is referred for decision to the High Court under sub-s. (4), it is the petition originally submitted to the Governor-General in Council which the High Court should dispose of. The applicant need not file a second or fresh petition in the High Court. Such a procedure is misconceived. 37 Bom.L.R. 187.

SCOPE—PROCEEDINGS UNDER—NATURE OF—PROCEDURE.—On a reference to the High Court by the Governor-General in Council, the matter ceases to be merely administrative and becomes a judicial proceeding, the parties to it being the patentee on the one hand and the objectors on the other; the Controller of Patents has also the right of audience. In such a proceeding, in the absence of any separate or special procedure, the ordinary rules of procedure followed by the High Court, devoid of its technicalities, should be adopted so far as they are applicable to the particular case. The High Court has jurisdiction to allow the objectors to file fresh objections adding further grounds of obiection, if that can be done under the law relating to the amendment of pleadings; and leave to amend the amendments ought to be given when the petitioner is not taken by surprise. 37 Bom.L.R. 187=1935 B. 195.

Provided that if the patent for the original invention is revoked, then the patent of addition shall, if the authority by which it is revoked so orders, become an independent patent, and the fees payable, and the dates when they become payable, shall be determined by its date, but its duration shall not exceed the unexpired term of the patent for the original invention.

(3) The grant of a patent of addition shall be conclusive evidence that the invention is a proper subject for a patent of addition, and the validity of the patent shall not be questioned on the ground that the invention ought to have been the subject of an independent patent.]

Restoration of lapsed patent.

16. (1) Where any patent has ceased owing to the failure of the patentee to pay any prescribed fee within the prescribed time, the patentee may apply to the Controller in the prescribed manner for an order for the restoration of the patent.

(2) Every such application shall contain a statement of the circumstances which have led to the omission of the payment of the prescribed fee.

(3) If it appears from such statement that the omission was unintentional or unavoidable and that no undue delay has occurred in the making of the application, the Controller shall advertise the application in the prescribed manner, and within such time as may be prescribed any person may give notice of opposition at the Patent Office.

(4) Where such notice is given the Controller shall notify the applicant thereof.

(5) After the expiration of the prescribed period, the Controller shall hear the case and, subject to an appeal to the Central Government, issue an order either restoring the patent subject to any conditions [1][and restrictions] deemed to be advisable or dismissing the application:

Provided that in every order under this section restoring a patent such provisions as may be prescribed shall be inserted for the protection of persons who may have availed themselves of the subject-matter of the patent after the patent had ceased.

Amendment of Application or Specification.

Amendment of application or specification by Controller.

17. (1) An applicant or a patentee may at any time, by request in writing left at the Patent Office and accompanied by the prescribed fee, seek leave to amend his application or specification, including drawings forming part thereof by way of disclaimer, correction or explanation, stating the nature of, and the reasons for, the proposed amendment.

(2) If the application for a patent has not been accepted, the Controller shall determine whether and subject to what conditions (if any) the amendment shall be allowed.

(3) In any other case the request and the nature of the proposed amendment shall be advertised in the prescribed manner, and at any time within three months from its first advertisement any person may give notice at the Patent Office of opposition to the amendment.

LEG. REF.

[1]The words "and restrictions" were inserted by Act XVII of 1914, Sch. 1.

NOTES.

Sec 15 (5): ENQUIRY UNDER—SCOPE OF.—In considering an application for extension of a patent, it would be legitimate for the Court to inquire what profits the inventor had made since its registration, and that inquiry may not be limited to what the inventor earned in his country, but might include profits made by him in all countries where the invention was registered or exploited. The Court in such case insists on a full disclosure of the profits made by the inventor or his assignees, and if the Court believes that there has not been a full or bona fide disclosure, it may summarily reject the application. 37 Bom.L.R. 187=1935 B. 195.

(4) Where such a notice is given, the Controller shall give notice of the opposition to the person making the request and shall hear and decide the case.

(5) Where no notice or opposition is given, or the person so giving notice of opposition does not appear, the Controller shall determine whether and subject to what conditions, if any, the amendment ought to be allowed.

(6) The decision of the Controller in either case shall be subject to an appeal to the Central Government.

(7) No amendment shall be allowed that would make the application or specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than, or substantially different from, the invention claimed by the application or specification as it stood before amendment.

(8) Leave to amend shall be conclusive as to the right of the party to make the amendment allowed, except in case of fraud; and the amendment shall be advertised in the prescribed manner, and shall in all Courts and for all purposes be deemed to form part of the application or specification.

(9) This section shall not apply when and so long as any suit for infringement or proceeding before a Court for the revocation of the patent is pending.

Amendment of specification by the Court.

18. In any suit for infringement of a patent or proceeding before a Court for the revocation of a patent, the Court may by order allow the patentee to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, [1][correction or explanation] in such manner, and subject to such terms as to costs, advertisement or otherwise, as the Court may think fit:

LEG. REF.

[1]In S. 18 after the word "disclaimer" the words "correction or explanation" have been inserted by Act VII of 1930, S. 12.

NOTES.

Sec. 17 (1) and 6: APPLICATION TO CONTROLLER FOR AMENDMENT OF SPECIFICATION.—In application under S. 17 of the Act, for amendment of specification made to the Controller of Patents, the latter has absolute powers to decide whether the amendment sought would make the specification claim an invention larger than, and substantially different from, that claimed in the original specification. This power of the Controller is, under S. 17 (6), subject to an appeal to the Governor-General in Council. In such a case it is quite impossible for the Court to investigate the matter, and then by anticipation to prohibit the Controller from proceeding, on the assumption that his decision, when given, will be erroneous. To do so would be an usurpation on the part of the Court of the jurisdiction which the law has given to the Controller. 61 C. 450=38 C.W.N. 729=1934 C. 725.

Sec. 17 (1) and (7).—An applicant for amendment of his specification has upon him the burden of showing that his amendment falls with in one or other of the three categories of disclaimer; correction or explanation and that he is not claiming an invention which is substantially larger than, or different from, that originally claimed. The onus is not discharged unless his amendment is unambiguous and he establishes with sufficient certaintly either that this claim is merely one of those already covered by some one or more of the old claims upon which he relies or that it does not comprise an invention substantially larger than or substantially different from that covered by the unamended specification. 1932 A.C. 709=139 I. C. 657=1932 P.C. 266 (P.C.).

Sec. 17 (9): SUIT, WHEN PENDING—APPEAL, IF 'SUIT.'—After judgment was pronounced by the Court in a suit for infringement of patent, an application was presented under S. 17 of the Act, to the Controller of Patents for leave to amend the specification of the amendment. The application was duly advertised under S. 17 (3) of the Act. Subsequently an appeal was filed against the decree in the suit. Objection was raised to the maintainability of the application on the ground that S. 17 (9) of the Act deprived the Controller of all jurisdiction in the matter, as the action for infringement was still to be regarded as pending. Held, that the suit for purposes of S. 17 (9) terminated the moment the Court pronounced its judicial decision and could not be regarded as pending when the application was presented to the Controller of Patents; that "suit" did not include an appeal from the decree in a suit for infringement, under S. 17 (9), that an action for infringement meant action before judgment; and that the filing of an appeal did not deprive the Controller of jurisdiction to deal with an application already presented to him under S. 17 (1). 61 C. 450=38 C.W.N. 729=1934 C. 725.

Sec. 18—Application to Court for amendment of specification under S. 18—Withdrawal without leave—Fresh application to Controller of Patents, if barred. See 61 C. 450=38 C.W.N. 729=1934 C. 725.

Provided that no amendment shall be so allowed that would make the specification, as amended, claim an invention substantially larger than, or substantially different from, the invention claimed by the specification as it stood before the amendment, and where an application for such an order is made to the Court, notice of the application shall be given to the Controller, and the Controller shall have the right to appear and be heard.

Restriction on recovery of damages.

19. Where an amendment of a specification by way of disclaimer, correction or explanation has been allowed under this Act, no damages shall be given in any suit in respect of the use of the invention [1][before the date of the decision allowing the amendment] unless the patentee establishes to the satisfaction of the Court that his original claim was framed in good faith and with reasonable skill and knowledge.

Register of Patents.

Register of Patents.

20. (1) There shall be kept at the Patent Office a book called the Register of Patents, wherein shall be entered the names and addresses of grantees of patents, notifications of assignments and of transmissions of patents, of licences under patents, and of amendments, extensions and revocations of patents, and such other matters affecting the validity or proprietorship of patents as may be prescribed.

(2) The register of inventions and address-book existing at the commencement of this Act shall be incorporated with, and form part of, the register of patents under this Act.

(3) The register of patents shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be inserted therein.

(4) Copies of deeds, licences and any other documents affecting the proprietorship in any patent or in any licence thereunder, must be supplied to the Controller in the prescribed manner for filing in the Patent Office [2][* * *].

Crown.

Patent to bind Crown.

21. [3][(1) Subject to the other provisions of this section, a patent shall have to all intents the like effect as against His Majesty the King as it has against a subject.

(2) The officers or authorities administering any department of the service of His Majesty may, by themselves or by such of their agents, contractors or others as may be authorized in writing by them, at any time after the application, and after giving notice to the applicant or patentee, make, use or exercise the invention for the service of the Crown on such terms as may, either before or after the use thereof, be agreed on, with the approval of the Central Government, between such officers or authorities and the applicant or patentee, or, in default of agreement, as may be settled in the manner hereinafter provided. And the terms of any agreement or licence concluded between the applicant or patentee and any person other than such officers or authorities, shall be inoperative so far as concerns the making, use or exercise of the invention for the service of the Crown.

behalf of, the officers or authorities administering any department of the service of His Majesty (such invention not having been communicated directly or indirectly by the applicant or patentee), such officers or authorities, or such of their agents, contractors, or others as may be authorized in writing by them, may, after giving notice to the applicant or patentee, make, use or exercise the invention so recorded or tried for the service of the Crown, free of any royalty or other payment to the applicant or patentee, notwithstanding the existence of the patent. If, in the opinion of such officers or authorities, the disclosure to the applicant or patentee, as the case may be, of the document recording the invention, or the evidence of the trial thereof, if required, would be detrimental to the public interest, it may be made confidentially to counsel on behalf of the applicant or patentee, or to any independent expert mutually agreed upon.

(4) In the event of any dispute as to the making, use or exercise of an invention under this section, or the terms therefor, or as to the existence or scope of any record or trial as aforesaid, the matter shall be referred to the High Court for decision, who shall have power to refer the whole matter or any question or issue of fact arising thereon to be tried before a special or official referee or an arbitrator upon such terms as it may direct. The Court, referee or arbitrator, as the case may be, may, with the consent of the parties, take into consideration the validity of the patent for the purposes only of the reference and for the determination of the issues between the applicant or patentee and such officers or authorities. The Court, referee or arbitrator, further, in settling the terms as aforesaid, shall be entitled to take into consideration any benefit or compensation which the applicant or patentee, or any other person interested in the patent, may have received directly or indirectly from the Crown or from such officers or authorities in respect of such patent:

Provided that, if the inventor or patentee is a Government servant and the subject-matter of the invention is certified by the Central Government or Provincial Government to be connected with work done in the course of such service, any such dispute shall be settled by the Central Government after hearing the applicant or patentee and any other person having an interest in the invention or patent.

(5) The right to use an invention for the services of the Crown under the provisions of this section, or any provisions for which this section is substituted, shall include, and shall be deemed always to have included, the power to sell any articles made in pursuance of such right which are no longer required for the services of the Crown.

(6) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of the Crown or of any person deriving title directly or indirectly from the Crown to sell or use any articles forfeited under any law for the time being in force relating to customs or excise.

Assignment of patent to the [1][Central Government.]

21-A. (1) The inventor of any improvement in instruments or munitions of war may (either for or without valuable consideration) assign to the [1][Central Government] on behalf of His Majesty all the benefit of the invention and of any patent obtained or to be obtained for the invention; and the [1][Central Government] may be a party to the assignment.

(2) The assignment shall effectually vest the benefit of the invention and patent in the [1][Central Government] on behalf of His Majesty, and all covenants and agreements therein contained for keeping the invention secret and otherwise shall be valid and effectual (notwithstanding any want of valuable consideration), and may be enforced accordingly by or on behalf of the [1][Central Government].

(3) Where any such assignment has been made, the Central Government may, at any time before the publication of the specification, certify to the Controller that, in the interest of the public service, the particulars of the invention and of the manner in which it is to be performed should be kept secret.

(4) If the Central Government so certify, the application and specifications, with the drawings (if any) and any amendment of the specification and any copies of such documents and drawings, shall, instead of being left in the ordinary manner at the Patent Office, be delivered to the Controller in a packet sealed by authority of the Central Government.

(5) The packet shall, until the expiration of the term during which a patent for the invention may be in force, be kept sealed by the Controller, and shall not be opened save under the authority of an order of the Central Government.

(6) The sealed packet shall be delivered at any time during the continuance of the patent to any person authorized by the Central Government to receive it, and shall, if returned to the Controller, be again kept sealed by him.

(7) On the expiration of the term of the patent, the sealed packet shall be delivered to the Central Government.

(8) Where the Central Government certifies as aforesaid after an application for a patent has been left at the Patent Office but before the publication of the specification, the application and specifications, with the drawings (if any), shall be forthwith placed in a packet sealed by authority of the Controller, and the packet shall be subject to the foregoing provisions respecting a packet sealed by authority of the Central Government.

(9) No proceeding by petition or otherwise shall lie for revocation of a patent granted for an invention in relation to which a certificate has been given by the Central Government as aforesaid.

(10) No copy of any specification or other document or drawing, by this section required to be placed in a sealed packet, shall in any manner whatever be published or open to the inspection of the public, but, save as otherwise provided in this section, the provisions of this Act shall apply in respect of any such invention and patent as aforesaid.

(11) The Central Government may at any time waive the benefit of this section with respect to any particular invention, and the specifications, documents and drawings shall be thenceforth kept and dealt with in the ordinary way.

(12) The communication of any invention for any improvement in instruments or munitions of war to [2][* * ] the Central Government or to any person or persons authorized by [2][ * *] the Central Government to investigate the same or the merits thereof, shall not, nor shall anything done for the purposes of the investigation, be deemed use or publication of such invention so as to prejudice the grant or validity of any patent for the same.]

Compulsory Licences and Revocation.

Compulsory licences and revocation.

22. (1) Any person interested may present a petition to the Central Government, which shall be left at the Patent Office, together with the prescribed fee, alleging that [3][the demand for a patented article in British India is not being met to an adequate extent and on reasonable terms], and praying for the grant of a compulsory licence, or, in the alternative, for the revocation of the patent.

LEG. REF.

[1] Substituted for the words "Secretary of State for India in Council" by A.O., 1937.

[2] The words "the Secretary of State for India in Council or" omitted by Act XXXIV of 1939.

[3] In sub-s. (1) for the words "the reasonable requirements of the public with respect to a patented invention have not been satisfied" the words "the demand for a patented article in British India is not being met to an adequate extent and on reasonable terms" have been substituted by Act VII of 1930, S. 16.

(2) The Central Government shall consider the petition, and if the parties do not come to an arrangement between themselves, the Central Government may, as [1][it] thinks fit, either dispose of the petition [1][itself] or refer it to a High Court for decision.

(3) The provisions of sub-section (4) of section 15, prescribing the procedure to be followed in the case of references to the Court under that section, shall apply in the case of references made to the Court under this section.

(4) If the Central Government is of opinion or where a reference has been made under sub-section (2) to a High Court, that Court finds that [2][the demand for the patented article in British India is not being met to an adequate extent and on reasonable terms] the patentee may be ordered to grant licences on such terms as the Central Government or the High Court, as the case may be, may think just, or, if the Central Government or the High Court is of opinion that [2][the demand will not be adequately met] by the grant of licences, the patent may be revoked by order of the Central Government or the High Court:

Provided that an order of revocation shall not be made before the expiration of four years from the date of the patent, or if the patentee gives satisfactory reasons for his default.

(5) For the purposes of this section [3][the demand for a patented article shall not be deemed to have been met to an adequate extend and on reasonable terms]—

(a) If by reason of the default of the patentee to manufacture to an adequate extent and supply on reasonable terms the patented article or any parts thereof which are necessary for its efficient working, or to carry on the patened process to an adequate extent or to grant licences on reasonable terms, any existing trade or industry or the establishment of any new trade or industry in British India is unfairly prejudiced, [4][* * *]; or

(b) If any trade or industry in British India is unfairly prejudiced by the conditions attached by the patentee [5][* * *] to the purchase, hire or use of the patented article or to the using or working of the patented process.

(6) [Omitted by Act VII of 1930.]

Revocation of patents worked outside British India.

23. (1) At any time not less than four years after the date of a patent granted under this Act, any person may apply to the Central Government [6][for relief under this section] on the ground that the patented article or process is manufactured or carried on exclusively or mainly outside British India.

(2) The Central Government shall consider the application, and, if after inquiry, [1][it] is satisfied—

(a) that the allegations contained therein are correct; and

(b) that the applicant is prepared, and is in a position, to manufacture, or carry on the patented article or process in British India; and

[5]In cl. (b) the words "before or after the commencement of this Act" have been omitted by Act VII of 1930.

[6]In sub-s. (1), S. 23, for the words "for the revocation of the patent" the words "for relief under this section" shall be substituted by Act VII of 1930.

(c) that the patentee refuses to grant a licence on reasonable terms, then, subject to the provisions of this section, and unless the patentee proves that the patented article or process is manufactured or carried on to an adequate extent in British India, or gives satisfactory reasons why the article or process is not so manufactured or carried on, the Central Government may make an order

[1][(a)] revoking the patent either—

(3) No order revoking a patent shall be made under the last sub-section which is at variance with any treaty, convention, arrangement or engagement with any foreign country or British possession.

(4) The Central Government may, on the application of the patentee, extend the time limited in any order made under sub-section (2), clause (ii), for such period not exceeding two years as [2][it] may specify in a subsequent order or revoke any order made under sub-section (2), clause (ii), or any subsequent order if sufficient cause is in his opinion shown by the patentee.

[4]Sec. 26, sub-sec. (1) substituted by Act XII of 1939.

NOTES.

Sec. 26.—"Utility, novelty and invention"—Meaning of. See 53 C. 306=1926 C. 152. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 478=1938 Bom. 347; 1940 Pesh. 38. It is quite competent to a petitioner in revocation proceedings to contend under the provisions of S. 26 (1) (b) that an invention claimed by the patentees is neither a novelty nor a patentable invention and thus, in effect, to raise the whole question as one of subject-matter. 43 C.W.N. 697. A bona fide and substantial, allegation of any of the grounds specified in S. 26 (2) (b) would be sufficient to give a petitioner an initial locus standi to present a petition for revocation of a patent even in the absence of the authority of the Advocate-General. A person qualified under S. 26 (2) (b) is not, however,

(a) that the invention has been the subject of a valid prior grant of a patent in British India;

(b) that the true and first inventor or his legal representative or assign was not the applicant, or one of the applicants for the patent;

(c) that the patent was obtained in fraud of the rights of the person applying for the revocation or of any person under or through whom he claims;

(d) that the invention was not, at the date of the patent, a manner of new manufacture or improvement;

(e) that the invention does not involve any inventive step, having regard to what was known or used prior to the date of the patent;

(f) that the invention is of no utility;

(g) that the specification does not sufficiently and fairly describe and ascertain the nature of the invention and the manner in which the invention is to be performed;

(h) that the specification does not sufficiently and clearly ascertain the scope of the invention claimed;

(i) that the patent was obtained on a false suggestion or representation;

(j) that the primary or intended use or exercise of the invention is contrary to law;

(k) that the patentee has contravened, or has not complied with, the conditions contained in the patent;

(l) that the specification does not disclose the best method of performance of the invention known to the applicant for the patent at the time when the specification was left at the Patent Office;

(m) that prior to the date of the patent, the patentee or other persons (not being authorities administering any department of the service of His Majesty, or the agents or contractors of, or any other persons authorised in that behalf by, the Central Government) secretly worked the invention on a commercial scale (and not merely by way of reasonable trial or experiment) in British India, and thereby made direct or indirect profits in excess of such amount as the Court may in consideration of all the circumstances of the case deem reasonable:

Provided that this sub-section shall have effect in relation to the ground of revocation specified—

(i) in clause (b), subject to the provisions of section 78-A, or

(ii) in clause (d), subject to the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 13, sub-section (2) of section 21, section 38 and section 40.]

(2) A petition for revocation of a patent may be presented—

(a) by the Advocate-General or any person authorized by him; or

(b) by any person alleging—

(i) that the patent was obtained in fraud of his rights or of the rights of any person under or through whom he claims; or

(ii) that he, or any person under or through whom he claims, was the true and first inventor of any invention included in the claim of the patentee; or

(iii) that he, or any person under or through whom he claims an interest in any trade, business or manufacture, had publicly manufactured, used or sold, within British India, before the date of the patent, anything claimed by the patentee as his invention.

confined to the grounds of invalidity giving him his locus to present the petition. He may also rely on other grounds, namely, those set forth in S. 26 (1) of the Act. 43 C.W.N. 697.

Secs. 26 and 28.—The onus lies heavily on the petitioner to show that the respondent is not the true and first inventor of the invention. 74 P.W.R. 1915=29 I.C. 904. See also 10 C.W.N. 985; 17 A. 490.

(3) The High Court may, irrespective of any provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in this behalf, require any person, other than the Advocate-General or any person authorized by him, applying for the revocation of a patent, to give security for the payment of all costs incurred or likely to be incurred by any person appearing to oppose the petition.

Notice of proceedings to persons interested.

27. (1) Notice of any petition for revocation of a patent under section 26 shall be served on all persons appearing from the register to be proprietors of that patent or to have shares or interests therein, and it shall not be necessary to serve the notice on any other person.

(2) The notice shall be deemed to be sufficiently served if a copy thereof is sent by post in a registered letter directed to the person and place for the time being stated in the register.

Framing issue for trial before other courts.

28. (1) A High Court may, if it thinks fit, direct an issue for the trial, before itself or any other High Court, or any District Court, of any question arising upon a petition to itself under section 26, and the issue shall be tried accordingly.

(2) If the issue is directed to another High Court, the finding shall be certified by that Court to the High Court directing the issue.

(3) If the issue is directed to a District Court, the finding of that Court shall not be subject to appeal, but the evidence taken upon the trial shall be recorded, and a copy thereof, certified by the Judge of the Court, shall be transmitted, together with any remarks which he may think fit to make thereon, to the High Court directing the issue, and the High Court may thereupon act upon the finding of the District Court, or dispose of the petition upon the evidence recorded, or direct a new trial, as the justice of the case may require.

Suits for infringement of patents.

29. (1) A patentee may institute a suit in a District Court having jurisdiction to try the suit against any person who, during the continuance of a patent acquired by him under this Act in respect of an invention, makes, sells or uses the invention without his licence, or counterfeits it, or imitates it:

NOTES.

Sec. 27.—In a suit by an unregistered assignee of a patent for infringement of patent rights, the Patna High Court gave judgment against the plaintiff and purported, in respect of a counter-claim made by the defendant, to revoke the patent. In view of this judgment, the Controller entered in the Register of Patents a note to the effect that the patent was revoked. The petitioner who was the original patentee and who had no notice of and was not made a party to the suit applied to the Controller in Calcutta to expunge that entry. On a reference by the Controller to the Calcutta High Court, held, that entry which was obviously to the detriment of the petitioner should be expunged from the record and that the renewal fee in respect of the patent offered by the petitioner should be accepted by the Controller on the basis of the validity of the patent granted to him. 41 C.W.N. 603=1937 Cal. 365=I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 230.

Sec. 29.—Under the Act of 1883 a defendant in an action for infringement is allowed to set up by way of defence all the grounds on which the grant of a patent could be opposed. See 27 I.C. 996=27 M.L.J. 573. Grounds that can be pleaded as defence under the Act of 1911, cannot be pleaded in a suit instituted before the Act. 27 M.L.J. 573. Novelty and prior user as defence. See 18 L.W. 141=28 C.W.N. 343=1923 P.C. 103. A patent may be infringed in several ways, one of which is by using the invention or any colourable imitation thereof in the manufacture of articles or by putting the invention in practice in any other way. A patent may sometimes be infringed by taking a part only of the invention, but that depends on whether the part for which protection is asked is a new and material part especially in the case of combination. The question of infringement is a mixed question of law and fact. The plaintiff in a patent action has got to prove that his process has been counterfeited or imitated by the defendant. It is necessary for him to give the particulars of the breaches constituting the alleged infringement of his patent rights. 37 Bom.L.R. 665. On this section, see also 26 A. 96; 12 C.W.N. 446; 4 A.L.J. 11. An assignee of a patent who has not registered the assignment under S. 63 of the Patents and Designs Act is not a patentee within the meaning of S. 2 (12) of that Act, and has, therefore, no right to bring any suit for infringement of patent

[1][Provided that where a counter claim for revocation of the patent is made by the defendant, the suit, along with the counter claim, shall be transferred to the High Court for decision.]

(2) Every ground on which a patent may be revoked under [2][section 26] shall be available by way of defence to a suit for infringement.

Exemption of innocent infringer from liability for damages.

30. A patentee shall not be entitled to recover any damages in respect of any infringement of a patent granted after the commencement of this Act from any defendant who proves that at the date of the infringement he was not aware, nor had reasonable means of making himself aware, of the existence of the patent, and the marking of an article with the word "patent," "patented," or any word or words expressing or implying that a patent has been obtained for the article, stamped, engraved, impressed on, or otherwise applied to the article, shall not be deemed to constitute notice of the existence of the patent unless the word or words are accompanied by the year and number of the patent:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect any proceedings for an injunction.

Order for inspection, etc., in suit.

31. In a suit for infringement of a patent, the Court may, on the application of either party, make such order for an injunction, inspection or account, and impose such terms and give such directions respecting the same and the proceedings thereon, as the Court may see fit.

Certificate of validity questioned and costs thereon.

32. In a suit for infringement of a patent the Court may certify that the validity of the patent came in question, and if the Court so certifies, then in any subsequent suit in that Court for infringement of the same patent the plaintiff, on obtaining a final order or judgment in his favour, shall, unless the Court trying the suit otherwise directs, have his full costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the said suit properly incurred.

Transmission of decrees and orders to the Controller.

33. A Court making a decree in a suit under section 29 or an order on a petition under section 26 shall send a copy of the decree or order, as the case may be, to the Controller, who shall cause an entry thereof and reference thereto to be made in the register of patents.

Power of High Court to stay proceedings, etc.

34. A High Court to which a petition has been presented under section 26 may stay proceedings on or dismiss the petition if in its opinion the petition would be disposed of more justly or conveniently by another High Court.

Hearing with assessor.

35. (1) In a suit or proceeding for infringement or revocation of a patent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, and shall on the request of [3][all] the parties to the proceedings, call in the aid of an assessor specially qualified, and try the case wholly or partially with his assistance.

(2) A Court exercising appellate jurisdiction in respect of such suit or proceeding may, if it thinks fit, call in the aid of an assessor as aforesaid.

(3) The remuneration, if any, to be paid to an assessor under this section shall in every case be determined by the Court and be paid by it as part of the expenses of the execution of this Act.

Grant of relief in respect of particular claims.

[1][35-A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 19, if the Court in any action for infringement of a patent finds that any one or more of the claims in the specification in respect of which the infringement is alleged, are valid, it may, subject to its discretion as to costs and as to the date from which damages should be reckoned and to such terms as to amendment as it may deem desirable, grant relief in respect of any of such claims which are infringed without regard to the invalidity of any other claim in the specification. In exercising such discretion the Court may take into consideration the conduct of the parties in inserting such invalid claims in the specification or permitting them to remain there.]

Remedy in case of groundless threats of legal proceedings.

36. Where, any person claiming [2][to have an interest in a patent] by circulars, advertisements or otherwise, threatens any other person with any legal proceedings or liability in respect of any alleged infringement of the patent, any person aggrieved thereby may bring a suit against him in a District Court having jurisdiction to try the suit, and may obtain an injunction against the continuance of such threats, and may recover such damage (if any) as he has sustained thereby, if the alleged infringement to which the threats related was not in fact an infringement of [2][the patent]:

[3][Provided that this section shall not apply if an action for infringement of the patent is commenced and prosecuted with due diligence].

Miscellaneous.

Grant of patents to two or more persons.

37. Where, after the commencement of this Act, a patent is granted to two or more persons jointly, they shall, unless otherwise specified in the patent, be treated for the purpose of the devolution of the legal interest therein as joint tenants, but subject to any contract to the contrary, each of such persons shall be entitled to use the invention for his own profit without accounting to the others, but shall not be entitled to grant a licence without their consent, and, if any such person dies, his beneficial interest in the patent shall devolve on his legal representatives.

Public use or knowledge of invention:

[4][38. The public use or knowledge of an invention in British India before the date of the application for a patent thereon shall not invalidate the patent granted thereon if the knowledge has been obtained surreptitiously or in fraud of the true and first inventor or his legal representative or assign or has been communicated to the public in fraud of such inventor or his legal representative or assign or in breach of confidence:

[3]For the old proviso to S. 36 the new proviso has been substituted by Act VII of 1930.

[4]S. 38 substituted by Act XII of 1939.

NOTES.

Sec. 38: SCOPE—PUBLIC AND PRIVATE USER.—S. 38 of the Act distinguishes clearly between public user and private user. Whether a process has been publicly used or not is a question of fact. 36 Bom.L.R. 881=1934 B. 407=153 I. C. 481. Under S. 38, if an article manufactured under a secret process is of such a character that no one by examining it can find out the secret of that manufacture, then the sale of that article in public cannot amount to public user of the process. Public user does not mean use by the public but use in a public manner and not secretly. Public user which would invalidate an invention or rather on account of which an invention shall not be treated as a new invention Provided that such inventor or his legal representative or assign has not acquiesced in the public use of his invention, and that he applies for a patent within six months after the commencement of such use].

Loss or destruction of patent.

39. If a patent is lost or destroyed, or its non-production is accounted for to the satisfaction of the Controller, the Controller may at any time, on payment of the prescribed fee, seal a duplicate thereof.

Provisions as to exhibitions and readings before learned societies.

[1][40. The exhibition of an invention at an industrial or other exhibition to which the provisions of this section have been extended by the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette, or the publication of any description of the invention during the period of the holding of the exhibition, or the use of the invention for the purpose of the exhibition in the place where the exhibition is held, or the use of the invention or the publication of any description thereof, during or after the period of the holding of the exhibition, by any person elsewhere without the privity or consent of the inventor or the reading of a paper by an inventor before a learned society, or the publication of that paper in the society's transactions shall not prejudice the right of the inventor to apply for and obtain a patent in respect of the invention, or the validity of any patent granted on the application:

NOTES.

must be the use of the invention in public. 1934 Bom. 407.

SECRET USE OF INVENTION—RIGHT TO PATENT.—When there has been no more than a secret use of the invention by the inventor with a view to taking out a patent or the manufacture for the inventor and under injunctions as to secrecy by a manufacturer, the patent will be good. But this will not be the case where the secret process has been used for profit or where the invention was communicated to a third person in a manner which both in law and in equity allowed him to do what he liked with the invention. S. 38 allows a secret user for a reasonable profit. 1934 B. 407.

PATENT—ESSENTIALS OF VALIDITY—PUBLIC USER AND PRIVATE USER—DISTINCTION.—The two features necessary to the validity of a patent are novelty and utility, but the real test is the novelty of the invention. Novelty is essential, for otherwise there would be no benefit to the public and consequently no consideration moving from the patentee. A plea of want of novelty also includes the plea of want of subject-matter. Under S. 38, there must be an absence of prior publication or of prior public user; and if the user is secret or experimental, the profits made by the inventor from his invention must not be excessive. There is a distinction under the section between public user and private user as also between public user of the invention by working it commercially, and public user of the invention from the point of view of publication. The public user of the invention for purposes of trade may, in certain cases, defeat a patent for want of novelty quite apart from the question of publication. It is also clear that, if the public has once become possessed of the knowledge of the invention before the date of the application, no patent subsequently granted is valid. 37 Bom.L.R. 665=1936 B. 99

PUBLIC USER OR PUBLICATION—WHAT CONSTITUTES.—Public user does not mean a user or exercise of the invention by the public, but a user or exercise in a public manner, and that is a question of fact. If the invention is being put into practice before and at the date of the grant, the grant will not be for a new invention or manufacture, whether the invention is being practised by the patentee himself or by others. A use of the invention for purposes of trade may constitute a prior user invalidating the patent, and a prior public sale of goods or articles treated according to the invention is a public user, the sale being strong evidence of the user being commercial and not experimental. But to constitute evidence of public user, the sale must be open and in the ordinary way of business. The publication of an invention by sale of the articles treated by it for purposes of trade by the patentee or by others may constitute a prior user even if there is no publication. 37 Bom.L.R. 665=1936 B. 99.

EXPERIMENTAL USER—USER FOR PROFIT—DISTINCTION—EXCESSIVE PROFITS—TEST.—A prior user might be of an experimental nature, i.e., what was genuinely necessary for the inventor to satisfy himself as to the practicability of his invention. If it exceeds such limits and is carried on for profits, such user will defeat the subsequent patent. But a distinction has to be drawn between the use of an invention for profit and the carrying out of experiments which turn out succesful and only incidentally bring in profit to the inventor. There is no test or authority laying down the limit beyond which the profits made by the inventor out of his invention are deemed excessive. It is the inventor's profit alone that has to be considered. 37 Bom.L.R. 665. Where the designs in ques-

Provided that—

(a) the exhibitor exhibiting the invention or the inventor reading the paper or authorising the publication thereof, as the case may be, gives to the Controller previous notice in the prescribed form; and

(b) the application for a patent is made before or within six months from the date of first exhibiting the invention or of the reading of the paper, as the case may be, or when it has not been so read, of the said publication].

Models to be furnished to Indian Museum.

41. The trustee of the Indian Museum may at any time require a patentee to furnish them with a model or sample of his invention on payment to the patentee of the cost of the manufacture of the model or sample, the amount to be settled, in case of dispute by the Central Government.

Foreign vessels in British Indian waters.

42. (1) A patent shall not prevent the use of an invention for the purposes of the navigation of a foreign vessel within the jurisdiction of any Court in British India, or the use of an invention in a foreign vessel within that jurisdiction, provided it is not used therein for or in connection with the manufacture or preparation of anything intended to be sold in or exported from British India.

(2) This section shall not extend to vessels of any foreign State of which the laws do not confer corresponding rights with respect to the use of inventions in British vessels while in the ports of that State, or in the waters within the jurisdiction of its Courts.

PART II.

DESIGNS.

Registration of Designs.

Application for registration of designs.

43. (1) The Controller may, on the application of any person claim to be the proprietor of any new or original design not previously published in British India, register the design under this Part.

(2) The application must be made in the prescribed form, and must be left at the Patent Office in the prescribed manner and must be accompanied by the prescribed fee.

(3) The same design may be registered in more than one class, and, in case of doubt as to the class in which a design ought to be registered, the Controller may decide the question.

(4) The Controller may, if he thinks fit, refuse to register any design presented to him for registration; but any person aggrieved by any such refusal may appeal to the Central Government.

NOTES.

tion had been in use in the locality from long before the date when the registration of the patent was applied for by the plaintiff and it is not possible to say that those designs were new or original, the plaintiff is not entitled to the protection under the Act. 77 I.C. 517= 1922 A. 496. A combination of materials would not be entitled to protection, unless it was a combination of a charcter which involved the exercise of any special inventive power or had some originality about it. 1922 All. 496.

Sec. 43: NEW OR ORIGINAL.—There may be novelty in applying what was an old thing to a new use. 45 C. 606=48 I.C. 437=23 C.W. N. 580.

The test of novelty is the eye of the judge. He must place the two designs side by side and see whether one for which novelty is claimed is new. 45 C. 606. See also 53 C. 306=1926 C. 152.

Secs. 43 and 53: EFFECT OF REGISTRATION—SUIT FOR INFRINGEMENT—PLEA IN DEFENCE THAT DESIGN IS NEITHER NEW NOR ORIGINAL.—No registration under S. 43 is effective, unless the design or configuration sought to be protected is new and original and not of a pre-existing common type. In a suit for damages for infringement of a registered design under S. 53, the defendant can be allowed to raise in defence a plea that the design is neither new nor original. 151 I.C. 362=1934 L. 709.

(5) An application which, owing to any default or neglect on the part of the applicant, has not been completed so as to enable registration to be effected within the prescribed time shall be deemed to be abandoned.

(6) A design when registered shall be registered as of the date of the application for registration.

Registration of designs in new classes.

44. Where a design has been registered in one or more classes of goods, the application of the proprietor of the design to register it in some one or more other classes shall not be refused, nor shall the registration thereof be invalidated—

(a) on the ground of the design not being a [1][new or original design], by reason only that it was so previously registered; or

(b) on the ground of the design having been previously published in British India, by reason only that it has been applied to goods of any class in which it was so previously registered:

[1][Provided that such subsequent registration shall not extend the period of copyright in the design beyond that arising from previous registration.]

Certificate of registration.

45. (1) The Controller shall grant a certificate of registration to the proprietor of the design when registered.

(2) The Controller may, in case of loss of the original certificate, or in any other case in which he deems it expedient, furnish one or more copies of the certificate.

Register of Designs.

46. (1) There shall be kept at the Patent Office a book called the Register of Designs, wherein shall be entered the names and addresses of proprietors of registered designs, notifications of assignments and of transmissions of registered designs, and such other matters as may be prescribed.

(2) The register of designs existing at the commencement of this Act shall be incorporated with, and form part of, the register of designs under this Act.

(3) The register of designs shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be entered therein.

LEG. REF.

[1] In cl. (a) of S. 44, for the words "new and original design" the words "new or original design" have been substituted; and after clause (b) the proviso has been newly added by Act VII of 1930.

NOTES.

Secs. 45, 43 and 46.—A certificate of registration, issued by the controller under S. 45 (1) of the Act to the proprietor of a design when registered, is not final and conclusive. There is only a prima facie presumption that the person whose name is registered as the proprietor is the proprietor of a new or original design, but the presumption can be rebutted. The certificate is not conclusive, and there is nothing in the Act which prevents the defendant in a suit for damages for infringement of a registered design under S. 53 of the Act from raising in defence the plea that the design was previously published and was neither new nor original. The onus is of course on the defendant who seeks to go behind the certificate of registration to show that the plaintiff is not the proprietor of the registered design in question. 43 Bom.L.R. 280 =1941 Bom. 188.

Sec. 46 (3): PERSON ENTERED AS PROPRIETOR —EVIDENTIARY VALUE.—Where a person is entered as a proprietor of registered design, there is not under the Act conclusive proof from the entry that the plaintiff is the proprietor of the design but that is prima facie evidence that he is the proprietor. The plaintiff, in a suit for injunction and damages for infringement of registered design, has therefore the advantage that, if no evidence at all is given, then the certificate is sufficient evidence that he is the proprietor. 56 A. 1032=1934 A.L.J. 664 =1934 A. 798. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 280=1941 Bom. 188.

Copyright in registered Designs.

Copyright on registration.

47. (1) When a design is registered, the registered proprietor of the design shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, have copyright in the design during five years from the date of registration.

(2) If [1][* * *] before the expiration of the said five years application for the extension of the period of copyright is made to the Controller in the prescribed manner the Controller shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, extend the period of copyright for a second period of five years from the expiration of the original period of five years.

(3) If [1][* * *] before the expiration of such second period of five years application for the extension of the period of copyright is made to the Controller in the prescribed manner, the Controller may, subject to any rules under this Act, on payment of the prescribed fee, extend the period of copyright for a third period of five years from the expiration of the second period of five years.

Requirements before delivery on sale.

48. (1) Before delivery on sale of any articles to which a registered design has been applied, the proprietor shall—

(a) (if exact representations or specimens were not furnished on the application for registration), furnish to the Controller the prescribed number of exact representations or specimens of the design; and, if he fails to do so, the Controller may erase his name from the register, and thereupon the copyright in the design shall cease; and

(b) cause each such article to be marked with the prescribed mark, or with the prescribed words or figures, denoting that the design is registered; and, if he fails to do so, the proprietor shall not be entitled to recover any penalty or damages in respect of any infringement of his copyright in the design unless he shows that he took all proper steps to ensure the marking of the article, or unless he shows that the infringement took place after the person guilty thereof knew or had received notice of the existence of the copyright in the design.

(2) Where a representation is made to the Central Government by or on behalf of any trade or industry that in the interests of the trade or industry it is expedient to dispense with or modify as regards any class or description of articles any of the requirements of this section as to marking, the Central Government may, if [2][it] thinks fit by rule under this Act, dispense with or modify such requirements as regards any such class or description of articles to such extent and subject to such conditions as [2][it] thinks fit.

Effect of disclosure on copyright.

49. The disclosure of a design by the proprietor to any other person, in such circumstances as would make it contrary to good faith for that other person to use or publish the design, and the disclosure of a design in breach of good faith by any person other than the proprietor of the design, and the acceptance of a first and confidential order for goods bearing a new or original textile design intended for registration, shall not be deemed to be a publication of the design sufficient to invalidate the copyright thereof if registration thereof is obtained subsequently to the disclosure or acceptance.

Inspection of registered designs.

50. (1) During the existence of copyright in a design or such shorter period not being less than two years from the registration of the design as may be prescribed, the design shall not be open to inspection except by the proprietor or a person authorized in writing by him, or a person authorised by the Contoller or by the Court, and furnishing such information as may enable the Controller to identify the design, and shall not be open to the inspection of any person except in the presence of the Controller, or of an officer acting under him, and on payment of the prescribed fee; and the person making the inspection shall not be entitled to take any copy of the design, or of any part thereof:

Provided that, where registration of a design is refused on the ground of identity with a design already registered, the applicant for registration shall be entitled to inspect the design so registered.

(2) After the expiration of copyright in a design, or such shorter period as aforesaid, the design shall be open to inspection, and copies thereof may be taken by any person on payment of the prescribed fee.

(3) Different periods may be prescribed under this section for different classes of goods.

Information as to existence of copyright.

51. On the request of any person furnishing such information as may enable the Controller to identify the design, and on payment of the prescribed fee, the Controller shall inform such person whether the registration still exists in respect of the design, and, if so, in respect of what classes of goods; and shall state the date of registration, and the name and address of the registered proprietor.

Cancellation of registration.

[1][51-A. (1) Any person interested may present a petition for the cancellation of the registration of a design,

(a) at any time after the registration of the design, to the High Court on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(i) that the design has been previously registered in British India, or

(ii) that it has been published in British India prior to the date of registration; or

(iii) that the design is not a new or orginal design; or

(b) within one year from the date of the registration, to the Controller on either of the grounds specified in sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of Clause (a).

(2) An appeal shall lie from any order of the Controller under this section to the High Court, and the Controller may at any time refer any such petition to the High Court, and the High Court shall decide any petition so referred.

Registration of designs to bind the Crown.

51-B. The provisions of section 21 shall apply to registered designs as if those provisions were re-enacted herein and in terms made applicable to registered designs.]

Industrial and International Exhibitions.

Provisions as to exhibitions.

[2][52. The exhibition of a design or of any article to which a design is applied, at an industrial or other exhibition to which the provisions of this section have been extended by the Central Government by notification in the official Gazette, or the publication of a description of the design, during the period of the holding of the exhibition or the exhibition of the design or the article or the publication of a description of the design by any person elsewhere during or after the period of the holding of the exhibition, without the privity or consent

Provided that—

Legal Proceedings.

Piracy of registered design.

53. (1) During the existence of copyright in any design it shall not be lawful for any person—

NOTES.

Sec. 53.—The equitable remedies in respect of an infringement of a design are not excluded by the statute, and in a suit for relief on the ground of infringement, the plaintiff is therefore entitled to ask for delivery up of the goods with the infringing trade mark to him for destruction. 41 Bom.L.R. 45=1939 Bom. 103. S. 53 is self-contained in itself, and the two parts of S. 53 (2) are clearly disjunctive. A proprietor of a registered design who sues under S. 53 in respect of a fraudulent or obvious imitation of his registered design, is bound to elect under the section between his claim for damages along with the injunction and the payment of the sum of Rs. 1000 which is the maximum amount recoverable. The plaintiff must make his election before the final hearing of suit. 38 Bom.L.R. 823=1936 B. 408=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 215. "Registered proprietor," meaning of. See 1934 A.L.J. 664=1934 A. 798, cited under sec. 2 (14), supra. "Court" in sec. 53 must refer to the District Court. 1940 Pesh. 19. Sec. 53 creates three separate acts which are unlawful. The first is to apply the design in the way described; the second is to do anything with a view to enable the design to be applied in the way described in the statement of the first of the offences and the third is to expose or cause to be exposed for sale the article under the conditions specified under head (b). The acts referred to in the Patents and Designs Act must, in order to constitute offences under the Act, be committed in British India. 40 Bom.L.R. 661=1938 Bom. 413. It is not necessary, in order to entitle a plaintiff to relief on the ground of infringement of copyright in design, that the infringing design should be an exact copy or reproduction of the registered design. The words "fraudulent or obvious imitation" ought not to be construed as meaning exact reproduction. 41 Bom.L.R. 45=1939 Bom. 103. Under sec. 53 (1) (a) it is not the application that has to be fraudulent, but the imitation should be considered as "fraudulent or obvious" or not. A person is entitled to sue the infringer as soon as the latter causes the design to be applied to his goods and imports the same for sale in British India, though the design is actually applied to the goods in a country outside British India. 41 Bom.L.R. 45=1939 Bom. 103. The question of actual damage must always be seriously considered when allotting penalties for the various offences under this section. 1933 R. 240. It is not necessary in a notice under sec. 53 (2) (b) warning the defendants of their liability that the words of the statute should be rigidly followed. It is enough if the defendants are not under any misapprehension when they receive the notice. 1933 R. 240. Suit for infringement of registration—Plea in defence that design is neither new nor original can be taken. 35 P.L.R. 731=1934 L. 709; 1934 A.L.J. 664=56 A. 1032=1934 A. 798 (onus of proof is on defendant). The onus of proving that the defendant had knowledge of the plaintiff's rights in the registered designs in dispute or that the defendant applied or caused to be applied such designs to the articles sold by him lies on the plaintiffs. Sec. 106 of the Evidence Act has no application to the case and it cannot be said that such facts are peculiarly within the defendant's knowledge. 40 C.W.N. 938=1936 C. 493. Mere imitation is no offence unless there is an infringement of a patent or copyright or there is attempt to pass goods as goods of another dealer or manufacturer either by using a false trade mark or false description or a trade mark or description likely to deceive purchasers by a deliberate imitation of a genuine mark or description or by falsely giving out goods as the goods of some other dealers or manufacturer. 146 I.C. 1084=1933 N. 344.

COSTS.—Where in a suit for infringement of the plaintiff's copyright in certain trade marks or designs, the defendant states that he has been and is still ready and willing to give an undertaking to the plaintiff and to the Court not to deal with any goods printed with the plaintiff's designs or any obvious imitations thereof in case and for such period as the plaintiff established his copyright in the said designs, that amounts only to a conditional offer of an undertaking which the plaintiff is not bound to accept. But when the defendant goes further and abandons his denial of the plaintiff's rights and admits plaintiff's rights in the designs in question, the undertaking becomes an unconditional undertaking which the plaintiff should accept. The plaintiff should also pray for a judgment in the form of an order embodying the undertaking. If the plaintiff does not do so, but goes on with the suit, he ought not to get the costs incurred by so doing, but ought on the contrary to pay the costs of the defendant. The plaintiffs will get a decree with costs up to the date of the election to proceed with the suit. He will not be entitled to costs incurred subsequently, but

(a) for the purpose of sale to apply or cause to be applied to any article in any class of goods in which the design is registered the design or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof, except with the licence or written consent of the registered proprietor, or to do anything with a view to enable the design to be so applied; or

[1][(aa) to import for the purposes of sale, without the consent of the registered proprietor, any article belonging to the class in which the design has been registered, and having applied to it the design or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof; or]

(b) knowing that the design or any fraudulent or obvious imitation thereof has been applied to any article, [1][in any class of goods in which the design is registered] without the consent of the registered proprietor to publish or expose to be published or exposed for sale that article.

(2) If any person acts in contravention of this section, he shall be liable for every contravention,—

(a) to pay to the registered proprietor of a design a sum not exceeding five hundred rupees recoverable as a contract debt, or

(b) if the proprietor elects to bring a suit for the recovery of damages for any such contravention, and for an injunction against the repetition thereof, to pay such damages as may be awarded and to be restrained by injunction accordingly:

Provided that the total sum recoverable in respect of any one design under clause (a) shall not exceed one thousand rupees.

(3) When the Court makes a decree in a suit under sub-section (2), it shall send a copy of the decree to the Controller, who shall cause an entry thereof to be made in the register of designs.

Application of certain provisions of the Act as to patents to designs.

54. The provisions of this Act with regard to certificates of the validity of a patent, and to the remedy in case of groundless threats of legal proceedings by a patentee shall apply in the case of registered designs in like manner as they apply in the case of patents, with the substitution of references to the copyright in a design for references to a patent, and of references to the proprietor of a design for references to the patentee and of references to the design for references to the invention.

[14*th March*, 1942.

An Act to provide for the extension of the time limited by or under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, for the doing of acts thereunder.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall be in force until the termination of the present hostilities and for one year thereafter.

Power to extend time limits having regard to war circumstances.

2. (1) The Controller of Patents and Designs appointed under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, may, subject to such conditions, if any, as he thinks fit to impose, extend the time limited by or under that Act for doing any act, where he is satisfied—

(a) that the doing of the act within the time so limited was prevented by a person's being on active service or by any other cirumstances arising from the existence of the present hostilities which, in the opinion of the Controller, justify an extension of the time so limited, or

(b) that, by reason of circumstances arising from the existence of the present hostilities, the doing of the act within the time so limited would have been or would be injurious to the rights or interests of the person by or on whose behalf the act is or was to be done or to the public interest.

(2) An extension under this section of the time for doing any act—

[N.B.—Am. Act XX of 1937 and Act XXII of 1937.]

[23rd April, 1936.

An Act to regulate the payment of wages to certain classes of persons employed in industry.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the payment of wages to certain classes of persons employed in industry; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent, commencement and application.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT, 1936.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Govenment may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

(4) It applies in the first instance to the payment of wages to persons employed in any factory and to persons employed (otherwise than in a factory) upon any railway by a railway administration or, either directly or through a sub-contractor, by a person fulfilling a contract with a railway administration.

(5) The Provincial Government may, after giving three months' notice of its intention of so doing, by notification in the Official Gazette, extend the provisions of the Act or any of them to the payment of wages to any class of persons employed in any industrial establishment or in any class or group of industrial establishments.

(6) Nothing in this Act shall apply to wages payable in respect of a wage-period which, over such wage-period, average two hundred rupees a month or more.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(i) "factory" means a factory as defined in clause (j) of section 2 of the Factories Act, 1934;

(ii) "industrial establishment" means any—

(a) tramway or motor omnibus service;

(b) in industrial establishments, if there is a person responsible to the employer for the supervision and control of the industrial establishment,

(c) upon railways (otherwise than in factories), if the employer is the railway administration and the railway administration has nominated a person in this behalf for the local area concerned,

Fixation of wage-periods.

4. (1) Every person responsible for the payment of wages under section 3 shall fix periods (in this Act referred to as wage-periods) in respect of which such wages shall be payable.

(3) The [1][Provincial Government] may, by general or special order, exempt, to such extent and subject to such conditions as may be specified in the order, the person responsible for the payment of wages to persons employed upon any railway (otherwise than in a factory) from the operation of this section in respect of the wages of any such persons or class of such persons.

(4) All payments of wages shall be made on a working day.

Wages to be paid in current coin or currency notes.

6. All wages shall be paid in current coin or currency notes or in both.

Deductions which may be made from wages.

7. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 47 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, the wages of an employed person shall be paid to him without deductions of any kind except those authorised by or under this Act.

8. (1) No fine shall be imposed on any employed person save in respect of such acts and omissions on his part as the employer, with the previous approval of the Provincial Government or of the prescribed authority, may have specified by notice under sub-section (2).

(3) No fine shall be imposed on any employed person until he has been given an opportunity of showing cause against the fine, or otherwise than in accordance with such procedure as may be prescribed for the imposition of fines.

(4) The total amount of fine which may be imposed in any one wage-period on any employed person shall not exceed an amount equal to half-an-anna in the rupee of the wages payable to him in respect of that wage-period.

(5) No fine shall be imposed on any employed person who is under the age of fifteen years.

(6) No fine imposed on any employed person shall be recovered from him by instalments or after the expiry of sixty days from the day on which it was imposed.

(8) All fines and all realisations thereof shall be recorded in a register to be kept by the person responsible for the payment of wages under section 3 in such form as may be prescribed; and all such realisations shall be applied only to such purposes beneficial to the persons employed in the factory or establishment as are approved by the prescribed authority.

Explanation.—When the persons employed upon or in any railway, factory or industrial establishment are part only of a staff employed under the same management, all such realisations may be credited to a common fund maintained for the staff as a whole, provided that the fund shall be applied only to such purposes as are approved by the prescribed authority.

Deductions for absence from duty.

9. (1) Deductions may be made under clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 7 only on account of the absence of an employed person from the place or places where, by the terms of his employment, he is required to work, such absence being for the whole or any part of the period during which he is so required to work.

(2) The amount of such deduction shall in no case bear to the wages payable to the employed person in respect of the wage-period for which the deduction is made a larger proportion than the period for which he was absent bears to the total period, within such wage-period, during which by the terms of his employment, he was required to work:

Provided that, subject to any rules made in this behalf by the Provincial Government, if ten or more employed persons acting in concert absent themselves without due notice (that is to say without giving the notice which is

[1][Explanation.—For the purpose of this section, an employed person shall be deemed to be absent from the place where he is required to work if, although present in such place, he refuses, in pursuance of a stay-in-strike or for any other cause which is not reasonable in the circumstances, to carry out his work.]

(4) An Inspector may, at all reasonable hours, enter on any premises, and make such examination of any register or document relating to the calculation or payment of wages and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any person, and exercise such other powers of inspection, as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

NOTES.

Sec. 15. In the case of a factory, if a person is named as the manager of the factory under the Factories Act, then he would be liable for the amount of wages. The employer is not a proper party when there is a manager appointed. I.L.R (1939) Bom. 96=41 Bom.L.R. 1283=1940 Bom. 87. The reduction of an employee to a lower grade of pay from a higher grade for a short period is a "deduction" within the meaning of the Payment Wages Act. If an employer terminates his existing contract with his employee, but offers to re-employ him on a lower rate, there is nothing against it in the Act, and no question of deduction would arise. (a) a bona fide error or a bona fide dispute as to the amount payable to the employed person, or

(b) the occurrence of an emergency, or the existence of exceptional circumstances, such that the person responsible for the payment of the wages was unable, though exercising reasonable diligence, to make prompt payment, or

(c) the failure of the employed person to apply for or accept payment.

(4) If the authority hearing any application under this section is satisfied that it was either malicious or vexatious, the authority may direct that a penalty not exceeding fifty rupees be paid to the employer or other person responsible for the payment of wages by the person presenting the application.

(5) Any amount directed to be paid under this section may be recovered—

(a) if the authority is a Magistrate, by the authority as if it were a fine imposed by him as Magistrate, and

(b) if the authority is not a Magistrate, by any Magistrate to whom the authority makes application in this behalf, as if it were a fine imposed by such Magistrate.

Single application in respect of claims from unpaid group.

16. (1) Employed persons are said to belong to the same unpaid group if they are borne on the same establishment and if their wages for the same wage-period or periods have remained unpaid after the day fixed by section 5.

(2) A single application may be presented under section 15 on behalf or in respect of any number of employed persons belonging to the same unpaid group, and in such case the maximum compensation that may be awarded under sub-section (3) of section 15 shall be ten rupees per head.

(3) The authority may deal with any number of separate pending applications, presented under section 15 in respect of persons belonging to the same unpaid group, as a single application presented under sub-section (2) of this section, and the provisions of that sub-section shall apply accordingly.

Appeal.

17. (1) An appeal against a direction made under [1][sub-section (3) or sub-section (4)] of section 15 may be preferred, within thirty days of the date on which the direction was made, in a Presidency-town [2][* * *] before the Court of Small Causes and elsewhere before the District Court—

(c) by any person directed to pay a penalty under sub-section [(4)][1] of section 15.

(2) Save as provided in sub-section (1), any direction made under sub-section (3) or sub-section [1][(4)] of section 15 shall be final.

In the Sonthal Parganas, Reg. III of 1872, S. 3, as amended by Reg. III of 1899, S. 3; in Upper Burma (except the Shan State), Act XIII of 1898, S. 4; in British Baluchistan, Reg. II of 1913, S. 3.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill :—

"The law relating to pensions is at present distributed over nine Regulations of the Bengal, three Regulations of the Madras and two Regulations of the Bombay Codes, as well as three Acts of the Governor-General in Council. The main provision of the law as expressed in the Bengal Regulations XXIV of 1793, section 17, Reg. XXIV of 1795, section 14, Reg. XXIV of 1803, section 16 and Reg. VI of 1817, and the Madras Regulation IV of 1831; S. 2 is the reservation to Government of the right of determine all claims to the continuance of pensions, and the exclusion of the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of judicature in regard to such claims.

In the Bombay Presidency, under the operation of Regulations XXIX of 1827, and VII of 1830, the Civil Courts are barred from the cognizance of suits to enforce such claims throughout the Dekhan, Khandesh and the South Mahratta country.

The Bengal Regulations, though expressly applicable only to Bengal and the North Western Provinces, are practically in force throughout the more recently acquired provinces; hence the law as above described applies to all India, except a portion of the Bombay Presidency.

Within this excepted country, the Civil Courts have, in more than one instance, assumed jurisdiction in such cases.

The principle on which that jurisdiction is elsewhere disallowed is founded on perfectly equitable considerations and is therefore fit for uniform application. It is in effect the assertion of the right of the State to reserve to itself the power of granting or withholding at pleasure concessions which are made gratuitousiy and without consideration.

The object of the proposed legislation, therefore, is (1) to consolidate the existing law, excluding all those provisions which are either obsolete or ill-adapted for enactment in detail ; and (2) to extend the law so re-enacted to the whole of British India.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell moved for leavc to introduce a bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to pensions. He said that there was on the Statute Book at the present time a considerable number of Regulations and Acts relating to the subject. These enactments contained much that was now obsolete and much in the nature of administrative rules and instructions as to the mode of disbursing pensions which would be more conveniently and appropriately left to be put in operation by means of executive orders. The leading principle of the main provisions of the law was that as the bestowal of pensions and similar allowances was an act of grace or State policy on the part of the ruling power, the Government reserved to itself the determination of all questions affecting the grant or continuance of these allowances and the cognizance of claims relating thereto by the courts of judicature was as between the Crown and grantee, absolutely barred.

This principle governed the Law which applied specifically to the Regulation provinces of the Bengal and Madras Presidencies and which was also practically in force in the non-Regulation provinces. In some parts of the Bombay Presidency also namely the Dekhan, Khandesh and Southern Mahratta Divisions, claims against the Government in the matter of Pensionary grants and allow ances were declared to be not within the cognizance of the ordinary Courts of the judicature, but in the other parts of that presidency in the absence of any such legal restriction the courts had assumed a jurisdiction, expressly denied to them throughout the rest of British India.

It was necessary that this state of things should not be allowed to continue and that it was expedient to assimilate the law as regards this portion of the Bombay Presidency to that which prevailed in all other parts of the Empire. There were no exceptional circumstances which called for the exercise by the Civil Courts in any particular province or provinces of a jurisdiction which under the operation of a principle of universal application was not accorded to them elsewhere. The opportunity, moreover, for rectifying the omission to extend to the Bombay Presidency generally the provisions of the law regarding pensions had now arrived, the law on this subject having been specifically referred to in this council as one of the branches of the general scheme of consideration which was now in progress. The object of the present Bill therefore is to re-enact, in a consolidated form the operative provisions and to apply the consolidated enactment to the whole of British India. NOTES.

Sec. 1.—Object of Act. See 14 B. 573; 107 I. C. 899=1928 N. 189. Act must be construed strictly. 1925 O. 210. See also 10 A. 396=A. W.N. (1888) 72; 107 I.C. 899=1928 N. 189; 1939 Bom. 513=41 Bom.L.R. 882. The word "pension" in the Pensions Act, 1871 and in Civil Procedure Code, S. 60 and in the Transfer of Property Act, S. 6, implies periodical payments of money by Government to the pensioner. 58 I.A. 215=132 I.C. 727=35 C.W.N. 791=61 M.L.J. 208 (P.C.). See also 1929 A. 781. It is essential that an Officer to be entitled to pension must be in the service on the date of his retirement. An officer removed from Government service can have no claim for any pension. 2 L. W. 431=29 I.C. 252. A decree in conformity with the award which provides for the distribution in a certain manner of a pension when received from Government does not militate against the provisions of the Act. 37 B. 442=19 I.C. 882. A grant by the British Government confirming a previous grant made by the preceding rule is of such rights as the Government possessed and is excluded from the purview of the Pensions Act. 31 I.C. 728. See also 17 B. 169; 1 B. 79. The word pension has nowhere been defined but it ought to be understood in its ordinary sense as implying periodical allowance on account of past services, consideration or merit or by way of compensation to dethroned princes, their families and dependants. A grant of land revenue as such cannot be comprised in the term pension. A grant of Government revenue can in no case be treated as a political pension which is a pension granted on political considerations for reasons of State. The assignment of such grants is not prohibited by the Pensions Act. 1929 A. 781=27 A.L.J. 724. See also 61 M.L.J. 208 (P.C.). The provisions of the Act dealing with pensions and grants of land revenue in the District of Ratnagiri are not ultra vires. 59 I.C. 452=22 Bom.L.R. 1176=45 B. 196.

Sec. 3.—[See also Notes under S. 1, supra.] A sum payable by the Government as compensation for forest dues in respect of Jaghir land taken over by the Government for forest purposes is not a pension, but a grant of money or land revenue and is not exempted from attachment. 121 I.C. 664=1930 N. 134 (1).

Secs. 3 and 4: GENERAL.—The Pensions Act, which is one which tends to restrict the ordinary legal rights of the subject to have recourse to the Court for remedy of grievances is one to be strictly construed. The object of the Act was to reserve to the Government the determination of all questions affecting grants of money, the bestowal of which was an act of grace or State policy on the part of the ruling powers. 107 I.C. 899=1928 N. 189. The Pensions Act is to be construed strictly in favour of the subject. A suit relating to property which is the subject of a grant, in which the plaintiffs claim is quite independent of the grant, and in which there is no dispute as to the fact of the grant or as to its validity or as to the persons entitled under it cannot be regarded as a suit relating to a grant of land revenue within the meaning of S. 4. No certificate is necessary in the case of such a suit under S. 4. 41 Bom.L.R. 882=1939 Bom. 513. S. 4 does not require that the grant should be of the land-revenue alone in order to shut out the jurisdiction to entertain a suit relating thereto. 15 I.C. 871=23 M.L.J. 687. The nature of the grant must depend on what the Government gives and not on what may happen irrespective of the wishes of the Government. If the Government gave only the land revenue, acquisition of the lands by the pensioners does not make them grantees of immovable property. 42 A. 557=87 I.C. 569. The word "suit" does not include execution proceedings. 7 Bom.L.R. 659=30 B. 101; 16 B. 731.

[1][3-A. The expression "the appropriate Government" means, in relation to federal pensions, the Central Government, and in relation to other pensions, the Provincial Government.]

"Definition."

II.—Rights to Pensions.

4. Except as hereinafter provided, no Civil Court shall entertain any suit relating to any pension or grant of money or land-revenue conferred or made by the British or any former Government, whatever may have been the consideration for any such pension or grant, and whatever may have been the nature of the payment, claim or right for which such pension or grant may have been substituted.

See. 4 : SCOPE—JURISDICTION OF REVENUE COURT WHETHER AFFECTED.—S. 4 of the Pensions Act does not take away the jurisdiction of the Court of Revenue to entertain a suit by the transferee of the assignee of the land revenue. The jurisdiction of the Civil Court and of the Civil Court alone is limited by the terms of the expression. 27 A.L.J. 724=1929 A. 781. Where a suit is filed in the Revenue Court by an assignee of Government revenue for arrears of revenue, the District Judge hearing the revenue appeal as a Civil Court would be competent to dispose of the matter, and his jurisdiction is not barred under S. 4. 1936 A.L.J. 1281=1936 All. 666. In a suit relating to a cash allowance the non production of the Collector's certificate under S. 4 of the Pensions Act at the time of the filing the suit is not fatal. It is sufficient if it is produced even in appeal in the High Court. 37 Bom.L.R. 343=1935 B. 227. No second appeal lies to the Financial Commission from an order of the Commissioner passed on appeal from an order of the Deputy Commissioner in a proceeding relating to the succession of a jagir. The Financial Commissioner has wide powers of revision conferred by S. 16 of the Land Revenue Act. The Financial Commissioner must exercise his powers of revision in dealing with cases under these rules rather more freely than is the case in regard to mutation proceedings, for instance, which concern disputes which must eventually be decided in the Civil Courts. 20 Lah.L.T. 102.

to pay a grant of Government revenue to any person. 37 A. 338=29 I.C. 146. S. 4 is no bar to a suit to recover back possession of land in which saranjam right is resumed by the government. 41 B. 408=39 I.C. 65. Though a suit cannot be entertained without a certificate from the Collector, still even an appeal should not be rejected for want of certificate, but plaintiff should be allowed time to produce it. 82 I.C. 486. A suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of a certain share in a kulkarni vatan falls within S. 4 of the Act and is not maintainable without the certificate of the Collector. 42 B. 257=45 I.C. 580. See also 37 B. 91. The pre-requisite of filing a certificate under S. 4 is not applicable to a suit for partition of the inam among the members of the family to which it was given and it does not also apply where the grant is of land also and not merely of the land revenue. 26 I.C. 87=27 M. L.J. 618. A suit for partition of lands granted by Government on account of services rendered cannot be said to be one relating to any pension or grant of money or land revenue conferred or made by the British or any former Government; and a certificate under the Act is not necessary for the maintainability of the suit. 17 N.L.J. 118. Where certain land is granted by Government, the grant cannot be split up into two distinct grants of melwaram and kudiwaram so as to fall under S. 4 in respect of the claim for melwaram. 36 M. 559=23 M.L.J. 728. Where the grant is not one of land revenue only, but of the soil also, S. 4 does not apply and no certificate is necessary for a suit to recover assessment or land revenue of the village. 34 Bom.L.R. 1455. The plaintiff was the purchaser from a widow of an allowance computed in respect of Desaigiri Haq. He applied to the Collector to have his name entered in the register under the Watan Act but he was informed that his name had been entered only during the lifetime of the widow. He brought a suit for a declaration that he was the full owner of the allowance and not merely during the lifetime of the widow. Held, that the suit cannot be entertained without a certificate under S. 6 of the Act. 33 Bom. L.R. 1029=1931 B. 505.

Secs. 4, 5 and 6—The Pensions Act provides two methods of settling claims relating to grants of land revenue as to which the jurisdiction of Civil Courts is barred by S. 4 of that Act under S. 5 of the Act such claims may be disposed of by the revenue authorities and under S. 6 a Civil Court may take cognisance of disputes between rival claimants to the enjoyment of a grant of land revenue only if a certificate is granted by the revenue authorities that the case is one which it is appropriate that a Civil Court should try. Under R. 11 of the Punjab Pension and Revenue Assignment Rules the power of granting such a certificate is vested in the Financial Commissioner only and not in any subordinate revenue authority. It is clear, therefore, that any person who has a claim relating to any grant of land revenue other than a claim against Government direct may proceed in one of two separate ways. He may apply to the Deputy Commissioner under S. 5 of the Act for the adjudication of his claim or he may apply to the Deputy Commissioner under S. 6 or to the Financial Commissioner direct asking that the Financial Commissioner should grant a certificate that the dispute is one that may be tried by the Civil Courts. These two ways of obtaining adjudication on a claim must be regarded as alternative and it is open to a claimant to choose which of the two methods he will follow. But if both parties have acquiesced in obtaining adjudication on the merits of the case by the revenue authorities, it is inappropriate to grant a certificate which would permit the matter to be reagitated de novo in a different forum. 20 Lah.L.T. 94.

Secs 4 and 11.—The Pensions Act does not refer only to political pensions, but relates to all pensions. 161 I.C. 499=1936 L. 85. S. 11 refers merely to pensions, whereas S. 4 refers not only to pensions, but to grant of money or land revenue conferred, whatever may have been the consideration of any such grant. S. 4 is wider than S. 11 and includes matters which do not come under S. 11. 1930 A. 681. There is an obvious distinction between an assignment and a remission of land revenue. A remission of land revenue cannot be regarded as an assignment. The Government may remit a liability to pay land revenue in which case no assessment is made, but that is a very different thing from assessing a certain sum and then granting or assigning that sum to some person other than the Government. A right to lakhiraj or revenue-free land is certainly not a pension or a grant of land revenue. I.L.R. (1940) All. 603=1940 A.L.J. 420=1940 All. 373 (F.B.).

Sec. 5.—The words "any such pension or grant" clearly indicate any pension or grant of money or land revenue referred to in the preceding section. The section clearly authorises the

6. A Civil Court, otherwise competent to try the same, shall take cognizance of any such claim upon receiving a certificate from such Collector, Deputy Commissioner or other Officer authorized[1] in that behalf that the case may be so tried, but shall not make any order or decree in any suit whatever by which the liability of Government to pay any such pension or grant as aforesaid is affected directly or indirectly.

Collector, etc., to entertain a claim with reference to the grant of land revenue conferred by the former Government. The Local Government has authority to call for evidence in support of the grant and may either recognise the grant or refuse to do so. The proceeding before the officers referred to in this section is more administrative than judicial. 27 A.L.J. 724=1929 A. 781.

Secs. 5 and 6.—Ss. 5 and 6 bar a suit for a declaration against Government that the plaintiff is entitled to muafi rights in a certain mahal. 57 I.C. 156=12 L.W. 311 (P.C.). See also 1937 Pesh. 65. On these sections, see also 20 I.C. 508; 17 M.L.J. 139; 18 M. 187=5 M.L.J. 168; 1 Bom. 75. A person who wants a declaration that he is entitled to a share in a pension must apply to the Collector or Deputy Commissioner or other authorised officer under S. 5 of the Pensions Act and he cannot go to a Civil Court unless he obtains a certificate under S. 6 of the Act. 121 I.C. 417=1930 L. 795.

Sec. 6.—[See also Notes under S. 3, 4 and 5.] A Civil Court cannot take cognizance of a claim relating to a jaghir except upon a certificate of Collector or other officer. 1926 L. 333. Production of the Collector's certificate subsequent to the institution of the suit is not a sufficient compliance with the section. 1928 L. 713. S. 6 does not apply to a suit for a declaration that funeral expenses cannot be claimed to be paid out of income of a jaghir. 1922 L. 365. A suit to establish a right to collect Government revenue from the villages granted as endowment to a religious office is not maintainable in the absence of a certificate under S. 6 28 I.C. 934. If an application for grant of a certificate under S. 6 is rejected by the Collector, the proper procedure is to apply to the Commissioner for reversal of the Collector's order. But as the rules prescribe that a certificate can only be granted by the Financial Commissioner, it is not unreasonable to make an application direct to his Court. 20 Lah.L.T. 94. If a party to a dispute under the Pensions Act wishes the exceptional procedure of S. 6 to be followed, he must apply for the grant of a certificate under that section before and not after the matter has been the subject of final adjudication by the highest revenue authorities under S. 5 of the Act. In such cases, the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts is entirely barred by S. 4 of the Act, and the regular procedure for adjudication of disputes is that prescribed by S. 5. The revival of the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts provided by S. 6 on a certificate from the revenue authorities is clearly intended to be an exceptional alternative to the adjudication prescribed in S. 5, and after the parties have fought out their respective claims in the revenue forum up to the highest revenue authority it would not be correct to permit the whole matter to be reopened in the alternative forum of the Civil Courts. 20 Lah.L.T. 99. See also 20 Lah.L.T. 94. A voluntary grant was made by Government to a shrine for its maintenance but the grant was resumable by Government at its pleasure. A suit was brought for a declaration by a certain person of his right to the office of sajjadanashin of such shrine. Held, that the claim in the suit not being one for a pension or grant, no certificate was necessary as required by S. 6, Pensions Act. 1937 Pesh. 65. Saranjam inam—Suit to recover—Certificate of Collector—Failure to produce certificate—Appeal—Remand. 39 B. 352=28 I.C. 485. A suit relating to a share in an inam consisting of two-thirds of revenue is not cognizable without Collector's certificate. Where the plaintiff has not obtained the certificate, the hearing may be adjourned to enable him to produce it. 27 I.C.927=17 Bom.L.R. 153. See also 39 B. 352=28 I.C. 485; 1937 O.W.N. 1131=1937 Oudh 484. (Production of certificate subsequent to institution of suit even at the appellate stage will be sufficient under the section). A pension is ordinarily not attachable for sale in execution. 44 A. 697=1922 A. 429. A suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to get his name entered in place of the last manager of a Durga which is in receipt of a cash-allowance from the Government is not maintainable for two reasons: (1) the right of entering the names rests exclusively with the Collector, and none else; (2) the declaration entails a corresponding liability on the Government to pay and a suit to enforce it is barred by S. 6. 55 Bom. 119=32 Bom.L.R. 1420=1931 Bom. 144. A suit for a declaration of the plaintiff's rights to a share of the toda giras haq paid to the defendants by the Government is maintainable where the plaintiff has got a certificate from the Collector authorizing the suit in spite of S. 6 of the Pensions Act. The decree declaring that the plaintiff is entitled to a certain share in the cash allowance is one which does not affect the liability of the Government to pay; it only affects the plaintiff's right to share in the amount if and when Government pays it. 33 Bom.L.R. 783=1931 B. 473. In 1883 the predecessors-in-interest of the plaintiff had obtained a certificate from the Collector for instituting a suit against the defendant's predecessors and had got a decree. In 1931 the plaintiff instituted a suit Pensions for lands held under grants in perpetuity.

(1) any inam[1] of the class referred to in section 1 of Madras Act No. IV of 1862;

(2) pensions heretofore granted by Government in the territories respectively subject to the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces either wholly or in part as an indemnity for loss sustained by the resumption by a Native Government of lands held under sanads purporting to confer a right in perpetuity. Such pensions shall not be liable to resumption on the death of the recipient, but every such pension shall be capable of alienation and descent, and may be sued for and recovered in the same manner as any other property.

Commutation of pensions.

DISMISSAL OF OFFICER WHO WAS ON INVALID PENSION—SUIT FOR DECLARATION OF WRONGFUL DISMISSAL AND FOR DAMAGES.—A Police Sub-Inspector was first discharged on an invalid pension but was afterwards dismissed, with the consequence of his pension being withdrawn for misconduct prior to discharge. He sued the Secretary of State for a declaration that he was not liable to removal after his retirement and for damages. Held, the dismissal could not be considered from the point of view of its having been a breach of contract with reference to S. 96-B (i) of the Government of India Act. The dismissal had rather to be viewed as part of the order by which he had been deprived of his pension. The damages prayed for, for the breach of contract set up, could only be for the loss of pension and the Sub-Inspector was debarred by the Pensions Act from bringing any suit that might affect his right to the pension. 57 M. 857=67 M.L.J. 123.

Sec. 11.—See too S. 60, Cl. (g) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908). S. 11 is unqualified and must be strictly construed in favour of the pensioner. On the insolvency of a pensioner, therefore, the pension drawn by him for past services is not property which is available for distribution among his creditors under S. 28 (5) of the Provincial Insolvency Act; and the Insolvency Court has no power to pass an order directing the insolvent to pay to the Official Receiver any part of his pensions. 164 I.C. 747=40 C.W.N. 142. The intention behind the provisions of S. 11 is applicable equally to the commuted portion as well as to the uncommuted portion of the pension, and the language of S. 11 does not exclude from its protection the money that is due under a commutation order commuting a part of the pension. The commuted portion would be "money due or to become due on account of pension," and therefore the commuted portion of the pension due to a retired Government servant is not liable to attachment at the instance of his creditors in view of S. 11. 52 L.W. 719=1941 Mad. 207=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 782. The term 'pension' as used in the Pensions Act implies 'periodical payments of money to the pensioner.' A jaghir cannot be held to be pension within the meaning of the Pensions Act. (1931 P.C. 160, Rel. on.) I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 564=1940 Lah. 492. For the purposes of S. 11, a grant of land revenue is not a pension and is, therefore, liable to be attached in execution of a decree. 54 I. C. 331=11 L.W. 398. An assignment of revenue for services rendered was held to amount to a pension within the meaning of S. 11 and therefore not transferable under S. 12 of the Act. 1930 A. 681. In the case of grant of land revenue in a jaghir the property is not exempt from attachment either under S. 11 of the Pensions Act or under S. 60, C. P. Code. 137 I.C. 799=1932 M. 417. A pension may take the form of an assignment of land revenue such as a jaghir. Whether or no particular assignment of land revenue is a pension depends upon the circumstances of the particular case. 1930 L. 904. See also I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 564=1940 Lah. 492. Held, that a pattidari jaghir in the Ambala District cannot be regarded as a pension within the meaning of S. 11 and the jaghir income is liable to be attached by the decree-holder. Cash allowance substituted for muafi grant of land made by the Mughal Emperor is not "pension," and is alienable property. See 95 I.C. 208=24 A.L.J. 630=1926 A. 521. A political treaty pension cannot be attached in execution of decree. 62 I.C. 273. A malikana is in the nature of pension and so cannot be attached in execution. 8 A.L.J. 126=13 I.C. 194. A jaghir granted on political considerations is exempt from attachment whether or not it was granted for services rendered to the British Government. 61 I.C. 895 (L.). See also 1940 Lah. 492. S. 11 is wide enough to include cases where the property is to be sold in execution of a mortgage decree and cannot be limited to cases of simple money decrees. It draws no distinction between a case where the property is directed to be sold by a decree or is directed to be sold in pursuance of an attachment made by the order of a Court. 1935 A. 678. Muafi rights cannot be regarded as a "Pension" for the purposes of Ss. 11 and 12. 1936 A.L.J. 161=1936 A. 298. An assignment of land revenue is not a 'pension' within the meaning of Ss. 11 and 12. 1936 A.L.J. 1281=1936 All. 666.

Secs. 11 and 12.—There is nothing in the Act to exclude allowances granted by the British Government to political prisoners from its operation in cases where the British Government by some arrangement with a foreign State collects the allowance which it fixes from the foreign State. Where a Native Chief assigned his political pension to his debtor, held, that the transfer is void under Ss. 11 and 12 of the Act. 50 M. 711=1927 M. 604=52 M.L.J. 622.

Sec. 12.—Act has not a retrospective effect and no alienations made before the Pensions Act came into force are invalid under S. 12. 26 I.C. 743. See also 6 A. 630; 7 A. 886; 2 M.L.T. 33; 12 P.L.R. a declaration of his right to a share of a political pension. Permission was obtained by him under S. 6 of the Pensions Act from the Collector for this suit to be heard by the Civil Court. The suit terminated by a decree in terms of a compromise entered into by the parties. Under the compromise it was agreed that the plaintiff's predecessor and his repre sentatives were entitled to get a monthly allowance generation after generation from the defendant's predecessor and his representatives, in lieu of the plaintiff's predecessor abandoning his claim not only to his alleged share in the political pension but also to his share in the property inherited by the defendant's predecessor. In a suit by the plaintiffs against the defendants for arrears of the monthly allowance, held, by Bennet, J., that the particular part of the compromise by which the plaintiff's predecessor relinquished all his right to the pension would be null and void in view of the provisions of S. 12 of the Pensions Act, but that the compromise would still be a valid compromise as the consideration of relinquishment of right to the property was a perfectly good consideration, and that the compromise was binding on the defendants to the extent of the property in their hands left by their predecessor. Held, by Sulaiman, C. J., that the compromise decree was not hit by the provisions of S. 12 at all, as an abandonment of the claim to have the question of right to the pension tried by the Court would not in itself amount to an assignment of any share in the political pension, but merely the withdrawal of the suit in lieu of the consideration offered, and that the offer made by the plaintiff's predecessor to abandon his claim to the property as well as to the pension to which he might have been entitled when made in a pending suit which had been instituted after obtaining the certificate of the Collector and which was in every way cognizable by the Civil Court, was not unlawful or invalid, and that the compromise decree was binding on the defendants to the extent of the property devolved on them. 1935 A.L.J. 910=1935 A. 862. Explanations to Part II of the First Schedule.

Explanation 1.—In this Part of the schedule—

[1][(a) "ship" means a vessel propelled solely by wind power and "steamer" any vessel other than a ship];

(b) "coasting ship" or "coasting steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer which at any port discharges cargo exclusively from, or takes in cargo exclusively for, any port in the island of Ceylon or any part of India, between the westernmost part of Sind and the south-easternmost part of Burma; and "coasting steamer" includes a coasting steamvessel having a general pass under section 164 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878;

LEG REF.

[1] Substituted by Act Madras I of 1925, S. 2.

[1][(bb) in so far as the ports of Madras, Vizagapatam and Cochin are concerned "coasting ship" and "coasting steamer" mean, respectively, a ship or steamer which at the port of Madras, Vizagapatam or Cochin discharges cargo exclusively from, or takes in cargo exclusively for, any port in the island of Ceylon or any part of India and Burma, between the western most part of Sind and the south-eastern most part of Burma; and "coasting steamer" includes a coasting steam-vessel having a general pass under section 164 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878;]

(c) "foreign ship" or "foreign steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer not being a coasting ship or coasting steamer:

Provided that, for the purpose of the levy of port-dues, a vessel shall not be deemed, during one and the same voyage, to be both a coasting ship or steamer and a foreign ship or steamer, but port-dues shall, in respect of such voyage, be leviable on such vessel either as a coasting or as a foreign ship or steamer, whichever rate is the higher.

Explanation 2.—Ports enclosed in double brackets in the first column of the schedule shall be treated as if they were only one port; every vessel in respect of which such dues have been charged and taken at one of the bracketed ports being exempted from the payment of port-dues on entering another port bracketed with it within the period specified in the fourth column of the schedule.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Indian Post Office Bill:—

The present Post Office Act was enacted in 1866 and has been amended since that date by the addition of three sections only. In 1882, section 60-A was added by Act III of 1882 authorising any officer of the Post Office empowered in this behalf by the Governor-General in Council to search for newspapers regarding which a notification has been published under the Sea Customs Act. In 1895, Section 66 was added by Act III of that year providing powers, in accordance with the general policy of the postal union, for dealing with fictitious or previously used postage stamps of other countries found on letters or other articles received from abroad, and last year a further section was added by Act XVI of 1896 authorising the recovery of customs duty, when paid in advance by the post office in the same manner as postage under the Act. During the last 30 years, certain defects and omissions in the Act of 1866 have been brought to light and experience has shown that express provisions of law as contained in the Act in respect of various matters are not suited to the present requirements of postal work. It has also been found that further protection is needed by the post office and further powers to enable its officers for instance to deal with articles posted in contravention of the Act. Various schemes moreover which have been introduced of late years such as postal insurance and the value payable and money order systems have remained outside the provisions of the Act and now require to be based on a legislative enactment. Finally, with the development of the post office and the knowledge of the course of English postal legislation, the necessity for some new penalties has become apparent. The present Bill proposes to supply the defects and omissions which have been brought to notice in the Act of 1866 and to confer the protection and powers which have been found necessary in the extension and increase of postal business. It includes within its scope postal insurance, the value-payable post and the post office money order system and declares and limit the liability of Government in respect of these matters. The Bill is to a large extent an enabling bill reserving to Government the power of dealing by rule with numerous questions of postal practice and procedure and affecting the public. A number of the sections of the Post Office Act, 1866, have been omitted as unnecessary; the drafting of the sections retained has been in a great measure revised, and the subject-matter has been re-arranged.

NOTES.

Secs. 49 and 50.—Subordinate Magistrate can commit for offence under S. 49. See 5 B.H.C. (Cr.) 36; 3 B.H.C. (Cr.) 8. There must be a fraudulent intention in the act of the accused before he can be convicted under the above section. 19 W.R. (Cr.) 4. Alternative charges under this Act and Penal Code are not legal. See 10 I.C. 168=12 Cr.L.J. 224 (Sind).

SENTENCE.—Solitary confinement cannot be awarded as part of a sentence passed under this section. 24 P.R. 1879 (Cr.). Separate sentences for offences arising out of the same transaction are not proper. 2 Weir 454=1 M.H.C.R. 83.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—A postmaster absenting himself from the station without giving notice is guilty of an offence. 1 Weir 72. See also 1 Weir 860. A person is punishable under S. 262, I.P.Code, for using a postage stamp twice. 5 C. P.L.R. 43 (Cr.).

NON-TRACING ADDRESSEE—LIABILITY OF THE POST OFFICE.—Where the article sent was never lost in the course of transmission, but all that happened was that by reason of the label having been torn it was not possible to deliver it to the addressee, held, that S. 6 or S. 34 did not exempt the Post Office from liability. 79 I.C. 334=46 A. 455=1924 A. 692.

DISCOVERY OF POSTAL ARTICLE OUTSIDE POST OFFICE—FINDER GIVING IT BACK TO POST MASTER IN COURSE OF TRANSMISSON.—M, a servant of K, having discovered a number of letters lying in a khola opposite a post office, handed them over to his master. One of the letters was addressed to P and K took it to the addressee who stated that the letter had never been delivered to him. The matter was reported to the Post Master F, who took possession of the letters saying that he would take necessary action in the matter. No action being taken by F, the matter was reported to the PostMaster-General with the result

51. Whoever, being employed to carry or deliver any postal article in course of transmission by post and required while so employed to keep any register, makes, or causes or suffers to be made, any false entry in the register with intent to induce the belief that he has visited a place, or delivered a postal article, which he has not visited or delivered, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with both.

Penalty for making false entry in register kept by person employed to carry or deliver postal articles

52. Whoever, being an officer of the Post Office, commits theft in respect of, or dishonestly misappropriates, or, for any purpose whatsoever, secretes, destroys or throws away, any postal article in course of transmission by post or anything contained therein, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be punishable with fine.

Penalty for theft, dishonest misappropriation, secretion, destruction, or throwing away, of postal articles.

53. Whoever, being an officer of the Post Office, contrary to his duty, opens, or causes or suffers to be opened, any postal article in course of transmission by post, or wilfully detains or delays, or causes or suffers to be detained or delayed, any such postal article, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both:

Penalty for opening, detaining or delaying postal articles.

NOTES.

that F was sent up for trial. The Magistrate framed two alternate charges against him, first under S. 52, Post Office Act and the other under S. 201, Penal Code. The Magistrate found F guilty only under S. 201. It was contended that the charge framed by the Magistrate was defective and prejudiced the accused, the alternate charge was illegal and contravened the provisions of S. 236, Cr. P. Code. Held, that the first charge was not defective, as the postal articles in question were "in course of transmission by post" according to S. 3, when they were made over to F by K and, therefore, the mere fact that the letters had been posted when F was not thePost Master of the Post Office was immaterial. The framing of the charge in the alternative under S. 201 did not contravene S. 236, Cr. P. Code. 1930 L. 460.

Sec. 52.—The opening of a newspaper by a person employed in the Post Office and replacing it in its envelope, does not constitute an offence. 19 W.R. (Cr.) 4. Secreting two letters to give to the delivery peon and share with him the bearing postage. 14 M. 229=1 Weir 860. A branch Post Master who was also a dealer in goods opened an envelope containing a railway receipt addressed to him and took delivery of goods but he showed in the books of the Post Office that the letter was not delivered owing to the absence of the addressee. Some time after he paid the money due to the Post Office and entered delivery of the letter. Held, that under those circumstances the Post Master was liable to be convicted under S. 52. 8 L. 662; 1928 L. 92=109 I.C. 236. For an offence under S. 52 some contents should be extracted from the parcel and not merely examined. 1938 M.W.N. 962=1939 Mad. 283.

Secs. 52 and 53.—The respondent, a postman, was charged by the police with an offence under S. 52 for secreting two postal articles in course of transmission by post and was committed for trial by the Court of Session. There was no complaint by order or authority from the Director General of Posts and Telegraphs or Post Master General. A preliminary objection was taken that the acts also constituted an offence under S. 53 of the Act of detaining postal articles, which under S. 72 of the Act could not be taken cognizance of without such complaint. Held, that the offence under S. 52 could be taken cognizance of without any complaint and the commitment was legal. The fact that the acts also constituted a minor offence under S. 53 was no bar to the trial of the offence under S. 52 of the Act. 53 L.W. 70=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 44.

SENTENCE.—Where a Sub-Post Master of 13 years' service taking possession of the V.P.P. cover addressed to him and also of the railway receipt, obtained delivery of the goods, but in order to put off payment manipulated the register mantained in the Post Office, sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 100 was adequate punishment. 52 Mad. 534=1929 Mad. 447=56 M. L.J. 551.

EVIDENCE.—Statements made by the postman in course of departmental enquiry are not good evidence. 26 I.C. 307=16 Cr.L.J. 3. Conviction not to be based on mere suspicion. On this section, see also 2 Weir 454=1 M.H. C.R. 83.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill:—

The form of Post Office Cash Certificates contains the following inscription printed thereon: "Not transferable except with the permission of the Post Master-General," and non-transferability has from the first been a condition attaching to these Certificates. This restriction, however, in the absence of specific legislation, would not be operative against the general right of transfer of all actionable claims conferred by section 130 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The present Bill provides for the validation of the abovementioned restriction, except where the Cash Certificates form part of the estates of deceased persons, or are necessarily transferable by operation of law, e.g., as in the case of the holder's insolvency. Opportunity has at the same time been taken to place the payment of Cash Certificates belonging to the estates of deceased persons on the same footing as Government Savings Bank deposits forming part of the estates of such persons.—(Fort St. George Gazette, Part III, 2nd October, 1917, p. 451.)

(1) Notwithstanding any provision in any enactment or any rule of law for the time being in force to the contrary, no transfer (whether made before or after the commencement of this Act), of a Post Office 5-year Cash Certificate shall be valid without the previous consent in writing of [2][an officer of the Post Office authorized by general or special order of the Central Government in that behalf].

(2) In this section "transfer" means a transfer inter vivos and does not include a transfer by operation of law.

Payment on death of holder of Post Office 5-year Cash Certificate.

3. (1) If a person dies and is at the time of his death the holder of a Post Office 5-year Cash Certificate, payment of the sum for the time being due on such certificate may be made in the manner provided in the Government Savings Banks Act, 1873, for the payment of deposits belonging to the estates of deceased persons, and the provisions of sections 4 to 9 of the said Act shall apply accordingly as if the holder of such certificate were a depositor in a Government Savings Bank and the sum for the time being due on such certificate were a deposit in such a Bank [3][and as if for the always exercised powers of superintendence over the Presidency Small Cause Court. But these powers are not derived from any of the sources mentioned in S. 6 of the Act; and apart from that section, it is doubtful whether the High Court was intended to have any power of judicial superintendence over the Presidency Small Cause Court. Service of summons by registered post can be legitimately inferred from the evidence of the postal peon that the postal cover was tendered by him to the defendant and he refused to accept it. In such a case, a mere denial by the defendant that it was ever delivered to him is not sufficient. He must prove that it was never tendered to him and that he never refused it. 44 C.W.N. 999=1940 Cal. 536.

Secs. 9 and 38.—The object of the R. 92 was to remove the difficulty by which a preliminary hearing was precluded for finding out whether there were grounds for the application as indicated in the rule. 47 C. 763=60 I.C. 917. S. 9 empowers the High Court to make rules only with reference to matters of practice or procedure; no power is given to make such rules with regard to the matter of substantive rights. See 38 M. 823=26 M.L.J. 227.

10. Subject to such rules, the Chief Judge may, from time to time, make such arrangements as he thinks fit for the distribution of the business of the Court among the various Judges thereof.

Procedure in case of difference of opinion.

11. Save as hereinafter otherwise provided, when two or more of the Judges sitting together differ on any question, the opinion of the majority shall prevail ; and if the Court is equally divided, the Chief Judge, if he is one of the Judges so differing, or, in his absence, the Judge first in rank and precedence of the Judges so differing, shall have the casting voice.

The Registrar and other officers so appointed shall exercise such powers and discharge such duties, of a ministerial nature, as the Chief Judge may, from time to time, by rule direct.

[2] The explanation was added by S. 6 of the Presy. S. C. Courts Act, 1895 (I of 1895).

NOTES.

Sec. 12.—For notifications under this section in—

(1) Bombay, see Bom. R. and O

(2) Madras, see Mad. R. and O.

Any such Judge or officer so practising, acting or concerned shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prohibit any such Judge or officer from being a member of any company incorporated or registered under Royal Charter, Letters Patent, Act of Parliament or Act of any British Indian legislature.

CHAPTER III.

LAW ADMINISTERED BY THE COURT.

Questions arising in suits, etc., under Act to be decided according to law administered by High Court.

16. All questions, other than questions relating to procedure or practice, which arise in suits or other proceedings under this Act in the Small Cause Court shall be dealt with and determined according to the law for the time being administered by the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction.

CHAPTER IV.

JURISDICTION IN RESPECT OF SUITS.

Local limits of jurisdiction of Court.

17. The local limits of the jurisdiction of each of the Small Cause Courts shall be the local limits for the time being of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court.

Suits in which Court has jurisdiction.

18. Subject to the exceptions in section 19, the Small Cause Court shall have jurisdiction to try all suits of a civil nature—when the amount or value of the subject-matter does not exceed two thousand rupees ; and—

(a) the cause of action has arisen, either wholly or in part, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court, and the leave of the Court has, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, been given before the institution of the suit ; or

(b) all the defendants, at the time of the institution of the suit, actually and voluntarily reside, or carry on business or personally work for gain, within such local limits ; or

(c) any of the defendants at the time of the institution of the suit, actually and voluntarily resides, or carries, on business or personally works for gain, within such local limits, and either the leave of the Court has been given before the institution of the suit, or the defendants who do not reside, or carry on business, or personally work for gain, as aforesaid, acquiesce in such institution :

NOTES.

Sec. 16.—The law of limitation is dealt with in the Limitation Act and all questions relating to limitation must be decided with reference to the provisions of that Act, subject of course to the express provisions of any special or local law. S. 16 of the Presy. Small Cause Courts Act in no way affects the provisions of the Limitation Act, and in the case of execution of a decree of the Presy. Small Cause Courts Act, the limitation applicable is that provided by Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. S. 16 has not the effect of making the decree by a Presy. Small Couse Court a decree of a High Court for purposes of limitation. 7 Cut. L.T. 45.

Sec. 18.—[See also notes under S. 19.] Where a cause of action arose wholly outside the jurisdiction of a S. C. Court, it cannot entertain a suit against the Secretary of State on the ground that he carries on business (i.e.) that he conducts the management of a State Railway in the head office thereof, which is situate within the jurisdiction of the S. C. Court. 97 I.C. 246 =43 C.L.J. 574. The provisions of S. 18 with reference to the limitation of pecuniary jurisdiction are not applicable to a claim case in the course of execution. 36 C.W.N. 397=1932 C. 661. Where property exceeding Rs. 2,000 in value is attached and the decretal amount for which the decree amount can be executed also exceeds Rs. 2,000 it would not be open to the S. C. Court to entertain claim suits in such cases. 58 C. 1251. It is doubtful whether in a case where the value of property is above Rs. 2,000 but the decree amount is for a lesser figure. the S. C. Court has jurisdiction. (38 A. 72 and 35 C. 202, Ref.) 58 Cal. 1251=1932 C. 67. Value of subject-matter—Claim for declaration of title to entire property. 59 C. 1092= 1932 C. 629.

[1][Provided that where the cause of action has arisen wholly within the local limits aforesaid, and the Court refuses to give leave for the institution of the suit, it shall record in writing its reasons for such refusal.]

Explanation I.—When in any suit the sum claimed is, by a set-off admitted by both parties, reduced to a balance not exceeding two thousand rupees, the Small Cause Court shall have jurisdiction to try such suit.

Explanation II.—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a lodging at another place for a temporary purpose only, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary lodging.

Explanation III.—A Corporation or Company shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India, or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

Plaintiff may abandon suit against defendant resident out of jurisdiction.

[2][18-A. The Small Cause Court may allow a plaintiff at or before the first hearing of a suit in which a joint and several liability is alleged on a cause of action arising either wholly or in part within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court to abandon the suit as against any defendant who does not reside or carry on business or personally work for gain within such local limits, and to sue for a decree against such defendants only as do so reside, carry on business or personally work for gain.]

Suits in which Court has no jurisdiction.

19. The Small Cause Court shall have no jurisdiction in—

(a) suits concerning the assessment or collection of the revenue ;

[3][(b) suits concerning any act done by or by order of the Central Government, the Crown Representative or the Provincial Government] ;

(c) suits concerning any act ordered or done by any Judge or judicial officer in the execution of his office, or by any person in pursuance of any judgment or order of any Court or any such Judge or judicial officer ;

(d) suits for the recovery of immovable property ;

(e) suits for the partition of immovable property ;

(f) suits for the foreclosure or redemption of a mortgage of immovable property ;

(g) suits for the determination of any other right to or interest in immovable property ;

(h) suits for the specific performance or rescission of contracts ;

(i) suits to obtain an injunction ;

(j) suits for the cancellation or rectification of instruments ;

(k) suits to enforce a trust ;

(l) suits for a general average loss and suits on policies of insurance on sea-going vessels ;

(m) suits for compensation in respect of collisions on the high seas ;

(v) suits on any judgment of a High Court ;

Return of plaint.

[2][19-A. Whenever the Court finds that for want of jurisdiction it cannot finally determine the question at issue in the suit, it may at any stage of the proceedings return the plaint to be presented to a Court having jurisdiction to determine the question. When the Court so returns a plaint, it shall comply with the provisions of the second paragraph of section 57 of the Code of Civil Procedure[3] and make such order with respect to costs as it may think just, and the Court shall for the purposes of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877,[4] be deemed to have been unable to entertain the suit by reason of defect of jurisdiction. When a plaint so returned is afterwards presented to a High Court, credit shall be given to the plaintiff for the amount of the court-fee paid in the Small Cause Court in respect of the plaint in the levy of any fees which according to the practice of the High Court are credited to the Government.]

Court may by consent try suits beyond pecuniary limits of jurisdiction.

20. When the parties to a suit, which, if the amount or value of the subject-matter thereof did not exceed two thousand rupees, would be cognizable by the Small Cause Court, have entered into an agreement[5] in writing that the Small Cause Court shall have jurisdiction to try such suit, the Court shall have jurisdiction to try the same, although the amount or value of the subject-matter thereof may exceed two thousand rupees.

Sec. 19 (s).—A suit to establish a right given to the unsuccessful party in claim proceedings under the C. P. Code, involves in every case a prayer for the setting aside of a summary order of a Civil Court. Such a suit cannot be regarded as a suit for a mere declaration and is not excluded from the jurisdiction of a S. C. Court under S. 19 (s). 39 M. 219=28 M.L.J. 600. See also 50 L.W. 133=1939 M. 610=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 776 ; I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 807=39 Bom. L.R. 890=1937 Bom. 490. Court. 1939 Cal. 489.

Every such agreement shall be filed in the Small Cause Court, and, when so filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, and shall be bound by its decision in such suit.

Suits by and against officers of Court.

21. All suits to which an officer of the Small Cause Court is, as such, a party, except suits in respect of property taken in execution of its process, or the proceeds or value thereof [1][and all suits whereof the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one thousand rupees] may be instituted in the High Court at the election of the plaintiff as if this Act had not been passed.

Costs when plaintiff sues in High Court in other cases cognizable by Small Cause Court.

22. If any suit cognizable by the Small Cause Court, other than a suit to which section 21 applies, is instituted in the High Court, and if in such suit the plaintiff obtains, in the case of a suit founded on contract, a decree for any matter of an amount or value less than [2][one thousand] rupees, and in the case of any other suit a decree for any matter of an amount or value of less than three hundred rupees, no cost shall be allowed to the plaintiff; and if in any such suit the plaintiff does not obtain a decree, the defendant shall be entitled to his costs as between attorney and client.

The foregoing rules shall not apply to any suit in which the Judge who tries the same certifies that it was one fit to be brought in the High Court.

A suit for an account without claim to a specific sum which is within the competence of the S.C. When a suit triable by a S.C. Court is tried by the High Court and dimissed, the Judge can certify the case was one fit to be tried by the High Court in which case the provisions of S. 22 do not apply and the Court has got power in a proper case to deprive the successful party of his costs. 48 B. 531=26 Bom.L. any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit and placed on the record, shall, unless the document is impounded under section 143 of the Code of Civil Procedure,[1] be entitled to receive back the same :

Provided that a document may be returned at any time before any of such events on such terms as the Court may direct : provided also that no document shall be returned which, by force of the decree, has become void or useless.

On the return of a document which has been admitted in evidence, a receipt shall be given, by the party receiving it, in a receipt-book to be kept for the purpose.

Compensation payable by plaintiff to defendant in certain cases.

26. In any suit in which the defendant appears and does not admit the claim, and the plaintiff does not obtain a decree for the full amount of his claim, the Small Cause Court may in its discretion order the plaintiff to pay to the defendant, by way of satisfaction for his trouble and attendance, such sum as it thinks fit.

When any claim preferred, or objection made, under section 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure[2], is disallowed, the Small Cause Court may in its discretion order the person preferring or making such claim or objection to pay to the decree-holder, or to the judgment-debtor, or to both, by way of satisfaction as aforesaid, such sum or sums as it thinks fit.

And when any claim or objection is allowed the Court may award such compensation by way of damages to the claimant or objector as it thinks fit ; and the order of the Court awarding or refusing such compensation shall bar any suit in respect of injury caused by the attachment.

Any order under this section may, in default of payment of the amount payable thereunder, be enforced by the person in whose favour it is made against the person against whom it is made as if it were a decree of the Court.

Decree-holder to accompany officer executing warrant.

27. Whenever the Small Cause Court issues a warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor or the attachment of his property, the decree-holder, or some other person on his behalf, shall accompany the officer of the Court entrusted with the execution of such warrant, and shall point out to such officer the judgment-debtor or the property to be attached, as the case may be.

Things attached to immovable property and removeable by tenant to be deemed movable in execution.

28. When the judgment-debtor under any decree of the Small Cause Court is a tenant of immovable property, anything attached to such property, and which he might before the termination of his tenancy lawfully remove without the permission of his landlord, shall, for the purpose of the execution of such decree [3][and for the purpose of deciding all questions arising in the execution of such decree], be deemed to be movable property and may, if sold in such execution, be severed by the purchaser, but shall not be removed by him from the property until he has done to the property whatever the judgment-debtor would have been bound to do to it if he had removed such thing.

NOTES.

Sec. 26—Where the Small Cause Court in dismissing a suit has not awarded compensation to the defendant under S. 26, it would be wrong on principle for the High Court in revision to interfere and pass an order for compensation, although in its opinion it is a fit case for awarding substantial compensation. 42 C.W.N. 658.

Sec. 28.—The amendment of 1906, which gave the Court jurisdiction to decide all questions arising in execution of a decree, even though the subject-matter was a tiled hut and therefore immovable property simply removed the bar contained in S. 19 (g) and not the bar contained in S. 18. The S.C.Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a claim for the determination of any right or interest in a tiled hut when its value exceeds Rs. 2,000. 59 C. 1092 = 36 C.W.N. 333 = 1932 C. 629. The section only applies when the judgment-debtor is a tenant of immoveable pro-

Discharge of judgment-debtor on sufficient security.

29. Whenever any judgment-debtor, who has been arrested or whose property has been seized in execution of a decree of the Small Cause Court, offers security to the satisfaction of such Court for payment of the amount which he has been ordered to pay and the costs, the Court may order him to be discharged, or the property to be released.

Court may in certain cases suspend execution of decree.

30. Whenever it appears to the Small Cause Court that any judgment-debtor under its decree is unable, from sickness, poverty or other sufficient cause, to pay the amount of the decree, or, if such Court has ordered the same to be paid in instalments, the amount of any instalment thereof, it may, from time to time, for such time and upon such terms as it thinks fit, suspend the execution of such decree and discharge the debtor, or make such order as it thinks fit.

Execution of decree of Small Cause Court by other Courts.

31. If the judgment-debtor under any decree of the Small Cause Court has not, within the local limits of its jurisdiction, movable property sufficient to satisfy the decree, the Court may, on the application of the decree-holder, send the decree for execution—

(a) in the case of execution against immovable property situate within such local limits—[1][to the Madras City Civil Court or the High Court of Judicature at Fort William or Bombay, as the case may be] ;

(b) in all other cases—to any Civil Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such judgment-debtor, or any movable or immovable property of such judgment-debtor, may be found.

Procedure when decree transferred.

The procedure prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure[2] for the execution of decrees by Courts other than those which made them shall be the procedure followed in such cases.

Minors may sue in certain cases as if of full age.

32. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure[2] as applied by this Act, any minor may institute a suit for any sum of money not exceeding five hundred rupees, which may be due to him under section 70 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, for wages or piece work, or for work as a servant, in the same manner as if he were of full age.

Power to delegate non-judicial duties.

33. Any non-judicial or quasi-judicial act which the Code of Civil Procedure[2] as applied by this Act requires to be done by a Judge, and any act which may be done by a Commissioner appointed to examine and adjust accounts under section 394 of that Code as so applied, may be done by the Registrar of the Small Cause perty at the time of attachment and not when he has ceased to be a tenant at that time. 59 C. 1092=36 C.W.N. 333=1932 C. 629. Where in execution of a decree of the Presidency Small Cause Court, the superstructure of the judgment debtor who is a tenant of immovable property is attached, and a claim preferred by a third party is allowed, a suit to set aside the order allowing the claim is cognizable by the Small Cause Court, because the superstructure which the judgment-debtor is entitled to remove without the consent of his landlord is movable property by reason of S. 28 for the purpose of deciding all questions arising in execution of the decree. The City Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain such a suit to set aside a claim order under S. 3 of the Madras City Civil Court Act. Nor would S. 5 of the City Civil Court Act enable the City Civil Court to entertain the suit which is cognizable by the S. C. Court. For purposes of S. 28 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, there is no distinction between question arising "in" execution and questions arising "out of" execution. 50 L.W. 133=1939 Mad. 610=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 776. See also 1936 Mad 551.

Secs 31 (a) and 47.—In the classes of suits provided for under Ss. 47 and 49, the High Court is the proper forum. By S. 12 of the City Civil Court Act, the City Civil Court is substituted for the High Court only under S. 31 (a). 37 I.C. 436=4 L.W. 402.

Court or by such other officer of that Court as that Court may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf.

The High Court may, from time to time, by rule[1], declare what shall be deemed to be non-judicial and quasi-judicial acts within the meaning of this section.

Registrar to hear and determine suits like a Judge.

34. The suits cognizable by the Registrar under section 14 shall be heard and determined by him in like manner in all respects as a Judge of the Court might hear and determine the same :

Proviso.

Provided that, subject to the control of the Chief Judge, any Judge of the Court may, whenever he thinks fit, transfer to his own file any suit on the file of the Registrar.

Registrar may execute all decrees with the same powers as a Judge.

35. The Registrar may receive applications for the execution of decrees of any value passed by the Court, and may commit and discharge judgment-debtors, and make any order in respect thereof which a Judge of the Court might make under this Act.

Decrees and orders of Registrar to be subject to new trial as if made by a Judge.

36. Every decree and order made by the Registrar in any suit or proceeding shall be subject to the same provisions in regard to new trial as if made by a Judge of the Court.

NEW TRIALS AND APPEALS.

General finality of decrees and orders of Small Cause Court.

37. Save as otherwise provided by this Chapter or by any other enactment for the time being in force, every decree and order of the Small Cause Court in a suit shall be final and conclusive.

New trial of contested cases.

38. Where a suit has been contested, the Small Cause Court may, on the application of either party, made within eight days from the date of the decree or order in the suit (not being a decree passed under section 522[3] of the Code of Civil Procedure) order a new trial to be held, or alter, set aside or reverse the decree or order, upon such terms as it thinks reasonable, and may, in the meantime, stay the proceedings.

NOTES.

Sec. 35.—The Registrar, under S. 35, has jurisdiction to pass an order under S. 52 (2), C. P. Code. He has exactly the same powers as the Judge and can exercise those powers in execution. 41 L.W. 350=1935 M. 298 (1).

Secs. 35 and 31.—The language of S. 35 is sufficiently wide to empower the Registrar to make any order in respect of execution matters "which a Judge of the Court might make under this Act." An order for transfer of a decree to another Court for execution made by the Registrar on an application of the decree-holder under S. 31 is a Judicial order on an application made in accordance with law. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 252=71 C.L.J. 535=1940 Cal 557.

Secs. 37 and 38: SCOPE OF.—Complaint under S. 476-B, Cr. P.Code, forwarded by a S.C. Judge—Appeal—Forum—Decree if appealable —"Principal Court having ordinary original jurisdiction," meaning of. 48 M. 395=48 M.L. J. 290. The finality conferred by S. 37 to a "suit" cannot be extended to a claim case, even though R. 102 (till recently R. 96) of the Calcutta Rules of Practice says that a claim "shall be treated as a suit." That rule only means that the claim case should be tried like ordinary suits and not in a summary manner. But that does not mean that the claim case is itself a suit, still less a new and independent suit to which the provisions of S. 38 are to be independently applied. 59 C. 827=36 C.W.N. 397=1932 C. 661. But see 58 C. 1251.

Sec. 38.—The wording of S. 38 of the Act is wide enough to cover appellate jurisdiction both on fact and on law. But it is well settled that the Court can, under the section, only exercise revisional jurisdiction, that it has no jurisdiction to decide questions of fact. The Court can, however, order a new trial where the judgment was manifestly against the weight of evidence. This only means that a new trial may be granted when the trial is one to which no reasonable Explanation.—Every suit shall be deemed to be contested in which the decree is made otherwise than by consent of or in default of appearance by the defendant.

NOTES.

man ought to have come and not merely because the Court to whom application is made takes a different view of the evidence. Where a Full Bench of two Judges ordered a new trial on the ground of discovery of new evidence and subsequently a Full Bench of three Judges set aside the previous order, it was held that the Full Bench of three Judges had acted without jurisdiction because it was an interference on facts and that their order should be set aside n revision. Held also, that while the section contemplated successive applications for new trial, it did not permit successive applications for orders to cancel earlier orders granting new trial. 57 C. 612=34 C.W.N. 413=1930 C. 806. The Full Bench of the Presidency Small Cause Court exercising its powers under S. 38 of the Act is not a Court of appeal and cannot therefore arrogate to itself the powers of an appellate Court. Its jurisdiction is merely revisional in nature, and it can only interfere when it finds some question of law or usage having the force of law to have been wrongly decided, or when it holds that the verdict of the trial Judge was not based upon any legal evidence or possibly when it finds that no reasonable person could have arrived at the conclusion to which the trial Judge has arrived. In no other circumstances can the Full Bench interfere with a finding of fact. Nor can a retrial be ordered unless the trial has been vitiated by some legal effect in omitting to observe some rule of procedure or on account of some mistake in appreciating or applying the correct rule of substantive law, or the discovery of some important matter of evidence which may necessitate a further re-hearing or reconsideration. It has no powers to order an amendment of the plaint, but it can order a retrial if an amendment setting up a new and inconsistent case is allowed by the trial Court. 1938 M.W.N. 542=1938 Mad. 669. To fall within the scope of S. 38 an order must not only be made in the suit, but it must be the order made in the suit. This means that it must be an order which in some way or other disposes of the suit, for example, an order dismissing a suit for default. Unless it is the order made in a suit in this sense, the Court has no power to deal with it under S. 38. It is clear that an order made in execution proceedings, such as an order under O. 21, R. 2, C. P. Code, cannot be the order made in the suit in this sense. I. L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 637=1938 Cal. 862. Proceedings under O. 21, R. 50 (2) and (3) of the Civil Procedure Code are proceedings in a "suit" within the meaning of S. 38 of the Presy. S. C. Courts Act. S. 38 applies to such proceedings and the full Court has therefore jurisdiction to entertain an application for a new trial from an order passed in proceedings under O. 21, R. 50 (2) and (3), C. P. Code. 44 Bom.L.R. 124. See also 44 Bom.L.R. 120. The powers conferred by S. 38 are not restricted to interference with only question of law. The S. C. Court has power to reverse a decree on a question of fact. 42 B. 80=43 I.C. 486. The S.C. Court is competent to make a reference under S. 69 on an application under S. 38 of the Act. 50 C. 919=27 C.W.N. 883. The proviso to R. 92 published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 16th July, 1917, is not ultra vires; but so far as applications under S. 38 of the Act are concerned, the preliminary hearing must be before a Bench formed on the lines laid down in R. 95. 47 C. 763=60 I.C. 917=24 C.W.N. 783. (3) If the applicant fail or neglect to complete the required security (if any) within the prescribed time (if any), the said order shall be discharged and the suit shall proceed in the Small Cause Court as if such order had never been made.

(4) If the plaintiff in any case which has been removed under this section into the High Court has abandoned a portion of his claim in order to be able to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court, he shall be permitted to revive the portion of his claim so abandoned.

40. (1) When a suit has been removed into the High Court under the last foregoing section, it shall be heard and disposed of by such Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, and the said Court shall have all the same powers and jurisdiction in respect thereof as if it had been originally instituted in such Court.

(2) In every suit so removed as aforesaid the affidavit filed under section 39, sub-section (1), shall be treated as a written statement of the defendant tendered under section 110[1] of the Code of Civil Procedure unless the Court shall otherwise order.

(3) In every suit so removed as aforesaid credit shall be given to the plaintiff for the amount of the Court-fee paid in the Small Cause Court in respect of the plaint in the levy of any fees which according to the practice of the High Court are payable to the Government.

RECOVERY OF POSSESSION OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

Summons against person occupying property without leave.

41. When any person has had possession of any immoveable property situate within the local limits of the Small Cause Court's jurisdiction and of which the annual value at a rack-rent, does not exceed [1][two] thousand rupees, as the tenant, or by permission, of another person, or of some person through whom such other person claims, and such tenancy or permission has determined or been withdrawn, and such tenant or occupier or any person holding under or by assignment from him (hereinafter called the occupant) refuses to deliver up such property in compliance with a request made to him in this behalf by such other person, such other person (hereinafter called the applicant) may apply[2] to the Small Cause Court for a summons against the occupant, calling upon him to show cause, on a day therein appointed, why he should not be compelled to deliver up the property.

Service of summons.

42. The summons shall be served on the occupant in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure for the service of a summons on a defendant.

arbitration. The application in the High Court is an appearance sufficient to satisfy the provisions of the Act and the R. 43 of the Calcutta Rules. 56 C. 755=33 C.W.N. 888.

Sec. 41.—Proceedings under Ss. 41 to 49 are not suits within the meaning of C. P. Code. The decision in such proceedings is not a decree under S. 2 (2), C. P. Code, and orders passed in such proceeding cannot be regarded as a decision or order on questions of title as contemplated by Art. 13 of the Limitation Act. On the other hand, under O. 21, Rr. 59 to 63 and Rr. 99 and 101, there is an enquiry, though summary, of the right of parties and an adjudication, which cannot be said of proceedings under the Act. 1929 M. 69=56 M.L.J. 199. Ejectment proceedings under Chapter VII of the Act are not suits within the meaning of S. 2 of the Amendment Act of 1916. Therefore, the Chief Justice of the High Court has no power to transfer such proceedings to City Civil Court. 25 L.W. 115=1927 M. 321. Proceedings under the section are permissive and not compulsory. 51 B. 885=105 I.C. 395=1927 B. 556. The mortgagee of property is not a person, through whom the purchaser of the property at a private sale claims within the meaning of S. 41. The mere fact that there is a covenant in the mortgage deed that the mortgagor would execute the necessary sale deed in the event of the mortgagee exercising the power of sale will not make any difference. The mortgagor cannot be said to be the tenant of, or in possession by permission of, the purchaser, unless the purchaser has done some act to indicate as permission having been granted subsequent to the sale. 1930 M. W.N. 652. The petitioner executed in favour of the respondent a mortgage deed which was in some respects a combination of simple and usufructuary mortgages. The mortgagee was to have possession of the property subject to certain stipulations regarding interest. On the same day, a deed of rental agreement was entered into between them under which the mortgagor was to remain in possession of the property mortgaged on payment by him of a certain amount as rent per mensem, and the lease was to enure for a term of 3 years subject to certain conditions, one of them being that in case of failure to pay rent as stipulated therein, the lessor was entitled to possession of the property without giving notice to quit. The respondent applied for ejectment of the petitioner on the allegation that rent had fallen into arrears. Held, that the petitioner was a tenant under S. 41 and that the suit was maintainable. 1932 M. 318=62 M.L.J. 346. A sub-tenant is an "occupant" and the owner can sue him in ejectment in the S. C. Court. 49 B. 685=89 I.C. 88.

Secs. 41 and 43.—In a writ of possession the order to give possession authorises and requires the removal by bailiff of all persons from the premises by force, if need be, to vacate the same. 19 C W.N. 273=42 C. 313. A suit to eject a tenant is maintainable in City Civil Court, though an application is cognisable by the S. C. Court. 43 M.L.J. 288=1922 M. 445. It is not within the jurisdiction of the City Civil Court to set aside an order in ejectment made by the Presy. S. C. Court. 37 I.C. 436=4 L. W. 402. Chap. VI does not apply to S. 41. Under S. 41, the Court can deliver possession only when the tenancy has determined, and where the Court has delivered possession before the tenancy has determined, its order is wrong and open to revision. 23 I.C. 572=26 M.L.J. 467.

Sec. 42.—See 7 M.L.T. 385=6 I.C. 722.

Order for possession.

43. If the occupant does not appear at the time appointed and show cause to the contrary, the applicant shall, if the Small Cause Court is satisfied that he is entitled to apply under section 41, be entitled to an order addressed to a bailiff of the Court directing him to give possession of the property to the applicant on such day as the Court thinks fit to name in such order.

Explanation.—If the occupant proves that the tenancy was created or permission granted by virtue of a title which determined previous to the date of the application, he shall be deemed to have shown cause within the meaning of this section.

Such order to justify bailiff entering on property and giving possession. Bar to proceedings against Judge or Officer for issuing, etc., order or summons.

44. Any such order shall justify the bailiff to whom it is addressed in entering after the hour of six in the morning and before the hour of six in the afternoon upon the property named therein, with such assistants as he thinks necessary, and giving possession of such property to the applicant: and no suit or prosecution shall be maintainable against any Judge or officer of the Small Cause Court by whom any such order as aforesaid was issued, or against any bailiff or other person by whom the same was executed, or by whom any such summons as aforesaid was served for the issue, execution or service of any such order or summons, by reason only that the applicant was not entitled to the possession of the property.

Applicant, if entitled to possession, not to be deemed trespasser for any error in proceedings. Occupant may sue for compensation.

45. When the applicant, at the time of applying for any such order as aforesaid, was entitled to the possession of such property, neither he nor any person acting in his behalf shall be deemed, on account of any error, defect or irregularity in the mode of proceeding to obtain possession thereunder, to be a trespasser; but any person aggrieved may bring suit for the recovery of compensation for any damage which he has sustained by reason of such error, defect or irregularity;

when no such damage is proved, the suit shall be dismissed; and when such damage is proved but the amount of the compensation assessed by the Court does not exceed ten rupees, the Court shall award to the plaintiff no more costs than compensation, unless the judge who tries the case certifies that in his opinion full costs should be awarded to the plaintiff.

Liability of applicant obtaining order when not entitled.

46. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to protect any applicant obtaining possession of any property under this Chapter from a suit by any person deeming himself aggrieved thereby, when such applicant was not at the time of applying for such order as aforesaid entitled to the possession of such property.

NOTES.

Sec. 43.—A Presy. S.C. Court cannot grant an extension of time fixed in an order for recovery of possession made under S. 43. 45 B. 1048=62 I.C. 45. See also 46 C.W.N. 11. Ordinarily a tenant must deliver possession before he can dispute his landlord's title, and this estoppel ordinarily continues even beyond the term of the tenancy unless the tenant first delivers possession. Eviction or something equivalent to it must take place before the lessee can deny the title of the lessor. This rule is not modified by S. 43 of the Madras Presidency Small Cause Courts Act. It merely lays down the procedure to be adopted by the Court in applications for recovery of possession of immovable property. If the occupant has proved that the tenancy has been determined and that his lessor had no right to possession, then it is sufficient cause for the purpose of the section, why the Court should not pass an order for possession. The section does not purport to lay down any law modifying the ordinary law with regard to relations between landlord and tenant. Though a landlord has obtained an order under S. 43 of the Act against his tenant, that would not affect a sub-tenant under the tenant, and the latter would be entitled to retain possession until he is ousted by regular proceedings. 1940 Mad. 700=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 605.

Secs. 46 to 49.—No suit can be brought in any Court for superseding order under Chapter VII except in the manner provided by Ss. 46 to 49 of the Act. 37 I.C. 436=4 L.W. 402.

And when the applicant was not, at the time of applying for any such order as aforesaid, entitled to the possession of such property, the application for such order, though no possession is taken thereunder, shall be deemed to be an act of trespass committed by the applicant against the occupant.

Application for order in such case an act of trespass.

47. Whenever on an application being made under section 41 the occupant binds himself, with two sureties, in a bond for such amount as the Small Cause Court thinks reasonable, having regard to the value of the property and the probable costs of the suit next hereinafter mentioned, to institute without delay a [1]suit in the High Court against the applicant for compensation for trespass and to pay all the costs of such suit in case he does not prosecute the same or in case judgment therein is given for the applicant, the Small Cause Court shall stay the proceedings on such application until such suit is disposed of.

Stay of proceedings on occupant giving security to bring suit against applicant.

If the occupant obtains a decree in any such suit against the applicant, such decree shall supersede the order (if any) made under section 43.

Nothing contained in section 22 shall apply to suits under this section.

48. In all proceedings under this Chapter, the Small Cause Court shall, as far as may be and except as herein otherwise provided, follow the procedure prescribed for a Court of first instance by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Proceedings to be regulated by Code of Civil Procedure.

49. Recovery of the possession of any immoveable property under this Chapter shall be no bar to the institution of a suit in the High Court[2] for trying the title thereto.

Recovery of possession no bar to suit to try title.

CHAPTER VIII.

Sec. 47.—When proceedings of a summary nature are taken under S. 41 to eject an occupant. and the occupant applies for stay of proceedings, the Court has no discretion to refuse it on the ground that it was not supported by an affidavit. 44 M.L.J. 386=1923 M. 323. There is nothing in S. 47 to warrant the interpretation that the application for stay should be made at an early stage in the proceedings. 1923 M. 323.

Sec. 48—A Presy. S. C. Court has no power to review an order made in a proceeding under Chapter VI of the Act. 45 B. 972=61 I.C. 567. S. 48 applies the provisions of the C. P. Code to proceedings under Chapter VII and the langugage of it is wide enough to include a power to act under O. 21, R. 98: 45 M.L.J. 66=1924 M. 74.

Application for distress warrant.

53. Any person claiming to be entitled to arrears of rent of any house or premises to which this Chapter extends, or his duly constituted attorney, may apply to any Judge of the Small Cause Court, or to the Registrar of the Small Cause Court, for such warrant as is hereinafter mentioned.

The application shall be supported by an affidavit or affirmation to the effect of the form (marked A) in the third schedule hereto annexed.

Issue of distress warrant.

54. The Judge or Registrar may thereupon issue a warrant under his hand and seal and returnable within six days, to the effect of the form (marked B) contained in the same schedule, addressed to any one of such bailiffs.

The Judge or Registrar may, at his discretion, upon personal examination of the person applying for such warrant, decline to issue the same.

Time for distress.

55. Every distress under this Chapter shall be made after sunrise and before sunset, and not at any other time.

What places bailiff may force open.

56. The bailiff directed to make the distress may force open any stable, out-house or other building, and may also enter any dwelling house, the outer door of which may be open and may break open the door of any room in such dwelling-house for the purpose of seizing property liable to be seized under this Chapter :

Provided that he shall not enter or break open the door of any room appropriated for the zenana or residence of women, which by the usage of the country is considered private.

Property which may be seized.

57. In pursuance of the warrant aforesaid the bailiff shall seize the movable property found in or upon the house or premises mentioned in the warrant and belonging to the person from whom the rent is claimed (hereinafter called the debtor) or such part thereof as may, in the bailiff's judgment, be sufficient to cover the amount of the said rent, together with the costs of the said distress :

Provided that the bailiff shall not seize—

(a) things in actual use ; or

(b) tools and implements not in use, where there is other moveable property, in or upon the house or premises sufficient to cover such amount and costs ; or

(c) the debtor's necessary wearing apparel ; or

(d) goods in the custody of the law.

Impounding distress.

58. The bailiff may impound or otherwise secure the property so seized in or on the house or premises chargeable with the rent.

Inventory.

Notice of intended appraisement and sale.

59. On seizing any property under section 57 the bailiff shall make an inventory of such property and shall give a notice in writing to the effect of the form (marked C) in the third schedule hereto annexed to the debtor, or to any other person upon his behalf in or upon the said house or premises.

Copies of inventory and notice to be filed.

The bailiff shall, as soon as may be, file in the Small Cause Court copies of the said inventory and notice.

property seized under this Chapter, or the duly constituted attorney of such debtor or other person, may, at any time within five days from such seizure, apply to any Judge of the said Court to discharge or suspend the warrant, or to release a distrained article, and such Judge may discharge or suspend such warrant or release such article accordingly, upon such terms as he thinks just, and any of the Judges of the said Court may in his discretion give reasonable time to the debtor to pay the rent due from him.

Upon any such application, the costs attending it and attending the issue and execution of the warrant shall be in the discretion of the Judge and shall be paid as he directs.

Claim to goods distrained made by a stranger.

61. If any claim is made to, or in respect of, any property seized under this Chapter, or in respect of the proceeds or value thereof, by any person not being the debtor, the Registrar of Small Cause Court, upon the application of the bailiff who seized the property, may issue a summons calling before the Court the claimant and the person who obtained the warrant.

And thereupon any suit which may have been brought in the High Court in respect of such claim shall be stayed and any Judge of the High Court, on proof of the issue of such summons and that the property was so distrained, may order the plaintiff to pay the costs of all proceedings in such suit after the issue of such summons.

And a Judge of the Small Cause Court shall adjudicate upon such claim and make such order between the parties in respect thereof and of the costs of the proceedings as he thinks fit ; and such order shall be enforced as if it were an order made in a suit brought in such Court.

The procedure in Small Cause Courts in cases under this section shall conform, as far as may be, to the procedure in an ordinary suit in such Courts.

Power to award compensation to debtor or claimant.

62. In any case under section 60 or section 61, the Judge by whom the case is heard may award such compensation by way of damages to the applicant or claimant (as the case may be) as the Judge thinks fit, and may for that purpose make any enquiry he thinks necessary ;

and the order of the Judge awarding or refusing such compensation shall bar any suit for the recovery of compensation for any damage caused by the distress.

Power to transfer to High Court cases involving more than one thousand rupees.

63. In any case under section 60 or section 61, if the value of the subject-matter in dispute exceeds one thousand rupees, the applicant or claimant may apply to the High Court to transfer the case to itself, and the High Court, on being satisfied that it is expedient that the case should be disposed of by itself, may direct the case to be transferred accordingly, and allows the owner to procure immediately a release of the property upon terms; while S. 61 provides for the adjudication of the claimant's right and title to the property. The disposal of an application under S. 60 does not preclude the claimant from applying under S. 61. The mere fact that the summons or notice did not proceed in the peculiar way prescribed in the first portion of sec. 61 does not, where a trial takes place both parties having had notice, having filed pleadings, having appeared, evidence having been taken, deprive the Court of jurisdiction or vitiate the trial under that section. It does not call for interference in revision. 59 C. 311=36 C.W.N. 530=1932 C. 441. The Small Cause Court's powers in execution are limited to movables, but subject to this limitation, that Court, like any other Court has always power to execute its own decrees and in case of a claim preferred to attached property, the power and duty to deal with the claim or objection though the property may be valued more than Rs. 2,000 by the claimant. The decision of the Small Cause Court on a claim case is, subject to a new trial, final. 59 C. 827=36 C.W N. 397=1932 Cal. 661.

THE PRESIDENCY-TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1909).

1909	III	The Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, 1909.	Rep. in part, X of 1914. Amended, XI of 1920; IX of 1926; XI of 1927; XIX of 1927; III of 1929; X of 1930; and Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order 1937.

PREFATORY NOTE: NATURE OF MODERN LAW OF DEBTORS AND CREDITORS.—The present law of debtors and creditors is a modern creation originating in the necessities of a widely spread industrial life. "Modern commerce is necessarily founded largely on credit, and credit could not have existed without the power of enforcing the fulfilment of financial contracts. On the other hand, remedies against a debtor's person and still more against the persons of his family are not only inconsistent with the growth of opinion among civilised communities, but are in themselves, worse than futile, inasmuch as they strike at the root of all personal effect on the part of a debtor to retrieve his position and render a return to solvency impossible. Hence, the necessity of devising some system which is just to creditors, while not unduly harsh upon debtors, which discriminates between involuntary inability to meet obligations and wilful refusal or neglect and which secures to creditors as between themselves an equitable share of such of the debtor's assets as may be available for the payment of his liabilities. Thus, while the law of bankruptcy has been largely the product of commercial development, it has necessarily been of slow and gradual growth, tentative in its character, and subject to oscillation between the extremes of conflicting interest, according to the temporary and varying predominance of each of these interests from time to time. No intelligible grasp of the principles which underlie the history of bankruptcy legislation, and no satisfactory explanation of the fluctuating tendencies which have marked its progress are possible without bearing these considerations in view.

HISTORY OF INSOLVENCY LEGISLATION IN BRITISH INDIA: (a) PRESIDENCY-TOWNS AND RANGOON; (b) MOFUSSIL.—Jurisdiction to grant relief to insolvent debtors in India was first derived from the Acts of Parliament passed in the year 1800, being 39 and 40 Geo. III, c. 79. It empowered the Supreme Courts at Fort William and Madras and the Recorder's Court at Bombay to make rules and orders for granting to insolvent debtors in India the relief intended by an Act of Parliament called the Lord's Act passed in the year 1759, being 32 Geo. II, c. 28. The statute 9 Geo. IV, c. 73, marks the beginning of special insolvency legislation for India. Though presided over by a Judge of the Supreme Court the insolvent Court had by this statute a distinct and separate existence and appeals lay from its decision to the Supreme Court. This statute passed originally only for four years, was extended from time to time up to 1848, when it was repealed and the Indian Insolvency Act—11 and 12 Vict., c. 21—was passed which remained in force in the Presidency-towns and Rangoon till the first day of January, 1910, when it was repealed by the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, 1909. Various attempts had been made before this to reform the insolvency law prevailing in the Presidency-towns and Rangoon. The history of the various attempts to reform the existing law dates back to 1870, when Sir James Stephen proposed to enact a new law for the whole of India. This proposal was thought to be too ambiguous; the mofussil was not at that time ready for a bankruptcy law and the Bill was dropped. But when thirteen years later proposals to make some small amendments in the Act of 1848, were circulated, it appeared from the comments on those proposals that there was a widespread demand for an entirely new Act for the Presidency-towns.

LEG. REF.

[1]Sch. V has been inserted in the Act in its application to the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta by Ben. Act VIII of 1934.

The matter was accordingly taken by Sir Courtney Ilbert, the law Member at the time, and in 1885 a Bill was drafted and circulated framed on the lines of the Act which had been passed in England, two years before the Act of 1883, in which the present law of bankruptcy was and still is consolidated. The opinions on that Bill show a general agreement that the Act of 1848, was out of date and ineffective. There was, as indeed was unavoidable, a considerable difference of opinion as to details, but on the whole the Bill was favourably received. The mercantile communities of the Presidency-towns who are specially interested approved of it. The Bill was modified in some respects to meet criticisms, and on 29th of May, 1886, was introduced in this Council. There, for some reason which is not known, the matter seems to have stopped. Whether the legislature was engrossed in other projects or whether the very technical character of the subject chilled the enthusiasm of the Council was not known, but the only action taken was that in 1892, a Select Committee considered the Bill at one meeting and did no more, and that in 1899, a second Committee again took up the Bill and after one meeting reported that it should not be proceeded with until some modifications had been made. Since then no further steps had been taken, but in the interval the Provincial Insolvency Act has been passed with the result, as the Chief Justice of Madras has pointed on, that the law of insolvency is enlightened and up to date in the mofussil, while in the Presidency-towns it continues to be antiquated and inefficient. Writing in 1902, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce again urged the matter on the attention of the Government and the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act was finally enacted by the legislature. An Act to amend the Law of Insolvency in the Presidency towns [2][* [.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to insolvency in the Presidency-towns and the [5][town of Karachi]; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE PRESIDENCY-TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT, 1909.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1910.

Definition.

[3]Inserted by Act IX of 1926. Which in turn was substituted by A.O. 1937,

NOTES.

Sec. 1.—OLD AND NEW ACT.—Where an adjudication has been made under the old Insolvency Act (11 and 12 Vict. c. 21) all questions arising in the course of the insolvency, except questions of pure procedure, will be governed by the old Act. 19 I.C. 57=15 Bom.L.R. 113. On this section, see also 112 I.C. 541 (F.B.).

SCHEME AND POLICY OF THE ACT.—Any transaction between the insolvent and the creditor conducted behind the back of the Official Assignee and without informing the Court is null and void as wholly repugnant to the scheme of the Act. 27 Bom.L.R. 419=87 I.C. 929. Presenting petition to recover debt cheaply and expeditiously is an abuse of process of Court and petition should be dismissed. 48 M. 267=47 M.L.J. 710.

SCOPE AND OBJECT OF THE ACT.—The Pre-T. INS. Act has for its object, not so much the relief of insolvent debtors, as the prevention of insolvent trading and the protection of the public. A debtor is adjudicated for his own demerits, and the merits of the petitioning creditor are not material. 39 C.W.N. 324. There is no such thing as a petition under the Insolvency Rules of the Calcutta High Court in connection with a notice of motion. There must be an affidavit in support of the motion not a petition. See 40 C.W.N. 1031.

CONSTRUCTION OF ACT — ENGLISH LAW.—Where the provisions and the wordings of the Pres. T. Ins. Act are almost the same as those of the English Bankruptcy Act, the rulings of the English Courts on the latter Act are to be followed in interpreting the Indian Act, 1931 S. 44; 1931 S. 70. Rules made under insolvency jurisdiction must be strictly followed. 40 C.W.N. 1031.

A SUGGESTION FOR AMENDMENT.—It is desirable to have this Act amended so as to insert a provision corresponding to S. 78 (2) of the Prov. Ins. Act. 35 Bom.L.R. 12=1933 B. 91=58 B. 505. R. 202 (2) of the Rangoon High Court Rules framed under the Pres. T. Ins. Act is not ultra vires, 8 R. 514=1913 R. 61.

ESTOPPEL.—The law of estoppel does not operate to prevent the provisions of this Act having effect. 46 L.W. 515=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 123=1937 Mad. 961.

COSTS.—In insolvency proceedings, unless an order is made to the contrary, only half the attorney's fees should be allowed as costs

(a) "creditor" includes a decree-holder;

(b) "debt" includes a judgment-debt, and "debtor" includes a judgment-debtor;

1 "judge" includes a Judicial Commissioner and an Additional Judicial Commissioner;

(c) "official assignee" includes an acting official assignee [2][and a deputy official assignee whether permanent or acting];

(d) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules;

(e) "property" includes any property over which or the profits of which any person has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit;

(f) "rules" means rules made under this Act;

(g) "secured creditor" includes a landlord who under any enactment for the time being in force has a charge on land for the rent of that land;

(h) "the Court" means the Court exercising jurisdiction under this Act; and

Sec. 2 (a).—The term "creditor" does not include his benamidar. 34 I.C. 71=20 C.W.N. 995.

Sec. 2 (b): DEBTOR.—Infant cannot be debtor, and so cannot be adjudicated insolvent. See 43 C. 1157=20 C.W.N. 1065. On this section, see also 34 A. 26; 11 I.C. 14; 29 C. 533; 36 C. 941.

Sec. 2 (c).—The necessity for this amendment has been explained as follows:—"There is no specific provision in this Act for the appointment of a Deputy Official Assignee who could discharge all the duties and exercise all the functions of the Official Assignee. The insolvency work of the High Courts has increased since 1909 and the necessity of affording relief to the Official Assignees has been felt. It is therefore proposed to give power to the Chief Justices of the High Courts to appoint one or more Deputy Official Assignees with the necessary powers." (Statement of Objects and Reasons to Act X of 1930).

Sec. 2 (e).—"Property is that property only over which a person has absolute and unconditional power of disposal. 6 L. 1=47 M.L.J. 857 (P.C.). Insolvent's credit and reputation are not part of the Insolvent's property within S. 2 (e) and so the damages caused by loss of credit and reputation do not vest in the O.A. but remain vested in the insolvents in spite of the bankruptcy. The insolvents therefore can maintain and carry on a suit for damages caused to their reputation and credit in their personal capacity. The principle applicable to the individuals is also applicable to two or three persons carrying on business under a firm name. 1930 R. 289. Even though the Co-operative Bank has a statutory lien on the shares held by its members and it is provided by Statute that the interest of its members shall not be liable to attachment, sale or the claims of the O. A. or Receiver, still the shares are "the property" of the insolvents within the meaning of S. 2 (e) of the Act, since, subject to the lien, the insolvents have a disposing power over the shares and its profits. 27 S.L.R. 224=1933 S. 355.

Sec. 2 (g).—"Secured creditor," meaning of. See 31 Bom.L.R. 35. A Bank claiming a lien on the share of its insolvent member is a "secured creditor." 27 S.L.R. 224=1933 S. 355.

4. All matters in respect of which jurisdiction is given by this Act shall be ordinarily transacted and disposed of by or under the direction of one of the Judges of the Court, and the Chief Justice or [3][Judicial Commissioner] shall, from time to time, assign a Judge for that purpose.

Exercise of jurisdiction in chambers.

5. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of rules, the Judge of a Court exercising jurisdiction in insolvency may exercise in chambers the whole or any part of his jurisdiction.

Delegation of powers to officers of Court.

6. (1) The Chief Justice or [3][Judicial Commissioner] may, from time to time direct that, in any matters in respect of which jurisdiction is given to the Court by this Act, an officer of the Court appointed by him in this behalf shall have all or any of the powers in this section mentioned; and any order made or act done by such officer in the exercise of the said powers shall be deemed the order or act of the Court.

(2) The powers referred to in sub-section (1) are the following, namely:—

(a) to hear insolvency petitions presented by debtors, and to make orders of adjudication thereon;

(d) to hear and determine any unopposed or ex parte application;

(e) to examine any person summoned by the Court under section 36.

(3) An officer appointed under this section shall not have power to commit for contempt of Court.

Power of Court to decide all questions arising in insolvency.

perty, whether within or without British India which can be made available for distribution amongst the creditors in accordance with the principles of International Law provided such property can be made available by enforcing an order in personam against the possessor thereof. 148 I.C. 941=1934 S. 44. The Ins. Court in Madras can adjudicate upon claims of third parties relating to immovable properties which are outside the limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court. 40 M. 810=36 I.C. 524. See also 27 S.L.R. 275. This section gives jurisdiction to the High Court in garnishee proceedings where the garnishee lives outside the jurisdiction. See 1928 M. 732 (F.B.) following 40 M. 810 and 37 C. 418 (P.C.). The question of the O.A's. title by reputed ownership is a question arising in insolvency proceedings and would fall to be decided under S. 7. 1932 S. 207. An application by a stranger claiming a lien on certain property of the insolvent on the ground that the applicant was given a lien on the property by the insolvent does not lie under S. 7. 1932 S. 207. Where the O.A. summons a person alleged to be indebted to the insolvent estate as a witness under S. 36 of the Act and that witness disputes his indebtedness to the insolvent, the Ins. Court has no jurisdiction to make an order for payment of the amount by him and the O.A. must only proceed by way of suit to recover the amount. 52 M. 717 =57 M.L.J. 145 (F.B.). Obiter.—The O.A. is entitled to proceed by way of motion under S. 7 of the Act in those cases where he has a money claim against a stranger to the insolvency. It is then for the Ins. Court to say whether the matter is one which it is reasonable having regard to the convenience of all concerned, to deal with on a motion, or whether it should be dealt with in a regular suit. 52 M. 717=57 M.L.J. 145 (F.B.). The Civil Court can try a suit for possession by a stranger against the O. A. who claims that the property is his. S. 7 is an enabling section and S. 36 does not take away the jurisdiction of existing Court. 35 B. 473=12 I.C. 391. No suit lies to set aside an order made by the Ins. Court disallowing a claim made to goods seized by the O.A. after adjudication. 44 I.C. 847=40 M. 1173. See also 47 I.C. 298. Powers of Ins. Court—Questions affecting title to property of insolvent—Jurisdiction to determine—Effect of the decision of the Ins. Court. See 65 I.C. 244=42 M.L.J. 141. See also 14 Rang. 652=1937 Rang. 214. Joint family manager—Insolvency—O.A's right—Possession of joint property. See 43 M.L.J. 569= 68 I.C. 898. Although owing to the division of status brought about by a suit for partition instituted by the sons after their father's insolvency, the father and the O.A. lose the right of private sale of the family property including the shares of the sons, it is open to the O. A. to obtain a declaration against the sons and get the family property including their shares therein sold by or through Court. S. 7 gives the widest powers to the Ins. Court to go into such a question and to declare the liability of the son's shares in the family property for the proved and just debts of the father insolvent and make all necessary orders for their realisations. 54 M. 739=61 M.L.J. 66=1931 M. 317. Wide as the provisions of S. 7 are, it does not follow that every dispute between the O.A. and the Hindu sons can be dealt with under that section. So long as the son himself chooses to appear before the Ins. Court and raise questions as to the binding nature of the father's debt, it may be decided. Where he does not do so, the questions cannot be decided behind the back of the son at the instance of the O.A. And there is no procedure for compelling the son to appear before the Ins. Court and have the question adjudicated. 55 M. 558=1932 M. 381=63 M. L.J. 37. See also 1932 S. 50; 1932 S. 208. Procedure to be adopted by O.A. in case of property of insolvent standing benami in name of wife. See 54 C. 251. Where the insolvent effects a fraudulent transfer to his wife the O. A. can sue under S. 7 to have it declared void. But he cannot sue under the section for a declaration that he has a disposing power over the remaining property belonging to the sons of the insolvent. 25 S.L.R. 521=1932 S. 50. Fraudulent transfer by O. A.—Ins. Court can order transferee with notice to reconvey. 83 I.C. 174; 27 M.L.J. 66.

APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE SEVERAL TRANSACTIONS BY INSOLVENTS WITH DIFFERENT PERSONS.—There are no specific rules prescribing the form in which an application should be made when it is sought to impugn a transaction by an insolvent on the grounds mentioned in Ss. 55 and 56. But the Court is bound in some measure to observe the ordinary principles as to framing suits laid down by the C. P. Code. So an application under S. 7 by which the Court is required to investigate a number of different transactions between the insolvents and different persons is defective; it is like joining different causes of action against different defendants and, on grounds of practical convenience, cannot be permitted. 60 C. 1367=1934 C. 232.

PAYMENT OF MONEY TO CREDITOR AFTER ADJUDICATION—RIGHT TO SET ASIDE BY APPLICATION OR REGULAR SUIT.—Where, after the order of adjudication, a creditor receives payment of money in discharge of his debt, the O. A. is entitled to have the payment set aside by an application under S. 7 and he need not resort to a regular suit. Whether the creditor can get and retain money which belongs to the estate in payment of his debt in excess of what he would get by way of rateable distribution, is a question which should properly be decided by a Bankruptcy Court and not by a separate suit. 148 I.C. 941=1934 S. 44. See also 14 R. 652.

Sec. 7 (Proviso).—As to the effect of the proviso see 62 M.L.J. 103=55 M. 385. Denial of joint family—Power of Ins. Court to decide issue as to status. 62 M.L.J. 103. Where in an application under S. 7, the O. A. does not claim a higher or a better title than the insolvent, the question whether the Ins. Court should exercise its jurisdiction under the section or should refuse to do so and refer the O. A. to a regular suit must depend upon the facts of each case and no hard and fast rule can be laid down in that behalf. In this case, the proceedings started on an application under S. 7 were already three years old and property in dispute was situate and parties resided within the jurisdiction of the Court to which the application was made under S. 7. No prejudice could be caused to the party against whom the action was taken, if he was required to defend his title to the property in such proceedings instead of in a regular suit. Held, that the Ins. Court should not decline to exercise its jurisdiction under S. 7. (1932 S. 50, Not Appr.) 1932 S. 208. The Ins. Court has jurisdiction under S. 7 to decide disputes falling within the purview of the section between the O. A. and third parties, even though the O. A. does not claim a higher and better title. 1932 S. 208 =27 S.L.R. 275.

APPLICATION BY CREDITOR UNDER Ss. 55 AND 56, IF BARRED.—The proviso to S. 7 is no bar to an application by a creditor under Ss. 55 and 56 of the Act to set aside certain transactions by the insolvent as void against the O. A., because it cannot properly be described as "arising under S. 36." 60 C. 1367=1934 C. 232.

Secs. 7 and 8.—There is no right of appeal on the point of jurisdiction only against a mere declaratory order of an Insolvency Court containing a direction to the Official Assignee, with regard to his capacity to make the joint family property of the insolvent available for the payments of his debts except such debts as are tainted with immorality, as no substantial matter in dispute can be said to have been decided by the order of the Court. 166 I.C. 68= =1936 Rang. 525.

Secs. 7, 17 and 60.—Under S. 7 only those orders can be made which are necessary for the purpose of the insolvency, that is to say, for facilitating the distribution of the assets among the creditors. A pension payable by Government to an insolvent is not "property" of the insolvent within the meaning of S. 17 of the Act. The Court has no jurisdiction under S. 60 (2) to order the insolvent to pay any portion of such a pension to the Official Assignee for distribution among the creditors, as although the insolvent's pension can properly be described as "income" within the meaning of that provision, it is not liable to attachment in execution of a decree. It follows from the above that the Court has no power under S. 7 of the Act to direct a creditor of an insolvent to return to the insolvent the pension pay order and pension papers deposited by the latter as security for a loan. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 434 =43 C.W.N. 1194=1940 Cal. 192.

Secs. 7 and 36.—Ss. 7 and 36 give the Court power to examine any person touching the property of the insolvent. In such a case, the fact that the properties about which the wife of the insolvent is sought to be examined are properties standing in her name and that she claims the properties as her own is immaterial. Also, an order for examination cannot be refused under those circumstances, merely because litigation may ultimately ensue between the O. A. and the person sought to be examined. But the person examined is entitled to all the privileges conferred on a witness by the Evidence Act, and he cannot be compelled to answer any question which the Evidence Act allows him not to answer.29 L.W. 40=1929 M. 183. S. 36 (5) of the Act relates only to property admittedly belonging to the insolvent and not property the ownership of which is in dispute. Where a person is summoned and examined under S. 36 for the purpose of establishing that property had been purchased by the insolvent in the witness's name benami, but the witness denies that assertion and claims the property as having been purchased out of his or her own funds, subsequent proceedings by the Official Assignee against witness under S. 7 of the Act for a declaration that the properties are the properties of the insolvent are not barred by reason of the previous examination under S. 36. The words "any matter arising under S. 36" appearing in the proviso to S. 7, do not necessarily mean any matter which has been the subject of examination under S. 36. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 72=1937 Mad. 775=(1938) 2 M. L.J. 377. See also I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 455=1942 S. 21. Where certain persons have been examined under S. 36 and have denied the possession of books of account, the remedy of the O. A. is to proceed by way of suit and not proceed under S. 7, even assuming that an application under that section is maintainable in law. 63 M.L.J. 810. Before a third party can be called upon to produce books of account in his custody, the O. A. must make out a prima facie case that the third party had such books in his custody. The report of the O.A. is no legal evidence in support of his application. 63 M. L.J. 810; I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 455. Where the O.A. seeks to set aside a transaction falling under S. 56 and not covered by S. 36 of the Act, it is open to the Court to exercise a discretion whether to try this matter on a notice of motion in the Ins. Court or to relegate the O.A. to a suit in the Civil Courts. It is not correct to say that the Ins. Court has exclusive jurisdiction in the matter of setting aside a fraudulent transfer. (50 M. 776, Diss. from.) 34 Bom.L. R. 1166=1932 B. 566. O.A., in making the application under Ss. 7 and 36, acts only in his capacity as representing the insolvent's estate and not on the strength of any right or claim hostile to the insolvent. 59 M. 1020=1936 M. 778=71 M.L.J. 289 (F.B.). Appeals in insolvency.

8. (1) The Court may review, rescind or vary any order made by it under its insolvency jurisdiction.

(2) Orders in insolvency matters shall, at the instance of any person aggrieved, be subject to appeal as follows, namely:—

(a) an appeal from an order made by an officer of the Court empowered under section 6 shall lie to the Judge assigned under section 4 for the transaction and disposal of matters in insolvency and no further appeal shall lie except by leave of such Judge;

(b) save as otherwise provided in clause (a), an appeal from an order made by Judge in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act shall lie in the same way and be subject to the same provisions as an appeal from an order made by a Judge in the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court.

the O.A. under Ss. 7 and 36, against a mortgagee from the insolvent, after the mortgage has been annulled at the instance of the O.A. for mesne profits is governed by Art. 109 of the Limitation Act. He can recover only mesne profits for three years preceding the date of his application. 59 M. 1020 (F.B.).

Sec. 8.—A person, who was aggrieved within the meaning of S. 8 by an order of the Ins. Court, applied for review, instead of appealing against the order, though he had notice of insolvency proceedings. Held, in the absence of sufficient grounds, power of review under S. 8 would not be exercised. 163 I.C. 122=1936 S. 71. S. 8 makes it clear that the Court has power to review its orders like the order of adjudication passed without hearing the Counsel, but the powers of Court in such matters are vested in the Judge appointed by the Chief Justice under S. 4 of the Act. Where the application for review came up for hearing before the Judge, who should have decided it, but was heard and decided by the Judge who had ceased to be the Insolvency Judge. Held, that he had no jurisdiction to deal with it in the absence of authorization by the Chief Justice. 171 I.C. 666=1937 Rang. 237. Under S. 8 (1) read with S. 90, a Court, exercising insolvency jurisdiction has the power of review conferred on a Court of ordinary original jurisdiction by O. 47, C. P. Code. But while the jurisdiction to review conferred by O. 47, C. P. Code, is of a restricted nature, the power of an Insolvency Court under S. 8 (1) to review, rescind or vary an order made by it is not so restricted, but is far wider. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 513; 1932 Bom. 568 Art. 181 of the Limitation Act, and not Art. 173 or 162, will apply to an application for review under S. 8 (1) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. 7 R. 201 =118 I.C. 615=1929 R. 229. See also 1941 Sind. 1. Neither Art. 162, nor Art. 173 Limitation Act applies for an application for review under S. 8 (1) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. Art. 181 also will not apply as it is confined to applications under the Code of Civil Procedure. There is no period of limitation for such an application, but no application for review ought to be entertained under S. 8 (1) to save the time, provided for appeal when the application for review is filed for the purpose of extending the time for appealing. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 513. It is open to the High Court in its discretion to extend the time prescribed for appealing against an adjudication order, if necessary. 29 C.W.N. 884=89 I.C. 584. There is no right of appeal on the point of jurisdiction only against a mere declaratory order of an Insolvency Court containing a direction to the O.A. with regard to his capacity to make the joint family property of the insolvent available for the payments of his debts, except such debts as are tainted with immorality, as no substantial matter in dispute can be said to have been decided by the order of the Court. 1936 R. 525. The right time for the minor sons of the insolvent to raise the question as to the jurisdiction of the Court to make any declaration binding on them arises if and when the O.A. proceeds against their shares for the payment of any specific debt of the insolvent and Insolvency Court assumes jurisdiction to decide whether their shares are liable, or not for the satisfaction of that particular debt. 1936 R. 525. Registrar in insolvency has jurisdiction to pass order of rescission of discharge under S. 8 (1). 54 C. 858. An interim protection order made as an original order by judge exercising jurisdiction under the Act is appealable, and it is a judicial order. 40 B. 461=31 I.C. 507. Order by Judge in insolvency refusing to issue a commission is not appealable, see 4 Bur.L.J. 254=3 R. 605=1926 R. 64. S. 8 (1) gives the Court an unlimited power to review, rescind or vary and S. 90 (1) cannot operate to limit that power by importing the provisions of O. 47, R. 1 of the Code. 7 R. 201=1929 R. 229; 34 Bom.L.R. 1175=1932 B. 569. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 513. Application to Judge to discharge Registrar's order, if appeal—Order of Judge treating it as review, if appealable. 56 C. 667=115 I.C. 39. A third person whose title to property is affected by an adjudication order is a person aggrieved by it and is entitled to appeal from it. But he is not entitled in any appeal under Cl. (2) of S. 8 to succeed on the basis merely of absence of notice by the Insolvency Court before it passed the order appealed against. He can only urge that the circumstances of the case are such that it is highly inequitable and unjust that an order so vitally affecting his interests should have been passed behind his back and without notice to him and in circumstances when he had no means of knowing of the existence of the proceedings in which that order was passed against him. 32 S.L.R. 672=1938 Sind 82. Third persons whose title to property is affected by order of adjudication and on whom any real hardship is effected, are "aggrieved persons" within the meaning of the Act. Their remedy against the order of adjudication is to move the Court which passed the order of adjudication, under S. 8, cl. (1) or to appeal against that order under cl. (2) (b). See 30 S.L. R. 281=1936 Sind. 246; 1941 Sind. 1.

Part II (Secs. 9 to 45).—The mere fact that Ss. 9 to 45 are headed "Proceedings from act of insolvency to discharge" does not limit their application to the stage and time of obtaining the order of discharge. 37 C.W.N. 718=57 C. L.J. 467=1933 C. 699.

Sec. 9. PLEADINGS.=The act of insolvency need not be stated verbatim in the words of S. 9. It will be enough if the petition and affidavit read together sufficiently disclose the meaning of the section. 37 M. 555=19 I.C. 19=24 M. L.J. 562. The creditor has not only to put forward in his petition a specific act of insolvency as contained in S. 9, but he has also to prove that an act of insolvency has actually been committed. The creditor's petition also according to S. 13 must be verified by an affidavit or affidavits of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the fact. 1933 R. 280=149 I.C. 1036. See also 50 B. 694=1926 B. 405; 28 Bom. L.R. 680=1926 B. 383.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—Per Rankin, C.J.—"If there is one thing more than another upon which the Court is obliged and entitled to treat the words of the statute with great strictness, it is the definition of acts of insolvency in an Insolvency Act." 34 C.W.N. 1051=1931 C. 167.

ACT OF INSOLVENCY.—The principle of the Ins. Law is that, in order to adjudicate a man insolvent, the act of insolvency relied on must be some act which can be definitely brought home to him. 49 M.L.J. 709. An act of insolvency must be strictly proved. 34 Bom. L.R. 1162. See also 11 R. 96. Act of insolvency committed during pendency of order of adjudication—Whether can be the basis of fresh application for adjudication. See 32 C.W.N. 716. Where the debtor sold his property and soon after it made payments to some creditors, held that the sale and payments made must be considered together in judging the intention of the insolvent and that these transactions must inevitably defeat or delay those creditors who did not receive any share in the sale price, and as such it was an act of insolvency 1935 S. 53.

TRANSFER FOR PAST DEBTS—ENGLISH LAW.—The transfer by a debtor of the whole or substantially the whole of his property in consideration of a past debt is an act of bankruptcy under the English law as well as under S. 9 (b) of the Indian Act. But a transfer made in pursuance of an antecedent bona fide agreement that security should be given for a loan may not amount to a fraudulent transfer or fraudulent preference, it being incumbent on the person setting up the prior agreement to prove not only that the agreement did exist in fact, but also that it was in all respects a bona fide agreement. There must be no secret or expressed bargain or understanding that the giving of the security should be delayed until the debtor had reached a state of insolvency, for that would bring the transfer within this section. 13 R. 192. See also 1935 S. 53.

ACTS OF INSOLVENCY—STATEMENTS AND PROOF.—A Court is not competent to adjudicate a party insolvent for an act of insolvency not specified as in S. 9. So also it is not permissible for a creditor to make in his petition allegations which are not acts of insolvency within S. 9 and then try to prove by evidence that as a matter of fact an act of insolvency within S. 9 has been committed. The petition for the adjudi-substantially all his property to a third person for the benefit of his creditors generally;

(b) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes a transfer of his property or of any part thereof with intent to defeat or delay his creditors;

(c) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes any transfer of his property or of any part thereof, which would, under this or any other enactment for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged an insolvent;

(d) if, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors,—

(i) he departs or remains out of British India;

(ii) he departs from his dwelling-house or usual place of business or otherwise absents himself;

(iii) he secludes himself so as to deprive his creditors of the means of communicating with him;

(e) if any of his property has been sold or attached for a period of not less than twenty-one days in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money;

NOTES.

cation of the debtor by a creditor must be definite and precise as to what available acts of insolvency were committed. 1934 S. 177.

CO-JUDGMENT-DEBTORS.—An act of insolvency by a co-judgment-debtor does not amount to one by the judgment-debtor himself. 14 I.C. 576=16 C.W.N. 733.

PARTNERSHIP.—Under S. 9 where one partner departs from his usual place of business it is a matter personal to him and the firm cannot be adjudged insolvent. 24 Bom. L.R. 861=1923 B. 107. A joint family firm can be adjudged insolvent, though that will not imply the adjudication of a minor member or even an adult member who has taken no active part in the management and whose liability will extend only to the extent of his interest in the joint family property. 25 S.L.R. 322=1931 S. 179.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.—An act of the agent authorized by the principal and of which he has cognizance, can also bind the principal; but it cannot be laid down that in all circumstances the act of an agent closing down the principal's place of business should be treated as the act of the principal. The decision must depend on the particular, facts of each case. 49 M.L.J. 709; 10 R. 215=1932 R. 101.

Sec. 9 (b): TRANSFER ON WHOLE, AND TRANSFER OF PART, OF PROPERTY—DISTINCTION. —See 34 Bom. L.R. 1162=1932 B. 580. See also 1937 Rang. L.R. 65=1937 Rang. 372.

Sec. 9 (c): TRANSFER BY DEBTOR OF WHOLE OF HIS PROPERTY.—It would not be safe to infer that every transfer of the whole of a debtor's property is of necessity fraudulent. The sale however will constitute an act of insolvency, if the seller intends to defeat or delay his creditors. Whether he does or does not in fact entertain such an intention is a matter of fact which is not the subject of any immutable presumption of law; it must be inferred from the circumstances of each particular case. 1935 S. 53.

ACT CONSTITUTING FRAUDULENT REFERENCE—IF MUST BE VOLUNTARY.—The act which constitutes a fraudulent preference must no doubt be a voluntary act, not an act done under pressure. An act under pressure is not an act of freewill. 1935 S. 53. See also 13 R. 192.

Sec. 9 (d) (ii).—In considering the question whether insolvent secluded himself or departed from his usual place of business with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, each of the facts taken singly or by itself, is not sufficient. The Court should take comulative effect of these facts and to censider whether an inference can justifiably be drawn that in so departing or concealing himself, he did so with such an intent. 167 I.C. 96=1937 R. 16.

Sec. 9 (d) (iii) and Expl.—See 49 Mad. 189 =1926 Mad. 206.

Sec. 9 (e).—Sec. 9 (e) must be strictly construed in favour of the debtor to whom the matter of adjudication as an insolvent under the Insolvency law is one of vital importance. Any inconvenience arising out of such a construction is for the Legislature to consider and remedy, if they think proper, by amendment, it is not for the Court to enlarge the meaning of the words used by the Legislature. An attachment in execution of an award is not an attachment in execution of the decree of a Court within the meaning of sec. 8 (e) for the purpose of creating an act of insolvency. 178 I.C. 653=1938 Sind 220. Where a debtor was arrested at the suit of a particular creditor and when brought before the Court under sec. 55, C. P. Code, he stated through his counsel that, he wished to apply for an adjudication in insolvency and also applied for order under sec. 55 (4) and the Court passed a conditional order, held, that the application of the debtor amounted to an act of insolvency on the basis of which another creditor could apply for his adjudication. 34 C.W.N. 401=1930 C. 555. Sec. 9 (e) merely lays down that, if the property has been attached for 21 days or more, there has been an act of (f) if he petitions to be adjudged an insolvent;

(g) if he gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts;

(h) if he is imprisoned in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money.

NOTES.

bankruptcy. The act becomes complete at the conclusion of 21 days. Thus a creditor is not entitled to present a petition to adjudicate a person insolvent beyond three months after the person's property is attached for 21 days, though the property is under attachment at the time of the presentation of the petition. 57 Cal. 1274; 1931 Mad. 366=61 M.L.J. 27; 26 Bom.L.R. 1455=1927 Bom. 633; 1929 Rang. 313. The continuance of the attachment is not a continuing act of insolvency. 57 Cal. 1274. See also 61 M.L.J. 27. No Court would adjudicate a debtor insolvent unless it is satisfied that an act of insolvency specified under S. 9 was clearly established by the petitioning creditor. Where the petition of the attaching creditor is founded on an alleged attachment as specified in S. 9 (e) of the Act, the property which is said to be attached must be such property of the debtor as can under law be attached in execution of a decree against him. Where a licensee or lessee from the Government of India for the manufacture of salt deposits a sum of money with the Salt and Excise Department of the Central Government in pursuance of a condition precedent upon which he is granted the licence, as security for securing Government interests and for securing the due fulfilment and observance by the lessee of the covenants and agreements on his part, such a deposit is not liable to attachment in execution of a decree against him, because the amount cannot be regarded as a debt due to him until all the transactions connected with the licence or lease are closed. An attachment of such deposit under O. 21, R. 52, C. P. Code, is not a legal attachment which would amount to an act of insolvency under S. 9 (e) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 50=1941 Sind 193 Succeisive attachments—Last attachment—If can be relied on for founding insolvency petition. 1940 M. 990=52 L.W. 474=191 I.C. 687=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 495. The Court cannot treat a man as a debtor within the meaning of the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act unless he is either a subject of British India or has committed or suffered within British India an act of insolvency. A judgment-debtor who is a foreign subject, whose property has been attached for a period of not less than twenty-one days in execution of a decree of the High Court for payment of money and who has within a year before the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition carried on business through an agent within the limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court is not a debtor governed by the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, if he was not within the jurisdiction of the High Court at the time when his goods were seized in execution and the High Court has therefore no jurisdiction to adjudge him insolvent. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 301=40 Bom.L.R. 33=1938 Bom. 161. Where property has been attached before judgment and the plaintiff obtains a decree for money subsequently, if he applies for an order of the Court directing the sale of the property attached, the attachmeut automatically becomes from that moment an attachment in execution of the decree, and would sustain an application for adjudication of the judgment-debtor as an insolvent under S. 9 (e) of the Act, where such application is presented after 21 days of the application for sale. 55 L.W. 205=(1942) 1 M. L.J. 428. Unsatisfied execution—Application for adjudication—Discretion of Court—Practice. 34 Bom.L.R. 1436.

Secs. 9 (e) and 12.—The three months required by S. 12 begins on the expiry of 21 days. In reckoning the 21 days the date of attachment is not to be computed. 29 Bom. L.R. 1455=1927 B. 633=52 B. 126. Attachment in execution of a decree of any Court does not include attachment on execution of award. It cannot form the basis of insolvency petition—Award whether amounts to decree. 32 C.W.N. 608=1928 C. 840.

Sec. 9 (f).—The mere fact of the presentation of petition by insolvent is enough to make an order of adjudication, as the presentation itself is deemed an act of insolvency. See 30 C.W.N. 173=1926 C. 640.

Sec. 9 (g).—In order to constitute an act of insolvency, mere suspension of payment is not enough, but there must also be notice by debtor to creditors about such suspension of payments. 50 B. 624=1926 B. 405. A mere declaration of inability to pay does not of itself constitute an act of insolvency. 1936 C. 269. Where under S. 9 (g), both written and oral notices of suspension of payment of debts were alleged, and it was found that the correspondence comprising of written notice was of informal nature, it cannot be held that the conversations at the interviews were notices definite, formal and deliberate, intended to be understood in that sense. 1936 C. 269. It is an act of insolvency under S. 9 (g) if a debtor gives notice to his creditor that he has suspended or is about to suspend payment of his debts generally. But the suspension is a suspension of the payment of his debts generally and of a particular debt due to a particular creditor. The fact that the debtor and one of his creditors have agreed that the default by the debtor in the payment of an instalment due under a mortgage executed by him to that creditor should be treated as an act of insolvency does not make it incumbent upon the Court as an act of insolvency on which that creditor can found a petition for adjudication of the debtor. What the Court has to consider is the alleged act of insolvency is one as defined by the Act, and the Court in deciding the question can only look at the provisions of the Act. The agreement between the parties cannot be deemed to constitute the non-payment an act of insolvency. Nor does the Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, the act of an agent may be the act of the principal, even though the agent have no specific authority to commit the act.

Order of adjudication.

Power to adjudicate.

10. Subject to the conditions specified in this Act, if a debtor commits an act of insolvency, an insolvency petition may be presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, and the Court may on such petition make an order (hereinafter called an order of adjudication) adjudging him an insolvent.

NOTES.

agreement estop the debtor from raising a contention to the contrary, because the law of estoppel does not operate and cannot operate to prevent the provisions of the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act having effect. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 123=46 L.W. 515=1937 Mad. 961. In order that a notice of suspension may amount to an act of insolvency, it should have been made within three months before the presentation of petition and it must amount to a deliberate and intentional notice on behalf of the debtor that he has suspended or is about to suspend payment of his debts to his creditors generally. Unless the statement itself is capable per se of conveying the intention that the debtor has suspended or intends to suspend or is about to suspend payment of his debts, it is unnecessary to consider the surrounding circumstances. 11 R. 96=1933 R. 41=143 I.C. 775.

SUSPENSION OF PAYMENT—DISHONOURING OF CHEQUE.—The dishonouring of cheques upon perfectly solvent current accounts is a suspension of payment. A suspension of payment can obviously be either a permanent suspension or a temporary suspension. Whatever reasons may be advanced as to the cause of a suspension, even when those reasons allege that payment will, in all probability, be renewed at some future date, such action on the part of a bank or a firm taking deposits must amount to a suspension. 1933 R. 363=12 R. 64.

SUSPENSION OF PAYMENT—NOTICE BY CLERK—VALIDITY.—A person who is acting merely as a clerk has no authority, either express or implied, to act as agent, far less to do acts, such as giving notice of suspension of payment on behalf of the principals of the firm. 1933 R. 280=149 I.C. 1036. See also 12 R. 64.

SUSPENSION OF PAYMENT—WHAT AMOUNTS TO.—When a banking firm closes its doors and gives notice to its creditors that it is not going to make any further payments to its customers, this can be said to amount to an act of insolvency amounting to suspension of payment. But where a banker tells his customers, "I am unable to meet your demands owing to the peculiar circumstances, viz., that you are all demanding instant payment of your dues; but give me time to satisfy you that I am perfectly solvent," that cannot amount to a suspension of payment. 1933 R. 280. Where a member of a joint family firm instituted a suit for partition and the managing members were themselves appointed receivers and they sent a circular to the creditors that they were not in a position to pay the debts, the whole proceedings from the institution of the partition suit constitute an act of insolvency. The firm should be deemed to carry on business so long as the business debts remain undischarged in spite of the institution of the suit and in sending the intimation to the creditors in pursuance of the wishes of the partners, the receivers were only acting as the agents of the firm. (48 Mad. 795, Foll.) 25 S.L.R. 322=1931 S. 179. See also 49 M.L.J. 457.

Secs. 9 (g) and 13 (4): RELATIVE SCOPE.—S. 13 (4) (b) provides that the Court shall dismiss a petition for adjudication if the debtor appears and satisfies the Court that he is able to pay his debts. But S. 9 (g) contemplates something entirely different. Not only must the debtor be unable to pay his debts, but he must also convey to the creditor his intention not to pay. 1936 C. 269.

Sec. 9, Expl.—The position of an agent or Aiyar of a Chettyar private Bank in Rangoon is very similar to the position of a Bengali gumashta, and he has authority to issue notice of suspension of payment. 12 R. 64=1933 R. 363. The mere fact of a person being an agent of a Chettyar firm cannot in law entitle him to allow a creditor to obtain an order of adjudication, because he, the agent, purports to commit an act of insolvency within the meaning of S. 9. It is incumbent on the Court to require proof from the adjudicating creditor that the agent who is alleged to have committed the act of insolvency was expressly or impliedly authorised to do so or that the ordinary course of the business that he carried on for his principal, or that the nature of such business was sufficient to justify the Court holding that the agent's acts should be considered, in the circumstances, to be the acts of his principal. 1933 R. 280=149 I.C. 1036. Where members of a joint Hindu family carry on partnership business and if the elder member of the family who is also the managing partner of the firm makes a fraudulent transfer of the firm property to pay a debt due by the firm, the act of insolvency constituted by the transfer is an act of insolvency on the part of the other partners also as the managing partner is an agent within the meaning of Explanation to S. 9. 32 S.L.R. 672=1938 Sind 82.

Sec. 10.—See 16 C.W.N. 733; 15 C.W.N. 413=7 I.C. 394. A petition for adjudication of an insolvent under S. 10 must contain clear and precise allegations of fact upon proof of which the Court would be enabled and entitled to adjudge a person insolvent. The act of insolvency therefore must be referred to clearly and without ambiguity by the creditor in the Explanation.—The presentation of a petition by the debtor shall be deemed an act of insolvency within the meaning of this section, and on such petition the Court may make an order of adjudication.

Restrictions on jurisdiction.

11. The Court shall not have jurisdiction to make an order of adjudication, unless—

(a) the debtor is, at the time of the presentation of the insolvency petition, imprisoned in execution of the decree of a Court for the payment of money in any prison to which debtors are ordinarily committed by the Court in the exercise of its ordinary original jurisdiction; or

(b) the debtor, within a year before the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition, has ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or has carried on business either in person or through an agent within the limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court; or petition itself. Where an act of insolvency is not stated in the petition but is stated in the verifying affidavit, the affidavit in verification of the petition cannot be considered as part of petition and the petition must fail. Secs. 10 and 14: DISQUALIFIED PROPRIETOR CAN BE ADJUDICATED INSOLVENT.—If a debtor who applies to be adjudicated insolvent satisfies the conditions laid down by the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, he is entitled to be adjudged insolvent under that Act notwithstanding that his estate or part of it is already in the hands of the Court of Wards. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 318=1941 Cal. 505.

Secs. 10 and 17.—The O. A. ought to be made a party to an appeal from an order of adjudication. 34 C.W.N. 1051=130 I.C. 877 =1931 C. 167. In an adjudication order the exact acts of insolvency together with the dates should be carefully particularised. 35 C.W.N. 567. See also 11 R. 96.

Sec. 11: SCOPE OF.—The words "either personally or through an agent" were introduced for the purpose of removing a doubt which might otherwise have existed as to the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court over foreigners carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court by the employment of agents or managers properly and strictly so called, and not for including purchases and sales made by employing a commission agent. The business contemplated by the section should be carried on within the limits of the Court either personally by the defendant or by his agent properly and strictly so called and under his effective control, but not by a general agent who carries on business in his own name for diverse constituents on payment to him of a commission. 112 I.C. 134=1929 S. 24. The words "carrying on business", in S. 11 of the Act, mean the same thing as under the Letters Patent of 1865, namely, entering into transactions which may result in personal liabilities. 39 C.W.N. 324. It was alleged in a petition by a creditor that the debtor carried on business within the jurisdiction of Court, but that allegation was not proved. It was, however, admitted and found that the debtor worked for gain at the said place at the material times and also resided within jurisdiction. Held, that defect in the pleadings and the variation between the allegations in the pleading and proof were not fatal, and that the Court could disregard the erroneous allegation made in the petition and that it was sufficient, for the Court to assume jurisdiction, that the debtor resided and worked for gain within the jurisdiction. 39 C.W.N. 324. Sec. 11 (b).—The Act contemplates the possibility of the debtor ordinarily residing in one place and having a dwelling-house in another, and it is sufficient for the requirements of S. 11 (b) that the debtor has a dwelling-house with in the High Courts' jurisdiction limits available for his occupation asdwelling should he choose to dwell there, although he has ordinarily resided elsewhere and has not actually dwelt in the house within the year previous to the presentation of insolvency petition. 58 M.L.J. 189=1930 M. 544. The debtor's motive in taking up his residence in a particular place cannot affect the question whether he is to be deemed to have "ordinarily resided" there. 58 M.L.J. 189. See also 42 C. W.N. 350. Where a railway servant stationed at Jamalpur stays in a room rented by him in Calcutta during week-ends and certain other occasions, he has a dwelling-house in Calcutta within the meaning of S. 11 of the Act. 42 C. W.N. 350. A person who carries on a retail business in piece-goods outside Calcutta cannot be said to be residing or carrying on business in Calcutta, within the meaning of S. 11 merely because he comes to Calcutta once or twice a month for the purpose of purchasing stock through his broker and for the purpose of paying for the stock so purchased, and resides there for four or five days on each occasion. 46 C.W. N. 664. The Insolvency Court ought not to make an adjudication except upon a proper petition and when it appears that the adjudication has been wrongfully made, the Court must rescind it. A debtor's petition to be adjudicated as insolvent in which the allegation of inability to (d) in the case of a petition by or against a firm of debtors the firm has carried on business within a year before the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition within those limits.

(c) the debtor personally works for gain within those limits; or

Conditions on which creditor may petition.

12. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition against a debtor unless—

(b) the debt is a liquidated sum payable either immediately or at some certain future time, and

(c) the act of insolvency on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition.

NOTES.

pay his debts is a mis-statement made either deliberately or due to carelessness or to an honest mistake is not a proper petition. 1930 M. 544=58 M.L.J. 189. A debtor who is confined in the Rangoon Central Jail for upwards of 12 months prior to date of the petition must be deemed to have "ordinarily resided" in Rangoon so as to give jurisdiction to the High Court to entertain the petition. 13 R. 192.

BUSINESS BY COMMISSION AGENTS—JURISDICTION.—Where the business carried on at Karachi was a business not of a firm out of British India but of the commission agents who inter alia made transactions on behalf of the firm and all the transactions were invariably made by the commission agents in their own respective names and they were personally responsible to the local dealers, the mere fact that the firm out of British India employed the services of these agents to sell goods sent to them from up-country or to enter into forward contracts of sale and purchase on behalf of the firm, would not by itself be sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Karachi Court. 27 S. L. R. 298=1933 S. 202.

Sec. 11 (c).—The question whether insolvent personally works for gain in a particular place is primarily a question of fact. A person may be working for gain in more than one place. The place where the payment is made to the insolvent is not the test but one of the factors for consideration. The more important thing is where the money is actually received by the debtor and so available for the creditors. There must also be some degree of permanency in the relation between the debtor and places where he is alleged to work for gain. 34 Bom. L.R. 844=1932 B. 432.

Sec. 11 (d) : APPLICABILITY—APPLICATION AGAINST FIRM OF DEBTORS AND INDIVIDUAL PERSON—TEST OF JURISDICTION.—Cl. (d) of S. 11 applies where the application is against a firm of debtors and not against an individual debtor. It is necessary in order to give the Court jurisdiction to pass an order of adjudication, that the firm of debtors carried on business within a year of the date of the application within the Court's jurisdiction. And the onus is on the applicant to prove the fact. The question for determination in such a case however is not whether the debt of the petitioning creditor arose within the jurisdiction of the Court, but whether the debtor firm carried on business within a year of the date of application within the jurisdiction of the Court. To give jurisdiction the business should be carried on either personally or by an agent, properly and strictly so called, but not by a general agent, carrying on business, in his own name, for diverse constituents on commission. The debtor firm had a servant permanently employed within the jurisdiction of the Court. The servant used to watch over the interests of his master, give directions for sale when instructed to do so, bring brokers to the general agent, check weighments, hand over railway receipts and see that the goods were sold at the best available price, make entries in his books and keep his master informed; and a partner of the firm used to come every few months for a few days in connection with the business of the firm. Held, that the debtor firm carried on business within the jurisdiction of the Court. 27 S.L.R. 157=1933 S. 250.

Sec. 12.—An insolvent can question the right of the petitioning creditor to figure as creditor, and the O.A. after insolvency can enquire and strike out his name, if necessary, from the creditor's list. 37 I.C. 71=20 C.W.N. 995. The jurisdiction in bankruptcy is entirely discretionary. And in exercising the discretion, the Court is bound to look into the circumstances as a whole. 39 C.L.J. 512.

Sec. 12 (1) (c).—The three months required by S. 12 begins on the expiry of the twenty-one days mentioned in S. 9 (c). In reckoning the twenty-one days, the day on which the attachment is levied is not to be computed. 29 Bom. L.R. 1455=1927 B 633. See also 1937 Rang 16. Where an application for amendment is filed more than three months after the alleged act of insolvency is committed, such an application is not within time under S. 12 (c), and so the effect of granting an amendment is to give the petitioning creditors rights which they would not have had, had they sought to file their petition on the date when they applied for the amendment. Hence the amendment should not be permitted in such circumstances. 1934 S. 177. Where the respondent executed a mortgage of his shop in favour of his brother more than three months before the presentation of petition but possession in pursuance thereof was transferred within 3 months. Held, the transaction must be taken as a whole, because

(2) If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he shall in his petition either state that he is willing to relinquish his security for the benefit, of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged insolvent or give an estimate of the value of the scurity. In the latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him after deducting the value so estimated in the same way as if he were an unsecured creditor.

Proceedings and order on creditor's petition.

13. (1) A creditor's petition shall be verified by affidavit of the creditor, or of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the facts.

(2) At the hearing the Court shall require proof of—

(a) the debt of the petitioning creditor, and

(b) the act of insolvency or, if more than one act of insolvency is alleged in the petition, some one of the alleged acts of insolvency.

(3) The Court may adjourn the hearing of the petition and order service thereof on the debtor.

(4) The Court shall dismiss the petition—

NOTES.

the transfer of possession was only a necessary corollary of the mortgage, and as it was executed more than three months before the presentation of petition, it could not be an available act of insolvency on which a petition could be founded. 167 I.C. 96=1937 R. 16.

Sec. 12 (2).—A creditor presenting an insolvency petition against a debtor must prove the existence of a debt of Rs. 500 or upwards not only at the time when the petition is presented, but at the time of the hearing of the petition and at the moment of time immediately prior to the making of an order of adjudication. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 13=1939 Cal. 35. If a petitioning creditor omits inadvertently, and not deliberately, to include or mention a security, it does not necessarily follow that the proceedings should be wholly set aside. 61 C. 924.

Secs. 12 and 13.—Where a creditor's petition for adjudication states that the debtor has given notice to his creditors that he has suspended or is about to suspend payment of his debts, and the affidavit verifying the petition shows that this is in fact the case, there is sufficient compliance with the laws requirements. The petition and the affidavit should be read together, and if the petitioning creditor sets out in detail the facts on which he is relying, the debtor can have no complaint whether the information is contained in the petition or the affidavit. 54 L. W. 438=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 598. See 167 I.C. 585 =1937 Rang. 53, contra.

Sec. 13: PARTNERS—SEPARATE ADJUDICATIONS ON SAME DEBT—VALIDITY.—The petitioning creditor had filed a suit against the son of the applicant individually and obtained a decree; but he afterwards learnt that the applicant was also a partner with his son and proceeded against him under the insolvency law on the same debt. In a notice of motion taken out by the applicant to set aside the adjudication order passed against him, it was contended that on account of the decree obtained against his son as a partner, there was no debt due and payable by him and that it was not competent to the petitioner to get him adjudicated. Held that, though the remedy to sue may be barred by limitation, yet the debt was not extinguished. If, therefore, it was proved that the debt in dispute was a partnership debt, its existence would suffice to support an adjudication order against both father and son. 35 Bom.L.R. 881=1933 B. 407.

Sec. 13 (2).—Under S. 13 (2) the Court must be satisfied as to the validity of the debt of the petitioning creditor before it makes an order of adjudication. The question which arises in insolvency is not merely one between the petitioning creditor and the debtor. The rights of other creditors of the debtor have to be considered. The Court must therefore consider whether the petitioning creditor has in fact a good debt, and it is not bound by any decree as between the petitioning creditor and the debtor. The debtor may be estopped from disputing the decree, but the Insolvency Court is not estopped. The Court must be satisfied about the validity of the debt in the interests of the other creditors. 42 Bom.L.R. 1078. A petitioning creditor may rely on the decree which he has obtained against the debtor as evidence of his debt, but it is not conclusive. The Insolvency Court has to be satisfied, in spite of prima facie evidence contained in the decree, that the debt of the petitioning creditor exists. 42 Bom.L.R. 1078=1941 Bom. 62=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 156.

Sec. 13 (3).—The omission to serve the notice contemplated by S. 13 (3) is a formal defect or irregularity within the meaning of S. 118. 66 I.C. 886=34 C.L.J. 349. The burden lies upon the creditor to establish that the insolvent has waived the defect in the proceeding arising out of the omission to serve the initial notice. 66 I.C. 886=34 C.L.J. 349,

Sec. 13 (4)—The words 'other sufficient cause' should not be construed ejusdem generis. The widest possible interpretation should be put on these words. 1936 M. 27=70 M.L.J. 545. A creditor's petition for adjudication will be rejected when his conduct is vexatious and oppressive and an abuse of the process of the Court. The discretion will generally be used in favour of the debtor in cases where there is a principle of estoppel operating against the creditor and also when the petitioning creditor has been guilty of fraudulent or impro-

(a) if it is not satisfied with the proof of the facts referred to in sub-section (2); or

(b) if the debtor appears and satisfies the Court that he is able to pay his debts, or that he has not committed an act of insolvency or that for other sufficient cause no order ought to be made.

(5) The Court may make an order of adjudication if it is satisfied with the proof above referred to, or if on a hearing adjourned under sub-section (3) the debtor does not appear and service of the petition on him is proved, unless in its opinion the petition ought to have been presented before some other Court having insolvency jurisdiction.

(6) Where the debtor appears on the petition and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner, or that he is indebted to such an amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a petition against him, the Court, on such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of the debt which may be established against the debtor in due course of law, and of the costs of establishing the debt, may, instead of dismissing the petition, say all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to the debt.

(7) Where proceedings are stayed, the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by the stay of proceedings or for any other cause it thinks just, make an order of adjudication on the petition of some other creditor, and shall thereupon dismiss, on such terms as it thinks just, the petition on which proceedings have been stayed as aforesaid.

(8) A creditor's petition shall not, after presentation, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Conditions on which debtor may petition.

14. [1][(1)] A debtor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition unless—

(a) his debts amount to five hundred rupees, or

(b) he has been arrested and imprisoned in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money, or

(c) an order of attachment in execution of such a decree has been made and is subsisting against his property.

[1][(2) A debtor in respect of whom an order of adjudication, whether made under this Act or under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, has been annulled owing to his failure to apply or to prosecute an application for his discharge shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition without the leave of the Court

Sec. 13 (6).—It is only when the petitioning creditor's debt is denied that the Court can stay proceedings under S. 13 (6). 40 I.C. 207=19 Bom.L.R. 365. S. 13 (6) only contemplates that there should be a stay for such period as may be necessary for the determination of other matter in issue between parties and that ultimately there shall be a trial on the question relating to the debt. The sub-section never contemplates that a conditional order of adjudication should be added by way of sanction, to an order for furnishing security in connection with the postponement of the trial of the question as to the existence of the debt. Such an order cannot be supported and will be set aside. 61 C. 924.

Sec. 13 (8).—Ss. 13 (8) and 15 (2) apply to pending insolvency petitions before an order of adjudication is made, and therefore an adjudicated insolvent cannot be permitted to withdraw his petition on the ground that he has settled with the creditors. 38 B. 200=20 I.C. 859.

Proceedings and order on debtor's petition.

15. (1) A debtor's petition shall allege that the debtor is unable to pay his debts, and, if the debtor proves that he is entitled to present the petition, the Court may thereupon make an order of adjudication, unless in its opinion the petition ought to have been presented before some other Court having insolvency jurisdiction.

(2) A debtor's petition shall not, after presentation, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

failing which the Court may dismiss his petition.]

Dictionary powers as to appointment of interim receiver.

16. The Court may, if it is shown to be necessary for the protection of the estate, at any time after the presentation of an insolvency petition and before an order of adjudication is made, appoint the official assignee to be interim receiver of the property of the debtor, or of any part thereof, and direct him to take immediate possession thereof or any part thereof, and the official assignee shall thereupon have such of the powers conferable on a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as may be prescribed.

Effect or order of adjudication.

17. On the making of an order of adjudication, the property of the insolvent wherever situate shall vest in the official assignee and shall become divisible among his creditors, and thereafter, except as directed by this Act, no creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted in respect of any debt provable in insolvency shall, during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings, have any remedy against the property of the insolvent in respect of the debt or shall commence any suit or other legal proceeding except with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose:

Sec. 15 (3).—An order under S. 15 should be made in the ordinary course, unless it is clear that there has been an abuse of the process of the Court. 18 I.C. 544. A debtor has the right to be adjudicated when he has satisfied the condition laid down in the section. See 30 C.W.N. 173=1926 C. 640. A debtor who has been adjudicated insolvent on his own petition cannot even with the leave of the Court withdraw his petition. The only way by which this purpose can be effected is by annulling the adjudication. 3 R. 313=90 I.C. 969. See also 38 B. 200 cited under S. 13 (8).

Sec. 17: SCOPE OF SECTION.—There is no warrant for holding that S. 17 applies only to proceedings against the property of the insolvent and that therefore no leave of the Court is necessary for commencing a suit to enforce a personal remedy against an insolvent. There is no doubt a distinction between the language employed in the section on the one hand, and that employed in the corresponding sections of the English Bankruptcy Act and the Provincial Insolvency Act on the other, in that S. 17 of the former Act refers only to remedies against the property of the insolvent, while the latter Acts refer to remedy against the property or person of the debtor. But the latter portion of S. 17 relating to "suit and proceedings" is quite general; and having regard to the principle underlying the section, there is no justification for drawing a distinction between suits relating to the property of the insolvent and suits against the person of the insolvent, provided of course the suit or proceedings relate to any claim provable in insolvency. It was not intended

On passing of the adjudication order, the property of the debtor vests in O.A., whether it is situate in British India or not and whether O. Where a firm is adjudicated by two Courts, the adjudication order which is prior in time vests the property of the insolvent in the O.A. of that Court. The priority of vesting does not depend on the date of the commission of the acts of bankruptcy on which the proceedings were started. (42 M. 121, Foll.) 59 C. 1161=36 C. W. N. 546. The leave contemplated under S. 17 is leave which ought to be obtained before commencement of suit and cannot be granted after the same is filed. 40 B. 235=31 I.C. 948. See also 34 Bom.L.R. 649=1932 B. 338. of credit and reputation does not vest in the O. A., but remains vested in the insolvent in spite of the bankruptcy. The insolvent therefore can maintain and carry on the suit for such damages in his personal capacity. The principle applicable to individuals is also applicable to two or three persons carrying on business under a firm name. 1930 R. 289. Adjudication order does not operate to vest the insolvent's immovable property situated in a Foreign State in the O. A., or, when there has been a composition scheme approved of by the Court, in the trustees of the composition under the order approving the scheme. 35 C.W.N. 506. In the case of a defaulting member of the Bombay Native Share and Stock Brokers' Association, who is expelled from the Association, no interest in his card remains in himself and so none can pass to his assignee whether his expulsion does or does not take place prior to the commencement of his insolvency. S. 12, T. P. Act, has no application to the card of a member of the Association. 34 Bom.L.R. 1178=1932 P.C. 186=63 M.L.J. 623 (P.C.). Where an occupancy is not transferable, it cannot be sold in execution of a decree and accordingly does not vest in O. A. 121 I.C. 876 =1930 S. 75. The rules of the Provident Fund of a company provided that a member was entitled to receive the amount only on his retirement or discharge and that in case he transferred his interest during services, he was liable to forfeit his rights for the amount to the company. A member while in service was adjudged insolvent on his own petition and his rights vested in the O.A. Held, that the effect of his petition was to transfer or assign immediately his property to the O.A. and that it was equivalent to a voluntary transfer by the debtor to the O.A. within the meaning of the provident fund rule. 60 C. 926=37 C.W.N. 1050=1933 C. 701.

Sec. 17: PROPERTY ABANDONED BY OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE—IF RE-VESTS IN INSOLVENT.—Where a particular item of property belonging to the insolvent, which has vested in the Official Assignee by virtue of the operation of S. 17, is abandoned by him as being of no value at all, it does not, without any action on the part of the Official Assignee, become re-vested in the insolvent either during the currency of his insolvency or after his discharge. (39 A. 223, Diss. from.) I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 386=41 C.W.N. 875. S. 17 is not an absolute bar to execution of a decree. Leave to execute can be obtained. Where a judgment-debtor is adjudged an insolvent and the adjudication is subsequently cancelled, the time during which the insolvency proceedings were pending cannot be deducted in computing the period of limitation for an application to execute the decree. The Presy. T. Insol. Act contains no provision similar to the one enacted by S. 78 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, and the equitable rule contained in S. 78 (2) of the latter Act cannot therefore be invoked in the case of an insolvency under the Presy. T. Insol. Act. 1937 M.W.N. 1182.

ARREST OF JUDGMENT DEBTOR.—The word "other legal proceedings" in S. 17 includes an application for arrest in execution of a decree, and no such application can be made against an insolvent after an order of adjudication has been made except with the leave of the Court. 55 I.C. 250. In a suit to enforce the mortgage rights of the insolvent the O. A. is a necessary party and he will not be bound by the decree passed therein unless he was a party to the suit. 1929 Rang. 222.

Per Curiam.—The case is analogous to that of a suit brought against a man who was dead at the time of its institution. In such a case it would be incumbent on the plaintiff not merely to write to the legal representatives enquiring whether they wished to defend the suit but to place them on the record. 7 Rang. 201=1929 Rang. 229.

Sec. 17(Proviso).—The proviso to sec. 17 merely preserves to the creditor his power to realise or otherwise deal with the property. It has no bearing on the question as to what he could claim against the other assets of the company. 7 Rang. 514=1930 Rang. 20. O.A. is bound by all the equities which affect an insolvent: hence a valid charge, created by parol by a debtor in respect of a mortgage-debt due to him, binds, on his insolvency, the O. A. 123 I. C. 297=1930 Sind 77. Leave of the Court under S. 17 is necessary to institute a suit to realise the mortgage security. Held, also, that the proviso to that section will apply only to cases where the security is sought to be realised without a recourse to a suit. 7 Rang. 201=1929 Rang. 229. Leave to file suit against insolvent—Notice to insolvent whether an essential prerequisite. 117 I.C. 570.

SECURED CREDITORS, RIGHTS OF.—The power of a secured creditor to realise his security under the proviso to S. 17 covers his suit to enforce his right under a mortgage. 38 Bom. 359=21 I.C. 714. A secured creditor can institute a suit to realise his securities without leave of the Court. 45 I.C. 918. See also 38 Bom. 359. Rights of secured creditor described. 60 C. 1298=37 C. W.N. 973. The matter therefore of mortgage suits is one which lies apart from insolvency proceedings and although it might be possible for an O. A. to apply to the Court to be made a party in a mortgage suit it would be seldom that it would be in the interests of the estate for the O. A. to take such action. Therefore on general principles if action is to be taken at all, it is the insolvent who is the person to take action in regard to mortgage decrees. 151 I.C. 579= 1934 All. 1011. Where the secured creditor seeks to enforce his remedy against the security, it is necessary, that the O. A. should be impleaded as party but leave of the Court is not necessary. Where the O. A. was not impleaded in certain proceedings in execution taken at the instance of the secured creditor: Held, that the effect was that the equity of redemption was not represented, but the O. A. was the only person who could contest the execution. 60 Cal. 1298=37 C.W.N. 973.

INTEREST ON SECURED DEBTS.—A secured creditor can claim interest at the contract rate beyond the date of adjudication of the insolvent and up to the time of realisation. 2 Rang. 127= 83 I.C. 576. The refusal of discharge to an insolvent is not necessarily a determination of Stay of proceedings.

(2) An order made under sub-section (1) may be served by sending a copy thereof, under the seal of the Court, by post to the address for service of the plaintiff or other party prosecuting such suit or proceeding, and notice of such order shall be sent to the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending.

(3) Any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor may, on proof that an order of adjudication has been made against him under this Act, either stay the proceedings or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just.

[1][18-A. (1) The Court may, at any time after the presentation of an insolvency petition, stay any insolvency proceedings pending against the debtor in any Court subject to the superintendence of the Court, and may, at any time after the making of an order of adjudication, annul an adjudication against the debtor made by any such Court.

the insolvency proceedings and therefore a suit against an insolvent after adjudication and after such refusal is also barred by S. 17. 2 Rang. 643=84 I.C. 909.

Secs. 17 and 18.—Both secs. 17 and 18 contemplate direct proceedings against the insolvent and have no application to a proceeding for revocation of a probate of a will of a person whose heir-at-law is an adjudicated insolvent. The adjudication of the heir as insolvent does not, therefore, take away the right of his creditor to apply for revocation of the grant made in favour of a third person of a probate of a will which substantially deprives the heir of his inheritance. Nor does the subsequent discharge of the insolvent have any effect on the creditor's right to proceed with his application for revocation. I.L.R. Secs. 17 and 52.—S. 52 is an independent section by itself and is an exception to S. 17, so that if a creditor having a charge over debts due to the insolvent fails to perfect his title by giving notice to the debtors to the insolvent, the trustee in insolvency is entitled to those debts, as property in the reputed ownership of the insolvent. 25 S.L.R. 310. See also 43 C.W.N. 290 (solicitor's lien .

Sec. 18.—As to object of section, see 49 Mad. 788. S. 18 only applies to a case where the judge exercising insolvency jurisdiction has already made an order of adjudication. It does not enable a judge of the High Court sitting in insolvency to stay insolvency proceedings before a mofussil Court even before he has passed the order of adjudication. 31 C.W.N. 847=1927 Cal. 620. Under S. 18, the Insolvency Judge in a High Court has power to transfer a suit against the insolvent pending in a mofussil Court. 22 L.W. 326=90 I.C. 1054 (1). See also 1926 Mad. 150. The District Court is not subject to superintendence of the Commissioner in Insolvency, and consequently the latter cannot stay insolvency proceedings in the former. 24 Bom.L.R. 872=1921 Bom. 390. Where a suit is filed against the insolvent after the date of the order of adjudication, the Court is not bound to dismiss the case; it has power under S. 18 (3) to stay such a proceeding. 31 Bom.L.R. 981=1929 Bom. 398. A partition suit which the sons file to separate the property of the insolvent from the properties of other sharers is not a suit involving a claim against the insolvent, except in so far as it may involve a claim to account or a claim for money decree against the insolvent. The Insolvency Court has no jurisdiction to stay such a suit for partition. 55 Mad. 558=63 M.L.J. 37. Stay of proceeding—"Other proceeding," meaning of—Proceeding against some debtor before District Court—Stay of, by High Court exercising insolvency jurisdiction. See 56 Cal. 712=113 I.C. 860. The words of S. 18 (3) justify a stay of proceedings in an action which was not pending at the time of the order of adjudication. 41 Bom. 312=33 I.C. 694.

Sec. 18-A.—The necessity for the enactment of this new section has been explained as follows:—

"It has been held by some of the High Courts that S. 18 (1) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act does not empower a judge of the High Court sitting in insolvency to stay proceedings pending in respect of the same debtor in a Court subject to the superintendence of the High Court under the Provincial Insolvency Act. The need for such power has been felt, particularly in Calcutta where a common practice prevails whereby debtors, who have carried on business in Calcutta, retire to some part of the

(2) Where an adjudication is annulled under sub-section (1), all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made and all acts done by the Court whose order is annulled, or by the receiver appointed by it or other person acting under his authority, shall be valid, but the property vested in such Court or receiver shall vest in the official assignee, and the Court may make such direction in regard to the custody of such property as it thinks fit.

(3) Notice of the order annulling an adjudication under sub-section (1) shall be published in the Official Gazette and in such other manner as may be prescribed.

Power to appoint special manager.

19. (1) If in any case the Court, having regard to the nature of the debtor's estate or business or to the interests of the creditors generally, is of opinion that a special manager of the estate or business ought to be appointed to assist the official assignee, the Court may appoint a manager thereof accordingly to act for such time as the Court may authorize, and to have such powers of the official assignee as may be entrusted to him by the official assignee or as the Court may direct.

(2) The special manager shall give security and furnish accounts in such manner as the Court may direct, and shall receive such remuneration as the Court may determine.

Advertisement of order of adjudication.

20. Notice of every order of adjudication, stating the name, address and description of the insolvent, the date of the adjudication, the Court by which the adjudication is made and the date of presentation of the petition, shall be published [1][* * * *] in the Official Gazette and in such other manner as may be prescribed.

Annulment of Adjudication.

Power of Court to annul adjudication in certain cases.

21. (1) Where, in the opinion of the Court, a debtor ought not to have been adjudged insolvent, or where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent are paid in full, the Court may, on the application of any person interested, by order annul the adjudication [2][and the Court may, of its own motion or on application made by the official assignee or any creditor, annul any adjudication made on the petition of a debtor who was, by reason of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 14, not entitled to present such petition].

Sec. 21.—ENQUIRY FOR ANNULMENT OF ADJUDICATION—SCOPE—Per Bagulay, J.—If, in the opinion of the Court, on the date of the filing of the application for adjudication, there existed other good grounds for the adjudication, any such grounds may be gone into in the inquiry which is to be opened with regard to the annulment of the adjudication, and, if they are proved, at the subsequent inquiry, there is no reason why the Court should not come to the conclusion that on the date of the filing of the application, the debtor ought to have been adjudged insolvent; and, if matters cannot be carried as far as that, the existence of perfectly good grounds for the debtor's adjudication, existing on the date of the filing of the application for adjudication, would be very good grounds for the Court to refuse to exercise its discretion in favour of the debtor. Semble.—The word 'may' in the section does not mean 'must'. 1933 R. 363. See also 1928 M. 394=

(2) For the purposes of this section, any debt disputed by a debtor shall be considered as paid in full, if the debtor enters into a bond, in such sum and with such sureties as the Court approves, to pay the amount to be recovered in any proceeding for the recovery of or concerning the debt, with costs, and any debt due to a creditor who cannot be found or cannot be identified shall be considered as paid in full if paid into Court.

Concurrent proceedings in British Courts.

22. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that insolvency proceedings are pending in any other British Court whether within or without British India against the same debtor and that the property of the debtor can be more conveniently distributed by such other Court, the Court may annul the adjudication or may stay all proceedings thereon.

Proceedings on annulment.

23. (1) Where an adjudication is annulled, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the official assignee or other person acting under his authority, or by the Court, shall be valid, but the property of the debtor who was adjudged insolvent shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or, in default of any such appointment, shall revert to the debtor to the extent of his right or interest therein on such terms and subject to such conditions (if any) as the Court may declare by order.

108 I.C. 208. [See also cases under Ss. 13 and 15, supra.] Annulment of adjudication may be ordered if adjudication order was obtained by an abuse of the process of Court. 27 C.W.N. 739; 44 C. 899. A judge, in considering an annulment, is exercising a discretion whether his former order should be maintained. This discretion must be exercised upon certain materials in the evidence. In considering such a question, he should not conduct a roving inquiry into the financial position of the debtor, but he should scrutinize closely the actual position of the adjudicating firm at the time that the alleged suspension took place and, within limits, should also consider the surrounding circumstances of the suspension and the manner in which the notice of suspension is alleged to have been given. 1933 R. 363=12 R. 64. A creditor filed a petition for adjudication alleging that a certain act was the statutory notice of suspension of payment. In so doing, he was under a misconception of law, as the real notice was some other act. At the time of inquiry of petition under S. 21, he sought to amend his petition. Held, the amendment must be allowed. 12 R. 64. Under S. 23 (1) the effect of the annulment of an adjudication is to divest the Official Assignee of the debtor's property, which reverts to the debtor unless the Court by order appoints some one in whom it shall vest, not necessarily the Official Assignee. Where the Court annulling an adjudication directed that the assets should remain in the hands of the Official Assignee subject to the further order of the Court. Held, that the effect of that order was not to vest the debtor's property in the Official Assignee under S. 23 (1) but to cause such property to revert to the debtor on condition that the assets already in the hands of the Official Assignee were to remain in his hands subject to the further order of the Court. Insolvent's schedule.

(2) The schedule shall be so submitted within the following times, namely:

(a) if the order is made on the petition of the debtor, within thirty days from the date of the order,

(b) if the order is made on the petition of a creditor, within thirty days from the date of service of the order.

(3) If the insolvent fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with the requirements of this section, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee or of any creditor, make an order for his committal to the civil prison.

(4) If the insolvent fails to prepare and submit any such schedule as aforesaid, the official assignee may, at the expense of the estate, cause such a schedule to be prepared in manner prescribed.

ing a composition scheme under S. 30 (1), it is not necessary that the Court should make a vesting order in order that the properties may vest in the particular person appointed by the Court. The effect of S. 23 (1) is that upon the Court making an appointment under the section, the property of the debtor ipso facto vests in the person or persons appointed. 40 C.W.N. 1029. Where the order directs that the O.A. shall make over the assets to certain trustees named in the proposal of composition, who were to be appointed for carrying out the scheme of composition, the effect of the order is to appoint those persons as trustees under S. 23 (1), and the property of the debtor ipso facto vests in them. The fact that no deed of conveyance is executed in their favour as provided for in the proposal does not affect the title of the trustees to deal with the property. 40 C.W.N. 1029.

(2) With respect to the summoning of and proceedings at a meeting of creditors the rules in the First Schedule shall be observed.

Public examination of the insolvent.

27. (1) Where the Court makes an order of adjudication it shall hold a public sitting on a day to be appointed by the Court, of which notice shall be given to creditors in the prescribed manner, for the examination of the insolvent, and the insolvent shall attend thereat, and shall be examined as to his conduct, dealings and property.

(6) The insolvent shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing and shall be read over either to or by the insolvent and signed by him, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.

(7) When the Court is of opinion that the affairs of the insolvent have been sufficiently investigated, it shall, by order, declare that his examination is concluded, but such order shall not preclude the Court from directing further examination of the insolvent whenever it may deem fit to do so.

(8) Where the insolvent is a lunatic or suffers from any such mental or physical affliction or disability as, in the opinion of the Court, makes him unfit to attend his public examination, or is a woman who according to the customs and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public, the Court may make an order dispensing with such examination, or directing that the insolvent be examined on such terms, in such manner and at such place as to the Court seems expedient.

Composition and Schemes of Arrangement.

Submission of proposal and acceptance by creditors.

28. (1) An insolvent may, at any time after the making of an order of adjudication, submit a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of his debts, or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs in the prescribed form, and such proposal shall be submitted by the official assignee to a meeting of creditors.

(2) The official assignee shall send to each creditor who is mentioned in the schedule, or who has tendered a proof before the meeting, a copy of the insolvent's proposals with a report thereon, and if on the consideration of such proposal the majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors whose debts are proved resolve to accept the proposal, the same shall be deemed to be duly accepted by the creditors.

(3) The insolvent may at the meeting amend the terms of his proposal if the amendment is in the opinion of the official assignee calculated to benefit the general body of creditors.

(4) Any creditor who has proved his debt may assent to or dissent from the proposal by a letter, in the prescribed form, addressed to the official assignee so as to be received by him not later than the day preceding the meeting, and any such assent or dissent shall have effect as if the creditor had been present and had voted at the meeting.

NOTES.

Sec. 27 (6).—The notes of the public examination of the insolvent, though admissible against him under S. 27 (6), are not admissible against a creditor who had no opportunity to cross-examine. 36 I.C. 689=24 C.L.J. 149.

Secs. 28 and 27.—A composition in the absence of public examination of the insolvent, in a case where the debts are large, is not consistent with an efficient administration of the Act. Unless there is an examination and investigation, no creditor can know whether it is to his interest to accept the scheme. 59 C. 1436.

Sec. 28.—Details of proposal. should be clear and specific. See 59 C. 1436. The voting letter does not come into operation imme diately it is filed before the O. A. and may therefore be revoked at or before the meeting but before the proposal or the amended proposal, if any, is considered, and the votes counted, e.g., at an adjourned meeting. 26 S.L.R. 339.

Secs. 28 and 30.—A creditor releasing a surety of an insolvent debtor is not liable to return the money received by him from the surety. Part-payment of a surety debt is part-performance of the contract and a partial discharge thereof. 44 M. 381=63 I.C. 173=40 M.L.J. 404.

29. (1) The insolvent or the official assignee may after the proposal is accepted by the creditors apply to the Court to approve it, and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved.

Approval of proposal by Court.

(2) Except where an estate is being summarily administered or special leave of the Court has been obtained, the application shall not be heard until after the conclusion of the public examination of the insolvent. Any creditor who has proved may be heard by the Court in opposition to the application notwithstanding that he may at a meeting of creditors have voted for the acceptance of the proposal.

(3) The Court shall before approving the proposal hear a report of the official assignee as to the terms thereof and as to the conduct of the insolvent and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor.

(4) Where the Court is of opinion that the terms of the proposal are not reasonable or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors or in any case in which the Court is required to refuse the insolvent's discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal.

(5) Where any facts are proved on proof of which the Court would be required either to refuse, suspend or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal unless it provides reasonable security for payment of not less than four annas in the rupee on all the unsecured debts provable against the debtor's estate.

(6) No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of an insolvent.

(7) In any other case the Court may either approve or refuse to approve the proposal.

30. (1) If the Court approves the proposal, the terms shall be embodied in an order of the Court, and an order shall be made annulling the adjudication, and the provisions of section 23, sub-sections (1) and (3), shall thereupon apply, and the composition or scheme shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debt due to them from the insolvent and provable in insolvency.

Order on approval.

NOTES.

Sec. 29 (4).—The interests of the creditors is not the sole concern of the Court in approving schemes of composition, and it is the duty of the Court to refuse to annul an adjudication if such an annulment would not be in the interest of the public or of commercial morality. 5 R. 241=1927 R. 176. A Court is not bound to accept a composition simply because none of the creditors appeared to oppose its approval. 107 I.C. 433=1928 S. 90=23 S.L. R. 192. The Court could not order that the administration of the scheme was to remain in the hands of the O. A. where the scheme provided that the trustee should administer it. 5 R. 241=1927 R. 176.

Sec. 30.—S. 30 is merely enabling and does not exclude the jurisdiction of ordinary Courts. 48 M. 521=48 M.L.J. 252. The jurisdiction of the Insol. Court is not exhausted owing to the annulment of the adjudication. Thus the Court has jurisdiction to give effect to the scheme it has approved. 35 C. W. N. 506=1932 C. 124. See also 31 I. C. 192. As to arrangement by insolvent with creditors, see 43 M. 71=37 M.L.J. 244. The debtors are entitled to the unclaimed balance which is in the hands of the O. A. as trustee of the fund put up in connection with the composition arrangement. 60 C. 313=1933 C. 387. On acceptance of composition scheme and annulment of adjudication, property ipso facto vests in the person appointed, and no separate vesting order is necessary. 40 C.W.N. 1029. Where after the insolvency of a debtor, the creditor proceeds against the debtor and the sureties for the realization of the debt and an award is drawn up without objection from the debtor, the contract of suretyship merges into the award so that after the passing of the award the creditor's rights against the sureties arise under the award and not the original contract of suretyship. The sanction of any subsequent scheme of composition or the annulment of the insolvency proceedings following it, does not make any difference to those rights nor does it operate to absolve the sureties' liability under the award. These rights of the creditor are not affected by the provisions of S. 30 and if the Power to re-adjudge debtor insolvent.

31. (1) If default is made in the payment of any instalment due in pursuance of any composition or scheme, approved as aforesaid, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any person interested, re-adjudge the debtor insolvent and annul the composition or scheme, and the property of the debtor shall thereupon vest in the official assignee but without prejudice to the validity of any transfer or payment duly made or of anything duly done under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme.

(2) Where a debtor is re-adjudged insolvent under sub-section (1), all debts provable in other respects which have been contracted before the date of such re-adjudication shall be provable in the insolvency.

Limitation of effect of composition or scheme.

32. Notwithstanding the acceptance and approval of a composition or scheme, the composition or scheme shall not be binding on any creditor so far as regards a debt or liability from which, under the provisions of this Act, the insolvent would not be discharged by an order of discharge in insolvency, unless the creditor assents to the composition or scheme.

Control over person and property of insolvent.

Duties of insolvent as to discovery and realization of property.

33. (1) Every insolvent shall, unless prevented by sickness or other sufficient cause, attend any meeting of his creditors which the official assignee may require him to attend, and shall submit, to such examination and give such information as the meeting may require.

(2) The insolvent shall—debt under the award has been duly proved in the insolvency proceedings the creditor is entitled to put the award into execution and have it executed against the sureties. 183 I.C. 766=1939 Cal. 352.

Secs. 30 and 32.—Acceptance of a scheme of composition operates as a discharge of the insolvent from all debts provable in insolvency though not brought before the Ins. Court. 92 I.C. 535=1926 A. 293.

Sec. 31.—When a debtor is "adjudicated" or "re-adjudicated" or "freshly adjudicated" under S. 31, such adjudication is not independent of the original insolvency. 105 I.C. 90=54 C. 650=1928 C. 21. His legal position is analogous to that of an insolvent who has obtained his discharge, but, whose discharge is ultimately cancelled during the period between the date when he obtained his discharge and the date when the discharge is cancelled. 54 C. 650. Where a scheme has been approved and subsequently is annulled and the debtor dies after the scheme has been approved and before it is annulled, S. 93 applies; and notwithstanding the death of the debtor, any person interested has locus standi to apply that the debtor be re-adjudged an insolvent for the purpose of the further administration in insolvency of the deceased debtor's estate. 105 I.C. 90=54 C. 650. An order under S. 31 releases the trustees from their bond. 1937 Cal. 532. An assignee of a joint debt from one of the two joint creditors of the debtor whose proof of claim was never formally admitted by the Official Assignee, is not a 'person interested' within the purview of S. 31 (1) and he is not, therefore, entitled to apply to the Court for the re-adjudication of the debtor and annulment of the scheme of composition. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 493=1939 Cal. 119. Where a person who is found to be a creditor has been denied participation in the dividend paid by reason of a fraud practised upon the Court by the insolvent, it must be held that the payment of dividend to the other creditors is not a payment "duly made" within the meaning of S. 31. In such a case the Court, on the application of the creditor who has not participated, can order the other creditors who have been paid to pay back to the Official Assignee, such amount each as would be necessary to make up the proper dividend payable to the creditor concerned on the amount of his claim. 54 L.W. 560=1942 Mad. 103=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 847.

as may be required by the official assignee or special manager or may be prescribed or be directed by the Court by any special order or orders made in reference to any particular case, or made on the occasion of any special application by the official assignee or special manager, or any creditor or person interested.

(3) The insolvent shall aid, to the utmost of his power, in the realization of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors.

(4) If the insolvent wilfully fails to perform the duties imposed upon him by this section, or to deliver up possession to the official assignee of any part of his property, which is divisible amongst his creditors under this Act and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control, he shall, in addition to any other punishment to which he may be subject, be guilty of a contempt of Court, and may be punished accordingly.

Arrest of insolvent.

34. (1) The Court may, either of its own motion, or at the instance of the official assignee or of any creditor, by warrant addressed to any police-officer or prescribed officer of the Court, cause an insolvent to be arrested, and committed to the civil prison or if in prison to be detained until such time as the Court may order, under the following circumstances, namely:—

(a) if it appears to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he has absconded or is about to abscond with a view of avoiding examination in respect of his affairs, or of otherwise avoiding, delaying or embarrassing proceedings in insolvency against him; or

(b) if it appears to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he is about to remove his property with a view of preventing or delaying possession being taken of it by the official assignee, or that there is probable reason for believing that he has concealed or is about to conceal or destroy any of his property or any books, documents or writings which might be of use to his creditors in the course of his insolvency; or

(c) if he removes any property in his possession above the value of fifty rupees without the leave of the official assignee.

(2) No payment or composition made or security given after arrest made under this section shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act relating to fraudulent preferences.

Re-direction of letters.

35. Where the official assignee has been appointed interim receiver, or an order of adjudication is made, the Court, on the application of the official assignee, may, from time to time, order that for such time, not exceeding three months, as the Court thinks fit, all post letters, whether registered or unregistered, parcels and money orders

Discovery of insolvent's property.

36. (1) The Court may, on the application of the official assignee or of any creditor who has proved his debt, at any time after an order of adjudication has been made, summon before it in such manner as may be prescribed the insolvent or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any property belonging to the insolvent, or supposed to be indebted to the insolvent or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the insolvent, his dealings or property; and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the insolvent, his dealings or property.

NOTES.

Sec. 36: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—S. 36 does not contemplate a roving inquiry into the affairs of the insolvent, but where the O.A. only desires to inquire into a specific matter, viz., a debt which he is informed is due from the applicant to the insolvent, then S. 36 may be invoked. 152 I.C. 878=1934 S. 158. S. 36 is very wide and there is nothing in the Act limiting the Court's powers thereunder to the period before the discharge. But these powers should not be used unduly or unnecessarily long after the discharge. 40 I.C. 94=44 C. 374. See also I. L.R. (1941) Kar. 455. Under S. 36 the Court has power to direct examination either of a third party or of the insolvent. There is nothing to prevent the Court from examining the insolvent after his discharge. 37 C.W.N. 718= 60 C. 936=1933 C. 699. Orders under S. 36 are purely discretionary. In the first instance they are intended to be made for the benefit of the general body of creditors, and secondly to enable the O.A. to establish the rights against the creditors, or the creditors in the insolvency who are brought upon the scene by means of fraudulent preferences or fraudulent tactics resorted to, who usually are the relatives and friends of the insolvent, prior to the insolvency. At the same time it is clear that the law never contemplated that the provisions of S. 36 should be used for the purposes of a fishing cross-examination in order to prepare for future litigation. 31 Bom.L.R. 420=1929 B. 230 (2). S. 36 confers upon the Court a power which is general in its character. Whenever the circumstances are such as to bring the section into operation, the Court can require the person concerned to be examined and it is no ground for limiting the order that information to be obtained on the examination may result in litigation against the person examined. One of the objects of the section is to enable the O.A. to discover whether he ought to engage in litigation on behalf of the estate or not. The examination may be ordered when the circumstances bring the case within S. 36, sub-S. (1). Prima facie the Court ought not to make an order under S. 36, unless there is ground for thinking that the order is likely to be of some use. 57 B. 665= 35 Bom.L.R. 546=1933 B. 309. S. 36 was only intended for the purpose of enabling the O.A. to get hold of the properties belonging to the insolvent in the possession of third persons. It is only on the admission of those persons that the Court can order them to give up the properties. The section was not intended for the purpose of enabling the O.A. to cross-examine a claimant and get from him the proof of his case. 7 R. 675. Before a third party can be called upon to produce books of account in his custody, the O.A. must make out a prima facie case that the third party had such books in his custody. The report of the O.A. is no legal evidence in support of his application. 63 M. L.J. 810. It is very important having regard to the somewhat drastic provisions of S. 36 that applications thereunder should set out fully and in detail the object of the proposed examination. Where the O.A. stated that a certain person was capable of giving information regarding the dealings with the properties of the insolvents and swore that the matters stated were true to be best of his information and belief, held, that the verification was sufficient and that the application need not be verified by affidavit. Held, also that in such a general application the person sommoned could be examined regarding his indebtedness to the insolvent; where the O.A. improperly exercises his power of examination, the person summoned may object and refuse to answer. 33 C.W.N. 679. The general practice is to examine the insolvent under S. 36 but the Court can also examine though S. 36 does not apply. Examination of an insolvent under S. 36 and without any objection on his part is voluntary and is admissible under S. 103 of the Act. 47 C. 254=24 C.W.N. 425. S. 132 (1), C. P. Code, does not apply to examinations under S. 36 (1) of this Act and the Court may in suitable case summon before it a pardanashin lady who is known or suspected to have in her possession any property belonging to the insolvent. S. 37 gives the Court power, if it thinks fit, instead of summoning such a pardanashin lady to Court, to issue commissions or letters of request. That power however is discretionary. 56 C. 865 =33 C.W.N. 681=1929 C. 528. A witness examined under S. 36 is not entitled to the costs of employing attorney or counsel. 53 I.C. 362 =46 C. 795. The Court has no jurisdiction to determine questions of title as between the O.A. and a stranger to the insolvency, where, prima facie the title is in the stranger. 24 I.C. 239= 37 M.L.J. 66. The Ins. Court has no jurisdic-

(2) If any person so summoned, after having been tendered a reasonable sum, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, or refuses to produce any such document, having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of its sitting and allowed by it, the Court may, by warrant, cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination.

(3) The Court may examine any person so brought before it concerning the insolvent, his dealings or property, and such person may be represented by a legal practitioner.

(4) [1][If on his examination any such person admits] that he is indebted to the insolvent, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, order him to pay to the official assignee, at such time and in such manner as to the Court seems expedient, the amount in which he is indebted, or any part thereof, either in full discharge of the whole amount or not, as the Court thinks fit, with or without costs of the examination.

(5) [1][If on his examination any such person admits] that he has in his possession any property belonging to the insolvent, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, order him to deliver to the official assignee that property, or any part thereof, at such time, in such manner and on such terms as to the Court may seem just.

Where a creditor has complied with the formalities and given the required proof of a debt, he is "a creditor who has proved his debt" within the meaning of S. 36. Sec. 36 (5).—The Court cannot act under S. 36 (5) unless there is a clear admission by the person examined. Prior to his adjudication, the insolvent executed a deed of composition of which S was one of the trustees. That deed provided that the debtors assigned to the trustees certain properties which included certain piecegoods pledged by the insolvent with a Bank. It further provided that the trustees should be at liberty to raise or advance money in order to clear those goods lying in deposit with the Bank and to sell them and reimburse themselves. Upon his examination under S. 36, S said that the insolvent owned him a certain sum, that he received some piecegoods from the Bank after paying it whatever was due and that on the sale of the goods there was a profit of a certain sum. Further he said that he did not make over the money to the Official Assignee,

He also stated that the goods were not received by him as a trustee. Held, that the deposition of S contained a clear admission that he had in his possession property belonging to the insolvent, namely, the profit realised upon the sale of the goods. W. 327=1937 Mad. 775.

Secs. 36 and 7, proviso.—There is no ambiguity whatever in the language used in S. 36 of the Act, by the Legislature, and the only matters which arise under S. 36 for purposes of the proviso to S. 7 of the Act as amended in 1927, are alleged indebtedness to the insolvent by a third party and alleged possession by a third party of any property belonging to the insolvent. The proviso to S. 7 would not therefore come into operation unless the proceedings under S. 7 involve the decision of such a matter arising under S. 36. If the third party summoned under S. 36 admits his indebtedness to the insolvent or admits his possession of property belonging to the insolvent, the Court has power to deal with him under Cls. (4) and (5) of S. 36. If the person summoned under S. 36 denies his indebtedness to the insolvent or denies that he has in his possession or power any property belonging to the insolvent, the Court has no power under S. 36 to deal further with that person under S. 36 and is precluded from deciding such matters in insolvency jurisdiction by the proviso to S. 7, unless all the parties agree. Where, however, the question is not whether the person summoned is indebted to the insolvent or whether he is in his possession of, or has in his power, any property belonging to the insolvent, but whether the person summoned has a title to certain disputed property, the proviso to S. 7 is no bar to the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court dealing with and disposing of the matter involved. A matter may be said to arise under S. 36 of the Act, although no person may have been summoned and examined under that action. Similarly, even if a person has been summoned and examined under S. 36, the mere fact of his examination would not bring into operation the proviso to S. 7 unless the matter of the examination is such as arises under S. 36, and thus relates to the indebtedness to the party examined to the insolvent, or to the fact of possession by him of property belonging to the insolvent. Where the dispute between the Official Assignee and the person examined is not matter of possession but a matter of title to property, the matter is not one arising under S. 36, and the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court under S. 7 is not ousted by the proviso to that section. 1942 Sind. 21=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 455. See also cases under S. 7 supra. The effect of the proviso added to S. 7, by the amendment of 1927, is that when a person who is examined under S. 36 denies the claim of the Official Assignee with regard to any property in his possession, the Official Assignee can proceed against him only by way of suit, unless that person submits to the jurisdiction of the Insolvency Court. The proviso however will not apply when there has been no such examination. In such a case the Insolvency Court has a discretion. The Insolvency Court will, however, refuse to exercise jurisdiction as against a stranger to the insolvency unless he submits to its jurisdiction and will not decide complicated questions of title between the Official Assignee and a stranger. Such questions must be left to be decided in a suit in the ordinary tribunal, if the parties so desire. 44 Bom.L.R. 171.

under the provisions of this Act, the application shall not be heard until after such examination has been concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court.

(2) On the hearing of the application, the Court shall take into consideration any report of the official assignee as to the insolvent's conduct and affairs and, subject to the provisions of section 39, may—

(a) grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or

(b) suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or

(c) grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent, or with respect to his after-acquired property.

Cases in which the Court must refuse an absolute discharge.

39. (1) The Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the insolvent has committed any offence under this Act, or under sections 421 to 424 of the Indian Penal Code, and shall on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned either—

(a) refuse the discharge; or

(b) suspend the discharge for a specified time; or

(c) suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than four annas in the rupee has been paid to the creditor; or

(d) require the insolvent as a condition of his discharge to consent to a decree being passed against him in favour of the official assignee for any balance or part of any balance of the debts provable under the insolvency which is not satisfied at the date of his discharge; such balance or part of any balance of the debts to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the insolvent in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; but in that case the decree shall not be executed without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the insolvent has since his discharge acquired property or income available for payment of his debts.

(2) The facts hereinbefore referred to are—

(a) that the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to four annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of such value, has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible;

(b) that the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose

Where an insolvent who carried on a huge business failed to produce his books of account and pleaded that he was illiterate, held, that a strong presumption arises that the insolvent did keep accounts and suppressed them so as to prevent an investigation into his insolvency, and that it was gross neglect if he really failed to keep accounts in a business of such magnitude and that in any event the Court would be justified in refusing his discharge. 1927 R. 126=5 R. 50. Where for some time before the order of adjudication was made, the insolvent had acted in a manner which made him a menace to the commercial community and to the public at large, had on the eve of insolvency put the whole of his assets out of the reach of his creditors, deliberately destroyed his account books and was likely, if made once more a free man, to prey upon credulous members of the public and it was further proved that in spite of his insolvency, he has been driving about in a motor car registered under a false name, held, the Court should refuse the insolvent his application for discharge, having regard to the interests of the public. Where an order, suspending the discharge of insolvent accompanied by an appropriation order, is passed under S. 39 against an insolvent, the mere fact that the insolvent is subsequently warned by his employers that he would be dismissed unless he obtains a discharge, is no ground for granting him a discharge and exempting him from further payments under the appropriation order. The Insolvency Court cannot in administration of the law yield to the pressure of the insolvent's employers. 166 I.C. 935=1937 R. 22. See also 166 I.C. 787=1937 R. 14; 1941 Rang. 26.

his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his insolvency;

(c) that the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(d) that the insolvent has contracted any debt provable under this Act without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (the burden of proving which shall lie on him) that he would be able to pay it;

(e) that the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities;

(f) that the insolvent has brought on or contributed to his insolvency by rash or hazardous speculations or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs;

(g) that the insolvent has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any suit properly brought against him;

(h) that the insolvent has, within three months preceding the time of presentation of the petition incurred, unjustifiable expense by bringing a frivolous or vexatious suit;

(i) that the insolvent has within three months preceding the date of the presentation of the petition, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(j) that the insolvent has concealed or removed his books or his property or any part thereof or has been guilty of any other fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

(3) The power of suspending and of attaching conditions to an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently.

(4) On any application for discharge, the report of the official assignee shall be prima facie evidence and the Court may presume the correctness of any statement contained therein.

NOTES.

Sec. 39 (1) (c): Where a Court acts under S. 39 it isincumbent upon it strictly to comply with the provisions of S. 39 in passing an order Under S. 39 (1) (c) the Court is not empowered to suspend the discharge until a dividend of more than four annas in the rupee has been paid. Hence an order suspending the insolvent's discharge 'until twelve annas in the rupee is paid' is not in accordance with law. 1935 R. 200. See also 1941 Rang. 26. A dividend can only be paid to a creditor who has proved his debt [S. 69 (1)]. It is only by virtue of the position acquired by his proof (so far as it has been admitted) that a creditor can receive a dividend at all. 14 R. 374=1936 R. 190.

Sec. 39 (2) (a), (d) and (f).—The mere fact that the Insolvency Court refuses a protection order to the insolvent while suspending the discharge for reasons mentioned in Cls. (a), (d) and (f) is not a sufficient reason for the Court to accede to the request of a creditor to commit the insolvent to jail. 38 Bom.L.R. 1204=1937 B. 144. The object of the order of the discharge is to enable a person to recommence with a clean state and it is desirable that he should be given the opportunity of making a fresh start. But, on the other hand, it is undesirable that a man who has brought himself within the ambit of the Act, should, as it were, walk through the Bankruptcy Court without some period during which his discharge shall be suspended. Hence, in a case falling under S. 39 (2), Cls. (a), (d) and (e) Court's order should be an order suspending the discharge for a specific time. 193 I. C. 764=1941 Rang. 127.

Sec. 39 (2) (b).—Where a large proprietor of agricultural land leases out his land to tenants, makes advances to them, collects their crops in payment of his rent and repayment of advances, and sells the produce with the intention of thereby gaining and continuing to gain his livelihood, his activities amount to carrying on a business. But in the absence of evidence that it is usual and proper to keep certain books in a business of this kind, the conclusion must be that it is unusual and unnecsssary for him to keep books. S. 39 (2) (b) of the Act has, therefore, no application to such a case. 14 R. 758 =1937 R. 128.

Secs. 39 and 42.—When the discharge has been refused under S. 39 (1), it is open to the insolvent, with the Court's permission, to renew his application for discharge under S. 42 (1). S. 39 contemplates the refusal of a discharge in two contingencies: (1) where the insolvent has been convicted of any of the offences referred to in the section; and (2) when any of the facts referred to in S. 39 (2) of the Act are Hearing of application for discharge.

40. Notice of the appointment by the Court of the day for hearing the application for discharge shall be published in the prescribed manner, and sent one month at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the official assignee, and may also hear any creditor. At the hearing the Court may put such questions to the insolvent and receive such evidence as it may think fit.

Power to annul adjudication on failure to apply for discharge.

41. If an insolvent does not appear on the day so appointed for hearing his application for discharge or if an insolvent shall not apply to the Court for an order of discharge within such time as may be prescribed, the Court, on the application of the official assignee or of a creditor, or of its own motion, may annual the adjudication or make such other order as it may think fit, and the provisions of section 23 shall apply on such annulment.

Renewal of application and variation of terms of order.

42. (1) Where the Court refuses the discharge of the insolvent, it may, after such time and in such circumstances as may be prescribed, permit him to renew his application.

(2) Where an order of discharge is made subject to conditions and, at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of the order, the insolvent shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit.

Duty of discharged insolvent to assist in realization of property.

43. A discharged insolvent shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the official assignee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the official assignee, and, if he fails to do so, shall be guilty of a contempt of Court; and the found to exist. In the first contingency the Court has no option but to refuse an order of discharge. In the second contingency the Court has a discretion to grant or refuse such an order. S. 42 is general in its terms and cannot be restricted in its application to the second contingency referred to above without doing violence to the plain and unambiguous language of the section. 188 I.C. 778=1940 Sind 85.

Sec. 40.—As to whether attendance of insolvent in person at the hearing is necessary, see 161 I.C. 590=1936 R. 62.

Sec. 41: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Where adjudication is annulled by reason of the default of the insolvent, the insolvent is to lose the benefit of the insolvency, but he is not to benefit by the annulment. The annulment is not for his advantage. 60 C. 259=1933 C. 386. The Registrar in insolvency has jurisdiction to make the order of annulment under S. 41: 27 C.W.N. 916=1924 C. 83. Normally on an annulment of adjudication by reason of the default of the insolvent, his property should be vested in the O.A. or proper officer under the Act in force and is so vested in him for the benefit of the creditors. 60 C. 259=1933 C. 386. If the order of discharge is not completed by the insolvent within one week, it is the duty of the Registrar to have that order drawn up in order that it might be gazetted. If the Registrar did not perform this duty in completing the order made on an application for discharge and the O.A. took no steps to have it completed, it does not follow that the insolvent continues to be undischarged for all time and the O.A. is not entitled to claim a sum of money coming to the insolvent eight years after the order was made as his after-acquired property. 36 C.W.N. 532. Sec. 42.—In enacting S. 42 it was the intention of the Legislature to afford relief to insolvents who had been refused a discharge, whatever the reason may have been for the refusal, and to invest the Insolvency Courts in India with a discretion in the matter of granting or refusing a discharge. similar to that exercised by Judges in England under the English Bankruptcy Law. 188 I.C. 778=1940 Sind 85. (Refusal under S. 39 (1)).

Sec. 43: APPLICABILITY—PARTNERS.—S. 43 applies as much to partners as to other co-contractors. A judgment against one partner is no bar to a subsequent suit on the contract or obligation against the other partners so long as the debt is not extinguished, as the liability of partners is a joint and several one. 145 I.C. 619=35 Bom.L.R. 881=1933 B. 407. Although under S. 43 it is the duty of the discharged Court may also, if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made or thing duly done subsequent to the discharge, but before its revocation.

Fraudulent settlements.

44. In either of the following cases, that is to say:—

(1) in the case of a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage where the settlor is not, at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement; or

(2) in the case of any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of his marriage any estate or interest (not being money or property of or in right of his wife);

if the settlor is adjudged insolvent or compounds or arranges with his creditors, and it appears to the Court that the settlement, covenant or contract was made in order to defeat or delay creditors, or was unjustifiable having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when it was made, the Court may refuse or suspend an order of discharge or grant an order subject to conditions or refuse to approve a composition or arrangement.

Effect of order of discharge.

45. (1) An order of discharge shall not release the insolvent from—

(a) any debt due to the Crown;

(b) any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party; or

(c) any debt or liability in respect of which he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party; or

(d) any liability under an order for maintenance made under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-section (1), an order of discharge shall release the insolvent from all debts provable in insolvency.

(3) An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the insolvency and of the validity of the proceedings therein.

(4) An order of discharge shall not release any person who, at the date of the presentation of the petition, was a partner or co-trustee with the insolvent, or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him, or any person who was surety, or in the nature of a surety, for him.

PART III.

ADMINISTRATION OF PROPERTY.

Proof of debts.

Debts provable in insolvency.

46. (1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract or breach of trust shall not be provable in insolvency.

(2) A person having notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against the debtor shall not prove for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as provided by sub-sections (1) and (2), all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged an insolvent, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable in insolvency.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the official assignee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value:

NOTES.

Sec. 46.—The jurisdiction of the O.A. to inquire into debts cannot be used as a device to escape the execution of a decree where the only debts of the insolvent is the decree and there are no other debts. Where, after the passing of an ex parte decree, an application for arrest was taken out against the debtor who thereupon successfully applied to be adjudicated an insolvent and the O.A. impugned the decree debt on the ground that summons had not been properly served on the debtor but it appeared that there was defence on the merits. Held, that the Ins. Court could not invalidate the decree or hold that the debt was not binding on the debtor. 1930 M. 751=59 M.L.J. 321.

Sec. 46 (3).—While a father's debt is alive in insolvency, any remedy against the sons in insolvency is not barred. That the debts as against the father are alive is all that is necessary to enable the O.A. to make the son's shares liable for them in insolvency by appropriate proceedings. 1931 M. 317=61 M.L.J. 66. Where a Hindu son who has taken the separate property of his deceased father and also his undivided property is adjudicated insolvent, a simple money creditor of the deceased father is entitled to prove the father's debt in the insolvency of the son under S. 46. The creditor is not, however, entitled to claim priority over the creditors of the son in the insolvency of the son in respect of his debt. There is nothing to prevent a creditor of the son from getting satisfaction out of the father's property which has devolved on the son, and no distinction can be drawn between a father's creditor and a son's creditor. 52 L.W. 89=1940 Mad. 837=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 621. If the last day when the debt could have been enforced was a public holiday and on the next reopening day the debtor is adjudicated an insolvent, the debt is provable in insolvency. It is not necessary for the creditor for the purpose of keeping his debt alive, to file a suit on the re-opening day after the intervention of the insolvency. 55 M. 630=62 M.L.J. 256 (F.B.). A creditor can prove for a debt which was barred by limitation at the date of the order of adjudication, but was not so barred at the date of the act of insolvency on which the adjudication was founded. 60 Bom. 444 =38 Bom.L.R. 71=1936 B. 130. Arrears of maintenance due under order under S. 488, Cr.P. Code, is a debt provable in insolvency. 44 L.W. 292=1936 M. 793=71 M.L.J. 430.

SECURED CREDITOR—REMEDY—ENFORCEMENT OF SECURITY.—A secured creditor who comes in under the insolvency has only three courses open to him, namely; (1) that he may realise the security and then prove for the balance, (2) he may surrender the security and prove for the whole debt and (3) he may state the whole valuation at which he assessed the security and then prove for the balance after deducting the assessed value. The provisions of S. 46 refer to a creditor who has taken any of the three courses and does not refer to one who wants to enforce his security. 60 C. 1298=37 C.W.N. 973.

Secs. 46 (3) and 45 (2).—Subsequent to the adjudication of the insolvent, the respondent obtained leave to sue the O.A. and the mortgagor insolvent under S. 17 and got an order that the costs of the application be tacked on to the mortgage debt. He then brought a suit on the mortgage and was awarded a mortgage decree and a personal decree for the balance ineluding the cost of the application for leave to sue. Before execution, the insolvent was discharged and the latter contended that the decree could not be executed after his discharge. Held, (1) that the obligation to pay the costs was one which accrued after the date of adjudication and in respect of which there could be no proof in insolvency under S. 46 (3); (2) that the order of discharge did not therefore release the insolvent from the debt. 33 Bom.L.R. 1101=1931 B. 554.

Provided that if in his opinion the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated he shall issue a certificate to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall be deemed to be a debt not provable in insolvency.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section "liability" includes any compensation for work or labour done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring, before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it includes any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of money, or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any contingency or contingencies; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or as matter of opinion.

Mutual dealings and set-off.

47. Where there have been mutual dealings between an insolvent and a creditor proving or claiming to prove a debt under this Act, an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party shall be set-off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of the account, and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively:

Provided that a person shall not be entitled under this section to claim the benefits of any set-off against the property of an insolvent in any case where he had, at the time of giving credit to the insolvent, notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against him.

Rules as to proof of debts.

48. With respect to the mode of proving debts, the right of proof by secured and other creditors, the admission and rejection of proofs, and the other matters referred to in the second schedule, the rules in that schedule shall be observed.

Priority of debts.

49. (1) In the distribution of the property of the insolvent, there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

NOTES.

Sec. 47.—No judgment-debtor can be permitted to place himself in a more favourable position vis a vis his fellow debtors by purchasing after adjudication, the liabilities of the insolvent and then setting off his rights thus procured against his original debt to the insolvent's estate. Recognition of such action would cut across all the canons of Ins. Law. 8 R. 419 =1931 R. 25. See 19 I.C. 57=15 Bom.L.R. 113; 6 R. 46=1928 R. 111. The words "mutual dealings" refer to mutual dealings at the time of the insolvency and cannot refer to a purchase by one of the debtors of a claim against the insolvent long after the insolvency. 9 R. 373 =1931 R 193.

Secs. 47 and 55.—If an assignment of a policy of insurance by an insolvent is declared void as against the Official Assignee under S. 55 the position is the same as if there never had been any assignment and the life policy reverts to and is the property of the insolvent. As such the Official Assignee does not obtain the policy by a separate and distinct title but as property of the insolvent which vests in him under S. 17 of the Act. The insurance company is therefore entitled to set off under S. 47 of the Act the monies due to it from the insolvent upon the marine policies effected by him against the amount of the surrender value of the life policy which it is liable to pay to the Official Assignee. 46 C.W.N. 510.

Sec. 48.—Rejection of proof—Insolvency of firm—Suit by creditor against partner—Compromise—Acceptance of smaller sum than due—Release of partner and the whole of the assets. Release operates in favour of insolvent firm and the rejection by the O.A. of the proof by the creditor for the balance of the debt is correct. 32 Bom.L.R. 1656. As to proof by scheduled creditor, see 27 S.L.R. 224=1933 S. 355.

Sec. 49 (1)—Crown debts are entitled to preference—Debts due to Government Soap Factory are Crown debts. 45 M. 156=16 L. W. 46. The expression "a debt due to the Crown or to any local authority" includes not only a debt which has become due to the Crown but also a debt which is provable within the meaning of S. 46 (3), whether such demand has become provable or not and whether it is in point of law strictly a debt or not. 174 I.C. 157=1938

(a) all debts due to the Crown or to any local authority;

(b) all salary or wages of any clerk, servant or labourer in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during four months before the date of the presentation of the petition, not exceeding three hundred rupees for each such clerk, and one hundred rupees for each such servant or labourer; and

(c) rent due to a landlord from the insolvent: provided the amount payable under this clause shall not exceed one month's rent.

(2) The debts specified in sub-section (1) shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the insolvent is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the expenses of administration or otherwise, the debts specified in sub-section (1) shall be discharged forthwith in so far as the property of the insolvent is sufficient to meet them.

(4) In the case of partners the partnership property shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of the partnership debts, and the separate property of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. Where there is a surplus of the separate property of the partners, it shall be dealt with as part of the partnership property; and where there is a surplus of the partnership property, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate property in proportion to the rights and interests of each partner in the partnership property.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts proved in insolvency shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference.

(6) Where there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date on which the debtor is adjudged an insolvent at the rate of six per centum per annum on all debts proved in the insolvency.

Rent due before adjudication.

50. After an order of adjudication has been made, no distress for rent due before such order shall be made upon the goods or effects of the insolvent, unless the order be annulled, but the landlord or party to whom the rent may be due shall be entitled to prove in respect of such rent.

Property available for payment of debts.

Relation of assignee's title.

Provided that no insolvency petition or order of adjudication shall be rendered invalid by reason of any act of insolvency committed anterior to the debt of the petitioning creditor.

Description of insolvent's property divisible amongst creditors.

52. (1) The property of the insolvent divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Act referred to as the property of the insolvent, shall not comprise the following particulars, namely:—

(a) property held by the insolvent on trust for any other person;

(b) the tools (if any) of his trade and the necessary wearing apparel, bedding, cooking vessels, and furniture of himself, his wife, and children, to a value, inclusive of tools and apparel and other necessaries as aforesaid, not exceeding three hundred rupees in the whole.

NOTES.

acts of insolvency relied on for adjudication of a debtor, one of them being a transfer to a creditor by the insolvent, which is impugned as a fraudulent preference, the transfer must be held to be ipso facto void, when there is an act of insolvency mentioned in the petition which is anterior in time to the transfer. 30 S.L.R. 281=1936 Sind. 246. "Relation-back" does not make the transfer "void" because, if void, it would have always been void. Nor is it strictly "voidable" which denotes the operation of some form of election in the trustee. What, in fact, happens is that, where the trustee's title relates back under the Act, that post-dated statutory title destroys and overrides any existing title and brings the property back into the estate, whence it is deemed never to have departed. While, therefore, an act of bankruptcy has always been held "void" as such; what really is meant is that the title of the transferee under the transfer is displaced by the statutory title of the trustee and the reason for that is that the "relation-back" provisions of the statute so operate as to destroy at the instant of the transfer the transferor's own title and (subject to the protective provisions) the title of those claiming through him. The transfer is "voidable" only in the sense that the statute steps in and destroys its effect and not in the sense in which in law, the expression "voidable" is usually employed, nnmely that of being capable of being avoided at the volition or election of soms person. If the trustee does not, in fact claim the property that only amounts to the trustee leaving with the transferee property which is not really his and to which he has no title. No real question of "election' arises, except so far as the trustee may elect whether or not physically to take the property which has become his. 1937 Rang.L. R. 65=1937 Rang. 372.

ADJUDICATION IN BRITISH INDIA—PROPERTY OF INSOLVENT IN FOREIGN STATE ATTACHED BY FOREIGN COURT PRIOR TO ADJUDICATION.—Where the law of insolvency in a foreign State is identical with the law of British India, an adjudication order made in British India would, in ordinary circumstances, vest in the O. A. the property of the insolvent in that State. But if a creditor has, before the date of the adjudication, duly obtained an attachment of that property through the foreign Court, it would not vest in the O. A. as, at the date of the adjudication, the insolvent could not himself have assigned it because of the attachment. S. 51 of the Act cannot be invoked in favour of the O. A. so as to relate back his title to the time of the commission of the act of insolvency which is prior to the attachment. 39 C.W.N. 1135=62 C. 659. On this section see also 1941 Cal. 112.

Secs. 51 and 17.—Where a firm is adjudicated by two Courts, the adjudication order which is prior in time vests the property of the insolvent in the O. A. of that Court. The priority of vesting does not depend on the date of the commission of the act of bankruptcy on which the proceedings were started. 59 C. 1161=36 C.W.N. 546.

Secs. 51 and 57.—Under S. 51 the title of the O. A. commences at the date of the commencement of the insolvency. But S. 57, inter alia, provides that any transfer by the insolvent for valuable consideration, provided that it takes place before the date of the order of adjudication and that the transferee in question has not at the time had notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition, shall not be invalidated by any provisions in the Act, Ss. 51 and 57 thus present an anomaly which the legislature will have to deal with. The relevant sections of the English Act on the point are not inconsistent. 41 C.W.N. 105=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 557=170 I.C. 672.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the property of the insolvent shall comprise the following particulars, namely:—

S. 52 is an independent section by itself and is an exception to S. 17, so that if a creditor having a charge over debts due to the insolvent fails to perfect his title by giving notice to the debtors of the insolvent, the trustee in insolvency is entitled to those debts as property in the repudiated ownership of the insolvent. 1931 S. 44. Sec. 52 (2) (c).—Doctrine of reputed ownership, explained. 167 I.C. 505 (2)=1937 S. 37. The doctrine applies only when the goods are proved to be in the possession of the insolvent with the consent of the true owners. A countermanding order to deliver the goods to the vendor re-vests the property in the vendor before it gets into possession of the insolvent and thus prevents the applicability of this doctrine. 30 S.L.R. 148=1936 S. 106. In order to attract the doctrine, it must be proved that the true owner parted with possession of the goods under circumstances from which he must have known, if he had considered the matter, that the goods will be used in the trade or business of the bankrupt, that they were so used, and that they were in his possession, order, or disposition at the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition. 117 I.C. 158=1929 S. 167. "True owner" for the purpose of S. 52 includes a person having a lien or an equitable charge, as well as a person having a legal title. 56 M. 177=1933 M. 207=64 M. L.J. 320. See also 45 M.L.J. 817=47 M. 215. It includes also a beneficiary entitled to immediate possession of goods. 167 I.C. 505 (2)=1937 S. 37. S. 52 does not apply to property which is not in the possession, order and disposition of the debtor, either at the date of the presentation of the petition or the date of the adjudication. The appointment of Receiver removes the property from the possession of the insolvent. 52 M. 938=1929 M. 184=56 M.L.J. 95. Where a trustee is authorised by the terms of the trust to invest the trust funds in his own business and pay interest thereon, and he so uses it, the trust funds cannot be traced by the cestui que trust as the relationship between them is, by virtue of such liberty, converted into one of debtor and creditor. The funds will be available for the benefit of the general body of creditors as property subject to the reputed ownership of the trustee. 1931 M. 251=60 M.L.J. 355. But see 60 I.A. 203, infra. Trust created by agreement between vendor and vendee making vendee trustee "for goods or their sale proceeds" in the hands of vendee, is nothing more than a mere eyewash intended to defeat the provisions regarding the doctrine of reputed ownership, and it being against the provisions of S. 4, Trusts Act, cannot be enforced against the Official Assignee. 167 I.C. 505 (2)=1937 S. 37. When property possessed by the bankrupt in his character as trustee has become so amalgamated with his general property that it can no longer be identified, the representative of the trust has no lien upon the movable assets of the debtor and he cannot claim to be paid before the other creditors. 1937 S. 37. Where a certain amount is a trust in the hands of the trustees to be invested in their business and is so invested, it must be taken to have remained a part of the assets of that business and to have been there at the date of their insolvency, the beneficiaries being entitled at all times to a charge upon such assets in the hands of the firm. Upon the insolvency of the trustees, the assets no doubt pass to the O.A. but they pass subject to the charge. 60 I.A. 203=56 M. 570=65 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.). Where a secured creditor holds a charge or a lien or a mortgage on debts due to a person in the course of a trade or business, and the charge-holder omits to perfect his title by giving notice to the original debtor and leaves them in the possession, order or disposition of that person under such circumstances so as to allow him to deal with them in any way he likes and that person is afterwards adjudicated insolvent, the O.A. has a right to step in and claim the debt for the general body of the creditors in preference to the right of the secured creditors under the doctrine of reputed ownership in S. 52 (c) proviso. S. 17 proviso, does not help the creditor as S. 52 (c) is an exception to S. 17. 1931 S. 44; 117 I.C. 158=1929 S. 167. The equity of redemption in goods pledged by the insolvent is not 'goods' within the meaning of that term in S. 52 (2) (c) and the fact that pledgee or charge-holder leaves the power to sell such goods with the insolvent does not render the pledge or charge invalid. 42 M.L.J. 155=45 M. 238. In S. 52 (2) (c) the word is "consent", and unless a withdrawal of consent is communicated to the person from whom consent is withdrawn, such withdrawal will not be effective. 1931 S. 40. The question whether in a particular case a demand is made and so the consent is withdrawn is a question of fact, depending on the circumstances of each case. The demand must be effective, bona fide, and should be pursued with a view to take possession of the mortgaged goods. It should not be merely a casual demand and then let the goods remain in the possession of the apparent owner. 1931 S. 40. See also 5 R. 73=1927 R. 140. On this section, see also 30 C.W.N. 898=1926 C. 618.

Secs. 52 and 60.—S. 60 does not interfere with the provisions of S. 52. Where the salary of an insolvent who is a public servant falls below Rs. 100 per mensem, a "prospective order' for payment of a portion of his salary to meet the debts due to his creditors cannot be passed under S. 60. But such salary, though below Rs. 100, becomes the insolvent's property when paid to him, and therefore falls within S. 52 of the Act. It would then be open in law to the Official Assignee to apply, after the salary has been received, for an order directing a portion of it to be paid over to him for the benefit of the creditors. Unless the circumstances are exceptional, the Court might refuse to pass such an order in view of the principle embodied in S. 60 of the Act and S. 60, C. P. Code. I. L.R. (1942) Mad. 199=54 L.W. 420=1941 M. 906=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 591; (1941) 2 M.L.J. 845.

Sec. 53 (1).—S. 53 (1) does not apply to an administration of the insolvent estate of a deceased person under Ss. 108 and 109 of the Act. An attachment only prevents alienation and does not confer any title or create any charge or lien on the attached property. 43 I.C. 348=44 C. 1016. See also (1940) 2 M.L.J. 979=52 L.W. 894. S. 53 (1) should be so construed as not to apply to notice of presentation of an insolvency petition which has been disposed of and on which no adjudication can follow; but the language might not be restricted so as to exclude notice of the presentation of an insolvency petition on which adjudication may follow. Where a petition in insolvency is presented by the creditor executing his decree and is dismissed, and amounts are paid to the creditor subsequent to the dismissal, but on the appeal of the creditor. the petition is restored, the case falls within S. 53 (1); and the payment is clearly bad as against the Official Assignee. 41 Bom.L.R. 506. Where a receiver is appointed at the instance of an equitable mortgagee, the income realised from the mortgaged properties should in law be considered as earmarked for his use and treated as additional security for the amount due to the mortgagee and the latter is entitled, when he is not able to realise his decree amount by the sale of the mortgaged properties, to proceed against the income in the hands of the receiver in preference to the Official Assignee in whom the properties of the mortgagor might have subsequently vested. 54 M. 565=1931 M. 626=61 M.L.J. 111. Where steps are taken by the Court for the purpose of obtaining a sum of money into its own possession under a perfectly legal application for execution, which the decree holder is in law entitled to make, the fact that instead of issuing a precept under S. 46 or a garnishee order under R. 104, O. 21, C. P. Code, the Court issues a process under R. 46 of the same order does not make the receipt of the money by the Court otherwise than in the course of the execution. 9 Luck. 278=1934 Oudh 11.

decree-holder. Money received in the form of a cheque by the executing Court can be treated as "assets realized." 9 Luck. 278=1934 O. 11. The meaning of the word "assets" in S. 53 is limited to money or cash which is capable of immediate distribution among the decree-holders. S. 73, C. P. Code, has not widened the scope of the section because the words "assets held by a Court" must mean "money held by a Court" or it is only money and not goods which can be the subject of rateable distribution. The order for rateable distribution no doubt operates so as to create title in the decree-holders to the subject-matter of the order, but money alone can be the subject-matter of the order. Rateable distribution only comes into operation after the sale has been held and the goods converted into money (27 Cal. 351; 18 Cal. 242 and 28 Bom. 264, Rel. on). I.L.R. (1939) 2 C. 143=43 C.W.N. 1197=1939 Cal. 530. The general rule is clearly established that mere attachment of property does not constitute a charge and does not constitute the attaching creditor a secured creditor within the meaning of S. 53 (2). 41 Bom.L.R. 506.

Secs. 53 (3) and 51: PROTECTION OF PURCHASER—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Under S. 53 (3) if it can be shown that a purchaser in execution proceedings has purchased in good faith prior to the order of adjudication, his purchase cannot be assailed on grounds based on S. 51. The party seeking to validate on otherwise invalid purchase by relying on S. 53 (3) must show that he is covered by it. 194 I.C. 423=1941 Cal. 112.

To bring a case under S. 55, valuable consideration and good faith have to be proved. In order that a trust deed executed by a debtor for the benefit of creditors within two years prior to his adjudication may be valid, it is necessary that the transfer of property should be in favour of (1) a purchaser, (2) in good faith, and (3) for valuable consideration. The burden is on the trustees under the deed of trust to make out that the transfer satisfied all the three conditions. 1931 M. 366. Where it appeared that the insolvent transferred property

S. 55 does not apply to property over which an insolvent in his capacity as karta of a joint family or trustee has a disposing power, at any rate with regard to the shares of other persons interested in it. 46 C.W.N. 256. Where a transfer by an insolvent prior to adjudication is held to be void on the application of the O.A. a subsequent transfer by such transferee is also void, even if the subsequent transferee acts bona fide. 165 I.C. 273=1936 S. 148. See also 40 C.W.N. 1012=1936 C. 212. A transfer effected prior to insolvency, upon which the order of adjudication is passed, must be held to be fraudulent and void, and the remedy, if any, of the transferee against the O.A. is to get the order of adjudication annulled before the O.A. can be called upon to prove that the transfer is fraudulent. 165 I.C. 273=1936 S. 148. See also 1937 Rang.L.R. 65=1937 Rang. 372; 40 Bom.L.R. 884; 1937 Rang. 113. "Void" in S. 55 means "voidable" at the instance of the O. A. 20 I.C. 485=25 M.L.J. 308. Application under S. 56 can be made only by O. A. 70 I.C. 463 (1)=26 C.W.N. 803. An Ins. Court can make an enquiry as to whether the transfer of the insolvent is fraudulent and void against the O. A. subject to the right of the party affected to bring a regular suit. An insolvent's examination is not evidence against the transfer. 46 I.C. 196=22 C.W.N. 335. A transfer cannot be said to have been made "in good faith" within the meaning of S. 55, if it is made in fraud of the bankruptcy laws. 42 M. 510=36 M.L.J. 190. The voidability of a transaction by virtue of S. 55 can be gone into only by the Ins. Court, and the same cannot be raised by way of defence in a suit upon the mortgage executed by the insolvent. 50 M. 776=53 M.L.J. 209. Decree-holder insolvent—Execution by private transferee—Objection not raised—Effect. See 1933 P. 130. When a special forum is constituted by a special Act, questions arising under that Act must, in the absence of anything to the contrary in the Act or in any other enactment, be determined by the forum constituted by the Act, so that any question as to the voidability of a transaction in so far as it is raised by the O. A. under the special provisions of that Act has to be determined by the Court constituted under that Act, which would have jurisdiction to determine that question. 50 M. 776=1927 M. 684=53 M.L.J. 209. But see contra 34 Bom.L.R. 1156=1932 B. 566. A single application by the O. A. to set aside a number of alienations made by the insolvent within a period of about a fortnight is maintainable and is not bad for multifariousness, where it is alleged that the transactions impeached are the outcome of a general scheme of fraud and conspiracy entered into between the insolvent and the alienees. 44 L.W. 872=71 M.L.J. 788.

DECREE-HOLDER INSOLVENT—EXECUTION BY PRIVATE TRANSFEREE—OBJECTION NOT RAISED—EFFECT.—Where a judgment debtor is a party to the execution proceedings and is apprised of the assignment of the decree by the original decree-holder who is adjudged insolvent, in favour of a private person, as well as of the application of the transferee to be substituted in place of the original decree-holder and to carry on the execution and he raises no objection at the time, the O.A. not taking any steps to take possession of the decree and execute it himself, he (judgment-debtor) cannot object to the execution and say that the O. A. alone is entitled to execute the decree. It is for the O.A. or the creditors of the insolvent to object to the money due under the decree being paid to the transferee of the original decree-holder, and therefore S. 55 does not bar execution of the decree by a private transferee. In the absence of any evidence one way or the other, it is not open to the Court to hold that a transfer of a decree made by a person within two years prior to his adjudication was not in good faith and for valuable consideration, in direct conflict with the recitals in the deed of assignment and the circumstances set forth therein. It is also not sufficient for the judgment-debtor to say that the transaction was colourable and collusive and that the decree had vested in the O.A. by operation of law. He has to show not only that the O. A. was entitled to intervene but also he had intervened, or that he intended to intervene. 146 I.C. 389=1933 P. 130.

TRANSACTION VOID UNDER THIS SECTION—VALIDITY UNDER S. 53, PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.—By virtue of the important words being exactly the same in S. 55, Presy. T. Ins. Act and in S. 53, Prov. Ins. Act, if an hypothecation bond comes within the meaning of S. 55. Presy. T. Ins. Act, it would certainly be void under S. 53, Prov. Ins. Act. 1933 R. 424.

REMISSION OF DEBT BY INSOLVENT—IF VOID.—The expression "transfer" in S. 55 is not limited to any particular form of alienation of his property. It covers all sorts of devices that may be practised or suffered by the insolvent to deprive his creditors of the benefit of his property. A remission of a debt by the insolvent without consideration is as much a voluntary transfer under S. 55, as under the English Law. S. 55 would override in an insolvency matter the provisions of S. 63 of the Contract Act. 58 M. 702=69 M.L.J. 360.

Secs. 55, 56 and 57.—Apart from Ss. 55 and 56 of the Act, an act of insolvency can only be avoided if the adjudication is based on it or it is affected by a relation back of the assignee's title provided in S. 51. An act of bankruptcy is not ipso facto void and the lapse of the period within which it can be availed of to support an application for adjudication will place it beyond attack. (50 M. 541; 42 M.L.J. 252, Ref. to.) 130 I.C. 753=1931 M. 366. An application under Ss. 55 and 56 to set aside certain transactions by the insolvents can be made by the creditor, if the O.A. declined to move in the matter. 60 C. 1367=149 I. C. 995=1934 C. 232. See also 130 I. C. 753=1931 M. 366. Where a person makes a transfer to one of the creditors who is related to him and at the time of the transfer the transferor is unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money and there is no evidence of any threat of any criminal proceedings or any coercive action taken or threatened by the transferee

56. (1) Every transfer of property, every payment made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, with a view of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if such person is adjudged insolvent on a petition presented within three months after the date thereof, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the official assignee.

Avoidance of preference in certain cases.

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under a creditor of the insolvent.

NOTES.

creditor, the transfer in these circumstances amounts to fraudulent preference within the meaning of S. 56. 32 S.L.R. 672=1938 Sind 82.

Sec. 56 : CREDITORS.—An acceptor or endorser of a negotiable instrument which has not yet reached maturity is a creditor. 19 I.C. 57=15 Bom.L.R. 113. As to right of creditors to apply under this section, see 40 C.W.N. 1031.

FRAUDULENT PREFERENCE—TEST OF—PRESSURE —DEMAND.—The mere making of a preferential payment is not a fraudulent preference. The substantial motive of the debtor in making it must be looked at. If the substantial motive is to prefer the creditor, the payment is a fraudulent preference. If the substantial motive is reparation for past wrong, or to avoid evil consequences to the debtor himself the payment is not a fraudulent preference. The word "preference" imports the voluntary act of a person who has a choice in the matter. In particular circumstances, when a creditor makes a demand for payment, with or without a threat of launching legal proceedings to recover the debt, the effect of the demand upon the mind of the debtor is such that he is no longer to be regarded as making the payment voluntarily or exercising free-will in the sense of electing to do something which he need not do. If a demand has that effect upon the mind of the debtor, a transfer executed in favour of a creditor in those circumstances is not a fraudulent preference under S. 56. On the other hand, a demand by the creditor is not always evidence of pressure. [Ex parte Tayler : In re Goldsmith, 18 Q.B.D. 295 and Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) A. C. 419, Rel. on.] 11 R. 489=1934 R. 17. To find out whether a particular payment amounted to fraudulent preference, one must look to the mind of the bankrupt at the time and see if the dominant view was to give preference to a particular creditor. 18 L. W. 696=1924 M. 180. In a case of fraudulent preference, the view of preferring need not be the whole view, but it must be the dominant view. It is for those who assert that there is a fraudulent prefernce to make out a prima facie case. If such a case is made out, it can be rebutted by proof that the explanation of the preference is that there was a dominant intention in the mind of the insolvent other than a desire to prefer a particular creditor. If there is such a dominant intention, the prima facie case is rebutted. Held, on the facts, that fraudulent preference was not made out. 7 R. 201=1929 R. 229. See also 60 C. 1278. When there is no evidence to prove that the insolvent was unable to pay his debts at the time and the only facts proved are that the properties of the insolvent were under attachment in execution of a decree and that in order to avoid the threatened execution sale, the insolvent made the transfer under pressure, it cannot be said that there is a fraudulent preference. Such a transfer is protected under S. 57 of the Act. 40 C.W.N. 1031. Where one of the acts of insolvency relied on in the petition is a transfer in favour of a creditor, that creditor cannot, in an application by the O.A. under S. 56 to set aside the transfer, urge in defence that the transfer in his favour by the insolvent is valid and not void as against the O. A., unless and until he gets the order of adjudication vacated under S. 8 of the Act. 30 S.L.R. 281=1936 Sind 246. See also 1937 Rang. 65 ; 1937 Rang. 372. Until the O.A. intervenes all transactions by a bankrupt after his bankruptcy with any person dealing with him bona fide and for value in respect of his after-acquired property, whether with or without knowledge of the bankruptcy, are valid against the O.A. 5 R. 229=103 I.C. 174=1927 R. 190. Secs. 56 and 57.—Where the O.A. seeks to set aside a transaction falling under S. 56 and not covered by S. 36, it is open to the Court to exercise a discretion whether to try this matter on a notice of motion in the Ins. Court or to relegate the O.A. to a suit in the Civil Courts. It is not correct to say that the Ins. Court has exclusive jurisdiction in the matter of setting aside a fraudulent transfer. (50 M. 776, Diss. from.) 34 Bom. L.R. 1166 =1932 B. 566. Where one of the acts of insolvency on which an order of adjudication is based is fraudulent preference of one creditor over others, the order, so long as it exists, is conclusive against the creditor who is preferred that that act of insolvency has in fact been committed, although he is not a party to the adjudication proceedings. If he is dissatisfied with the adjudication order being based on the ground that the transfer to him is a fraudulent

Protection of bona fide transactions.

57. Subject to the foregoing provisions with respect to the effect of insolvency on an execution and with respect to the avoidance of certain transfers and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in the case of an insolvency—

(a) any payment by the insolvent to any of his creditors;

(b) any payment or delivery to the insolvent;

(c) any transfer by the insolvent for valuable consideration; or

(d) any contract or dealing by or with the insolvent for valuable consideration:

Provided that any such transaction takes place before the date of the order of adjudication, and that the person with whom such transaction takes place has not at the time notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against the debtor.

Realization of Property.

Possession of property by official assignee.

58. (1) The official assignee shall, as soon as may be, take possession of the deeds, books and documents of the insolvent and all other parts of his property capable of manual delivery.

(2) The official assignee shall, in relation to and for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the insolvent, be in the same position as if he were a receiver of the property appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and the Court may, on his application, enforce such acquisition or retention accordingly.

Sec. 57.—The provisions of S. 57 are not restricted to transactions carried out between the date of the petition in insolvency and that of the adjudication. 41 C.W.N. 105=I.L.R.(1937) 1 Cal. 557. The words bona fide in the marginal note to S. 57 must be taken to be part of the section itself; and the only meaning which can be given to those words is absence of knowledge of the presentation of an insolvency petition. Sec. 58.—The High Court in insolvency has jurisdiction to commit to prison for contempt not only the insolvent, but other persons who deliberately aid the insolvent in defying an order of the Court deliberately passed in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction. The Court's powers are not limited by S. 58. The wife and son of the insolvent, though they are not parties to the proceedings, can be proceeded against, if they at the instigation of the insolvent refuse to vacate possession of the properties of the insolvent as ordered by the Court. (4) Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of things in action, such things shall be deemed to have been duly transferred to the official assignee.

(5) Any transurer of other officer, or any banker, attorney or agent of an insolvent, shall pay and deliver to the official assignee all money and securities in his possession or power as such officer, banker, attorney or agent, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the insolvent or the official assignee. If he fails so to do, he shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the official assignee.

Seizure of property of insolvent.

They cannot be applied to the powers of the O.A. prior to the adjudication when he is acting, not under the powers devolving on him by operation of the Act itself, but under the powers specially conferred on him by his appointment as interim receiver under S. 16. 1927 R. 193.

Secs. 58 and 59.—S. 59 is only an enabling section and not a prohibiting section and it does not involve any prohibition to the O.A. to obtain possession in any manner he likes. Nor does Cl. tioned, see 165 I.C. 384=1936 R. 412. S. 60 is not at all concerned with attachments. When a Court makes an order of allocation under S. 60 it does neither in fact nor in form direct the attachment of the property (or salary as the case may be) of the insolvent. Neither S. 60 (1) (i), C. P. Code, nor the proviso thereto, can be invoked for the purpose of enabling an insolvent to get rid of a liability placed upon him by an order under S. 60 of this Act. 54 L.W. 570 =(1941) 2 M.L.J. 845. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 591=1941 M. 506. Where an employee borrows money agreeing to repay it in monthly instalments and authorises his employer to withhold a part of his salary every month and to pay it to his creditor until his debt is discharged, it can at best amount only to a contract to assign the future salary as and when it is earned. There is no completed assignment or charge, and the creditor cannot enforce the transaction as against future salary as against the Official Assignee on the insolvency of the employee. But if the employer goes to pay the creditor even after the insolvency of the employee and the creditor who has paid value receives it without notice of the insolvency, the Official Assignee cannot recover back from the creditor the payments received by him after the insolvency. Under S. 60 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act only so much of the salary as is ordered to be paid by the Court under S. 60 (2) to the Official Assignee vests in him, and the balance is at the absolute disposal of the insolvent. Though the creditor cannot be allowed to have any advantage over the other creditors of the debtor-insolvent, once an allocation is made under S. 60 (2), the rest of the salary is absolutely at the disposal of the insolvent and even if the whole of it is spent by the insolvent, the Official Assignee cannot complain and he cannot therefore recover from the creditor the payments made to him out of the salary after insolvency. 1940 M.W.N. 1167=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 61= 1941 Mad. 297=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 703.

See. 60 (2).—The term income in S. 60 (2) must be construed as ejusdem generis with "salary" and the Court has jurisdiction under S. 60 (2) in respect only of the insolvent's salary or income in the nature of a salary. 9 R. 138=1931 R. 79 (1). The insolvent was a daily piece-work labourer in the mills of the appellant company, the wages being calculated on the quantity of work turned out by him every day, but paid monthly. Held, his wages did not constitute 'salary or income.' 1936 M. 907=71 M.L.J. 432. Sec. 62.—A disclaimer by O.A. of the lease-hold interest of an insolvent is a creature of statute with statutory consequences and is not quite the same thing as a surrender which is governed by the law of landlord and tenant. 63 C. 1123=40 C.W.N. 846.

Secs. 62 and 66.—Tenancy of insolvent—Vesting in O. A.—Disclaimer—Right of landlord to obtain possession by order of Ins. Court. 26 Bom.L.R. 628=48 Bom. 580. The effect of a disclaimer of a lease-hold interest of the insolvent by the O.A. under S. 62 is that, as between the lessor and the lessee-insolvent, the interest of the insolvent in the lease is determined and the reversion becomes accelerated. There is no pect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the official assignee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the insolvent and his property and the official assignee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

Disclaimer of leaseholds.

63. Subject always to such rules as may be made in this behalf, the official assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any leasehold interest without the leave of the Court; and the Court may, before or on granting such leave, require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and make such orders with respect to fixtures, tenant's improvements and other matters arising out of the tenancy, as the Court thinks just.

Power to call on official assignee to disclaim.

64. The official assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of section 62 in any case where an application in writing has been made to the official assignee by any person interested in the property requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim, and the official assignee has for a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application, or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, declined or neglected to give notice that he disclaims the property; and in the case of a contract, if the official assignee, after such application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or extended period disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it.

Power for Court to rescind contract.

65. The Court may, on the application of any person who is, as against the official assignee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the insolvent, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise, as to the Court may seem equitable, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt under the insolvency.

Power for Court to make vesting order in respect of disclaimed property.

66. (1) The Court may, on the application of any person either claiming any interest in any disclaimed property, or under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in, or delivery thereof to, any person entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just; and on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any transfer for the purpose:

Provided always, that where the property disclaimed is of a leasehold nature, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the insolvent, whether as under-lessee or as mortgagee except need for a vesting order under S. 66 in favour of the lessor. 63 C. 1123=40 C.W.N. 846.

Secs. 66 and 73.—Where a person jointly leased certain property, and after the lessees mortgaged their interest, he became insolvent, nd shortly after, the O.A. disclaimed the lease and the mortgagees applied to rank as creditors, eld, that after the disclaimer, the mortgagees had no interest in the property, and that they could claim a dividend. Held also, that there being a dispute the O.A. should reserve a portion of the assets and that the mortgagees could come in to prove their claim before the last date fixed in the notice. Meaning of "secured creditor" stated. 53 B. 290=117 I.C. 440=1929 B. 107.

upon the terms of making such person subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the insolvent was subject to under the lease in respect of the property at the date when the insolvency petition was filed, and any under-lessee or mortgagee declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property, and if there is no person claiming under the insolvent who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the insolvent's interest in the property in any person liable either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the insolvent, to perform the lessee's covenants in such lease, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances and interests created therein by the insolvent.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, modify the terms prescribed by the foregoing proviso so as to make a person in whose behalf the vesting order may be made subject only to the same liabilities and obligations as if the lease had been assigned to him at the date when the insolvency petition was filed and (if the case so requires) as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order.

Persons injured by disclaimer may prove.

67. Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under the foregoing provisions shall be deemed to be a creditor of the insolvent to the amount of injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the insolvency.

Duty and powers of official assignee as to realization.

68. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the official assignee shall, with all convenient speed, realize the property of the insolvent, and for that purpose may—

(a) sell all or any part of the property of the insolvent;

(b) give receipts for any money received by him;

and may, by leave of the Court, do all or any of the following things, namely:—

(c) carry on the business of the insolvent so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;

(d) institute, defend or continue any suit or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the insolvent;

(e) employ a legal practitioner or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the Court;

(f) accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the insolvent a sum of money payable at a future time or fully paid shares, debentures or debenture stock in any limited company subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the Court thinks fit;

NOTES.

Sec. 68.—The O.A. requiring the completion of a contract for sale of goods entered into by the defendants with the insolvent before adjudication must elect within a reasonable time to take up the contract, and should make the tender of cash before requiring performance. 18 I.C. 756=17 C.W.N. 578. The leave of the Court which is referred to in S. 68 means a particular leave obtained to do a particular thing or things. 18 I.C. 756=17 C.W.N. 578. O.A.'s rights are higher than those of Administrator-General with grant of letters of administration. 38 M. 500=22 I.C. 566. A suit relating to the property of the insolvent as contemplated by S. 69 (1) means a suit which, if successful, will increase the assets distributable amongst the creditors or the defence of which may prevent the assets being diminished. A right to institute an appeal which merely relates to a money decree against an insolvent is not a suit or legal proceeding relating to the property of the insolvent and does not fall within the powers given to the Official Assignee by S. 68 of the Act. 43 Bom. L.R. 644=1941 B. 293=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 603.

(g) mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the insolvent for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts or for the purpose of carrying on the business;

(h) refer any dispute to arbitration, and compromise all debts, claims and liabilities, on such terms as may be agreed upon;

(i) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot readily or advantageously be sold.

(2) The official assignee shall account to the Court and pay over all moneys and deal with all securities in such manner as is prescribed or as the Court directs.

Distribution of property.

Declaration and distribution of dividends.

69. (1) The official assignee shall, with all convenient speed, declare and distribute dividends amongst the creditors who have proved their debts.

(2) The first dividend (if any) shall be declared and be distributed within [1][one year] after the adjudication, unless the official assignee satisfies the Court that there is sufficient reason for postponing the declaration to a later date.

(3) Subsequent dividends shall, in the absence of sufficient reason to the contrary, be declared and be payable at intervals of not more than six months.

(4) Before declaring a dividend, the official assignee shall cause notice of his intention to do so to be published in the prescribed manner, and shall also send reasonable notice thereof to each creditor mentioned in the insolvent's schedule who has not proved his debt.

(5) When the official assignee has declared a dividend, he shall send to each creditor who has proved a notice showing the amount of the dividend, and when and how it is payable, and, if required by any creditor, a statement in the prescribed form as to the particulars of the estate.

Joint and separate properties.

70. Where one partner in a firm is adjudged insolvent, a creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted jointly with the other partners in the firm or any of them shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the insolvent until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts.

Calculation of dividends.

71. (1) In the calculation and distribution of dividends, the official assignee shall retain in his hands sufficient assets to meet—

(a) debts provable in insolvency and appearing from the insolvent's statements or otherwise to be due to persons resident in places so distant that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs;

(b) debts provable n insolvency the subject of claims not yet determined;

(c) disputed proofs or claims; and

(d) the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise.

LEG. REF. Act III of 1929.

[1] Substituted for the words "six months" by

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), all money in hand shall be distributed as dividends.

Right of creditor who has not proved debt before declaration of a dividend.

72. Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being in the hands of the official assignee any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive, before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

Final dividend.

73. (1) When the official assignee has realized all the property of the insolvent, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realized without needlessly protracting the proceedings in insolvency, he shall, with the leave of the Court, declare a final dividend; but, before so doing, he shall give notice in manner prescribed to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified to him but not proved that, if they do not prove their claims, to the satisfaction of the Court, within the time limited by the notice, he will proceed to make a final dividend wthout regard to their claims.

(2) After the expiration of the time so limited, or, if the Court on application by any such claimant grants him further time for establishing his claim, then on the expiration of that further time, the property of the insolvent shall be divided among the creditors who have proved their debts, without regard to the claims of any other persons.

No suit for dividend.

74. No suit for a dividend shall lie against the official assignee, but, where the official assignee refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, on the application of the creditor who is aggrieved by such refusal, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon at such rate as may be prescribed for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

Power to allow insolvent to manage property, and allowance to insolvent for maintenance or service.

75. (1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the official assignee may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent, for the benefit of his creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the official assignee may direct.

NOTES.

Sec. 72.—Under S. 72 the Court ought not in general to interfere with a part distribution, 104 I.C. 378=29 Bom.L.R. 1167. Thus in a case where the Court has distributed dividends only amongst the people then known, but, in fact there is some other person who is to blame for not having made known his claim, then it may be fair to say it is not the fault of anybody except himself that he did not share in the dividend up to that date. 29 Bom.L.R. 1167. But where the Court itself had made a mistake through its officer in declaring the dividend overlooking the claim filed by one of the creditors, it has jurisdictlon to direct a refund of the excess dividend paid and order a fresh distribution in favour of the person who filed his claim. Held also, that the refund of money could also be supported on the principle of S. 72 of the Contract Act. 29 Bom.L.R. 1167.

Sec. 73.—Bombay Ins. Rules 119 and 122—Mortgagee of lessee under insolvent—Repudiation by O.A.—Proof of claim—Notice. See 31 Bom.L.R. 35.

Sec. 75.—The word "support" in S. 75 (2) cannot be restricted to such support as is immediately necessary to maintain life. The word justifies the Court in making an allowance in order to enable the insolvent to defend a criminal case pending against him. 59 M. 862=1936 M. 414=70 M.L.J. 563. Where an application is made by the insolvent for such an order, supported by his own affidavit and by the report of the O.A. stating that the criminal proceedings should be properly defended, and the only opposition to that application is by the petitioning creditor, who is not in any way shown to represent the general body of creditors, the Ins. Judge is justified in making an order. 70 M.L.J. 563=1936 Mad. 414. The Court is also

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Court may, from time to time, make such allowance as it thinks just to the insolvent out of his property, for the support of the insolvent and his family, or in consideration of his services, if he is engaged in winding up his estate, but any such allowance may at any time be varied or determined by the Court.

Right of insolvent to surplus.

76. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest, as provided by this Act and of the expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder.

PART IV.

(2) Every official assignee [2][and every deputy official assignee] shall give such security and shall be subject to such rules and shall act in such manner as may be prescribed.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1), the persons substantively or temporarily holding the office of official assignee immediately before the commencement of this Act in the Courts for the relief of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, respectively, under the Indian Insolvency Act, 1848, [3][* * ] shall, without further appointment for that purpose, become the official assignees, substantive or temporary, as the case may be, under this Act in the High Courts at Fort William, Madras and Bombay [3][ * *] respectively.[4]

Power to administer oath,

78. An official assignee may, for the purpose of affidavits verifying proofs, petitions or other proceedings under this Act, administer oaths.

Duties as regards the insolvent's conduct.

79. (1) The duties of an official assignee shall have relation to the conduct of the insolvent as well as to the administration of his estate.

(2) In particular it shall be the duty of the official assignee—

(a) to investigate the conduct of the insolvent and to report to the Court upon any application for discharge, stating whether there is reason to believe that the insolvent has committed any act which constitutes an offence under this Act or under sections 421 to 424 of the Indian Penal Code in connection with his insolvency or which would justify the Court in refusing, suspending or qualifying an order for his discharge;

[2][8]-A. The salary, allowances and pension of the official assignee or any deputy official assignee shall be paid by the Provincial Government.]

Misfeasance.

[3]82. The Court shall call the official assignee to account for any misfeasance, neglect or omission which may appear in his accounts or otherwise, and may require the official assignee to make good any loss which the estate of the insolvent may have sustained by reason of the misfeasance, neglect or omission.

NOTES.

Sec. 79.—In deciding what is the duty of the O. A. with regard to a contested action in which he is concerned as a trustee, the Court must consider not merely whether he has a cause of action or right or defence or answer which would prevail at law or in equity as between ordinary litigants, but also what in point of honesty the trustee ought to do in respect of the facts of the case. 8 R. 665=1931 R. 74 (2). Where a certain company possessed a moral or equitable claim to a certain sum, which represented money that had been entrusted by the company to the insolvent to be applied by him for a specific purpose as their agent and the insolvent has no beneficial interest in the sum except to the extent of his commission, held, that the O.A. is justified in refusing to intervene and claim the amount as against the company. 8 R. 665=1931 R. 74 (2).

Sec. 81.—O.A. when entitled to commission. See 43 C.L.J. 580=1926 C. 1033. Where an adjudication order obtained on a petition by a creditor is annulled, the O.A. is not entitled to a commission. He is certainly entitled to demand from the adjudicating creditor all the out of pocket expenses he may have incurred. 1933 R. 280.

Sec. 82.—Misfeasance, neglect or omission—Distribution of assets without disposing of claims—Personal liability of O,A. See 70 I.C. 507=26 C.W.N. 653.

Name under which to sue or be sued.

83. The official assignee may sue and be sued by the name of "the official assignee of the property of, an insolvent", inserting the name of the insolvent, and by that name may hold property of every description, make contracts, enter into any engagements binding on himself and his successors in office, and do all other Acts necessary or expedient to be done in the execution of his office.

Office vacated by insolvency.

84. If an order of adjudication is made against an official assignee, he shall thereby vacate the office of official assignee.

Discretionary powers and control thereof.

85. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to the directions of the Court the official assignee shall, in the administration of the property of the insolvent and in the distribution thereof amongst his creditors, have regard to any resolution that may be passed by the creditors at a meeting.

(2) The official assignee may, from time to time, summon meetings of the creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors, by resolution at any meeting, or the Court may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-fourth in value of the creditors who have proved.

(3) The official assignee may apply to the Court for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the insolvency.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the official assignee shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

Appeal to Court.

86. If the insolvent or any of the creditors or any other person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the official assignee, he may appeal to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order as it thinks just.

NOTES.

Sec. 85.—Application by O. A. for payment of moneys to insolvent for enabling him to defend criminal case—Power of Court to order payment. 1936 M. 414=70 M.L.J. 563.

Sec. 86.—S. 86 relates only to the validity of any act or decision of the O.A. The words "as it thinks fit" merely refer to any incidental or consequential order necessary for giving effect to the rest of the order but cannot refer to a claim for damages for wrongful trespass to goods. The Ins. Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a claim for damages. 124 I.C. 144= 1930 M. 458=59 M. L.J. 501. S. 86 expressly includes an insolvent in the category of persons entitled to appeal to the Court against an order or act of the Official Assignee, and as a sale of the insolvent's property is an act on the part of the Official Assignee, an insolvent would undoubtedly be entitled to invoke the provision of the section if he can be said to be a person aggrieved in any way. A person aggrieved must be a man who has suffered a legal grievance. As the insolvent has no legal right to interfere with the administration of the estate by the Official Assignee, he can have no legal grievance if the property is sold by the Assignee in due course of administration. He will have no right to complain merely on the ground hat if the property was sold in a different manner it would have fetched a better price and might have benefited him in the long run. But he will have a legal grievance if the property is not sold by the Official Assignee in the due discharge of his duties; as for example when it is done fraudulently or illegally or when the Assignee acts in excess of his authority. 44 C. W.N. 665. Administration of estate of deceased insolvent—Transfer by administrator—O. A. refusing to take action to set aside transfer—Remedy of creditor. 5 R. 375.

Sec. 86 and Sch. II, R. 25.—A claim that certain property has not vested in the Official Assignee at all or a claim to have a charge upon property which has vested in him cannot under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act be dealt with by the Official Assignee as a tribunal. The Official Assignee in such a matter is a party litigant. Even if the matter could be regarded as a mere question of admitting or rejecting a proof, when the Official Assignee acts under R. 25 of the Second Schedule, the appeal under S. 86 from the "act or decision" of the Official Assignee to the Judge should be by motion and the oral evidence necessary should be taken before the Insolvency Judge himself. 42 C.W.N. 1125=48 L.W. 466=40 Bom.L.R. 1236=1938 P. C. 259=(1939) 1 M. L.J. 192 (P.C.).

Control of Court.

87. (1) If any official assignee does not faithfully perform his duties and duly observe all the requirements, imposed on him by any enactment, rules or otherwise, with respect to the performance of his duties, or if any complaint is made to the Court by any creditor in regard thereto, the Court shall enquire into the matter and take such action thereon as may be deemed expedient.

(2) The Court may, at any time, require any official assignee to answer any enquiry made by it in relation to any insolvency in which he is engaged, and may examine him or any other person on oath concerning the insolvency.

(3) The Court may also direct an investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the official assignee.

PART V.

COMMITTEE OF INSPECTION.

Committee of Inspection.

88. The Court may, if it so thinks fit, authorise the creditors who have proved to appoint from among the creditors or holders of general proxies or general powers-of-attorney from such creditors, a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration of the insolvent's property by the official assignee:

Provided that a creditor, who is appointed a member of a committee of inspection, shall not be qualified to act until he has proved.

Control of committee of inspection over official assignee.

89. The Committee shall have such powers of control over the proceedings of the official assignee as may be prescribed.

PART VI.

PROCEDURE.

Powers of Court.

90. (1) In proceedings under this Act the Court shall have the like powers and follow the like procedure as it has and follows in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall in any way limit the jurisdiction conferred on the Court under this Act.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act and rules, the costs of and incidental to any proceeding in the Court shall be in the discretion of the Court.

NOTES.

Sec. 90.—As to whether S. 90 controls S. 8 (1) of the Act. See 7 R. 201 and also 56 C. 667 =115 I.C. 39. As to scope of section. 7 Rang. 201. Ins.Act are quite distinct. 38 M. 472.As to power of High Court in its insolvency jurisdiction to order a transfer or withdrawal of proceedings in insolvency from a Subordinate Court, see 27 Bom.L.R. 1207=49 Bom. 788. When the O.A. takes possession of an outsider's property and such outsider sets up a paramount title, the judge can inquire summarily and on motion similar to the procedure laid down in O. 21, Rr. 58, 59 and 60 without compelling the person aggrieved to have recourse to the expensive remedy of a regular suit. 9 I.C. 344=13 Bom. L.R. 13. The language of S. 90 (1) is wide enough to confer on the Court the power of granting an injunction restraining proceedings in a foreign Court by creditors of an insolvent who is so adjudicated in a British Court, and the more so when the parties sought to be restrained carry on business within the Court's jurisdiction, even if they do not reside there and have assets within its jurisdiction which can by attached in the case of any breach of the injunction. Extraordinary jurisdiction to call up case pending in mofussil Court, cannot be invoked by judge of High Court sitting in insolvency. See 31 C.W.N. 847=1927 Cal. 629.

Cl. (2).—The O. A. cannot be regarded as a "Court" while enquiring into claims made against the estate of an insolvent pending the insolvency and so the Ins. Court has no jurisdiction to award the costs of and incidental to such enquiry. 34 Bom.L.R. 1175=1933 B. 569.

(3) The Court may at any time adjourn any proceedings before it upon such terms, if any, as it thinks fit to impose.

(4) The Court may at any time amend any written process or proceeding under this Act upon such terms, if any, as it thinks fit to impose.

(5) Where by this Act or by rules the time for doing any act or thing is limited ,the Court may extend the time either before or after the expiration thereof, upon such terms, if any, as the Court thinks fit to impose.

(6) Subject to rules, the Court may in any matter take the whole or any part of the evidence either viva voce or by interrogatories, or upon affidavit, or by commission.

(7) For the purpose of approving a composition or scheme by joint debtors the Court may, if it thinks fit, and on the report of the official assignee that it is expedient so to do, dispense with the public examination of one of the joint debtors if he is unavoidably prevented from attending the examination by illness or absence abroad.

(8) For the purposes of this Act the [1][Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sind] shall have all the powers to punish for contempt of Court which are possessed by the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, respectively.

Consolidation of petitions.

91. Where two or more insolvency petitions are presented against the same debtor or against joint debtors, or where joint debtors file separate petitions, the Court may consolidate the proceedings or any of them on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Power to change carriage of petition.

92. Where the petitioner does not proceed with due diligence on his petition the Court may substitute as petitioner any other creditor to whom the debtor is indebted in the amount required by this Act in the case of a petitioning creditor.

Continuance of proceedings on death of debtor.

93. If a debtor by or against whom an insolvency petition has been presented dies, the proceeding the proceedings under an insolvency petition, either orders, be continued as if he were alive.

Power to stay proceedings.

94. The Court may, at any time, for sufficient reason, make an order staying the proceedings under an insolvency petition, either altogether or for a limited time on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks just.

Power to present petition against a partner.

95. Any creditor whose debt is sufficient to entitle him to present an insolvency petition against all the partners in a firm may present a petition against any one or more partners in the firm without including the others.

Power to dismiss petition against some respondents only.

96. Where there are more respondents than one to a petition, the Court may dismiss the petition as to one or more of them without prejudice to the effect of the petition as against the other or others of them.

NOTES.

Sec. 90, Cl. (4).—After an order of adjudication has been made on specific acts of insolvency contained in affidavits filed in support of the creditor's petition the Court is not empowered to allow evidence to be given of acts of suspension of payment other than those contained in the petition and the affidavits filed. 1933 R. 280.

AMENDMENT—POWERS OF COURT.—A Court has wide powers to grant amendment under S. 90, cl. (4), and there would appear to be no objection to make an amendment where there is no question as to infraction of the law of limitation. 1935 S. 53.

Separate insolvency petitions against partners.

97. Where an order of adjudication has been made on an insolvency petition against or by one partner in a firm, any other insolvency petition against or by a partner in the same firm shall be presented in or transferred to the Court in which the first mentioned petition is in course of prosecution; and such Court may give such directions for consolidating the proceedings under the petitions as it thinks just.

Suits by official assignee and insolvent's partners.

98. (1) Where a partner in a firm is adjudged insolvent, the Court may authorize the official assignee to continue or commence and carry on any suit or other proceeding in his name and that of the insolvent's partner; and any release by the partner of the debt or demand to which the proceeding relates shall be void.

(2) Where application for authority to continue or commence any suit or any other proceeding has been made under sub-section (1) notice of the application shall be given to the insolvent's partner and he may show cause against it, and on his application the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that he shall receive his proper share of the proceeds of the proceeding, and if he does not claim any benefit therefrom he shall be indemnified against costs in respect thereof as the Court directs.

Proceedings in partnership name.

99. (1) Any two or more persons, being partners, or any person carrying on business under a partnership name, may take proceedings or be proceeded against under this Act in the name of the firm:

Provided that in that case the Court may, on application by any person interested, order the names of the persons who are partners in the firm, or the name of the person carrying on business under a partnership name, to be disclosed in such manner and verified on oath or otherwise, as the Court may direct.

(2) In the case of a firm in which one partner is an infant, an adjudication order may be made against the firm other than the infant partner.

Warrants of insolvency Courts.

100. (1) A warrant of arrest issued by the Court may be executed in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as a warrant of arrest issued under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, may be executed.

(2) A warrant to seize any part of the property of an insolvent, issued by the Court under section 59, sub-section (1), shall be in the form prescribed,

NOTES.

Sec. 97.—Section provides that where insolvency proceedings are pending against one partner in a firm, any other insolvency petition shall be filed or transferred to the Court in which the first mentioned petition is in course of prosecution. 48 M. 514=48 M.L.J. 228. The section covers insolvency petitions presented under the Pro. Ins. Act to a Court which is subject to the superintendence of High Court. 48 M. 514. Substitution of another creditor—Permissibility —Time limit. 26 S.L.R. 162.

Sec. 98.—Under S. 98, the Court may authorise the O.A. to continue or commence any suit or proceeding in his name and that of the insolvent's partner and any release by the partner is void. But it does not appear that the O.A. can take possession of the goods of the partnership without the consent of the other partner or partners in whose possession they may happen to be. 124 I.C. 144=1930 M. 458=59 M.L.J. 501.

Sec. 99.—Applicability of the sections to a joint family firm. 25 S.L.R. 322=1931 S. 179. A joint Hindu family carrying on a business as such is not a "firm" within the meaning of that term as used in S. 99 and the members of the family are not "partners" of such a "firm." 14 Rang. 122=1936 Rang. 160. In proceedings taken for the adjudication of a joint family firm, it is not necessary to serve individual notices upon each member of the family. 14 R. 122. A Hindu trading family or a joint family business is not competent to initiate proceedings under the Act as it is not a firm or partnership. 39 C.W.N. 275; 162 I.C. 184=1936 R. 160. R. 47 of the Madras Ins. Rule does not apply to a petition to declare that a given person is a partner in a firm against which a petitio n has been presented In such a case the power is given in S. 99. But such an order passed under R 47 is not bad for irregularity of procedure. 22 I.C. 14 and sections 77 (2), 79, 82, 83, 84 and 102 of the said Code shall, so far as may be, apply to the execution of such warrant.

(3) A search warrant issued by the Court under section 59, sub-section (2), may be executed in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as a search warrant for property supposed to be stolen may be executed under the said Code.

PART VII.

LIMITATION.

Limitation of appeals.

101. The period of limitation for an appeal from any act or decision of the official assignee or from an order made by an officer of the Court empowered under section 6 shall be twenty days from the date of such act, decision or order, as the case may be.

PART VIII.

PENALTIES.

Undischarged insolvent obtaining credit.

102. An undischarged insolvent obtaining credit to the extent of fifty rupees or upwards from any person without informing such person that he is an undischarged insolvent shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both.

Punishment of insolvent for certain offences.

103. Any person adjudged insolvent who—

(a) fraudulently with the intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the objects of this Act,

NOTES.

Sec. 101.—The period of 20 days provided by S. 101 runs from the date of the matter being completed and the report signed and not from the date of the finding being filed or signed. 60 I.C. 889=47 C. 721. The words "Official Assignee" in S. 101 cannot be construed to include trustees under a deed of composition. Moreover an application calling upon such trustees to admit a claim cannot rightly and properly be called an appeal from their decision within the meaning of S. 101. 173 I. C. 906=1937 C. 336.

Sec. 102.—S. 102 applies only to undischarged insovent adjudicated under the Act. 53 C. 929=1927 C. 149. The appellant an undischarged insolvent personated another person of the same name and obtained credit for more than Rs. 50 without disclosing his insolvency. Held that he was guilty of an offence under S. 102. 3 Bur.L.J. 329=1925 R. 176. An undischarged insolvent who obtains goods from another person on jangad (sale or return) without disclosing the fact that he is an undischarged insolvent commits the offence of "obtaining credit" within the meaning of S. 102. 58 B. 646=36 Bom.L.R. 731=152 I.C. 706.

AFTER-ACQUIRED PROPERTY — UNDISCHARGED INSOLVENT—MORTGAGE BY—IF AN OFFENCE.—An undischarged insolvent is entitled to deal with the property acquired by him after the order of adjudication by way of mortgage. The term "obtaining credit" is not the same thing as a mortgage which is not merely a promise by debtor to pay the loan but a conveyance as well. So the transfer of the property by way of mortgage in raising the loan on hypothecation of immovable property acquired by the insolvent after the adjudication order does not stand on the same footing as obtaining credit merely as mentioned in S. 102. The insolvent cannot therefore be convicted under S. 102 for having made such a mortgage without disclosing his insolvency. 61 C. 281=38 C.W.N. 283.

Sec. 103.—SCOPE OF SECTION.—Per Rupchand J. C.—Before an insolvent can be put on his trial before a Magistrate two conditions must be proved to exist viz., that there are grounds to believe that the debtor has been guilty of an offence under the Act and secondly that the circumstances are such as to render a prosecution desirable. 1933 S. 381. S. 103 does not provide for the imposition of a fine and consequently such a sentence will be valid under the law. 48 C.L.J. 534=113 I.C. 851=1929 C. 80. Sub-ss. (a) (iii) and (b) (ii) of S. 103 deal with specific and distinct offences, the former of making false entry and the latter of making away with or charging or mortgaging or concealing, property. A joinder in one trial of three charges each constituting specific offences under both sub-sections is therefore illegal under S. 233, Cr. P. Code and the conviction is unsustainable. 151 I.C. 934=36 Bom.L.R. 639. Unless the Judge is satisfied that the money transferred was money belonging to the debtor he ought not to sanction the prosecution of the insolvent for an offence under S. 103 (b) (ii). Unless the Judge has clearly in his mind that some definite offence has been committed in the course of "the subsequent dealings of the insolvent" he is not

(i) has destroyed or otherwise wilfully prevented or purposely withheld the production of any book, paper or writing relating to such of his affairs as are subject to investigation under this Act, or

(ii) has kept or caused to be kept false books, or

(iii) has made false entries in or withheld entries from, or wilfully altered or falsified, any book, paper or writing relating to such of his affairs as are scbject to investigation under this Act, or

(b) fraudulently with intent to diminish the sum to be divided amongst his creditors or of giving an undue preference to any of the said creditors,

(i) has discharged or concealed any debt due to or from him, or

(ii) has made away with, charged, mortgaged, or concealed any part of his property of what kind soever, shall on conviction be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years.

Disqualifications of insolvent.

[1][103-A(1) Where a debtor is adjudged or re-adjudged insolvent under this Act, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be disqualified from—

(a) being appointed or acting as a Magistrate;

(b) being elected to any office of any local authority where the appointment to such office is by election, or holding or exercising any such office to which no salary is attached; and

(c) being elected or sitting or voting as a member of any local authority.

(2) The disqualifications which an insolvent is subject to under this section shall be removed, and shall cease if—justified in sanctioning the prosecution merely because in the event it might turn out that the Magistrate can elicit from the evidence adduced in the course of the prosecution that an offence under the Ins. Act has been committed. 1933 R. 253.

Secs. 103 and 104.—Where a prima facie case is clearly made out at the preliminary inquiry, an order for proceedings being taken under S. 103 is certainly justified. 1933 S. 381. Offences, under the Ins. Act—Notice of charges—Framing of charges—Discrepancy. 47 C. 254=24 C.W.N. 425. There is no provision made in the section for imposition of a fine, and consequently an order imposing a fine for a conviction under the section is wrong. 32 C.W.N. 1140. S. 103 applies to offences committed both before and after the adjudication and also to cases of wilfully withholding the production of books even after they have come to the possession of the O.A. 32 C.W.N. 1140. A charge under S. 103 must be in pursuance of notice required to be issued under S. 104. 56 I.C. 577=24 C.W.N. 418. To constitute an offence under S. 103, the intent to give undue preference or diminish the divisible assets is essential, and unless this is shown to be the material result of the accused's action, such an intent cannot be inferred. 27 I.C. 753. Where it was proved that furniture was entrusted to a person by the O.A. for the purpose of continuing his business and that he in breach of the trust disposed of the furniture to various persons held, that assuming that the facts amount to an offence under S. 103 (b) (2), it cannot be said that the Magistrate had no jurisdiction over the case. 105 I.C. 448=1927 M. 1018. There is no fraudulent preference where an insolvent arranges with each of his creditors for payment of a definite fraction of their dues where he alleges that others also have received the same, but the creditors never acted upon it. 11 I.C. 809; 4 Bur.L.T. 200. Where the accused was proceeded against for charges under S. 103, held, that the Magistrate should try the case against the accused and that he has no power to commit him to the High Court Sessions for trial. 56 C. 785=1929 C. 777. On this section see also 25 M.L.J. 577. To support a conviction under S. 103 a charge must be made against the insolvent and the same must be proved beyond reasonable doubt before it can be made a ground for refusing to discharge the insolvent under S. 39 (1). 5 R. 50=1927 R. 126.

Sec. 103-A.—S. 103-A of the Act is not impliedly repealed by S. 12 of the Rangoon City Municipal Act. It is quite possible to read the two sections together by saying that their combined effect is that an undischarged insolvent is disqualified for election, but that his disqualification only ceases when he gets his discharge plus the certificate mentioned in S. 103-A. It may not be necessary that there should be a separate document headed "certificate"; but there must be somewhere in the record a statement by the Court granting the discharge that the insolvency of the insolvent was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part. 1941 Rang.L.R. 615.

(a) the order of adjudication is annulled under sub-section (1) of section 21, or

(b) he obtains from the Court an order of discharge, whether absolute or conditional, with a certificate that his insolvency was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part.

(3) The Court may grant or refuse such certificate as it thinks fit.]

Procedure on charge under section 103.

[1][104. (1) Where the Court is satisfied, after such preliminary inquiry, if any, as it thinks necessary, that there is ground for inquiring into any offence referred to in section 103 and appearing to have been committed by the insolvent, the Court may record a finding to that effect and make a complaint of the offence in writing to a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction, and such Magistrate shall deal with such complaint in the manner laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

(2) Any complaint made by the Court under sub-section (1) may be signed by such officer of the Court as the Court may appoint in this behalf.].

Criminal liability after discharge or composition.

105. Where an insolvent has been guilty of any of the offences specified in section 102 or section 103, he shall not be exempt from being proceeded against therefor by reason that he has obtained his discharge or that a composition or scheme of arrangement has been accepted or approved.

NOTES.

Sec. 104.—EFFECT OF AMENDMENT.—Complaint filed after the Amending Act of 1926 (S. 104) came into force—Ins. proceedings initiated prior to amendments—Enquiry is governed by Act amended. 32 C.W.N. 1140. The O. A's report is evidence of the matter reported only when the matter is one with regard to which the O. A. is directed or empowered by the Act to make a report. It is not evidence in a criminal proceeding. 20 I.C. 482=25 M.L.J. 230. Depositions under S. 36 cannot be admitted in evidence but the record of insolvent's examination under S. 27 is evidence which can be taken into consideration against him in proceedings under S. 104 of the Act as criminal proceedings in the Presidency Magistrate's Court are under S. 103 proceedings under the Act. Held also that the amended Act is applicable to a proceeding started on 12th July 1927. 48 C.L.J. 534=1929 C. 80

COMPLAINT UNDER THE SECTION—CONSIDERATIONS—NOTICE TO INSOLVENT—DESIRABILITY.—In considering whether a complaint should be made under S. 104 the Court has not only to take into account the probability of the criminal proceedings being successful or the reverse. but also must determine upon a consideration of the case as a whole ,whethe it is desirable in the public interest that an example should be made of an insolvent whose conduct has been so bad that criminal proceedings ought to be taken against him as deterrent against the same or similar offences being committed by other insolvents. In any case the Judge is at liberty to proceed under S. 104 with or without a preliminary enquiry being made. Further, an application under S. 104 is not one in which the insolvent, against whom proceedings are proposed, is entitled to take part, unless invited to do so by the Court but it cannot be said that where an insolvent is not heard on an application under S. 104 the insolvent is not thereby prejudiced in any way, because in the event of proceedings by way of prosecution being instituted he has , of course, ample opportunity of appearing and defending himself in those proceedings when launched. It depends on the circumstances ; and it may often be of great importance to the insolvent that he should have an opportunity of explaining to the Court the reasons why he contends that the Court should not proceed to the extreme limit of making a complaint under S. 104 against him in a Criminal Court, 1935 R. 324.

EXERCISE OF POWERS UNDER THE SECTION.—St is open to the Court at any stage of the proceedings after the adjudication order has been passed and even after discharge, to exercise the discretion with which it is vested under S. 104. It is not necessary, and in many cases, it would be undesirable, that the Court should order that a complaint be made under S. 104 at the hearing of an application for discharge. Different considerations arise when the Court is called upon to decide whether, and if so upon what terms, an insolvent should be granted his discharge, and whether the Court should exercise the powers which it possesses under S. 104 ; 1935 R. 524.

PART IX.

SMALL INSOLVENCIES.

Summary administration in small cases.

106. (1) Where the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, or the official assignee reports to the Court, that the property of an insolvent is not likely to exceed in value three thousand rupees or such other less amount as may be prescribed, the Court may make an order that the insolvent's estate be administered in a summary manner, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the following modifications, namely:—

(a) no appeal shall lie from any order of the Court, except by leave of the Court;

(b) no examination of the insolvent shall be held except on the application of a creditor or the official assignee;

(c) the estate shall, where practicable, be distributed in a single dividend; ..

(d) such other modifications as may be prescribed with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure:

Provided that nothing in this section shall permit the modification of the provisions of this Act relating to the discharge of the insolvent.

(2) The Court may at any time, if it thinks fit, revoke an order for the summary administration of an insolvent's estate.

PART X.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

Exemption of corporation, etc., from insolvency proceedings.

107. No insolvency petition shall be presented against any corporation or against any association or company registered under any enactment for the time being in force.

Administration in insolvency of estate of person dying insolvent.

108. (1) Any creditor of a deceased debtor whose debt would have been sufficient to support an insolvency petition against the debtor, had he been alive, may present to the Court within the limits of whose ordinary original civil jurisdiction the debtor resided or carried on business for the greater part of the six months immediately prior to his decease a peti-

Sec. 106.—Where the Ins. Court refused leave to appeal under S. 106 (a), it is open to the unsuccessful party to apply to the Court of appeal for special leave to appeal. 25 Bom.L. R. 161=1923 B. 245. A Court has jurisdiction to order the public examination of an insolvent on the application made by the creditors even after the insolvent has applied for a discharge, though the Court will countenance such an attempt when the creditors purposely delay applying for such examination as an indirect method of obtaining the postponement of the insolvent's discharge. 120 I.C. 94=1930 S. 76. Under S. 106 (1) (a) it is quite clear that where an insolvent's estate has been ordered to be administered in a summary manner, no appeal lies from any order of the Court except by leave of Court, and so where no leave is obtained the appeal cannot be entertained. 51 L.W. 433=1940 Mad. 572=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 533.

Sec. 107.—See 38 M. 500.

Sec. 108.—S. 7 is applicable only to cases where there has been an adjudication in insolvency. It is not applicable to proceedings to administer a deceased debtor's estate initiated under S. 108. 36 L.W. 703=63 M.L.J. 810 (15 Q.B.D. 195, Rel. on). On this section, see 15 C.W.N. 359; 27 M.L.J. 66. A creditor is not entitled to an administration order ex debito justitiae upon proof of the statutory conditions precedent, but the Court has a discretion to disallow the petition of the creditor when it finds that sufficient cause is shown for dismissing the petition. 29 S.L.R. 410=1936 S. 175, The jurisdiction of the Ins. Court to administer the estate of a deceased debtor is limited to cases in which the debtor has resided or personally carried on business within its limits. 29 S.L.R. 410=1936 S. 175. The mere fact that a person is a partner in a business carried on in a particular place does not constitute his carrying on business at that place within the meaning of S. 108. 1936 S. 175. There is no tion in the prescribed fom praying for an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor under this Act.

(2) Upon the prescribed notice being given to the legal representative of the deceased debtor, the Court may, upon proof of the petitioner's debt unless the Court is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the estate will be sufficient for the payment of the debts owing by the deceased, make an order for the administration in insolvency of the deceased debtor's estate, or may upon cause shown dismiss the petition with or without costs.

(3) A petition for administration under this section shall not be presented to the Court after proceedings have been commenced in any Court of justice for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate; but that Court may in that case, on proof that the estate is insufficient to pay its debts, transfer the proceedings to the Court exercising jurisdiction in insolvency under this Act, and thereupon the last mentioned Court may make an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor, and the like consequences shall ensue as under an administration order made on the petition of a creditor.

Vesting of estate and mode of administration.

109. (1) Upon an order being made for the administration of a deceased debtor's estate under section 108, the property of the debtor shall vest in the official assignee of the Court and he shall forthwith proceed to realize and distribute the same in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) With the modification hereinafter mentioned, all the provisions of Part III, relating to the administration of the property of an insolvent, shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to the case of scch administration order in like manner as to an order of adjudication under this Act.

(3) In the administration of the property of the deceased debtor under an order of administration, the official assignee shall have regard to any claims by the legal representative of the deceased debtor to payment of the proper funeral and testamentary expenses incurred by him in and about the debtor's estate; and those claims shall be deemed a preferential debt under order, and be payable in full, out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts.

(4) If, on the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, any surplus remains in the hands of the official assignee after payment in full of all the debts due from the debtor together with the costs of the administration and interest as provided by this Act in case of insolvency, such surplus shall be paid over to the legal representative of the deceased debtor's estate, or dealt with in such other manner as may be prescribed.

110. (1) After notice of the presentation of a petition under section 108 difference between the administration of the estate of an insolvent who is alive and the administration of the estate of a person who dies insolvent but was not adjudicated before his death. The administration in insolvency of a deceased debtor's estate under S. 108 of the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act must necessarily mean that the uncharged assets of the estate are to be utilised for the general body of creditors, and as a mere attachment creates, no charge, an attaching creditor against the estate is in no better position than any other ordinary creditor I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 398=52 L.W. 894=1941 Mad. 183=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 979.

Sec. 109.—Under S. 109, the property vests in the O.A. the moment an administration order under S. 108 is pronounced. The drawing up of the order does not delay the vesting nor a direction by the Judge that the order (pronounced by him) should not be drawn up for some time. So another person subsequently appointed administrator in an administration suit has no power over the estate or to sue for the recovery of sums of money due to it. 59 C. 1475=36 C.W.N. 861.

Sec. 110.—A transfer of property made by the administrator of an insolvent's estate can be avoided only by the O.A. under S. 110 and no payment or transfer of property made by the legal representatives shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the official assignee.

(2) Save as aforesaid nothing in section 108 or section 109 or this section shall invalidate any payment made or act or thing done in good faith by the legal representative or by a District Judge acting under the powers conferred on him by section 64 of the Administrator-General's Act, 1874, before the date of the order for administration.

Saving of jurisdiction of Administrator-General.

111. The provisions of sections 108, 109 and 110 shall not apply to any case in which probate or letters of administration to the estate of a deceased debtor have been granted to an Administrator-General.

PART XI.

RULES.

The purpose of S. 115 is clearly to save as much as possible of the insolvent's estate for distribution among the creditors. I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal 56= 42 C.W.N. 1146=1938 Cal. 755. A copy of the notes of the insolvent's examination under S. 27 of the Act is a copy of proceedings before the Court within the meaning of S. 115 (1): See 1938 Cal. 755=42 C. W. N. 1146=I. L. R. (1939) 1 Cal. 56.

116. (1) A copy of the Official Gazette containing any notice inserted in pursuance of this Act shall be evidence of the facts stated in the notice.

The Gazette to be evidence.

(2) A copy of the Official Gazette containing any notice of an order of adjudication shall be conclusive evidence of the order having been duly made, and of its date.

117. Any affidavit may be used in a Court having jurisdiction under this Act if it is sworn—

Swearing of affidavits.

(a) in British India, before—

(i) any Court or Magistrate, or

(ii) any officer or other person appointed to administer oaths under the Code of Civil Procedure;

(b) in England, before any person authorized to administer oaths in His Majesty's High Court of Justice, or in the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, or before any Registrar of a Bankruptcy Court or before any officer of a Bankruptcy Court authorized in writing in that behalf by the Judge of the Court or before a Justice of the Peace for the county or place where it is sworn;

(c) in Scotland or in Ireland, before a Judge Ordinary, Magistrate or Justice of the Peace; and

(d) in any other place, before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace or other person qualified to administer oaths in that place (he being certified to be a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, or qualified as aforesaid, by a British Minister or British Consul or British Political Agent or by a notary public).

118. (1) No proceeding in insolvency shall be invalidated by any formal defect or by any irregularity unless the Court before which an objection is made to the proceeding is of opinion that substantial injustice has been caused by the defect or irregularity, and that the injustice cannot be remedied by any order of that Court.

Formal defect not to invalidate proceedings.

(2) No defect or irregularity in the appointment of an official assignee or member of a committee of inspection shall vitiate any act done by him in good faith.

119. Where an insolvent is a trustee within the Indian Trustee Act, 1866, section 35 of that Act shall have effect so as to authorize the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for the insolvent (whether voluntarily resigning or not), if it appears expedient to do so, and all provisions of that Act and of any other Act relative thereto, shall have effect accordingly.

Application of Trustee Act to insolvency of trustee.

NOTES.

Sec. 116.—An order of application of a person as insolvent is not as regards the particular acts of bankruptcy on which it is founded final and conclusive as against third parties. 50 M. 541=101 I.C. 12; 1927 M. 526=52 M.L.J. 352. See also 45 C.W.N. 441. Thus the Notification issued under S. 116 is conclusive only with regard to the order having been duly made and as regards the other facts it is only evidence of such facts. 50 M. 541. To render the decision regarding such acts of bankruptcy binding on third persons the O. A. should adopt the procedure prescribed by the Act. 50 M. 541. An order of adjudication is duly published in the Gazette as required by S. 116 (2) unless vacated by a competent Court, is binding on all persons and is conclusive evidence against them that the acts of insolvency mentioned in the petition were committed by the debtor. S. 116 (2) does not restrict its effect to the petitioning creditor and debtor only why there is no reason it should not extend to third parties also. 30 S.L.R. 281; 1936 S. 246. On this section see also 45 C.W.N. 441.

Sec. 118.—See 30 C.W.N. 914=1926 C. 1097.

120. Save as herein provided, the provisions of this Act relating to the remedies against the property of a debtor, the priorities of debts, the effect of a composition or scheme of arrangement, and the effect of a discharge shall bind the Crown.

Certain provisions to bind the Crown.

121. Nothing in this Act, or in any transfer of jurisdiction effected thereby, shall take away or affect any right of audience that any person may have had immediately before the commencement of this Act or shall be deemed to confer such right in insolvency matters on any person who had not a right of audience before the Courts for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors.

Saving for existing rights of audience.

122. Where the official assignee has under his control any dividend which has remained unclaimed for fifteen years from the date of declaration or such less period as may be prescribed, he shall pay the same to the account and credit of the [Provincial Government][1] unless the Court otherwise directs.

Lapse and credit to Government of unclaimed dividends.

123. Any person claiming to be entitled to any moneys paid to the account and credit of the [Provincial Government][1] under section 122, may apply to the Court for an order for payment to him of the same; and the Court, if satisfied that the person claiming is entitled, shall make an order for payment to him of the sum due:

Claims to moneys credited to Government under section 122.

Provided that, before making an order for the payment of a sum which has been carried to the account and credit of the [1][Provincial Government] the Court shall cause a notice to be served on such officer as the [1][Provincial Government] may appoint in this behalf, calling on the officer to show cause, within one month from the date of the service of the notice, why the order should not be made.

124. (1) No person shall, as against the official assignee, be entitled to withhold possession of the books of accounts belonging to the insolvent or to set up any lien thereon.

Access to insolvent's books.

(2) Any creditor of the insolvent may, subject to the control of the Court, and on payment of such fee, if any, as may be prescribed, inspect at all reasonable times, personally or by agent, any such books in the possession of the official assignee.

125. Such fees and percentages shall be charged for and in respect of proceedings under this Act as may be prescribed.

Fees and percentage.

126. All Courts having jurisdiction under this Act shall make such orders and do such things as may be necessary to give effect to section 118 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 and to section 50 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907.

Courts to be auxiliary to each other.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

(See section 26.)

MEETINGS OF CREDITORS.

2. SUMMONING OF MEETINGS.—Meetings shall be summoned by sending notice of the time and place thereof to each creditor at the address given in his proof, or, if he has not proved, at the address given in the insolvent's schedule, or such other address as may be known to the official assignee.

3. NOTICE OF MEETINGS.—The notice of any meeting shall be sent off not less than seven days before the day appointed for the meeting and may be delivered personally or sent by prepaid post letter, as may be convenient. The official assignee may, if he thinks fit, also publish the time and place of any meeting in any local newspaper or in the Official Gazette.

4. DUTY OF INSOLVENT TO ATTEND IF REQUIRED.—It shall be the duty of the insolvent to attend any meeting which the official assignee may, by notice, require him to attend, and any adjournment thereof. Such notice shall be either delivered to him personally or sent to him at his address by post at least three days before the date fixed for the meeting.

5. PROCEEDING NOT TO BE AVOIDED FOR NON-RECEIPT OF NOTICE.—The proceedings held and resolutions passed at any meeting shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be valid notwithstanding that any creditor has not received the notice sent to him.

6. PROOF OF ISSUE OF NOTICE.—A certificate of the official assignee that the notice of any meeting has been duly given shall be sufficient evidence of such notice having been duly sent to the person to whom the same was addressed.

7. COSTS OF MEETING.—Where on the request of creditors the official assignee summons a meeting, there shall be deposited with the written request the sum of five rupees for every twenty creditors for the costs of summoning the meeting, including all disbursements:

8. CHAIRMAN.—The official assignee shall be the chairman of any meeting.

9. RIGHT TO VOTE.—A creditor shall not be entitled to vote at a meeting unless he has duly proved a debt provable in insolvency to be due to him from the insolvent, and the proof has been duly lodged one clear day before the time appointed for the meeting.

10. NO VOTE IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN DEBTS.—A creditor shall not vote at any such meeting in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt, or any debt the value of which is not ascertained.

11. SECURED CREDITOR.—For the purpose of voting, a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance, if any, due to him after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt, he shall be deemed to have surrendered his scurity, unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

12. PROOF IN RESPECT OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.—Where a creditor seeks to prove in respect of a bill of exchange, promissory note, or other negotiable instrument or security on which the insolvent is liable such bill of exchange, note, instrument or security must, subject to any special order of the Court made to the contrary, be produced to the official assignee before the proof can be admitted for voting.

13. POWER TO REQUIRE CREDITOR TO GIVE UP SECURITY.—It shall be competent to the official assignee, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security has been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors, generally, on payment of the value so estimated.

14. PROOF BY PARTNER.—If one partner in a firm is adjudged insolvent, any creditor to whom that partner is indebted jointly with the other partners in the firm or any of them, may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of creditors and shall be entitled to vote thereat.

15. POWER OF OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE TO ADMIT OR REJECT PROOF.—The official assignee shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected, he shall mark the proof as objected to, and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

16. PROXY.—A creditor may vote either in person or by proxy.

17. INSTRUMENT OF PROXY.—Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form and shall be issued by the official assignee.

18. GENERAL PROXY.—A creditor may give a general proxy to his attorney or to his manager or clerk, or any other person, in his regular employment. In such case the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor.

19. PROXY TO BE DEPOSITED ONE DAY BEFORE DATE OF MEETING.—A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the official assignee one clear day before the time appointed for the meeting at which it is to be used.

20. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE AS PROXY.—A creditor may appoint the official assignee to act as his proxy.

21. ADJOURNMENT OF MEETING.—The official assignee may adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, and no notice of the adjournment shall be necessary.

22. MINUTE OF PROCEEDINGS.—The official assignee shall draw up a minute of the proceedings at the meeting and shall sign the same.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

(See section 48)

PROOF OF DEBTS.

Proofs in ordinary cases.

1. TIME FOR LODGING PROOF.—Every creditor shall lodge the proof of his debt as soon as may be after the making of an order of adjudication.

2. MODE OF LODGING PROOF.—A proof may be lodged by delivering or sending by post in a registered letter to the official assignee an affidavit verifying the debt.

3. AUTHORITY TO MAKE AFFIDAVIT.—The affidavit may be made by the creditor himself or by some person authorized by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorized, it shall state his authority and means of knowledge.

4. CONTENTS OF AFFIDAVIT.—The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantitated. The official assignee may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.

5. AFFIDAVIT TO STATE IF CREDITOR HOLDS SECURITY.—The affidavit shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor.

6. COSTS OF PROVING DEBTS.—A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt unless the Court otherwise specially orders.

7. RIGHT TO SEE AND EXAMINE PROOF.—Every creditor who has lodged a proof shall be entitled to see and examine the proofs of other creditors at all reasonable times.

8. DEDUCTION TO BE MADE FROM PROOF.—A creditor in lodging his proofs shall deduct from his debt all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount, not exceeding five per centum on the net amount of his claims, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash.

Proof by secured creditors.

9. PROOF WHERE SECURITY REALISED.—If a secured creditor realises his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realized.

10. PROOF WHERE SECURITY IS SURRENDERED.—If a secured creditor surrenders his security to the official assignee for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

11. PROOF IN OTHER CASES.—If a secured creditor does not either realise or surrender his security, he shall, before ranking for dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

12. (1) VALUATION OF SECURITY.—Where a security is so valued the official assignee may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value.

(2) If the official assignee is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued be offered for sale at such times and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the creditor and the official assignee, or as, in default of agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale is by public auction the creditor, or the official assignee on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase:

Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the official assignee to elect whether he will or will not exercise his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realized, and if the official assignee does not within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor his election to exercise the power, he shall not be entitled to exercise it; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the official assignee, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

13. AMENDMENT OF VALUATION.—Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing to the satisfaction of the official assignee or the Court, that the valuation and proof were made bona fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment shall be made at the cost of the creditor, and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the official assignee shall allow the amendment without application to the Court.

14. REFUND OF EXCESS RECEIVED.—Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the foregoing rule, the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he has received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend which he has failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

15. AMENDMENT WHERE SECURITY SUBSEQUENTLY REALIZED.—If a creditor after having valued his security subsequently realizes it, or if it is realised under the provisions of rule 12, the net amount realized shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

16.—EXCLUSION FROM SHARING IN DIVIDEND.—If a secured creditor does not comply with the foregoing rules, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

17. LIMIT OF RECEIPT.—Subject to the provisions of rule 12, a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee and interest as provided by this Act.

NOTES.

Sch. II, Cl. 11.—The shares standing in the name of the wife of the insolvent are prima facie her property and a lien over the property of a stranger is in no sense a lien over the property of a debtor so as to attract the applicability of the rules pertaining to proof or claims by secured creditors. 27 S.L.R. 224=1933 S. 355. Certain shares of a Co-operative Bank were held by the insolvents, a trading firm. The bank proved their claim without disclosing their lien or giving credit for the shares. On an application by the O.A.it was contended by them at (i) under the provisions of S. 26 of the Bom bay Co-operative Societies Act, 1925, the shares were exempt from attachment at sale or the claims of O. A. that the provisions of the Ins. law relating to proof by secured creditors applied only to property which vested in the O.A. (ii) that under bye-law 8 of the Bank, a member may be expelled and his shares forfeited on his insolvency. Held, (i) that the shares which stood in the names o fthe insolvents were indubitably their property over which the insolvents had a disposing power subject to the lien; (ii) that on their insolvency they had not been in fact expelled of their shares forfeited so far and bye-law 8 was of no avail; that if necessary the value of the shares may be indirectly made available for the benefit of the creditors by making it a condition to the discharge of the insolvents; that they should dispose of them and pay their value to the O.A. and that therefore the bank should be directed to value or relinquish their security. 27 S.L.R. 224=1933 S. 355.

Sch. II, Cl. 12 (2) (Proviso).—The failure of the O. A. to signify this election to exercise the powers to redeem the property within the time allowed puts an end to his equity of redemption which without more vests in the mortgagee, 26 S.L.R. 29=1932 S. 73.

Taking accounts of Property mortgaged, and of the Sale thereof.

18. INQUIRY INTO MORTGAGE, ETC.—Upon application by any person claiming to be a mortgagee of any part of the insolvent's real or leasehold estate and whether such mortgage is by deed or otherwise, and whether the same is of a legal or equitable nature, or upon application by the official assignee with the consent of such person claiming to be a mortgagee as aforesaid, the Court shall proceed to inquire whether such person is such mortgagee and for what consideration and under what circumstances; and if it is found that such person is such mortgagee, and if no sufficient objection appears to the title of such person to the sum claimed by him under such mortgage, the Court shall direct such accounts and inquiries to be taken as may be necessary for ascertaining the principal, interest and costs due upon such mortgage, and of the rents and profits, or dividends, interest or other proceeds received by such person or by any other person by his order or for his use in case he has been in possession of the property over which the mortgage extends, or any part thereof, and the Court, if satisfied that there ought to be a sale, shall direct notice to be given in such newspapers as the Court thinks fit, when and where, and by whom and in what way the said premises or property, or the interest therein so mortgaged, are to be sold, and that such sale be made accordingly, and that the official assignee (unless it is otherwise ordered) shall have the conduct of such sale; but it shall not be imperative on any such mortgagee to make such application. At any such sale the mortgagee may bid and purchase.

19. CONVEYANCE.—All proper parties shall join in the conveyance to the purchaser, as the Court directs.

20. PROCEEDS OF SALE.—The monies to arise from such sale shall be applied, in the first place, in payment of the costs, charges and expenses of and occasioned by the application to the Court, and of such sale and commission (if any) of the official assignee, and in the next place in payment and satisfaction, so far as the same extend, of what shall be found due to such mortgagee, for principal, interest and costs, and the surplus of the sale monies (if any) shall then be paid to the official assignee. But if the monies to arise from such sale are insufficient to pay and satisfy what is so found due to such mortgagee, then he shall be entitled to prove as a creditor for such deficiency, and receive dividends thereon rateably with the other creditors but so as not to disturb any dividend when already declared.

21. PROCEEDINGS ON INQUIRY.—For the better taking of such inquiries and accounts, and making a title to the purchaser, all parties may be examined by the Court upon interrogatories or otherwise as the Court thinks fit, and shall produce before the Court upon oath all deeds, papers, books and writings in their respective custody or power relating to the estate or effect of the insolvent as the Court directs.

Periodical payments.

22. PERIODICAL PAYMENTS.—When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the order of adjudication is made at any time other than one of those periods, the person entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the order as if the rent or payment grew due from day to-day.

Interest.

23. (1) INTEREST.—On any debt or sum certain whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent and which is provable under this Act, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum—

NOTES.

Sh. II, Cl. 18.—The power under Art. 18 of Sch. II of the Act involves also the power to consider the validity of the sale. If a proper case is made out for setting aside the sale, the Ins. Court can set it aside. If there is no reason to set it aside, it will merely confirm the sale. The Ins. Court has also jurisdiction to order delivery of possession to the auction purchaser at such sale where the parties concerned submitted the Court's jurisdiction and co-operated in procuring the order for sale. 53 M. 233=-1930 M. 785 (2)=58 M.L.J. 98. Where a reference is made to Registrar, under S. 18, on the application by some persons who allege themselves to be mortgagees, the Registrar cannot deal with the question of validity of the mortgage though the parties consent. 60 I.C. 889=47 C. 721. A purchaser from a person subsequently adjudicated an insolvent is not a necessary or proper party to the proceedings under cl. 18, and he cannot intervene therein unless his purchase is challenged. He, not being an adverse party, cannot cross-examine the applicant to establish the claim against the estate of the insolvent. 36 I.C. 689=24 C.L.J. 149. On this R. 18, see also 30 C.W.N. 898=1926 C. 618.

Sch. II, Cl. 23 (2).—When the question of allowing interest to creditors under a scheme of composition entered into by an insolvent with his creditor arises, the terms of the composition itself must be taken into consideration and if the scheme of composition itself contains something inconsistent with R. 23 (2), the terms of the scheme should prevail and the rule is not applicable. 1930 R. 296. A secured creditor, though he can claim interest up to the date of payment when he seeks to recover what is due to him from the proceeds of the sale of the

(a) if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, from the time when such debt or sum was payable to the date of such adjudication; or

(b) if the debt or sum is payable otherwise, from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment to the date of such adjudication.

(2) Where a debt which has been proved in insolvency includes interest or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, the interest or consideration shall, for the purposes of divided, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the debtor's estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all the debts proved have been paid in full.

Debt payable at a future time.

24. DEBT PAYABLE IN FUTURE.—A creditor may prove for a debt not payable when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting therefrom only a rebate of interest at the rate of six per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted.

Admission or rejection of proofs.

25. ADMISSION OR REJECTION OF PROOF.—The official assignee shall examine every proof and the grounds of the debt, and in writing admit or reject it in whole or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. If he rejects a proof, he shall state in writing to the creditor the grounds of the rejection.

26. COURT MAY EXPUNGE PROOF IMPROPERLY RECEIVED.—If the official assignee thinks that a proof has been improperly admitted, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, after notice to the creditor who made the proof, expunge the proof or reduce its amount.

27. POWER FOR COURT TO EXPUNGE OR REDUCE PROOF.—The Court may also expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor if the official assignee declines to interfere in the matter, or in the case of a composition or a scheme upon the application of the insolvent.

Sec. 1 : "BOOK OR PAMPHLET"—MEANING OF — A document consisting of only one sheet cannot be called a pamphlet. NOTES.

Sec. 3: 'PAPER PRINTED'—Meaning of. 38 Bom.L.R. 115=166 I.C. 263=1937 Bom. 28. If term is syonymous with 'newspaper'. (Ibid.) 'Publisher' meaning of. (Ibid.) If includes mere seller or distributor. (Ibid.) Where a person is proceeded against under S. 12 of the Act there must be evidence to show that the paper had been printed in British India. The burden is on the prosecution to prove the same, where the accused appears to be a mere school boy who may not know where the leaflets have been printed. 35 C.W.N. 778=134 I.C. 1197=1931 C. 641. The word 'paper' in S. 3 does not mean a newspaper of a periodical nature and will cover the case of a manifesto by a new political party. 1939 A.M.L.J. 87.

SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—The intention of the section, in requiring that the name of the printer and the place of printing and the name of the publisher and the place of the publication should be printed legibly on every book or paper was to inform the public who the responsible printer or publisher was and to convey that information on the face of the paper. Words, which contained no such information, would not amount to a sufficient compliance with the requirements of S. 3. The intention was not simply to provide some facility or other, but to provide a specific facility on the face of the paper. Where a newspaper was printed and published bearing the following words, "printed and published at Cochin for the Malabar Economic Company at the said Company's Goshree Vilasam Press." Held, that these words were not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of S. 3 inasmuch as there was no name of the printer as required by the Act. 16 M. 443=3 M.L.J. 201=1 Weir 862. Under S. 3, it is not necessary that the actual name of the printer should be given. So long as a name or style, which sufficiently designates the printer, is given' it does not matter that it is not the actual name of the printer. It is sufficient that it is the name under which he chooses to do business and is generally known. Unless it can be said that the words do not convey to an ordinary reader the information required by the Act, the conviction for a non-compliance of the provisions of S. 3 cannot be supported. 16 M. 443=3 M.L.J. 201=1 Weir 862. The printer of a book is bound to imprint his name and the place of printing. under the provisions of S. 3, even if he has printed only a portion of the book. 14 Bom. L.R. 40=13 I.C. 827=13 Cr.L.J. 139. Where a copy of a vernacular newspaper contained the following words printed on the Margin of the front page "ba ihtimam Ram Saran Datt printer, Hindustan Steam Press, Lahore men, Lala Bhawani Das Manager ke liye chapa". Held, that they do not contain a clear intimation as to the publisher, as required by S. 3 of the Act. 5 P.R. 1909, (Cr.)=10 Cr.L.J. 195=2 I.C. 978.

Secs. 3, 5 and 12.—The word "publisher" has been used in the Act in a restricted sense, and does not include a vendor of a newspaper or book. S. 12 read with S. 3 clearly indicates that such persons are not included in the word "publisher" for S. 3 enjoins the printing of the names of the printer and publisher. 23 C. 414. The word "publish" in S. 12 of the Act must be read in conjunction with the reference to a "publisher" in S. 3 and in S. 5 of the Act. The "publisher" of a paper referred to in Ss. 3 and 5 is the man who publishes it in the ordinary sense of the term, that is to say, arranges with the proprietor for its distribution, and a mere seller or distributor of the paper is not a "publisher" under either of those sections. The only person who can be convicted as being guilty of publishing under S. 12 is the person who is performing the act of a publisher within Ss. 3 and 5, and not the person who merely sells it or distributes it. 38 Bom.L.R. 1115=1937 Bom. 28. A man who causes a book to be printed and offers it to the public for sale is a publisher within the meaning of Ss. 3 and 12. 1887 A.W.N. 95. The rule in S. 3 of the Act requires that every paper printed and published in British India shall have legibly printed on it the name of the printer and the place of printing and the name of the publisher and place of publication, as such. An omission to comply with S. 3 is punishable under S. 12. Ss. 3 and 12 do not deal with intention. Printers and publishers cannot be allowed to select for themselves the description to be used in professing to comply with the Act, but they must use the descriptions prescribed by the Act. 5 P.R. 1909, (Cr.)=10 Cr.L.J. 195=2 I.C. 978.

Secs. 3, 4 and 5: 'PRINTING'—'PRINTING PRESS'—'NEWSPAPER'—CYCLOSTYLING—RONEO DUPLICATOR.—The word 'printing' in the Act must be construed in its strict and narrow sense, namely, typography. It does not include cyclostyling. A Roneo duplicator cannot be considered a "printing press" within the meaning of sec. 4. A newspaper, as defined in the Act, means a printed periodical and not any publication produced by type-writing, duplicating, cyclostyling or such method. 27 N.L.R 270=134 I.C. 854=1931 N.177. See also 10 P. 492=133 I.C. 682=1931 P. 351 (2). Printing Press, what is, see 12 Lah. 483.

Sec. 4.—OBJECT AND SCOPE.—S. 4 appears to have been enacted with a double motive. The Keeper of printing press to make declaration.

for the printing of books or papers, who shall not have made and subscribed the following declaration before the Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction such press may be:—

"I, A. B., declare that I have a press for printing at—."

And this last blank shall be filled up with a true and precise description of the place where such press may be situate.

Rules as to publication of printed periodicals containing public news.

5. No [1][newspaper] shall be published in British India, except in conformity with the rules hereinafter laid down:

LEG. REF.

[1]Substituted for the words 'printed periodical work containing public news or comments on public news" by Act XIV of 1922.

NOTES.

first is that the executive authorities shall note where the press is situated and the second is that they shall know who is the person in charge. A removal of the premises clearly deprives the executive authorities of their knowledge as to the location of the press. But the same cannot be said where there is a change in the personnel of the keeper of the press. 130 I.C. 380=1931 O. 81. The Act does not require a new declaration in cases where a press, as to which the printer has made the declaration prescribed by S. 4 is changed to another locality within the same local jurisdiction as the former place. 9 P.R. 1889, (Cr.). There is no clause in S. 4 (corresponding to the provision in S. 5) requiring a new declaration as often as a change of place takes place. 9 P.R. 1889, (Cr.).

"FOR THE PRINTING OF BOOKS OR PAPERS".—The question whether a printing press is or is not within S. 4 is a question of the use to which the printing press is in fact put or intended to be put by the possessor. The words "for the printing of books or papers" modify the verb "keep" and not the noun "press." They refer to the object of the possessor of the machine. 10 P. 492=133 I.C. 682=1931 P. 351 (2). See also 134 I.C. 854=1931 N. 177.

"PAPERS".—The word "papers" in Ss. 3 and 4 are papers containing news which are intended to be circulated and are practically, if not exactly, synonymous with the word "newspaper" as defined in S. 1 of the Act. 10 P. 492=1931 P. 351 (2).

"PRINTING" CYCLCSTYLE MACHINE.—The word "printing" includes the multiplication of copies by means of cyclostyle machine. 10 Pat. 492. But see 1931 N. 177. No fresh declaration need be filed in the case of any press which has once been declared and which continues at the same address though there is a change in the person of the keeper of the press. 130 I.C. 380=1931 O. 81. The Act does not provide for a change in the person of the keeper of the press. 130 I.C. 380=1931 O. 81. The proceedings of a Magistrate in refusing to authenticate a declaration under sec. 6 is a purely ministerial action with which the High Court cannot interfere. 21 P.R. 1918 (Cr.)=45 I.C. 525=137 P.L.R. 1918.

PRESUPMPTION AND PROOF.—The initial presumption about knowledge in the case of periodicals does not arise in the case of a pamphlet alleged to contain seditious matter. 1931 L. 182 =12 L. 483=131 I.C. 273. Per Shah, A.C.J.—There is no presumption as regards a book, that the persons whose name appears as the author is the author thereof. The statement from the manager of the Press cannot be treated as evidence of the facts stated therein. The declaration under sec. 4 is not evidence of his knowledge of the contents, though it is a fact which along with other evidence in the case must be considered in deciding the question of fact. The fact of a person being the keeper of the Press and the printer of the pamphlet by itself does not imply any knowledge of the contents. Some evidence which would indicate a knowledge of the contents on his part is necessary. There is no provision in the Act as to the presumption to be drawn from a declaration made under S. 4 and the names of the printer and publisher printed under S. 3 as there is under S. 7 as regards declaration made under S. 5. The knowledge of the contents so far as is necessary has to be proved like any other fact. Per Crump, J. —A printed book of itself proves nothing relevant to the present enquiry. There is no presumption that it is written by the man who is described as the author, unless it is one of that limited class of books covered by S. 87 of the Indian Evidence Act. The written information given by the manager of the Press is not given in the discharge of any duty, for neither the Act nor the Rules under the Act as those now stand impose any such obligation. A keeper of a considerable Press may not know the contents of each and every book printed at his Press. Without details as to the connection of the keeper with the actual business it is impossible to make any such presumption. The declaration under S. 3 or the written information supplied by the manager carries the matter no further. Without knowledge a man cannot be guilty of abetment. 47 B. 438=25 Bom.L.R. 97=76 I.C. 294=1923 B. 255.

Sec. 5.—'Publisher' meaning of. 38 Bom.L.R. 1115=166 I.C. 263=1937 B. 28. Although S. 499 requires proof of publication in order to support a conviction for defamation, the intention of the Act was to constitute the declarations made by a person that he was the printer and publisher of a newspaper into prima facie evidence of the publication and to throw on the accused the burden of showing that the actual

Sec. 7.—See 155 I.C. 450=1935 Nag. 90. A person, who subscribes to the declaration under the Act, must be presumed, under this section, to be cognisant of all that he has printed and published and, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, his liability in the matter cannot be gainsaid. 7 C.L.J. 49=7 Cr.L.J. 10=35 C. 141. This section, which applies both to civil and criminal proceedings, makes the printer or publisher responsible for whatever may appear in a newspaper whoever the writer of the article in it may be; and, therefore, a prosecution may proceed against the printer, unless he can prove absence from the newspaper office in good faith and without knowledge that the seditious articles would be published during his absence. But it is not absence in good faith for a printer, to go away knowing very well what is going to happen in his absence, and for the purpose of shirking his liability. 35 C. 945=8 Cr.L.J. 438. The registered printer of a paper, so long as he continues such printer, cannot escape from criminal liability for publication therein, of a seditious article by the plea that he was temporarily absent from the station when the article was printed, or that he was ignorant of the contents thereof, or that he had no intention of committing any offence. 1 P.R. 1905=2 Cr.L.J. 31=69 P.L.R. 1905. Where certain articles appearing in a newspaper are seditious, the declared printer would be responsible for the said articles, unless he can make out on sufficient evidence, that he had in fact nothing to do with them. 38 C. 227=10 I.C. 954=12 Cr.L.J. 354. Where a person allows his name to remain in the record as a printer and does not make out the bona fides of his absence from the place of publication he would be deemed to be responsible for the articles. 38 C. 227. said, of the latter declaration, and the former declaration shall not be taken to be evidence that the declarant was, at any period subsequent to the date of the latter declaration, printer or publisher of the [1][newspaper] therein mentioned.

Person whose name has been incorrectly published as editor may make a declaration before a Magistrate.

[2][8-A. If any person, whose name has appeared as editor on a copy of a newspaper, claims that he was not the editor of the issue on which his name has so appeared, he may, within two weeks of his becoming aware that his name has been so published, appear before a District, Presidency or Sub-Divisional Magistrate and make a declaration that his name was incorrectly published in that issue as that of the editor thereof, and if the Magistrate after making such inquiry or causing such inquiry to be made as he may consider necessary is satisfied that such declaration is true, he shall certify accordingly, and on that certificate being given the provisions of section 7 shall not apply to that person in respect of that issue of the newspaper.

The Magistrate may extend the period allowed by this section in any case where he is satisfied that such person was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing and making the declaration within that period.]

PART III.[3]

DELIVERY OF BOOKS.

Copies of books printed after commencement of Act to be delivered gratis to Government.

9. Printed or lithographed copies of the whole of every book which shall be printed or lithographed in British India after this Act shall come into force, together with all maps, prints or other engravings belonging thereto, finished and coloured in the same manner as the best copies of the same, shall, notwithstanding any agreement (if the book be published) between the printer and publisher thereof, be delivered by the printer at such place and to such officer as the Provincial Government shall by notification[4] in the Official Gazette, from time to time direct, and free of expense to the Government, as follows, that is to say:—

(a) in any case, within one calendar month after the day on which any such book shall first be delivered out of the press, one such copy, and

(b) if within one calendar year from such day the Provincial Government shall require the printer to deliver other such copies not exceeding two in number, then within one calendar month after the day on which any such requisition shall be made by the Provincial Government on the printer, another such copy, or two other such copies, as the Provincial Government may direct, the copies so delivered being bound, sewed or stitched together and upon the best paper on which any copies of the book shall be printed or lithographed.

The publisher or other person employing the printer shall, at a reasonable time before the expiration of the said month, supply him with all maps, prints and engravings finished and coloured as aforesaid, which may be necessary to enable him to comply with the requirements aforesaid.

Nothing in the former part of this section shall apply to—

NOTES.

Sec. 9.—A document consisting of only one sheet cannot be called a pamphlet. The Press and Registration of Books Act does not contemplate a single sheet of paper in which a writer publishes an article relating to some current topic should be regarded as a book of which a copy is required to be delivered to the officer concerned under the Act. 21 Pat.L.T. 675=1940 Pat. 613.

(ii) any [1][newspaper] published in conformity with the rules laid down in section 5 of this Act.

Receipt for copies delivered under S. 9.

10. The officer to whom a copy of a book is delivered under the last foregoing section shall give to the printer a receipt in writing therefor.

Disposal of copies delivered under S. 9.

THE PROFESSIONS TAX LIMITATION ACT (XX OF 1941).

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—"By section 142-A of the Government of India Act, 1935, which was inserted in that Act by the India and Burma (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act, 1940, Parliament's intentions regarding item 46 (Taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments) in the Provincial Legislative List in Schedule VII of the Government of India Act, 1935, are clarified. The new section, while continuing the right of Provinces to impose a tax on professions, trades, callings and employments, limits the incidence of that tax in respect of any one person to a maximum of Rs. 50 per annum, save in the case of those Provinces in which a tax on professions, trades, callings and employments was levied at a higher rate prior to 31st March, 1939. In such cases exemption is granted from the operation of the limit of Rs. 50.

The result of this is therefore that, whereas in most Provinces taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments are limited to the maximum of Rs. 50 per annum in respect of any one person, in the Madras Presidency the maximum rate is as high as Rs. 1,000 per annum in the city of Madras and Rs. 550 per annum in the districts outside the city. There may be other Provinces in which, by the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 142-A of the Government of India Act, 1935, the maximum of Rs. 50 per annum does not apply.

There is a widespread demand in the Madras Presidency that the profession tax, which is levied by municipalities and local boards under Provincial legislation, and is based solely on income, should be subject to the maximum of Rs. 50 per annum. This Bill seeks to give effect to that demand and extends the limit now laid down in sub-section (1) of section 142-A of the Government of India Act, 1935, to those Provinces in which, owing to the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 142-A the limit of Rs. 50 does not now apply. It is desirable that there should be uniformity in this matter, and this Bill seeks to establish that uniformity for all Provinces."

THE PROVIDENT FUNDS ACT (XIX OF 1925).

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendment.
1925	XIX	The Provident Funds Act, 1925	Repealed in part, XII of 1927; Amended, XXVIII of 1925; VII of 1927; I of 1930; Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937.

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed to the Bill (Fort St. George Gazette, 23rd September, 1924, pp. 270-271) :—

The Provident Funds Act at present provided that any sums standing to the credit of the depositors in Provident Funds to which the Act applies at the decease of the depositor and which are payable under the rules of the Fund, to the widow or children of the deceased shall vest in such widow or children. Such sums do not, therefore, form part of the estate of the deceased, and the interest of the widow or children are thereby fully protected. It is considered that this provision is unduly restricted and that the same degree of protection should be accorded to other dependents of the deceased besides his widow and children. Otherwise, the accumulations of a depositor, who dies before such accumulations are disbursed to him, may be held to be liable to meet the debts of the deceased, and the object of the Provident Fund in question may be frustrated.

2. The Act protects compulsory deposits in a Provident Fund from attachment but not from assignments which may have been made to take effect on the depositor's retirement or on his death. On the other hand, the rule regulating the General Provident Fund, which is one of the most important funds to which the Act applies, provides that Government will not be bound by or recognize any assignment or encumbrance executed or attempted to be created which affects the disposal of the accumulations of a depositor who dies before retirement. The validity of this provision is open to question. It is considered that, in order to give effect to the object for which Provident Funds have been constituted, it should be made clear that, with certain exceptions, in spite of debts, liabilities, assignments, or any form of encumbrance, the depositor, on retirement or after retirement but before actual disbursement, should receive in fact the accumulations at his credit in the fund. The exceptions proposed to this provision are as follows:—

(i) The rights of third parties obtained before the proposed amendments come into operation should be protected; and

(ii) in the case of contributory Provident Funds, the authority by which the fund was constituted should be entitled to withhold amounts not exceeding the total contributions made by the authority and the interest on increment on such contributions, if these amounts are due to the authority under a liability incurred by the depositor, or if the depositor is dismissed from the authority's employment or resigns his employment within five years of the commencement thereof.

3. Again, under the Act as it stands, apart from the amounts which vest in the widow or children of a depositor, the disbursement of the accumulations in a fund at the time of the death of a depositor is impossible if the total assets exceeds Rs. 2,000 without the production of probate or letters of administration or a succession certificate. It is considered desirable to make such disbursement of the accumulations if the amount does not exceed Rs. 5,000 instead of Rs. 2,000 at present. A corresponding provision is contained in the Government Savings Bank Act under which the amount of a deposit which can be disbursed in this manner is Rs. 3,000 as compared with Rs. 1,600 before the Act was amended in 1917. Similarly, under the Indian Securities Act, 1920, on the death of a person who was entitled to a Government security or securities, the prescribed officer may now determine who is the person entitled to the security or securities, if they do not in the aggregate exceed Rs. 5,000 without the production of probate, letters of administration or a succession certificate.

4. It has further been considered desirable to provide definitely in the Act for the rights of nominees and also to indicate that a deposit is compulsory deposit within the meaning of the Act and continues to be so far so long as it remains in the hands of the administrators of the fund on the condition that the amount withdrawn shall be expended on the taking out of, or on contributions towards, an insurance policy.

5. In order to give effect to these suggestions and as also to certain other minor points, it is considered desirable to amend the existing Act and to re-enact it in a consolidated form.

Effect of subsequent Legislation:—Rep. in part Act XII of 1927; Amended by Act XXVIII of 1925; Act VII of 1927; and Act I of 1930. For statement of objects and reasons, see Gazette of India, 1924, part V, p. 122. Act brought into force on 1st April, 1926.

[1] In cl. (a) after the words "life insurance," the words "or the payment of subscriptions or premia in respect of a family pension fund" have been inserted; and the words "credited in respect of any such description or deposit" have been omitted by Act I of 1930.

[2] The words "any authority administering the fund" were substituted for "the authority by which the fund has been constituted" by Act XXVIII of 1925.

[3] For the words "or otherwise in respect of a subscription to, or deposit in," the words "a subscription to, or deposit or balance at the credit of an individual account in," have been substituted by Act I of 1930.

NOTES.

Sec. 1.—The provisions of the Act relating to the right of nominees to receive the provident fund are not to be read, as though they were controlled by, or subject to any other law for the time being in force, or subject to any disposition, whether testamentary or otherwise, by the subscriber or depositor. Unless the nomination is cancelled by the subscriber or varied by a nomination in favour of another person, the nominee, on the death of the subscriber must be regarded as having had conferred on him or her an absolute right to receive the Provident Fund. The fact that letters of administration or probate is granted to a different person does not prevent the nominee from claiming under the Act the full amount of the sum due on death of a subscriber to the fund. 139 I.C. 775=1932 S. 115. See also 1941 Rang. 239; 1941 Rang. 256. A nomination of a person to receive Provident Fund money from a corporation is not a will, a gift or a trust, in favour of the nominee and on the subscriber's death, it becomes part of his undisposed of estate. 108 I.C. 894=1928 L. 773. Where a person assigned the whole of his Provident Fund in favour of an illegitimate son in the presence of the widow and two daughters, held, that the assignment was ultra vires and that the fund must be divided between the widow and the daughters in accordance with R. 10 (2). 64 I. Though the Act is not in force in Marwar, the Provident Fund Rules of 1925 promulgated by the Darbar contain certain provisions similar to those in this Act. 1939 Mar.L.R. 110 (Civ.).

NOMINEE—RIGHT TO ATTACH FUND IN EXECUTION.—A decree-holder as a nominee of the depositor cannot attach the Provident Fund in execution of the decree passed in his favour. The effect of the nomination, if any, is that he becomes the owner of the fund in the eye of the law, and by attaching it, he is not attaching the property of the judgment-debtor, but his own. 36 P.L.R. 145=1934 L. 153.

Sec 2 (a) : "COMPULSORY DEPOSIT"—MEANING OF.—See 18 S.L.R. 311=1924 S. 57. A deposit is a "compulsory deposit" within the meaning of S. 3 (1) of the Act only so long as it remains in the Fund. The moment it is paid to the subscriber, it ceases to retain its character of a compulsory deposit, it is no longer immune from attachment or in case of subsequent insolvency from the claims of the O.A. 1931 M. 797 =61 M.L.J. 354. See also 11 R. 93; 1939 Rang.L.R. 504; 1941 Rang. 256; 1941 Rang. 239.

and "Contributory Provident Fund" means a Provident Fund the rules of which provide for the crediting of contributions;

(c) "dependant" means any of the following relatives of a deceased subscriber to, or a depositor in, a Provident Fund, namely, a wife, husband, parent, child, minor brother, unmarried sister and a deceased son's widow and child, and, where no parent of the subscriber or depositor is alive, a paternal grandparent;

(d) "Government Provident Fund" means a Provident Fund, other than a Railway Provident Fund, constituted by the authority of the [1][the Secretary of State, the Central Government, the Crown Representative or any Provincial Government] for any class or classes of its employees or [2][of persons employed in educational institutions, or employed by bodies existing solely for educational purposes], [3][and references in this Act to the Government shall be construed accordingly];

(e) "Provident Fund" means a fund in which subscriptions or deposits of any class or classes of employees are received and held on their individual accounts, and includes any contributions [4][* * *] and any interest or increment accruing on such subscriptions, deposits or contributions under the rules of the Fund;

(f) [5]["Railway administration" means—

(i) any company administering a railway or a tramway in British India either under a special Act of Parliament or an Indian law, or under contract with the Crown, or

(ii) the manager of any railway or tramway administerd by the Federal Railway Authority or by a Provincial Government,

NOTES.

Sec. 2 (c).—Per Stuart, C.J.—A married sister is not a 'dependent' within the meaning of S. 2 (c) and having married, she cannot return to the status of an unmarried sister on widowhood so as to come within the meaning of the word "dependents" 122 I.C. 322=1930 O. 145 (F.B.). The term 'child' in S. 2 (c) is not confined to sons and daughters below the age of majority. That being so, the married daughters of a deceased depositor answer the description of 'child' and are, therefore, dependents as defined in S. 2 of the Act. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 476=44 C.W.N. 407=1940 Cal. 395. See also 142 I.C. 359=1933 S. 101.

Sec. 2 (d).—S. 2 (d) requires that the 'fund' should be constituted by the authority of the Government. The mere fact that the Provident Fund Rules framed by a private body have been approved by the Government, is not sufficient to show that the fund to which the rules relate was constituted by the Government in the absence of proof that the Government made any rules requiring the private body to maintain the Provident Fund. 1941 Lah. 168.

Sec. 2 (e).—"Provident fund" as defined by S. 2 (e) can only cover a fund organised by an employer for the benefit of his employees. 1939 Mad. 485. In a certain rule of the Benefit Fund Rules and Regulations of a company, there occurred the following words "In addition thereto he may receive from the Directors, etc." Held, that these words meant "he may be paid by the Directors or alternatively, the Directors may pay him". They imply permission given by the rules to the Directors to take this course if they think fit to do so, but negative the idea of any compulsion or obligation placed upon the Directors. These words do not give the employee any right to make a claim, but only enable the Directors to pay him certain money if they think fit to do so. 172 I.C. 574=1937 Rang. 339. The officers of the Court of Wards fall within the class of Government employees. So, the accumulated balance at the credit of the manager of Court of Wards in a Zamindar's estate to the Provident Fund is exempted from income-tax under I. T. Act. S. 4, cl. 3 (v). 10 P. 315=12 Pat.L.T. 384=1931 P. 451.

Sec. 2 (f).—A license granted to a company on certain conditions does not create contractual relationship. An electric supply and traction company administering a tramway in British India under a license granted under the Tramways Act, is not a 'Railway administration' within the purview of S. 2 (f), Provident Funds Act, as the Tramways Act is not a special Act but an Act dealing with the construction of (g) "Railway Provident Fund" means a Provident Fund constituted by the authority of a railway administration for any class or classes of its employees.

Protection of compulsory deposits.

3. (1) A compulsory deposit in any Government or Railway Provident Fund shall not in any way be capable of being assigned or charged and shall not be liable to attachment under any decree or order of any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court in respect of any debt or liability incurred by the subscriber or depositor, and neither the official assignee nor any receiver appointed under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, shall be entitled to, or have any claim on, any such cumpulsory deposit.

tramways in general and as the license granted to the company under the Tramways Act is a unilateral act which cannot be regarded as a contract between the company and the Local Government. 175 I.C. 26=1937 Lah. 915.

Sec. 2 (g).—As to contributions by Railway servants to Provident Fund, see 29 B. 259 ; 26 M 440; 7 Bom.L.R. 618.

Secs. 2 and 3.—Money due to a Government servant from the General Provident Fund is a compulsory deposit and on the insolvency of the servant, the O.A. is not entitled to demand from him the money comprised in such deposit. 11 R. 93. It may be that if the moneys came into the hands of the insolvent and the O A. then took steps before his disposal of the moneys to realise the same, the insolvent might be ordered to pay up the sums for the general benefit of his creditors. 11 R. 93=143 I.C. 771=1933 R. 148.

Sec. 3 : SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 32 C.W.N. 515. Cl. (1) of sec. 3 is intended to protect compulsory deposits only so long as they remain deposited in the fund. 1928 Mad. 484=55 M. L.J. 38. Under sec. 3 the provident fund money continues to retain its character of a compulsory deposit only so long as it remains in the hands of the provident fund trustees. Once it is paid out, it loses that character and may be attached in the hands of the party to whom it has been paid. 44 C.W.N. 637. As soon as the money deposited in a Provident Fund reaches the hands of the depositor or employee on withdrawal, it can be attached in execution of a decree against him. 40 C.W.N. 1406. The money would not retain the character of a provident found money, and as soon as the clerk or peon as agent of the depositor receives the money, in the eye of law it has reached the hands of the depositor, and would be no longer exempt from attachment in execution of a decree against him. 40 C.W.N. 1406. See also 17 Pat. L.T. 731. The O. A. is not entitled to apply to the Court under sec. 33 of the Presy. T. Ins. Act for an anticipatory order calling upon the insolvent to pay to the O. A., for the benefit of his creditors a portion of the money in deposit directly the insolvent receives it. Such an order, if made, would be entirely contrary to the spirit and intention of the Provident Funds Act. 1936 Mad. 855=71 M.L.J. 415. Money to the credit of an undischarged insolvent in the Provident Fund of a District Council is not a compulsory deposit within meaning of sec. 3 (1), unless and until the protection of sec.3 (1) has been extended to such fund by the Local Government. Before the extension of the protection to such fund, the Official Assignee has claim to such deposit. 176 I.C. 460=1938 Rang. 245. Compulsory deposit made in the General Provident Fund is not liable to attachment, even after the retirement of the contributor from service. R. 10 General Provident Fund Rules, is merely a rule of procedure directing the Accounts Officer how to proceed on receipt of a notice of attachment. It does not legalize a notice of attachment and consequently does not have the intention of making the deposit attachable after retirement. 27 A.L.J. 670=1929 All. 417. Under the section the Receiver of the creditor has no right to the Provident Fund of the insolvent and his disposal of it is not fraudulent and punishable under the Pro. Ins. Act, sec. 43. 44 Bom. 673=56 I.C. 450=22 Bom.L.R. 322. Under sec. 3 (1) money in such fund is protected from attachment by creditors even after the death of the subscriber. A Hindu wife who has obtained a decree for separate maintenance against her husband is not "judicially separated" from the husband within the meaning of note I to R. 17 of the Provident Fund Rules. The words "judicially separated" are expressions of the law with a distinct and exact technical meaning and it is impossible in technical language to speak of a Hindu wife or husband as being judicially separated from one another. A Hindu wife who has been put to the necessity of having to sue for separate maintenance owing to her husband's conduct should not for any purpose be considered as outside the list of those who are entitled to benefit under the rules, and she is not excluded by her husband's mistress whom he has nominated afresh after his wife's suit for maintenance. 51 L.W. 575=1940 Mad. 590=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 715. Under S. 3 the amount lying to the credit of a railway servant in the Railway Provident Eund is exempt from attachment and the Official Assignee of an insolvent railway servant has no claim on that amount, although when once the money is paid to the insolvent it is liable to the attached or claimed by the Official Assignee. But the Official Assignee is not entitled to apply to the Court under S. 33 of the Presidency Town Insolvency Act for an anticipatory order calling upon the insolvent to pay to the Official Assignee for the benefit of his creditors a portion of the money in deposit directly the insolvent receives it. Such an order, if made, would be entirely contrary to the spirit and intention of the Provident Funds Act. The Court has no doubt a discretion under S. 33 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act to make such an order if it thinks fit; but it will not do so when it would create a dangerous precedent and deprive railway servants of the benefit of the Provident Funds Act. 167 I.C. 155 (2)=44 L.W. 286=1936 Mad. 855=71 M.L.J. 415. See also 1941 Mad. 297. Sec. 3 (2).—See 64 I.C. 62, cited under S. 1; 1928 M.W.N. 402. In order that S. 3 (2) may apply, it must be shown that under the rules of the provident fund the amount standing to the credit of the deceased in the provident fund is payable to the dependant of the subscriber. 44 C. W.N. 636. Under S. 3, cl. (2), the money vests in the dependant of the subscriber or depositor and where the dependant is the widow or child of the subscriber or depositor, without being subject to any right of an assignee under an assignment made before the commencement of the Act. Where the Railway Company insisted on the widow of the deceased employee obtaining letters of administration in order to get the Provident Fund money, held, that it was wrong of the company to have refused to pay her without the letters of administration. The only thing which the railway authorities might insist on is the proof of identity. 33 C.W.N. 1148. The amount standing to the credit of a deceased subscriber in a Provident Fund vests in the dependant and does not form part of the estate of the deceased divisible among his heirs or subscribers according to the personal law. The dependant-nominee is absolutely entitled to receive the amount free from any debt or other liability of the deceased. 37 Bom.L.R. 370=1935 B. 234. Secs. 3 (2) and 4.—The provident fund amount which stood to the credit of the deceased judgment-debtor at the time of his decease and which, on his decease, was paid over to his minor son as his dependant cannot be deemed to have devolved on the son by right of inheritance. It vests by statute. It cannot therefore be regarded as the assets of the deceased depositor in the hands of his son and cannot be proceeded against for the realisation of a decree-debt due by the father. (46 C. 962, Foll.) 57 M. 440=65 M.L.J. 207=1934 M. 173. There is no provision to be found in the Act which says that only a dependant may be lawfully nominated. S. 4 on the contrary clearly implies that a nomination may be made in favour of a person other than a dependant. 49 L.W. 496=1939 Mad. 489=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 620.

Provisions regarding repayments.

4. (.) When under the rules of any Government or Railway Provident Fund the sum standing to the credit of any subscriber or depositor, or the balance thereof after the making of any deduction authorized by this Act, has become payable, the officer whose duty it is to make the payment shall pay the sum or balance, as the case may be, to the subscriber or depositor, or, if he is dead, shall—

(a) if the sum or balance, or any part thereof, vests in a dependant under the provisions of section 3, pay the same to the dependant or to such person as may be authorized by law to receive payment on his behalf; or

(b) if the whole sum or balance, as the case may be, does not exceed five thousand rupees, pay the same, or any part thereof, which is not payable under clause (a), to any person nominated to receive it under the rules of the Fund, or, if no person is so nominated, to any person appearing to him to be otherwise entitled to receive it; or

(c) in the case of any sum or balance, or any part thereof, which is not payable to any person under clause (a) or clause (b) pay the same,—

(i) to any person nominated to receive it under the rules of the Fund, on production by such person of probate or letters of administration evidencing the grant to him of administration to the estate of the deceased or a certificate granted under the Succession Certificate Act, 1889, or under the Bombay Regulation VIII of 1827, entitling the holder thereof to receive payment of such sum, balance or part, or

(ii) where no person is so nominated, to any person who produces such probate, letters or certificate:

Provided that, where the whole or any part of any sum standing to the credit of the subscriber or depositor has been assigned to any other person before the commencement of this Act, and notice in writing of the assignment has been received by the officer from the assignee, the officer shall, after making any deduction authorised by this Act and any payment due under clause (a) to or on behalf of the widow or children of the subscriber or depositor—

DECEASED MAHOMEDAN—RIGHTS OF NOMINEE. —The Act is not intended to affect the rights of the dependants of the subscriber or depositor to share the fund inter se in accordance with the personal law of the deceased, except to the extent expressly mentioned in S. 5, Cl. (2) of the Act, that is to say, to protect the fund from assignment by the subscriber and from attachment by creditors who have advanced money to him or to his dependants during his lifetime. Hence, where the subscriber is a Mahomedan, a nominee of his, though, as such, he has an absolute right to receive the money, does not thereby become the absolute owner thereof. Thus, it is rather unfortunate that a Mahomedan should not be able to give directions that the fund should after his death be distributed amongst his dependants in a manner inconsistent with the Mahomedan Law of intestate succession, although a non-Mahomedan may do so by signing a nomination paper made out in a form which amounts to a valid will according to the personal law applicable to him. But that is a point for the legislature to consider. 1935 S. 73.

Sec. 4.—See 1928 M.W.N. 402. Under S. 4 the rights of nominees, which include the rights of the nominee's representatives, are expressly postponed to the rights of dependants. The amount standing to a depositor's credit should, therefore, be paid to his dependant in the first instance, and only in his absence to the nominee. If the Rules relating to a provident fund are inconsistent with the Act, the Act overrides the Rules. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 476 = 44 C.W.N. 407 = 1940 Cal. 395.

Cl. (1) (c) (ii).—The married sisters of the deceased are not "dependants" as defined in S. 2 (c) of the Act. Where they are not nominees, they can only get the money by producing probate, letters of administration or a succession certificate, and court-fee is payable on the deceased's provident fund as being his property. 1933 S. 101 = 26 S.L.R. 101. The Provident Funds Act does not prohibit the appointment of a receiver of the sum lying to the credit of a deceased in the provident fund. Under ordinary circumstances such sum would be paid to the person who has taken out letters of administration to the estate of the deceased. But where

(i) if the subscriber or depositor or, if he is dead, the person to whom in the absence of any valid assignment the sum or balance would be payable under this sub-section gives his consent in writing, pay the sum or part or the balance thereof, as the case may be, to the assignee, or

(ii) if such consent is not forthcoming, withhold payment of the sum, part or balance, as the case may be, pending a decision of a competent Civil Court as to the person entitled to receive it.

(2) The making of any payment authorised by sub-section (1) shall be a full discharge to the Government or the railway administration, as the case may be, from all liability in respect of so much of the sum standing to the credit of the subscriber or depositor as is equivalent to the amount so paid.

Rights of nominees.

5. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, but otherwise notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force or any disposition, whether testamentary or otherwise, by a subscriber to, or depositor in, a Government or Railway Provident Fund of the sum standing to his credit in the Fund, or of any part thereof, any nomination, duly made in accordance with the rules of the Fund, which purports to confer upon any person the right to receive the whole or any part of such sum on the death of the subscriber or depositor, shall be deemed to confer such right absolutely, until such nomination is varied by another nomination made in like manner or is expressly cancelled by the subscriber or depositor by notice given in such manner and to such authority as is prescribed by those rules.

NOTES.

there is a suit pending and where a decree may be passed against the estate of the deceased, there can be no bar or difficulty in the way of appointing a receiver, if it is necessary, to preserve the estate of the deceased so that the plaintiff, if he gets a decree, may be able to realise his decretal dues. 44 C.W.N. 636. See also 1939 Mad. 485.

Secs. 4 and 5.—In the absence of a provision in the form of declaration with regard to the Provident Fund that the heir of the nominee should receive the provident fund, the first dependant of the subscriber has the prior right thereto. 116 I.C. 591=1929 S. 158.

Sec. 5.—The effect of S. 5 is to enable a Burman Buddhist to make a nomination, though such a nomination being in the nature of a testamentary disposition, is prohibited by his personal law. A nomination made prior to the Act takes effect only thereafter if the person making the nomination dies subsequently and in such a case the nominee and not the personal heir is entitled to succeed. 6 R. 682=1929 R. 54. According to S. 5 the person nominated by the subscriber to the provident fund in the declaration form takes an absolute interest in the property and though the Act is not in force in Marwar the Provident Fund Rules of 1925 promulgated by the Darbar contain a provision similar to the one made in S. 5 in the British Indian Enactment. 1939 Mar.L.R. 110 (Civ.). Provident fund and gratuity do not form part of a deceased's estate. 177 I.C. 416=1938 Sind 160. S. 5 (1) has no application when there are no rules of the provident fund providing for payment to a nominee. 44 C.W.N. 636. Where a person is nominated under the rules framed under the Act to receive the fund on the death of the employer, the nominee does not take the fund absolutely, but only on behalf of the estate. 1924 S. 57. The right to receive the amount on death which is conferred absolutely on the nominee by S. 5 of the Act is a vested right which passes to the heirs of the nominee at his death in case the nominee dies before the depositor, without the latter varying or expressly cancelling the nomination. The nominee is a person who is intended to acquire a title in the money and not merely a person designated to give a valid quittance to the holder of the Fund. Nor is the nominee merely a person who is to receive the money in the first instance and administer it for the benefit of the dependants or heirs of the deceased depositor. 59 M. 855=1936 M. 477=71 M.L.J. 790. S. 5 applies only to Government and Railway Provident Fund and not to the Fund of a private company. Provident Fund monies standing to the credit of an employee of such a private company are the property of that employee and pass on his death to his heirs, whoever may be the nominee. cannot be disposed of by the deceased in his will. 187 I.C. 886=1939 Cal. 642. S. 5 (1) contemplates that the original nomination made by a subscriber will entitle the original nominee to receive the provident fund money absolutely until such nomination has been varied in the manner indicated therein. It contemplates that the variation or cancellation is to be made by the subscriber himself and not by anybody after his death. Consequently, a will made by the subscriber varying his original nomination and despatched to the Provident Fund authority by the executor after his death, cannot have the effect of cancelling such nomination. 42 C.W.N. 1143. M signed a declaration form of the General Provident Fund constituting B, his minor nephew as his nominee for receiving the amount to his credit. Heirs of M brought a suit against B for recovery of their share of the amount under Hindu Law. Held that the form of declaration amounted both to a declaration of nominee and a will. B was expressly constituted the nominee as the sole legatee in respect of the fund and suit by heirs of M did not lie. 1930 L. 437 (2). The amount of the Provident Fund standing to the credit of a subscriber or depositor under the Act remains his property till his death, and does not vest in and become the property of the nominee at the time of nomination. The nominee takes by succession after the death of the depositor and consequently is not entitled to get a succession certificate in respect of the amount without payment of the court-fee payable under Art. 12, Sch. I of the Court-Fees Act. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 359 =1939 Sind 52.

Sec. 5 (2): CONSTRUCTION AND SCOPE—SECOND-CERTIFICATE—IF BARRED.—The effect of S. 5 (2) is that the nomination will entitle the nominee to a certificate without any proof of his right thereto, such as an applicant for a succession certificate has otherwise to establish. But it does not go further and mean that the other provisions of the Act, which may afford as a bar, will also be operative. Therefore, the fact that a certificate has been previously granted to another does not bar the grant of the certificate to the nominee. 39 C.W.N. 117=1935 C. 271 (1).

Sec. 7.—The question whether a person or a corporation acted in good faith within the meaning of S. 7 is always a question of fact and cannot be re-agitated in second appeal. 41 C. An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Insolvency in British India, as administered by Courts having jurisdiction outside the Presidency-towns and the Town of [Karachi].[1]

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to insolvency in British India, as administered by Courts having jurisdiction outside Presidency-towns and the [2][town of Karachi]; It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920.

LEG. REF.

[1] Substituted by A.O., 1937 for 'Rangoon.'

[2] Substituted by A.O., 1937 for words "town of Rangoon and Karachi" which had been substituted by Act IX of 1926, S. 11.

NOTES.

Sec. 1.—The object of the Act is to make all the property of the insolvent divisible among all his creditors. 15 P.L.T. 502=1934 P. 514. The insolvency law is mainly an administrative or adjective law, a law of machinery to bring about certain results, namely, the satisfaction of the insolvent's debts. The provisions contained in the Act are therefore of a general character. 53 A. 239=1931 A. 162 (F.B.). This Act is a complete code in itself and prescribes its own period of limitation. So, the provisions of the Lim. Act are not applicable to proceedings under this Act. 5 R. 384=104 I.C. 816=1927 R. 263. See also 1930 M.W.N. 651. The Act is based on the English Bankruptcy Act, and English cases are consequently valuable authorities on questions arising under this Act. 14 P.L.T. 691=1933 P. 461. There is no period prescribed by the Act for creditors to be brought on schedule of creditors. Such matters are left to the discretion of the Ins. Court. 5 R. 384 =1927 R. 263. But proof of debt may be disallowed on account of gross delay and laches of creditors. 1927 Rang. 263. As to applicability of new Act when insolvency petition was presented under the Old Act, see 18 L.W. 836=1924 M. 368. Also 1928 C. 221; 22 L.W. 542=49 M.L.J. 595; 26 S.L.R. 204. The District Court of Secunderabad is a foreign Court and not a Court in British India for the purpose of this Act and, consequently, the adjudication of a person as insolvent by that Court does not put an end to all execution proceedings against him in British India. 1929 M. 900=57 M.L.J. 393. There is no provision in the Act for the setting aside of an order of adjudication of an insolvent passed ex parte. Application for setting aside such an order has to be made under O. 9, R. 13 and is governed by Art. 164 of the Lim. Act. 33 P.L.R. 698. There is no provision in the Act empowering the Court at the time of adjudicating a person an insolvent to pass an order requiring him to pay certain amount into Court in payment of his debts. 1930 R. 236. Though this Act does not expressly empower the Court to pass an order staying the insolvency proceedings, still it is competent to pass such an order in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction on the analogy of somewhat similar provision contained in S. 94, Prov. T. Ins.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled districts.

Definition.

2. (1) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "creditor" includes a decree-holder, "debt" includes a judgment-debt and "debtor" includes a judgment-debtor;

(b) "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in any area outside the local limits for the time being of the Presidency-towns [1][2* * * and the limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court of the judicial commissioner of Sind as defined in section 2 of the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909];

(c) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(d) "property" includes any property over which or the profits of which any person has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit;

(e) "secured creditor" means a person holding a mortgage, charge or lien on the property of the debtor or any part thereof as a security for a debt due to him from the debtor; and

(f) "transfer of property" includes a transfer of any interest in property and the creation of any charge upon property.

(2) Words and expressions used in this Act and defined in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and not hereinbefore defined shall have the same meanings as those respectively attributed to them by the said Code.

A decree against debtor after adjudication is not binding on receiver. 84 I. C. 1008=1923 A. 33 (1). The lax use of the word "debtor" throughout the Provincial Insolvency Act has given rise to difficulties. In many sections it is used as meaning the debtor, while in others it is used as meaning the insolvent. Strictly speaking, a debtor and an insolvent are different persons. An insolvent under the Act means a person against whom an order of adjudication has been made: a debtor is a person who has made himself amenable to adjudication but who has not yet been adjudicated. Sec. 2 (e): SECURED CREDITOR.—See 137 I. C. 208 (2)=1932 A. 550 (1). The word 'holding' used in the definition of the term 'secured creditor' is in the present tense and thus necessarily connotes the idea of a mortgage, charge or lien which exists and excludes that of the mortgage, charge or lien which is to come into existence at some future time. 1937 Lah. 494.

PART I.

CONSTITUTION AND POWERS OF COURT.

Insolvency jurisdiction.

3. (1) The District Courts shall be the Courts having jurisdiction under this Act:

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, invest any Court subordinate to a District Court with jurisdiction in any class of cases, and any Court so invested shall within the local limits of its jurisdiction have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court under this Act.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, a Court of Small Causes shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

Power of Court to decide all questions arising in insolvency.

4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Court shall have full power to decide all questions whether of title or priority, or of any nature whatsoever, and whether involving matters of law or of fact, which may arise in any case of insolvency coming within the cognizance of the Court, or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice or making a complete distribution of property in any such case.

NOTES.

Sec. 3 (1).—S. 3 merely enacts that the ordinary jurisdiction in insolvency shall be in the District Court. It does not exclude the extraordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Court. No existing jurisdiction in a High Court can be taken away by the legislature except by the use of express terms or by praying in aid a necessary implication. Before the Provincial Insolvency Act came into existence the High Court of Judicature at Lahore had jurisdiction to transfer proceedings in insolvency Court to itself for disposal, and since there is no deprivation of the High Court of its jurisdiction in express terms in S. 3 there cannot be any necessary implication that the jurisdiction in the High Court has been taken away. 17 L. 582 = 1936 L. 608. Appeal lies only to a District Court from an order of a Subordinate Court though they have concurrent jurisdiction. 63 I.C. 848. A District Judge cannot transfer petition to a Subordinate Judge for disposal. 45 M L.J. 689 = 1924 M. 398. S. 3 merely enacts that the ordinary jurisdiction in insolvency shall be in the District Court. It does not exclude the extraordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Court. No existing jurisdiction in a High Court can be taken away by the legislature except by the use of express terms or by praying in aid a necessary implication. Before the Pro. Ins. Act came into existence, the High Court at Lahore had jurisdiction to transfer proceedings in Insolvency Court to itself for disposal, and since there is no deprivation of the High Court of its jurisdiction in express terms in S. 3, there cannot be any necessary implication that the jurisdiction in the High Court has been taken away. 17 L. 582 = 1936 L. 608.

Proviso.—The object of the proviso is to enable Local Government by conferring jurisdiction upon Subordinate Courts to relieve the District Court of pressure of too much work under this Act. 51 B. 809 = 104 I.C. 780 = 1927 B. 460. Effect of Government notification under this proviso is to confer a special jurisdiction over the entire district. 1927 Bom. 4 0. See also 45 L.W. 313 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 654. The expression "value not exceeding fifteen thousand rupees" in Notification No. 37 issued by the Governor-in-Council under S. 3 (1), Pro. Ins. Act, refers to a case in which the debts of the insolvent do not amount to over fifteen thousand rupees. According to this construction the Court may or may not possess jurisdiction to hear an insolvency proceeding at any particular time according to the amount of the debts of the insolvent, that at that particular date, may appear to be outstanding. "Debts of the insolvent" must clearly mean the debts admitted or proved in the proceedings, the expression cannot include secured or doubtful debts which may or may not become provable at some subsequent stage. [Advisability of amending either the Burma Courts Act or the Pro. Ins. Act suggested.] 14 R. 280 = 1936 R. 223 (S.B.).

Sec. 4: SCOPE.—The provisions of S. 4 contain mere alterations in procedure and have therefore retrospective effect. The Insolvency Court can decide as to the validity of a gift made before the Act. 28 N.L.R. 89. A creditor's application under S. 4, praying for a declaration that a certain transaction is benami, is not barred merely because leave of the Insolvency Court has not been formally obtained under S. 28 (2). When the Insolvency Court entertains and hears the application and proceeds to give a decision upon it, it must be deemed that the Court has impliedly granted such leave. 40 L.W. 693 = 67 M.L.J. 616. S. 4 is very wide in its scope and gives the Court the same powers as are conferred by the English Bankruptcy Act. 97 I.C. 321; 1927 S. 66; 1930 L. 122. See also 1937 L. 242. See S. 102, English Bankruptcy Act. Thus Insolvency Court can enquire into the validity of consent decree. 93 I.C. 331 = 1926 S. 133; plea of sons of insolvent that there was a division between father and sons. 23 L.W. 80 = 1926 M. 360. An insolvency proceeding is a suit.

NOTES.

9 P. 664=1930 P. 588. The provisions of C. P. Code, are applicable to enquiries by Insolvency Courts. 19 A.L.J. 862=63 I.C. 601. A thorough enquiry is necessary under this section as an order passed under it is final and binding on the parties. A summary order, passed without any referenee to this section and without the Court applying its mind properly to all the implications of its order, cannot under any circumstances be treated as a proper and valid order under the section. 36 P.L.R. 205=1934 L. 1006. See also 63 I.C. 519=19 A.L.J. 497. The words "subject to the provisions of this Act" mean "excluding questions otherwise provided for by the provisions of this Act." So, an order annulling a sale by the insolvent is one provided for by S. 53, to which S. 4 has no application. Consequently the second proviso to S. 75 does not apply and no second appeal is competent from the order of annulment. 1931 M. 745=61 M.L.J. 820. See also 59 C. 1135=36 C.W.N. 492. As to difference between powers of the Court under the old and new Act, see 45 M. 434=42 M.L.J. 185. S. 4 empowers the Ins. Court to decide questions of title affecting third parties. 31 C.W.N. 502=1927 C. 474; 1926 L. 679; 61 M.L.J. 763; 1934 L. 936 (2). The Court has jurisdiction to pass an order for payment to the Receiver of mesne profits against a third party to the insolvency, for the period during which he was in possession of property in pursuance of a transfer by the insolvent which had been set aside under S. 53. 34 L.W. 788=61 M.L.J. 763. Under S. 4 the Ins. Court has full power to decide the question whether the O.R. is entitled to the assets realised by the decree-holder from the insolvent. (1930 L. 39, overruled.) 14 L. 724=34 P.L.R. 1076. It has exclusive jurisdiction under S. 4 to decide questions of title and other questions necessary for the determination of the disputes between the parties. 105 I.C. 50=1927 O. 357. The exercise of the jurisdiction which the Ins. Court derives from S. 4 is purely discretionary and whether in any particular case, an Ins. Court should refuse to exercise its jurisdiction depends upon the facts of such case. 1933 S. 185=144 I.C. 678; 15 L. 294=1934 L. 365. See also 156 I.C. 677=1935 M. 720. Even if a judge, for some reason or other, declines to decide the question of title under S. 4 on general principles, his successor cannot be precluded from going into the question of title and deciding it under that section. 1934 L. 936. Suit by transferee to establish the validity of his transfer. S. 4 gives the Court, subject to the provisions of the Act, full power to decide all questions. The Court can decide that a deed of wakf executed by the insolvent was fictitious. 1931 O. 124=8 O.W.N. 147. Per Pullan, J.—It is improper to hold that S. 4 supersedes S. 53 and that a Court can set aside a transfer, which has been made more than two years before adjudication. This rule must, however, be confined to cases where there has been a transfer, and it has no application where the transfer was intended to be inoperative from the beginning and the insolvent had remained in possession of the property. 1931 O. 124 See also 1936 L. 149; 1936 O.W.N. 960; 161 I.C. 687=1936 R. 54; 1927 S. 66; 1934 L. 365; 1935 L. 60. The jurisdiction conferred under S. 4 on the Ins. Court is not limited in any way by S. 53 or S. 54. The Court can declare under S. 4 that certain transfers are invalid and not binding on the O.R. Thus it can declare the later transactions by the transferees from the isolvent as invalid. 1932 M.W.N. 821. See also 1937 M. 32; 1939 A.L.J. 359=1939 A. 431. But see 11 P. 9=1932 P. 129. Court can direct a secured claimant to prove his claim and grant an injunction to protect his claim. No appeal lies from such an order. 32 C.W.N. 427. An order refusing to annul a transfer is covered by S. 75 (3) and is appealable only with the leave of the Court. 33 P.L.R. 971. The decision of the Insolvency Court amounts to conclusive proof as to the title in respect of the specific things claimed by the applicant, not merely as against him but absolutely within the meaning of S. 41, Evidence Act. In other words the decision is a decision in rem and is valid against all persons. 173 I.C. 354=1937 R. 369. Where a transfer by an insolvent is declared void under S. 4 of the Act, by the Insolvency Court on the ground of fraud, subsequent transfer made by the transferee of the insolvent is also void and cannot stand. 174 I.C. 697=1937 L. 323. If the former transfer by the insolvent is found to be void ihe subsequent transfers also fall along with it. (1935 L. 368, Rel. on) 190 I.C. 327=1940 L. 124.

POWER OF COURT.—See 1938 M. 884=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 390; 1936 O.W.N. 960 (Power to allow amendment of petition); 1937 P. 643; 1939 M 896=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 203 (Power to order refund of sale proceeds to O.R). S. 4 confers on the Court very wide powers, which are sufficient to enable the Court to inquire into the question as to the liability of a transferee of the insolvent for mesne profits of the property, on the transfer being annulled. Whether it should inquire into it or not is a matter for the discretion of the Court. 172 I.C. 573=20 N.L.J. 271=1938 N. 50. S. 4 confers very wide powers on the Insolvency Court to try all questions of title, priority, etc. 190 I.C. 327=1940 L. 124. A purchaser preferred a claim to certain property on the basis of his purchase from the insolvent after the property was attached in execution of a money-decree. That claim was not investigated but was dismissed for default. It was held that as the order dismissing the claim for default was neither final nor conclusive it was not only expedient but necessary that the question of title to the property in question should be decided in proceedings under S. 4 of the Act. 182 I.C. 455=1938 C. 373. A proceeding under S. 4 can be conducted by the receiver alone, and not by a creditor. If the receiver declines to start proceedings under that section, the procedure to be followed is for the creditor to apply to the Court to direct the receiver to institute such proceedings, and the Court can pass a conditional order making it a condition precedent that the creditor so applying should put the receiver in funds and properly indemnify him against the costs of the action. 75 C.L.J. 263. An order to an interim receiver to enter upon the property of third person is clearly not one within the scope of S. 4. Where an application for adjudication is admitted and the opposite party is appointed interim receiver, the Ins. Court cannot inquire, before the order of adjudication is made, whether a transfer by the applicants to a third person is a genuine one or not. And it is premature for the receiver to start proceedings under S. 4 before the order of adjudication. 39 C.W.N. 1167=1935 C. 558. S. 4 itself does not say anything as to the stage up to which the Court is competent to take proceedings under S. 4, but under sub-S. (2), the intention of the legislature seems to be that the Ins. Judge should not take action under S. 4 after the property has been sold. That should be the ordinary practice and a convenient practice. But where a minor is adjudicated an insolvent and the order has been found to be illegal, and where the property was taken possession of by the O.R. and even when it was sold, the minor could not raise any objection under S. 4 and owing to his minority he could not contest the validity of the order adjudicating him an insolvent. S. 4 is wide enough to cover the case as it is the duty of the Ins. Judge to do justice between the parties and to restore to the person his property which has been seized under an illegal order; specially when the order has been cancelled by the judge. 162 I.C. 481=1936 L. 376. When the Ins. Court is called upon to exercise its jurisdiction under S. 4, it would, except under very special circumstances, refuse to exercise that jurisdiction; where a suit instituted on the same date as the application made before it, is liable to be defeated by the plea of limitation, it would not afford relief to the aggrieved party who resorts to this section when the enforcement of such relief before an ordinary tribunal is statute-barred. 115 I.C. 330=1929 S.94. Attachment order passed by Court—Claim contesting validity —Time limit. 1932 A.L.J. 391=1932 A. 408. Before the Ins. Court exercises the discretion vested in it by S. 4 to entertain an application for declaration that certain properties belong to the insolvents, it should be satisfied that it is expedient to withdraw the case from the jurisdiction of the ordinary tribunals and to decide it in a summary way. 120 I.C. 513=1930 S. 97. Proceedings under S. 4 of the Act are not restricted to the decision of the title to property within the territorial jurisdiction of the Court, but also to property situated outside the jurisdiction. 114 I.C. 112=1929 S. 135. The section confers jurisdiction on the Ins. Court to decide all questions of title which may arise in any case of insolvency to make a complete distribution of the property. It is true that the jurisdiction of the Ins. Court is not exclusive. But if he places the matter before the Ins. Court and that Court decides to determine the question, its decision is final and binding for all purposes as between the debtor and the debtor's estate on the one hand and all claimants against him or the estate on the other hand. The only remedy open to the party aggrieved by the decision is to prefer an appeal under S. 75 against it, but he cannot reagitate the question by bringing a regular suit. 119 I.C. 733=1929 L. 761. See also 1930 L. 180=1933 N. 373. The terms of S. 4 (1) are very wide. The phrase, "or of any nature whatsoever," though very wide, must be read in conjunction with the earlier part of the section which refers to "question whether of title or priority" and with the opening words of the section "subject to the provisions of this Act." In other words the phrase must be subject to the limitation of ejusdem generis, or to the limitation to orders not specifically provided for in the Act. To give a more extended meaning to it so as to include all questions of whatsoever nature in the section would render nugatory the provisions of S. 75 (1) of the Act. 1937 A.L.J. 1071=I.L.R. (1938) A. 50=1938 A. 28. It is contrary to all judicial principle that when an Official Receiver has allowed an order to be passed against him ex parte in proceedings under O. 21, R. 93, C. P. Code by an executing Court, and has applied unsuccessfully to have that order set aside or reviewed, and fails to avail himself of his remedy by way of appeal or revision, he should be permitted to make use of S.4, to reagitate a question which has been finally decided against him. The language of S. 4 though wide and comprehensive is not comprehensive enough to cover the case of a dispute between the Official Receiver, as representing the insolvent judgment-debtor's estate, and a person who has no connection whatever with the insolvency, such as an auction-purchaser in execution. 55 L.W. 117=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 238. A stranger who claims the property taken possession of by the O.R. both against him and the insolvent can institute a suit to establish his right independently of S. 4. But the insolvent himself is amenable, so far as the question of title to the property or its liability to be sold is concerned, only to the jurisdiction of the Ins. Court. He cannot invoke the aid of the ordinary Courts to establish his right against the O. R., e.g., for a declaration that he is an 'agriculturist' as defined in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act and that certain lands of his are not saleable. 140 I.C. 808=1933 L. 65. Where certain property is sold by the insolvent to a stranger more than three years prior to his insolvency, the purchaser gets an absolute title to the property against the O.R. and the sale is unimpeachable. If the O.R. subsequent to the insolvency sells the same property to another ignoring the prior sale and dismisses the claim of the prior purchaser, a question of title arises in insolvency as between the two purchasers; and the Ins. Court, if it deems it expedient to decide it for the purpose of doing complete justice, has power to decide that question under S. 4. 1936 M. 955=71 M.L.J. 656. On the insolvency of a Hindu son, the O.R. sold his interest in certain property of the joint family. The insolvent's father thereupon sued for a declaration that the property belonged to him exclusively and that his son, the insolvent, had no interest in it. He did not however seek to set aside the sale by the Receiver or pray for possession. There was no decision at all by the Ins. Court either under S. 4 or by way of appeal from the Receiver's sale under S. 68. Held that the suit for a mere declaration was maintainable, and the O.R's. sale was only a private sale. 1935 M. 297=68 M.L.J. 229. See also 63 C. 194=40 C.W.N. 808. (2) Subject to the provisions of this Act and notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every such decision shall be final and binding for all purposes as between, on the one hand, the debtor and the debtor's estate, and, on the other hand, all claimants against him or it and all persons claiming through or under them or any of them.

lication under this section by a person aggrieved by the seizure of his property by the O.R. alleging the same to belong to the insolvent, see 149 I.C. 43=1934 R. 97; 1938 Nag. 320. Sale of property by Receiver after third person's objections setting up his title, is dismissed for default—Application by purchaser for delivery of possession—Objection by a third person reiterating his title—Power of Court. Held, that before the question of title was decided, either by a decree in a separate suit or by an order under S. 4, the appellant could not be dispossessed from the property. 1935 A.L.J. 484=1935 A. 546. An application to the District Judge to set aside a sale of the O.R., even if it be deemed to be one under S. 4, must be filed within 21 days from the date of the sale. 1935 L. 60. But see 1936 L. 149. The provisions of this section must be read along with the provisions of S. 28 of the Act: the Court consequently has jurisdiction only over properties of the insolvent which vest either in the Court or in the receiver. 1930 P. 305 (2). But see 1930 A. 552. Under S. 4 (1), the powers of the Court of Insolvency are very wide, and do not in any way militate against S. 28 (2)=125 I.C. 28=1930 A. 552. By virtue of the father's power of disposition vesting in the receiver, he is entitled to seize the son's shares and hence he has also the right to ask for annulment of the sale of the son's shares. The remedy of the receiver lies in the Ins. Court and not in ordinary Civil Court. 152 I.C. 1026=1934 N. 271. The Court in order to decide whether a debtor petitioner is unable to pay his debts has power to go into the question of the existence of the alleged debts if disputed. 33 P.L.R. 422=1932 L 620 (1).

DUTY OF COURT.—The receiver is an officer of the Court, and as soon as the Court finds that he has wrongly been given possession and ought not to remain in possession, the Court should direct him to deliver possession to the proper person. If the Ins. Court, owing to a mistaken view of the law, does not pass such an order, the person aggrieved may appeal and the appellate Court should pass the order and appeal should not be dismissed merely because insolvent delays in asking to be put in possession. 1929 N. 338. Where an estate has devolved on insolvents by inheritance and there are creditors of the deceased and also creditors of the insolvents, the question of priority between the two has to be decided by the Ins. Court. 125 I.C. 28=1930 A. 552. An application for declaration that an execution purchase made pending annulment is invalid comes under this section. 1929 M.W.N. 809. The Court under S. 4 would only decide questions of title which it may deem expedient and necessary to decide. It would not summarily order a disputed debt to be deposited or enter into an enquiry about the same. 18 N.L. J. 14. As to power of Court to order refund of money wrongly paid, see 1936 N. 28.

Sec. 4 (2).—A decision under this section is final and cannot be re-opened by a civil suit. 1923 A. 293 (2); 1922 A. 128. See also 108 I. C. 156=1928 A. 158: 1936 N. 112; 41 P.L.R. 302=1939 L. 87; 1938 L. 490. But an appeal lies under S. 75 (2). 19 A.L.J. 862=63 I.C. 601. The summary enquiry under S. 24 as to whether a debtor is entitled to present a petition has nothing to do with S. 4 of the Act, which section only comes into play after adjudication in disputes between the debtor's estate represented by a receiver and the claims of one or all of his creditors. Consequently, a finding in an enquiry under S. 24 that a certain debt is fictitious is not final and does not operate as res judicata under S. 4 of the Act. I.L.R. (1938) L. 535=1938 L. 490. A stranger claimant is at liberty to raise his claim in a civil suit provided his rights have not been determined and decided under this section. 72 I.C. 320=26 C.W.N. 921; 1922 A 128; 49 A. 71=1927 A. 66. See also 34 P.L.R. 31=1933 L. 65. Per Dalal and King, JJ., Sen. J., contra.—If the matter is once decided even as against a stranger by the Ins. Court, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court would be barred under S. 11, C. P. Code. S. 4 deals with jurisdiction and this jurisdiction will be circumscribed only by such subsequent sections as deal with the jurisdiction of the Court. Ss. 53 and 54 do not deal with the jurisdiction of the Ins. Court, but only lay down rules as to the manner in which evidence should be considered in certain cases arising in that Court. Those sections, therefore, do not control the provisions of S.4, though S. 56 does. Ins. Court can try the issue whether the insolvent is entitled to the property or not after proper opportunity is given to the other side to plead to the application. 51 A. 550=1929 A. 105 (F.B.). See also (1942) 1 M.L.J. 238. So also in the case of a deed of gift. 28 N.L.R. 89. S. 4 does not give the Ins. Court a wider power than that which is contained in S. 53 to annul transfers. Held, that a deed of release executed more than two years before the adjudication could not be set aside. 123 I.C. 217=1930 O. 314. =1925 N. 363. As to rights of mortgagee when mortgagor is insolvent, see 1925 M. 452 (1). Where large properties were willed to the son burdened with a small trust, on the insolvency of the son, his interest would vest in O.R. 1928 M. 190=54 M.L.J. 272. In 1921, a husband executed a document providing for the maintenance and residence of his wife, in consideration of her having given her consent to his second marriage, necessary under the custom of the caste. The deed provided that she was to be given a particular house for her residence. She was accordingly in possession of that house. In 1927, the husband was adjudicated insolvent and the O.R. applied under S. 4 to get possession of the house. Held, that the agreement was valid and binding, having been entered into for valuable consideration and performed by one party; and though unregistered, the arrangement being one that needed no writing at all, the title of the wife could be proved otherwise and that the O.R. was not entitled to get possession. 34 Bom.L.R. 1317. Where consideration has passed before the Sub-Registrar, the presumption is that the transaction was intended to be operative until and unless that presumption is displaced by cogent evidence. The mere fact that the insolvent was a relation of the vendees or that the transaction took place when vendor was on the eve of insolvency are not sufficient to rebut this presumption. The transanction in such a case is neither bogus nor sham and cannot be set aside even under S. 4. 150 I.C. 308=1934 Pesh. 30. Adjudication of Hindu father—Sale of property — Obstruction by son—Removal of—Powers of Ins. Court. 143 I.C. 833=1933 M. 609 (45 M. 434 ; 51 M. 567, Dist.). If an adjudication of title will not remove a person from possession because the insolvent has not a present right to it, it should not be decided upon by that Court. 18 L.W. 884=1924 M. 387 (1). Where the title of the insolvent to property sold is in question, the purchaser is entitled to have the sale set aside and get refund of the purchase-money. 103 I.C. 695=1927 C. 834. Where the son's share was also sold by O.R. in the insolvency of the father, the purchaser is not entitled to delivery of possession of the son's share as well under this section but only by regular suit. 1928 M. 531=51 M. 567=55 M.L.J. 163.

SECURED CREDITOR.—Dispute over distribution of sale proceeds among secured creditors—Court has jurisdiction to decide such dispute. 1930 L. 98. An Ins. Court has jurisdiction to dispose of a matter arising between an insolvent and creditor, even though the creditor is a secured creditor, when the question relates to the amount of the debt. 121 I.C. 181=1930 L. 98. Mortgagee agreeing to sale by Ins. Court and purchasing the property himself must submit to objections to sale and adjudication thereon under this section. 1931 L. 3. See also 51 L.W. 429=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 647.

APPEAL.—Where a judge holds that the claim is not maintainable under S. 4, the order can be appealed against under S. 75 read with schedule I. 58 C.L.J. 118=1924 C. 122 (2). A second appeal does not lie against an order avoiding a voluntary transfer .27 N.L.R. 179. A question as to the right of the petitioning creditor to file his petition and the existence of his debts is not one falling under S. 4, and the decision on such a question is therefore not open to second appeal. 59 B. 161=36 Bom.L.R. 1236=1935 B. 80. An order of the District Court dismissing an appeal against an order of the Court of first instance exercising insolvency jurisdiction and adjudging a person as insolvent is final and no second appeal lies. 1932 L. 645 (1). Order of conditional discharge—Appeal—Omission to implead O.R.—Order modified—Second appeal is not maintainable. 132 I.C. 526=1931 L. 647.

The question whether the sale by an insolvent is benami falls under S. 4, and hence a second appeal lies. 173 I.C. 531=1937 L. 441. A prayer contained in an application by the Official Receiver for avoiding certain transfers of debts by insolvent in favour of some of his creditors that the transferees be directed to refund the amounts realised by them, and a further point subsequently raised, that they were personally liable for the entire amounts of the debts transferred to them, are covered not by S. 54 but by S. 4 and the order of the District Judge passed on appeal is, therefore, appealable to the High Court. 171 I.C. 82=1937 L. 913. Where, in a pending insolvency application, the lower Court found that the alleged insolvent had heavy debts to pay, that some of his cheques were returned and his accounts were not forthcoming and after considering the circumstances, appointed an interim receiver in the exercise of the discretion vested in it under S. 20, and this order was confirmed by the District Court: Held, that there was no question of jurisdiction, and that there was no ground for interference by the High Court in second appeal. 139 I.C. 44=1932 B. 228. To a petition to set aside or declare as void a deed of transfer made by an insolvent under S. 53 or S. 54, S. 4 of the Act has no application and therefore no appeal lies to the High Court from the appellate order of the District Judge. 1935 M. 432. When a right of appeal is given to one of the ordinary Courts of the country, the procedure, orders and decrees of that Court will be governed by the ordinary rules of the C. P. Code. An appeal to Privy Council is therefore maintainable from the decision of the High Court under S. 75 from the order of the District Judge, under S. 4 (2): 61 I.A. 158=12 R. 194 =66 M.L.J. 404 (P.C.). Quere.—If a second appeal is at all incompetent in the above case: 34 Bom.L.R. 382=1932 B. 228.

RES JUDICATA.—A decision of the Insolvency Court in a proceeding under S. 53 as regards the right of a person to retain possession of property as against the Official Receiver operates as res judicata in view of S. 4 (2) of the Act. 44 C.W.N. 586=1940 C. 578. See also 1937 L. 668 ; 1936 N. 112 ; 1938 L. 490 ; (1942) 1 M.L.J. 238.

PROCEDURE.—The procedure under S. 4 is only a substitute for a regular suit. A party who is bound by a decree or order of a Civil Court is not entitled to re-agitate the same question by another suit, and what cannot be done by another suit cannot be achieved by means of proceedings under S. 4. Where the Official Receiver, therefore is a party to a proceeding before a Civil Court in his capacity as the representative of the estate of

(3) Where the Court does not deem it expedient or necessary to decide any question of the nature referred to in sub-section (1), but has reason to believe that the debtor has a saleable interest in any property, the Court may without further inquiry sell such interest in such manner and subject to such conditions as it may think fit.

NOTES.

the insolvent, he is not entitled to reopen an adverse decision by the Court in an application under S. 4 of the Act. His remedy is only to appeal as any other party to the proceeding against the order of the Civil Court if he is dissatisfied with it. 1940 M.W.N. 519=1940 M 733. The scope of S. 4 (2) is not limited to the insolvency proceedings only. According to it the decision of the Insolvency Court is final for all purposes. Hence, a decretal debt which has been declared by an Insolvency Court to be fictitious in proceedings on an application by the judgment-debtor for being declared insolvent to which the decree-holder was also a party cannot be recovered by an execution of that decree. The decision of the Insolvency Court is tantamount to a declaration that the decree was non-existent and the finding is binding on the judgment-debtor as well as on the creditor even though the insolvency proceedings have been dismissed. 177 I.C. 204=1938 L. 148. In a question under S. 4 (1) the procedure for a regular suit must be followed. 1928 L. 556. It is not necessary that proceedings under S. 4, in order that they may be valid, should be initiated by a plaint or a regular application. 146 I.C. 912=1933 L. 789. It was open to the Court to take proceedings suo motu under S. 4. 1933 L. 789. Though the Ins. Court has powers of execution under Ss. 4 and 5, the procedure is only analogous to and not identical with that under O. 21, C. P. Code. 1933 M. 475.

LIMITATION.—Before a receiver can release the assets, they must be shown to belong to the insolvent. If they do not, the receiver has no present right to remove a stranger in possession, he would have to file a separate suit against him. Even on the view that proceedings under S. 4 of the Insolvency Act should be held to be tantamount to a suit under S. 53 of the T. P. Act, it would follow that such a suit would have to be in time when insolvency proceedings began and this would be six years under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act from the date of accrual of the cause of action. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 293=1938 N.L.J. 279=1938 N. 546.

Sec. 4 (3).—Where subsequent to the order of an Ins. Court under sub-S. (3) of S. 4 for sale of the interest of the insolvent in certain properties, leaving question of title to be decided by a competent Civil Court, the plaintiff brought a suit for a declaration of his title to those properties though after one year from the date of that order; it is not barred by Art. 13 of the Lim. Act. 36 C.W.N. 621. Sale by O. R.—Application to set aside sale—Limitation. 1935 L. 60.

Secs. 4 and 5.—Joint family—Insolvency of father and sale of insolvent's property by O.R. —Partition suit by sons—Decree—Son's share found liable to father's mortgage debt—Application by O.R. for delivery of possession under S. 4. 147 I.C. 494=1933 M. 475.

SECS. 4 AND 25.—The words 'of any nature whatsoever' used in S. 4 do not include or embrace within its purview the determination of the question whether the debtor has a right to present the petition for insolvency. Such a decision is contemplated only under S. 25 (2). Hence where a District Judge in appeal sets aside the decision of the civil Judge and holds that the applicant was not entitled to present a petition for adjudication and dismisses his application, the order is one under S. 25 (2) of the Act and no second appeal lies to the High Court under S. 75 (1), proviso (2). 196 I.C. 881=1941 O. W. N. 1218. The Insolvency Court has no power or discretion to dismiss an application by a creditor against a debtor on the ground that the questions raised in it are too difficult or complicated for the Insolvency Court to decide, the Insolvency Court cannot refuse to decide the questions or relegate the parties to a regular suit. 54 L.W. 278=1941 M. 895=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 362=I.L.R. (1942) M. 147. Where a subsequent to the adjudication of a Hindu father as an insolvent, one of his creditors files a suit against the father and his sons in respect of a debt incurred by the father for family purposes without obtaining the leave of the Insolvency Court and obtains a decree against the insolvent personally and against the joint family property in the hands of the sons, it cannot be held that the decree in so far as it is against the sons is a nullity because leave of the Insolvency Court is not necessary under S. 28 (2) of the Act to file suit against the undivided sons of the insolvent. It might be open to the sons to say that the suit would not be competent because leave of the Insolvency Court had not been obtained against the father and if the suit could not proceed against the father it could not proceed against them as well, where no such objection was taken by the sons on that ground and they have submitted to a decree being passed, it is not open to the Official Receiver or to any third party to take any objection in regard thereto or to have it declared that the decree is a nullity. The decree having been obtained against the sons without protest and having become final, it is not open to third parties including the Official Receiver to challenge the validity of the decree in proceedings under S. 4 of the Act. 1942 M.W.N. 69=55 L.W. 101=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 177.

Secs. 4 and 28.—An application was made to the Ins. Court under S. 4 praying for a declaration that certain property belonged to the insolvent and for a direction to the O.R. to sell the said property for the benefit of the general body of creditors. The O.R. was made a party to the application and it was alleged in the affidavit, filed in support of the application, that a petition was filed before the O.R. asking him to take up the matter and move the Court, but that he rejected the petition, although all the necessary materials were placed before him. Held, (i) that the application fell within S. 28 (2) and would not lie without the leave of the Court; (ii) that the requirements of S. 28 (2) had been sufficiently complied with, because there really was an application before the Court for leave to proceed with the application. Although it is imperative that consent should be obtained before the institution of the proceedings, a good deal has to be said in favour of the view that by implication the leave of the Court was being asked for and that it was not therefore necessary that a formal request should be made for such leave. 1935 M.W.N. 549=69 M. L.J. 137.

Secs. 4 and 52.—Scope—Execution sale—Subsequent adjudication of judgment-debtor on petition presented before—Application by Receiver to avoid sale—Dismissal—Fresh application by insolvent and creditor after several years—If barred by prior dismissal. See 155 I.C. 734=1935 P. 273.

Secs. 4 and 53: See 1939 A. 431; 1938 L. 73; 1936 O.W.N. 960; 41 Bom.L.R. 1258. Scope—Sham and colourable transfer more than two years before adjudication. S. 53 cannot apply to transfers by the insolvent executed more than two years before the adjudication. But irrespective of S. 53, the Ins. Court has, under S. 4, jurisdiction to annul sham and colourable transfers executed by the insolvent more than two years before the date of the presentation of the application for adjudication. 37 Bom.L.R. 478=1935 B. 316. See also 1938 N. 546=1938 N.L.J. 279. It is open to an Insolvency Court to try a question under S. 4 of the Act relating to the fictitious character of the transfer even though it does not fall under S. 53 of the Act. 1941 O.W.N. 752 =1941 O. 403. The remedy in respect of a transfer by an insolvent may be asked for in the alternative, either under S. 53 or under S. 4 if the transaction is proved to be fictitious; but the remedy in respect of a second transfer by the transferee can only be obtained from the Insolvency Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under S. 4. 73 C.L.J. 225=1941 C. 298. Where property has been transferred by the transferee of an insolvent to a third party and the O.R. is aware of the transfer, the dispute is really between the O. R. on the one hand and the subsequent transferee on the other and not between the O. R. and the first transferee who has no longer got any interest in the property left. In order to start a proceeding under S. 4, the application should therefore be by the O.R. against the person who is now claiming title to the property and an adjudication by the Court on such dispute would be final and would bar a second suit and would be binding on the parties to the proceeding. But if the O.R. chooses to proceed under S. 4 against the first transferee who has no interest left in the property and obtains an order against him either ex parte or after contest, he cannot use that order as a final adjudication of the matter in dispute as against the real claimant of the title. 1935 A.L.J. 573=1935 A. 671. Ss. 53 and 54 only lay down rules of evidence and are not exhaustive. Even where the transfer by the insolvent is more than two years prior to the date of adjudication, the Ins. Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application by the O. R. to set it aside under S. 4, whether the transfer is void ab initio or only voidable. 146 I.C. 530 (2)=64 M. L.J. 397. See also 163 I.C. 956=1936 L. 593.

SECS. 4 AND 59.—S. 4 gives jurisdiction to the Insolvency Court to deal with matters which were not previously within its jurisdiction, but a creditor who under the old law could not have filed a suit to establish a right could not be given by its terms any right to move the Insolvency Court. The right of suit to establish a claim to property as part of the insolvent's estate lies in the receiver in exercise of his powers under item (d) of S. 59 of the Act and this is true whether the right is exercise in the Insolvency Court itself by virtue of the jurisdiction conferred on it by S. 4, or by way of separate suit in the appropriate Court. Where, therefore, the Court is called upon to exercise jurisdiction under S. 4 for declaring a transaction as fictitious, it should be for the receiver to move the Court in this behalf, and a creditor should not be allowed to do so in his own name even with the permission of the Court. 73 C.L.J. 225=1941 C. 298.

Secs. 4 and 68.—Where the O.R. passes an order on a claim petition which he has no jurisdiction to pass, even though no appeal is filed under S. 68, an application under S. 4 is not barred, because the remedy under S. 4 is much larger than what could be got under S. 68. In fact the correct procedure is under S. 4 and not by appeal under S. 68: 1933 M. 471=38 L.W. 896.

Secs. 4 and 75.—On the adjudication of a Hindu father, the O. R. obtained an ex parte order that his debts were binding on the minor sons. The family property was sold and the purchaser obtained an ex parte order for delivery. Then, the minors applied to set aside that order, but the application was styled as one for review of the previous order. The application was dismissed and an appeal therefrom was also dismissed by the District Judge and that it was not competent under O. 47, R. 1. Held, that the application, though purporting to be under O. 47, R. 1, must be deemed to be under S. 151 of the C. P. Code; that the order for delivery passed without notice to the sons was void; and that the order dismissing the application by the minor sons was the first valid order which was appealable under S. 75 of the Act. 37 L.W. 720 =1933 M. 345. See also 1937 L. 297. Sale of occupancy rights in insolvency—Sale held invalid—Application for refund of purchase money—Dismissal of—Appeal from — Competency of. 34 P.L.R. 183=1933 L. 628.

RIGHT OF APPEAL—ORDER OF DISTRICT JUDGE ON APPEAL—SECOND APPEAL.—The right of appeal under the Act is strictly limited by the provisions of S. 75 and there can be no appeal from a decision of a District Judge passed in an appeal from a decision of a Subordinate Court unless the latter is one under S. 4. 1935 M. 432.

Sec. 5: SCOPE.—Under S. 5 the Ins. Court has the general powers under the C. P. Code, and has power to carry out its own orders. 18 N.L.J. 14. The powers referred to in this rule are to be exercised in proceedings under other provisions of the Act. 46 I.C. 377. By virtue of the provisions of S. 5 (1) an Insolvency Court under the Provincial Insolvency Act may exercise all the powers which are conferred upon it as a Civil Court of original jurisdiction unless such powers are contrary to the provisions of the Provincial Insolvency Act; but S. 151, C. P. Code, does not confer upon a Court authority to do that which is prohibited by law. A Court has no inherent power to alter or vacate its own order and cannot invoke its inherent powers for this purpose. Consequently, a Provincial Insolvency Court has no inherent power to revoke an order of discharge which it has previously passed. 1940 Rang. L.R. 392=1940 R. 156. Where therefore the Act specifically provides for appeals and revisions in particular manner, any action taken in appeal or revision under the C. P. 6. A debtor commits an act of insolvency in each of the following cases, namely:—

(2) Subject as aforesaid, High Courts and District Courts, in regard to proceedings under this Act in Courts subordinate to them, shall have the same powers and shall follow the same procedure as they respectively have and follow in regard to civil suits.

NOTES.

(a) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes a transfer of all or substantially all his property to a third person for the benefit of his creditors generally;

(b) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes a transfer of his property, or of any part thereof with intent to defeat or delay his creditors;

NOTES.

District Court in insolvency matters, that is, in all proceedings in insolvency, the proceedings must commence in the District Courts. The High Court undoubtedly can transfer cases to be disposed of in the High Court under its extra-ordinary civil jurisdiction. 17 Lah. 582=1936 Lah. 608.

Secs. 5 and 69.—The Insolvency Court has jurisdiction to issue such processes as prohibition and injunction to prevent alienation of his property by the debtor. Where however the processes issued are full of defects and do not purport to give notice to the debtor of the admission of any insolvency petition at all, the debtor, on whom they are served, is not legally liable to comply with them and cannot be convicted under S. 69 (a) on his failure to comply with them. The insolvent might have an idea of what the proceedings really are. but that is not sufficient to fix him with liability in a criminal case. 1936 Nag. 237.

Sec. 6.—Mere admission of inability to pay is not one of the many acts of insolvency enumerated in this section. 1928 Mad. 393. A person cannot be adjudicated an insolvent on the mere ground that his assets are less than his liabilities. 1930 Rang. 147 (1). Dismissal of one application by a creditor or debtor does not bar another application by a different creditor, though a party to the prior petition. 107 I.C. 842=1928 Pat. 116. Assets of insolvent—Onus. 1933 Lah. 582.

Cl. (a).—The transfer to some creditor as trustees for the whole body of creditors is transfer to a third person. 34 I.C. 602=30 M.L.J. 415. Where a person who is in debt transfers all his property to his children, a presumption of fraud arises. 1936 Rang. 493. A creditor who is not a party to a trust deed executed by the debtor for the benefit of his creditors and to whom the trust has not been communicated, can avail himself of the act of insolvency committed by the debtor by the execution of the trust deed and get the payment of his debts out of the trust property. 181 I.C. 854=42 C.W.N. 1131=1938 C. 818. Closing business and asking creditors to communicate with pleaders is an act of insolvency. 97 I.C. 446=1926 Sind 18. Banker when trustee, see 32 M. 68.

Cl. (b).—A mere finding that the effect of a transfer would be to defeat one creditor is really quite immaterial. The transfer has got to be made with intent to defeat the creditors as a whole. 1934 R. 242. In an insolvency proceeding started by the creditor, the burden of proving that a mortgage effected by the debtor is fraudulent or without consideration undoubtedly lies upon the creditor. 1934 Rang. 242. Where a transfer of part of the assets to satisfy pre-existing debtors still leaves sufficient assets in the hands of the debtor to enable him to meet his other engagements, such a transfer does not constitute an act of insolvency as it cannot be said of the transfer that it was made with intent to defeat or delay creditors. 162 I.C. 115=1936 R. 129. Release deed prior to incurring of debt is not an act of insolvency. 61 I.C. 756=13 L. W. 141. A collusive suit and subsequent withdrawal or compromise putting another in possession of property comes under this clause. 29 I.C. 217=13 A.L.J. 434. For benami transfer, see 50 I. Alienation of property how far an act of insolvency. 1933 L. 582. S. 6 applies only when a debtor transfers his property with a view to defeat or delay all the creditors. Where therefore a debtor transfers his property not to a creditor of his and pays out of the sale proceeds some of his creditors, the transfer not being one with intent to defeat or delay all the creditors, the transfer does not amount to an act of insolvency on the part of the debtor within the meaning of S. 6 (b) of the Act. 173 I.C. 733=1937 L. 495. See also 1940 L. 496. Intent to defeat and delay creditors is to be gathered from the consequences of the debtor's act. If a transfer by the debtor has the effect of substantially reducing the area, which was available to the creditors for realizing their debts, by temporary alienation, and if that transfer by itself is not enough to bring in sufficient money to discharge his existing liabilities the transfer must be deemed to have been made with intent to defeat and delay creditors although the primary motive of the debtor in effecting the transfer might be different. I.L.R. (1939) L. 498=41 P.L.R. 785=1939 L. 349. See also 1940 L. 496. The words "with intent to defeat or delay the creditors" or having a "view to give preference to a creditor" are mental acts and can only be determined if one looks into the surrounding circumstances. The true test to apply in such cases is whether the alleged insolvent is in a position to pay his debt, and whether the property which has been transferred bears such a proportion to the whole property that the remaining or the residue of the property is still sufficient, from the point of view of an ordinary businessman to

(c) if, in British India or elsewhere, he makes any transfer of his property, or of any part thereof, which would, under this or any other enactment for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged an insolvent;

(d) if, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors,—

(i) he departs or remains out of British India,

(ii) he departs from his dwelling-house or usual place of business or otherwise absents himself,

(iii) he secludes himself so as to deprive his creditors of the means of communicating with him;

meet the debts of the creditors who remain unsatisfied. 190 I.C. 665=1940 P. 187. If an alienation by a debtor is ineffective by reason of his incompetency to validly deal with the property, it is not a sufficient ground for adjudicating him an insolvent. 35 P.L.R. 522=1934 L. 394. So also in case of alienation of property which is exempt from attachment and sale by a Civil Court or in insolvency proceedings. 148 I.C. 832=1934 L. 507. A partition by a father of the joint family property without making adequate provision for the settlement of his debts may amount to a transfer of property with intent to delay and defeat creditors and so constitute an act of insolvency. The fact that the partition is effected by an arbitrator does not justify any conclusion on the point one way or another. 37 P.L.R. 297. A partition between the members of a joint Hindu family with reference to the joint family property cannot be considered to be a transfer with intent to defeat or delay the creditors, where the debt in question is binding only on some of the members and the others are not liable. Cl. (b) of S. 6 would apply only to those cases where the transfer is intended to defeat all the creditors as a whole and has no application to a case where it only has the effect of preferring some creditors to others. 1940 O.W.N. 146=1940 O. 205. Concealing property to defeat creditors is not an act of insolvency. 1933 L. 725=34 P.L.R. 987; 15 P.L.T. 461=1934 P. 526.

Sec. 6 (b) and (c).—To make S. 6 (b) applicable it has only to be shown that the debtor transferred his properties with intent to defeat or delay his creditor; and to make S. 6 (c) applicable, it must be shown that (1) there was a transfer by the debtor to a creditor or creditors; (2) the debtor was unable to pay his debts at the time of the transfer; (3) the transfer was with a view to give the creditor or creditors preference; and (4) the transfer was within three months of the date of presentation of the petition. What has to be considered by the Court is whether, at the time of the transfers complained of, the debtor was or was not in a position to pay his debts and whether the transfers were with a view to give preference to the creditors concerned. Intent to defeat or delay the creditors or to give a preference to a creditor is a mental act and can only be determined if one looks to the surrounding circumstances. A transfer of a considerable portion of his properties by a person in serious pecuniary difficulties, his debts surpassing his assets, in favour of one or some of his creditors, without making any provision for the payment of debts due to others, may be presumed to have been made with intent to defeat or delay creditors or with a view to give preference to a particular creditor. 17 Pat.L.T.. 857=1937 P. 134. In order to establish an act of insolvency under S. 6 (b), it is necessary for the petitioning creditor to prove that the transfer or transfers relied on by him were made to defeat or delay the creditors. In order to prove an act of insolvency under S. 6 (c) he must establish that the debtor had made transfers with a view to give some of creditors preference over others (such being the dominant motive), and secondly, that when he made the transfers in question he was unable to pay his debts. The mere fact of a transfer or transfers is insufficient for the purpose. 21 P.L.T. 150=1940 P. 411.

Where all the alienations are the result of pressure on the part of the creditors, they cannot be said to be voluntary and the fact that some of these creditors are relatives does not affect the question. 1935 L. 278. See also 1937 N. 226. Evidence of other acts of preference committed by the debtor shortly before and shortly after the particular act of preference alleged as an act of insolvency, is admissible. 161 I.C. 348=1935 M.W.N. 1159=43 L.W. 516=1936 M. 275. See also 44 P.L.R. 96. Where a debtor effects a transfer in favour of his creditor, and another creditor of his applies to adjudicate him insolvent, the petitioning creditor must show that the transfer so made by the debtor has the effect of giving such transferee creditor fraudulent preference over himself and that in effecting the transfer the debtor had that intention. The burden of proving this lies on the petitioning creditor. I.L.R. (1937) N. 403=1937 N. 197.

NOTES.

ATTEMPT TO DEPRIVE SINGLE CREDITOR OF FRUITS OF HIS DECREE.—Under S. 6 (d) it is an essential feature of an act of insolvency that the act should be done with intent to defeat or delay the creditors generally of the debtor. It is insufficient to allege or to prove that the act was done with intent to defeat or delay any particular creditor. 1935 R. 281. Avoidence of service in connexion with one particular execution proceeding is not an act of Insolvency. 1935 R. 281.

Sec. 6 (e).—See 24 L.W. 390=1926 M. 976 =51 M.L.J. 326. The expression "decree of any Court for the payment of money' in Cl. (e) of S. 6 must be construed to have the same meaning as in Cl. (h). It means a decree personally against the person concerned. It does not include a decree for sale on a mortgage. 154 I.C. 908=1935 O.W.N. 374. The decree passed against a person in his capacity as the legal representative of another, is not a decree of the nature contemplated by S. 6 (e) and so a sale of the property in execution of such a decree is not an act of insolvency under the Act. I.L.R. (1938) A. 84=1937 A.L.J. 1221 =1938 A. 59. The word 'decree' in S. 6 must be taken in the same sense in which it has been used in C. P. Code, by virtue of S. 2 (2) of the Act. A certificate filed under the provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act cannot be said to be the formal expression of an adjudication in a suit and is, therefore, not a decree. Accordingly a person commits no act of insolvency when his property is sold in execution of the certificate. 41 C.W.N. 800. See also 1941 M. 99. An act of insolvency in S. 6 (e) occurs when the property of the insolvent is sold in execution of a decree, and not when the sale is confirmed. 179 I.C. 367= 1938 L. 819. It means a decree capable of execution by the arrest of the person or against the general estate of the person against whom the decree is passed. 1937 M.W.N. 406=45 L.W. 260=1937 M. 433. A sale of a person's property for arrears of rent under the Madras Estates Land Act operates as an act of insolvency under S. 6 (e). A decree of rent is a decree for the payment of money notwithstanding that the rent is charged on the holding of the ryot. 52 L.W. 479 (2)=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 555=1941 M. 99. See also 41 C.W.N. 860. The words " property has been sold in execution of a decree " in S. 6 (e) seem to refer not to an indefeasible sale, but to a sale which has been actually held but which may be set aside as a result of subsequent proceedings. Where there has in fact been a sale in execution, a subsequent deposit whereby the sale is set aside, or a subsequent objection founded on some material irregularity resulting in the setting aside of the sale, will not alter the fact that the property was sold in execution of a decree. The setting aside of the sale in the circumstances cannot, therefore, be a sufficient reason for cancelling in revision an order of adjudication based on such a sale in execution, whether it might or might not be a sufficient reason for an application for the annulment of the insolvency. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 38. Quaere: whether an insolvency petition can be maintained on the strength of a sale which is set aside before the insolvency petition is presented. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 38.

Cl. (f).—Full particulars must be stated in the insolvency petition. 33 P.L.R. 992=1932 L. 643 (2). Where the original order of adjudication was annulled but the insolvent again applied for an adjudication, he must have taken to have committed a fresh act of insolvency within the meaning of S. 6 (f). 109 I.C. 578. The presentation of the petition of insolvency by debtor is in itself an act of insolvency. He does not cease to be so even if the petition is dismissed and any creditor may present an insolvency petition against a debtor founded on this act of insolvency. But it must be done within three months of the date on which the debtor presented his petition. 37 C.W.N. 535=1933 C. 564. A Judge cannot dismiss a petition because he is not satisfied that the debtor is unable to pay his debts. 12 I.C. 48=15 C.W. N. 990. But a petition should not be the means to collect debts from persons refusing to pay. An abuse of the process of Court cannot be permitted. 21 I.C. 293= 5 M.L.J. 545.

Cl. (g):—NOTICE.—This Act is nothing more than a copy of the Bankruptcy Act of England regarding notice of suspension of payment and that being so, the authorities which have been decided from time to time on this provision in the English Act are necessarily authorities for the Court. 14 P.L.T. 691=1933 P. 461. Notice may be oral but must be unambiguous. 49 A. 321=1927 A. 266; 34 P.L.R. 43=1933 L. 113. When a debtor tells his creditor: "I cannot pay your debts; you can do what you like," that is as emphatic a notice as he could give that he is not going to pay his debts, and constitutes an act of insolvency within the meaning of S. 6 (g). 44 L.W. 651=71 M.L.J. 730=1937 M. 13; 1937 A.L.J. 491=I.L.R. (1937) A. 616= 1937 A. 435. Where in response to a letter by one of the creditors, the debtor mentioned his inability to pay and suggested that money might be raised on some shares pledged with the creditor in order to meet the claims of the pressing creditors only and the debtor further expressed his willingness to a scheme of creating a trust for the liquidation of his debts, held, that there was no act of insolvency so as to support an insolvency petition. 33 P.L.R. 992. See also 34 P.L.R. 43=1933 L. 113. The debtors who had become involved in debts sold their property in order to meet their creditors and offered to make a rateable distribution among their unsecured creditors of the balance of the sale proceeds after satisfying a mortgage debt charged on the property. given to one creditor was to the effect that they would not pay anything to him unless he agreed to accept in full settlement the small amount which they offered. Held, that the intimation in question amounted to a notice that the debtors had suspended or were about to suspend payment of their debts and that it amounted to an act of insolvency within the meaning of S. 6 (g). 1935 M. 589 (2)=69 M. L.J. 184. A debtor does not commit an act of insolvency merely by suspending payment of his debts; under S. 6 (g) he commits such act only "if he gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended payment or that he is about to suspend payment of his debts" due to his creditors generally and the time, place and particulars of the notice should be accurately described. 12 R. 150=151 I.C. 190=1934 R. 87. Notice need not be express. 9 I.C. 453; 1926 S. 246. Notice need not be in writing or expressed in any particular form. The Act does not prescribe any form of words. 1929 L. 136=112 I.C. 132. The mere service of notice by the Insolvency Court informing the creditors of the date on which the insolvency petition filed by the debtor is to be heard cannot amount to giving notice by the debtor to his creditors that he has suspended payment. I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 425=69 C.L.J. 84=1939 C. 313 "Suspended payments of his debts"—Meaning of. 49 A. 321=1927 A. 266. See also 34 P.L.R. 43=1933 L. 113. S. 6 (g) contemplates suspension of the payment of the entire debt of the debtor and not simply the debt due to a particular creditor. 41 C.W.N. 349. Principles to be applied in determining whether debtor's statement amounts to suspension of payment are as follows: (1) A mere statement by a debtor that he is unable to pay his debts, however insolvent he may be, is not necessarily a notice that he is suspending or about to suspend payment. (2) One has to ascertain what the words used by the debtor would reasonably and ordinarily mean to the mind of a creditor. (3) In construing the statement of the debtor, it has to be seen whether he has clearly indicated that not only is he not going to pay a particular creditor but that he intends to deal with his creditors collectively. 14 Pat.L.T. 691 =1933 P. 461. See also 152 I.C. 655=15 P.L. T. 461=1934 P. 526; 112 I.C. 132=1929 L. 136. Closing business and asking creditors to communicate with pleaders of the firm is an act of insolvency. 1927 S. 18. Merely delaying or suspending payment is not such an act, 1931 R. 317. Where a bare declaration of inability to pay debts does not amount to an act of insolvency, it may well be accompanied by such circumstances and might have been in such a context that if the impression produced upon the minds of the creditors receiving it is such as to amount to a statement that the debtor is going to suspend the payment of his debts, it might amount to an act of insolvency. Consequently, a statement by a debtor in reply to demands by creditors that he has placed all his title-deeds in the hands of a third person for the sale of his properties and the discharge of the debts amounts to an act of insolvency. 109 I.C. 83=1928 M. 903. See also 1929 L. 136; 34 P. L.R. 43=1933 L. 113. The words to the effect that "If you do not accept my offer I shall have to close my business" proved to have been used by a merchant, mean that he intends to suspend payments unless his request is granted, and in consequence that he commits an act of insolvency. 121 I.C. 865=1930 S. 83. A mere statement by a debtor that he has suspended or that he intends to suspend payment of his debts temporarily amounts to a notice of suspension under S. 6. A mere admission of insolvency is not enough. 1930 Sind 83. A debtor had collected his creditors and had there told them that if they did not want him to sell the "property and pay them individually they could take over" the property and realize their debts by selling it "themselves." Held, that this did not amount to a notice to suspend payment within the meaning of Cl. (g), S. 6. 144 I.C. 276=34 P.L.R. 682=1933 L. 319. On this clause, see also 1933 L. 725 (1)=146 I.C. 628.

EXPLANATION.—Difference between English and Indian Law, see 39 M. 693=29 M.L.J. 788. Partners—Joint adjudication of. See 22 S.L.R. 32; Ibid., 273. Where a partnership consisting of three brothers who are members of a joint family is in the sole charge and exclusive control of the eldest brother, the acts of insolvency committed by him must be deemed to be the acts of the other brothers also, and they too can be adjudicated insolvents on such acts. If the eldest brother gives notice of suspension of payment of debts, all the partners are liable to be adjudicated on the basis of that notice. 44 L. W. 651=71 M.L.J. 730. See also 1940 S. 141; 41 C.W.N. 1288; 1940 M. 241. Acts of insolvency as defined in S. 6 of the Provincial Insolvency Act are acts or things done or suffered to be done creating personal liability. Although the father or manager in a joint Hindu family can act on behalf of the family, the recognised restrictions on his power so to act in his representative capacity as to impose any personal liability on other members of the family render it impossible to treat any act of insolvency committed by him in relation to the affairs of the family generally as an act of insolvency committed by the other members of the family also. Consequently the joint Hindu family cannot as such be adjudicated insolvent; but two or more members of the family who have incurred a joint personal liability may present a joint petition in insolvency or may be proceeded against on one creditor's petition in case the joint act of insolvency can be brought home to them. Minor members must, however, be excluded in any case from insolvency proceedings started at the instance whether of debtors or creditors. 16 P. 724=18 P.L.T. 839=1937 P. 665. Plea of want authority cannot be raised to the prejudice of creditor. 1930 S. 83.

Petition.

7. Subject to the conditions specified in this Act, if a debtor commits an act of insolvency, an insolvency petition may be presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, and the Court may on such petition make an order (hereinafter called an order of adjudication) adjudging him an insolvent.

Petition and adjudication.

Explanation.—The presentation of a petition by the debtor shall be deemed an act of insolvency within the meaning of this section, and on such petition the Court may make an order of adjudication.

NOTES.

AMENDMENT.—The Court can allow an amendment of an insolvency petition presented by a creditor, if it does not introduce a new cause of action or alter the character of the claim but merely corrects a misdescription of the property which had been sold in execution of a money decree against the insolvent. The amendment takes effect nunc pro tunc. If the insolvent had accepted the costs of adjournment necessitated by the amendment, he cannot be allowed to challenge the order allowing the amendment by way of appeal. 1937 L. 895. See also 43 P.L.R. 363; (1937) 2 M.L.J. 737; 1940 L. 462.

Sec. 7: SCOPE.—Adjudication must necessarily follow on the essential conditions being satisfied. Acts of bad faith are relevant only at the time of discharge. 57 I.C. 977. The act of insolvency of a person commencing in his being arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree continues throughout the period during which he remains in prison. 1931 L. 112. Under S. 7 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, a debtor who commits an act of insolvency may be adjudged insolvent. The Court has no jurisdiction to decide whether the debtor owned sufficient property to pay his creditors. It is entirely beside the mark in determining whether he ought to be adjudged or not. 173 I.C. 918=39 P.L.R. 292=1937 L. 618. A mortgagee who has obtained a decree on the basis of his mortgage on the property of the judgment-debtor does not cease to be secured creditor and is not thereby precluded from making an application under Ss. 7 and 9. 129 I.C. 557=1931 A. 224. A minor cannot be declared an insolvent. 19 I.C. 704; nor heir of a deceased debtor. 22 I.C. 930. See 50 M. 981 =1927 M. 922=53 M.L.J. 403. On this point, see also 41 M. 824=37 M.L.J. 473; 49 M. 217 =49 M.L.J. 697. The son of a Hindu father who died after incurring debts upon promissory notes, apart from some special ciecumstances which would make him personally liable for the amily debt cannot be adjudged insolvent on account of his liability as a member of the family to pay these debts out of the family properties. (50 M. 981=53 M.L.J. 403, Foll.) 61 M.L.J. 518. See also 12 R. 602=1934 R. 162. A Hindu joint family firm can be adjudicated insolvent under the Provincial Insolvency Act. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 375=1940 S. 141. A Hindu son who has not incurred any debt himself but is only liable for the debts of the deceased father to the extent of the assets inherited by him, is not in respect of such liability a "debtor" entitled to present a petition in insolvency under the provisions of Ss. 7 and 10 of the Provincial Insolvency Act. I.L.R. (1938) 1 C. 132=66 C.L.J. 346=41 C.W.N. 1288. The mere fact that certain persons are members of a Hindu joint family to which a business belongs cannot make them parties to the contracts entered into by those who conduct the business. In the case of a family business those members only are personally liable for the debts of the business who are in control or management of it, or who have acquiesced in the course of the business in which the particular contract was entered into so as to warrant their being treated as parties to the contract. Unless there is a personal liability in respect of a debt, there is no such relation of debtor and creditor as will serve to support an order of adjudication in insolvency. The other members of the joint family who have not taken part and who have not been proved to have taken part in the conduct of a family business carried on by the manager of the family, cannot therefore be adjudicated insolvent, in respect of a debt incurred by the manager in the conduct of the business. An act of insolvency committed by the manager cannot be treated as one committed by the other members of the family also. It would be pushing the theory of joint family responsibility to extremes to hold that a man can be adjudicated insolvent at the instance of a creditor with whom he has never had any dealings express or implied and for an act which he had never committed or acquiesced in. 50 L.W. 857=1940 M. 241. Joint family members must apply separately to be declared insolvents. 31 C.L.J. 206=58 I.C. 531. An application for insolvency by some of the members of a joint Hindu family does not ipso facto result in the insolvency of all the members of the family. 1931 L. 125=131 I.C. 345. A petition was presented for the adjudication of two majors, four minors and two widows as insolvents. The same having been dismissed on the ground that it was wrongly framed, the petitioner appealed and impleaded the two majors and one widow only. The petitioner alleged that those three persons incurred a joint liability and alleged certain acts of insolvency on their part. Held, that the proper procedure for the lower Court was to allow the petitioner to amend his petition by striking out the names of unnecessary persons. A single petition for the adjudication of the joint-debtors was sustainable. 130 I.C. 783 (1)=1931 L. 384. A dismissal of one petition for default is not a bar to another. 61 I.C. 870=2 Pat.L.T. 335. On adjudication, petition based on ground of fraudulent alienation may be allowed to be amended by adding ground of fraudulent preference, after period of limita-

Exemption of corporation, etc., from insolvency proceedings.

8. No insolvency petition shall be presented against any corporation or against any association or company registered under any enactment for the time being in force.

Conditions on which creditor may petition.

9. (1) A creditor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition against a debtor unless,—

(a) the debt owing by the debtor to the creditor, or, if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of debts owing to such creditors, amounts to five hundred rupees, and

Sec. 8 : SCOPE.—See 24 C.W.N. 461.

Sec. 9.—A man can only be declared an insolvent if he is not in a position to pay his debts and if a debtor owed Rs. 50,000 and his property were valued at Rs. 51,000, it cannot be held that he was insolvent. 1933 L. 582. On a debtor's application to be adjudicated insolvent only two points arise, namely, whether his debts amount to Rs. 500 or over and whether he is unable to pay his debts. The fact that the debtor has concealed his account books is no ground for dismissing the application. 34 P.L. R. 69=1933 L. 330. There is no legal bar to a single application being made by a creditor for adjudicating two or more persons as insolvent., if they are jointly liable on a debt or have committed a joint act of insolvency. The question however whether such an application should be jointly tried and decided will have to be decided on the facts of each case. 1930 L. 192 (2). An insolvency petition filed by one of several creditor-partners of a firm, notwithstanding that he is described in the body of the petition as the managing partner of the firm, is not legally sustainable when it is not in the firm name or in the names of all its members, nor signed by the petitioning partner on behalf of the firm or its members. Such a petition cannot be permitted to be amended by the addition as party of another creditor-partner when the application for that purpose is made after the expiry of three months since the date of insolvency. And the power of the Court to add parties under the incorporated provisions of the C. P. Code cannot be invoked as it is subject to the time-limit prescribed by S. 9 of this Act. Nor can the provisions of S. 5 of the Limitation Act be applied to such a case because an insolvency peititon is not an "application" within the meaning of S. 78 of this Act. 34 L.W. 799=61 M.L.J. 544. See also 55 M. 766=60 M.L.J. 152; I.L.R. But see 59 B. 161=36 Bom.L.R. 1236=1935 B. 80, where it was held that it has a discretion either to decide it itself or to refer the parties to a regular suit.

Sec. 9 (1) (b).—Meaning of 'debt due'. See 68 I.C. 885. For the purpose of S. 9 the 'debt' must be a liquidated sum. Where an employee in a post office is alleged to have embezzled certain amount, the claim by the Government in respect of this amount is in the nature of unliquidated damages. The amount claimed therefore cannot be described to be a debt. 190 I.C. 633=1940 L. 273. Petitioning creditor need not be creditor on the date of adjudication. It is sufficient if he is so on the date of the petition. 50 M. 396=1927 M. 153=51 M.L.J. 680. A creditor is not entitled to maintain a petition under S. 9 if his debt was not in existence on the date of the alleged act of insolvency but was incurred later. 17 L. 580=1936 L. 800. A Muhammadan husband's liability to pay his wife's deferred dower is a 'debt' within the meaning of S. 9 (1) (b) in respect of which a petition for adjudication as insolvent could be filed. The interest of the wife is a vested and not a contingent one. It is not liable to be displaced by the happening of any event, not even her own death, because her heirs can claim the money, if she dies. 1941 N.L.J. 181=1941 N. 167. Where a judgment-debtor in a mortgage suit, in which a preliminary decree for foreclosure is passed, obtains a stay of the proceedings by giving security for the standing crops up to the extent of the particular amount, such amount is not a debt which would entitle the decree-holder to present a petition of insolvency against the judgment-debtor when the exact value of the crops is not ascertained at the time the petition is presented and the debt is not consequently a liquidated sum. 168 I.C. 212=1937 N. 60. A sum of money due on a decree obtained by the petitioning creditor against the father of the insolvent, in which the insolvent is substituted as judgment-debtor after the death of his father is not a debt which entitles the petitioning creditor to present an insolvency petition. 168 I.C. 212=1937 N. 60. Effect of postponement of payment of decree debt does not affect capacity of petitioning creditor. 50 M. 396=1927 M. 153=51 M.L.J. 680. A mortgagee who has obtained a decree on the basis of his mortgage does not cease to be a secured creditor and is not thereby precluded from making an application under Ss. 7 and 9. 129 I.C. 557=1931 A. 224. See also 1937 R. 189; 1937 N. 60. Where there are contracts of sale and purchase, the difference between contract rates is a 'liquidated sum.' 56 I.C. 158. Cls. (a). (b) and (c) of S. 9 (1) of the Act lay down the three conditions on which a petitioning creditor is entitled to found his petition. The period of three months mentioned in Cl. (c) does not refer to the presentation of the petition, but it refers to the act of insolvency on which the petition is to be grounded. The ordinary construction of that clause would be that a person is not entitled to institute a petition for adjudicating a debtor insolvent unless he establishes inter alia, that the act of insolvency took place within three months before the presentation of his petition. That clause does not prescribe any period of limitation within which the petitioning creditor is to present his application, and therefore S. 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a petition by virtue of S. 78 of the Act. I.L.R. (1939) 1 C. 425=69 C.L.J. 84=1939 C. 313. See also 1936 L. 923; 1933 C. 564. Where in a petition by the creditors under S. 9 (1) to adjudicate certain debtors insolvents, allegations made against the debtors consist of an incomprehensible mixture of Cls. (b) and (c) of S. 6 and the petition is so framed that it cannot be ascertained whether it alleges that the debtors had made a transfer of part of their property with intent to defeat or delay their creditors jointly or whether they had made a transfer of property which would be void as a fraudulent preference, if they were adjudicated insolvents, the petition ought to be dismissed on this ground alone. 170 I.C. 942 =1937 R. 189.

PROCEDURE.—See 96 I.C. 424=1926 L. 638.

SEC. 9 (1) (c).—The starting point of limitation or the purpose of calculating the three months prescribed by S. 9 (1) (c) is the date of the registration of the deed and not its execution. 150 I.C. 834=1934 N. 171; 1935 L. 55; 1935 L. 565. But see contra 1933 L. 821. The period of three months under S. 9 (1) (c) must be calculated from the date of commission of the act of insolvency and it is an absolute rule. Under S. 16, the Court may substitute another petitioning creditor for the original one even though the creditor who wishes to be substituted had not presented an application within three months of the act of insolvency. 54 A. 72=1932 A. 147. Whether a creditor who was a party to a deed of arrangement can present a petition, construing the deed as an act of insolvency, see 48 M. 294=1924 M. 839. Act of insolvency is committed as soon as the property is sold and the period of three months should be calculated from the date of the sale and not from its confirmation. 37 C. W.N. 535=1933 C. 564. A gift is not valid and complete unless it is accompanied by delivery of possession of the subject of gift from the donor to the donee. Hence where a debtor, in order to defeat or delay his creditors, gifts all his property by an oral gift, the act of insolvency occurs on the date when possession of property is handed over to the donee and not when the debtor makes a report of the gift for mutation to the patwari. 41 P.L.R. 355=1939 L. 35. A debtor transferred some of his agricultural property to another on a certain date and applied for mutation. The mutation took place on a different date. Within three months of the date of mutation, a creditor of the transferor applied to Court for getting the transferor declared an insolvent alleging the transfer as an act of insolvency. Held, that the date of mutation was not the date of act of insolvency but the date of transfer and as such the application of the creditor was incompetent. 1936 L. 923. Where a mortgage transaction is effected between the debtor and his own son-in-law at a time when the debtor is involved heavily in debt and within 3 months of the application for his being declared an insolvent, the presumption that the mortgage was to defraud his creditors is very naturally raised against him. 32 P.L.R. 637 (2)=1931 L. 667.

AMENDMENT.—The provisions relating to the amendment of pleadings contained in the Code of Civil Procedure would be applicable to petitions in insolvency under the Provincial Insolvency Act. A petitioning creditor ought to be allowed to amend his petition so as to enable him to substitute new grounds or acts of insolvency in the place of those which he had originally set up and which are of no avail to him, if that would cause serious injury and grave injustice to the other party, which cannot be compensated by costs. The Courts, it is true, have wide powers of amendment, but they have to be exercised with care, and judicially. If the effect of an amendment would be to clothe the petitioning creditor with rights which he would not have had if a new petition for insolvency were presented by him on that date on which he applies for amendment, the Court ought not to grant leave to amend. An amendment which enables the creditor to allege new acts of insolvency which have become unimpeachable and have ceased to be acts of insolvency under S. 9 and which he neither relied nor intended to rely when presenting his petition cannot therefore be allowed. 46 L.W. 815=1938 M. 53=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 737. A petition was filed under S. 9 for adjudication as insolvent a joint Hindu family firm. In the heading and the body of the petition, however, the names of the proprietors constituting the firm were given. Held, that the petition should not be dismissed for this defect but should be allowed to be amended by correcting the heading and the prayer. It was merely a case of correcting the misdescription of the persons sought to be adjudicated insolvents, by transposing the name of the firm, of which they were alleged to be proprietors, from the beginning of the heading to the end and, similarly altering the prayer so as to ask for their adjudication individually, and not of the firm through them. 1940 L. 462= I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 55=43 P.L.R. 363.

(2) If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he shall in his petition either state that he is willing to relinquish his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged insolvent, or give an estimate of the value of the security. In the latter case, he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him after deducting the value so estimated in the same way as if he were an unsecured creditor.

LIMITATION.—See 1935 L. 565. The period of three months prescribed by S. 9 (1) (c) is a condition precedent and not a period of limitation for the filing of the insolvency petition. Where, therefore. the period of three months expires during the vacation of the Court, a petition presented on the reopening day is not a valid petition which can be sustained. S. 10 of the General Clauses Act cannot be relied on so as to extend the time until the reopening day. 69 M.L.J. 283=58 M. 794 (F.B.) [Overruling 1933 M.W.N. 1049]. Petition by creditor filed within three months—Petition returned to be re-filed with necessary documents—Petition re-filed after three months but within time fixed by Court is good. 1936 L. 591.

RULES.—R. 3 merely prescribes the procedure which is to be followed in proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act. It does not lay down any rule of substantive law. The question whether a joint Hindu family, or the business carried on by it, can or cannot be adjudicated insolvent is not a question of mere procedure but is one of substantive law. It is therefore not covered by R. 3 and that rule cannot have the effect of impliedly providing for the adjudication of a joint Hindu family, as such or of its trading business as insolvent. The law in the Punjab on this matter is not different from that in other provinces and a joint Hindu family trading firm, as such, cannot be adjudicated insolvent. In such case, therefore, the petition should be made individually against the persons who are alleged to be proprietors of the firm. 1940 L. 462.

Secs. 9 and 13: Quaere.—Whether there is no obligation on a petitioning creditor to implead other creditors and whether he only has to comply with the requirements of Ss. 9 and 13 (2), neither of which demands the impleading of other creditors. 1933 L. 642 (2)=34 P.L.R. 827.

Sec. 10: SCOPE.—The word "debtor" in S. 10 may be interpreted in the plural (see S. 12 of the General Clauses Act). Therefore a joint petition by three brothers for adjudicating them as insolvents is maintainable, if the other conditions mentioned in S. 10 are satisfied and if it would not be bad for multifariousness. 60 C.L.J. 248=39 C.W.N. 104. When the petition alleges facts entitling applicant to present the petition, petition should, after enquiry, either be dismissed or the debtor adjudicated. 40 A. 665=46 I.C. 733. See also 1926 C. 955. A debtor has a statutory right to get himself adjudicated an insolvent if he complies with the provisions of S. 10, and the Court cannot refuse to adjudicate him merely because the petition does not disclose possession of assets by him. [44 C. 535 (P.C.), Rel. on.] 1932 M. 237 =62 M.L.J. 234. In an application for adjudication all that a debtor has to do is to afford prima facie proof of his inability to pay his debts and it is not for the Court to hold on a nice calculation of the assets that these will satisfy the debts and therefore adjudication should be withheld. When dealing with an application by the debtor the Court is not required to determine whether or not the debts are fictitious. 31 P.L.R. 1016.

Sec. 10 (1).—Burden of proof is on the debtor. 1924 P. 166. (b) he is under arrest or imprisonment in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money; or

(c) an order of attachment in execution of such a decree has been made, and is subsisting, against his property.

(2) A debtor in respect of whom an order of adjudication [1][whether made under the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or under this Act] has been annulled, owing to his failure to apply, or to prosecute an application for his discharge, shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition without the leave of the Court by which the order of adjudication was annulled. Such Court shall not grant leave unless it is satisfied either that the debtor was prevented by any reasonable cause from presenting or prosecuting his application, as the case may be, or that the petition is founded on facts substantially different from those contained in the petition on which the order of adjudication was made.

Courts to which petition shall be presented.

11. Every insolvency petition shall be presented to a Court having jurisdiction under this Act in any local area in which the debtor ordinarily resides or carries on business, or personally works for gain, or if he has been arrested or imprisoned, where he is in custody:

Provided that no objection as to the place of presentment shall be allowed by any Court in the exercise of appellate or revisional jurisdiction unless such objection was taken in the Court by which the petition was heard at the earliest possible opportunity, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice.

NOTES.

Even where his land consists of occupancy rights which cannot be sold without the consent in writing of the landlords as provided for in S. 56 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, it is a realizable asset of the insolvent, unless he shows that he had applied to the landlord and the landlord had refused to consent to the transfer of these rights. 37 P.L.R. 82=153 I.C. 460=1935 L. 183.

Debt involving personal liability is sufficient for declaring a person insolvent though the decrees got by creditors do not make him so liable. 1929 M. 573=118 I.C. 494. The fact that the insolvent when he filed his previous application was not able to prove that he was unable to pay his debts cannot estop him from proving in the subsequent application that he is unable to pay his debts and so is entitled to be adjudicated as an insolvent. 11 O.W.N. 71=1934 O. 94 (1).

Sec. 10 (1) (b).—See 9 I. C. 632. Arrest after presentation of petition cannot form basis of adjudication. 98 I.C. 885=1927 L. 38. Where, in case of an application by a debtor for being adjudicated insolvent, the creditors contend that although the debtor has been re-arrested once in execution, yet there is no reason to believe that he is unable to pay his debts or anything more than unwilling to pay his debts, the Court is entitled and is in fact bound to take evidence tendered to it and then to pass an order refusing to adjudicate the debtor if necessary. (44 I.A. 11, Dist.) 161 I.C. 588=1936 R. 108.

Sec. 10 (2).—This clause implies that apart from annulment a second petition lies. 101 I.C. 349 (1)=1927 M. 579. Under S. 10, it is incumbent upon the Insolvency Judge before granting permission to bring a second application to come to a finding that the conditions of the last part of the section have been fulfilled. Where there has been no application for permission to bring a second application and there has been no such finding by the Insolvency Judge, it cannot be presumed that the Court permitted the second application merely because it referred to the annulment of the previous adjudication in the subsequent order of adjudication. 173 I.C. 650=1937 Pesh. 85 (1). Dismissal of an application for failure to produce evidence does not bar a second one. 109 I.C. 86=1928 L. 374. Reasonable cause. See 1928 L. 452; 1929 P. 184. Appeal against order under cl. Verification of petition.

Contents of petition.

13. (1) Every insolvency petition presented by a debtor shall contain the following particulars, namely:—

(a) a statement that the debtor is unable to pay his debts;

(b) the place where he ordinarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gain, or, if he has been arrested or imprisoned, the place where he is in custody;

(c) the Court (if any) by whose order he has been arrested or imprisoned, or by which an order has been made for the attachment of his property, together with particulars of the decree in respect of which any such order has been made;

(d) the amount and particulars of all pecuniary claims against him, together with the names and residences of his creditors so far as they are known to, or can by the exercise of reasonable care and diligence be ascertained by, him;

(e) the amount and particulars of all his property, together with—

(i) a specification of the value of all such property not consisting of money;

(ii) the place or places at which any such property is to be found; and

(iii) a declaration of his willingness to place at the disposal of the Court all such property save in so far as it includes such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or by any other enactment for the time being in force from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree;

(f) a statement whether the debtor has on any previous occasion filed a petition to be adjudged an insolvent, and (where such a petition has been filed)—

(i) if such petition has been dismissed, the reasons for such dismissal, or

(ii) if the debtor has been adjudged an insolvent, concise particulars of the insolvency, including a statement whether any previous adjudication has been annulled and, if so, the grounds therefor.

(2) Every insolvency petition presented by a creditor or creditors shall set forth the particulars regarding the debtor specified in clause (b) of sub-section (1), and shall also specify—

(a) the act of insolvency committed by such debtor, together with the date of its commission; and of the Court. Leave will not be granted without notice to all the parties concerned. Where the Court passes under a misapprehension, an ex parte order granting the application for the withdrawal of the petition, it has got inherent power to set it aside. 39 P.L.R. 182=1937 L. 631. Leave granted to petitioning creditors to withdraw petition—Non-petitioning creditors not given notice of the withdrawal—The non-petitioning creditors had locus standi to appeal and the setting aside of the order of withdrawal is proper. 1930 L. 749. Sec. 15.—Prima facie the section refers to consolidation of insolvency petition after they are admitted and presupposes that such petitions are otherwise competent. Where the competency of the petitions is being challenged, it must be inquired into before an order of consolidation can be passed. 130 I.C. 559=1931 S. 65.

Sec. 16.—Object and scope of. See 1928 M.W.N. 391=1928 M. 608; 1929 R. 291. The object of S. 16 is to prevent other creditors from being injured by the action of one creditor who by reason of collusion or otherwise may not diligently prosecute his petition; a second creditor who is substituted under S. 16 on the ground that the original petitioning creditor was not prosecuting with due diligence, gets the benefit of the date of the original petition, no matter how much later my be the date of his own introduction into the case. The mere accident of the fact that the creditor who originally filed the petition should turn out not to have been qualified to do so will not prevent the subsequent creditor, who but for that petition might well have filed one himself, from taking advantage of its date. The creditor substituted under S. 16 cannot be compelled to prove the qualification of the original creditor to file the petition. 54 L.W. 548=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 778. See also 1938 O.W.N. 871=1938 O. 206. S. 16 imposes only one condition for the substitution of a creditor, namely, that his debt shall be not less than "the amount required by the Act." The Court cannot superimpose an additional condition to the effect that the creditor who wishes to be substituted should have presented an application within three months of the acts of insolvency. 1931 A.L.J. 1089=1932 A. 147. Where a petitioning creditor, who is a representative of the whole body of creditors, comes to an arrangement with the debtor and seeks not to prosecute his application any further, it cannot possibly be said that he is still proceeding with due diligence. On the contrary there is a failure to proceed with due diligence in the highest degree. S. 16 does apply in such a case and an order for substitution should be made. 13 Luck. 757=1938 O. 101. The substitution contemplated by S. 16 of Provincial Insolvency Act is that a creditor who has been substituted in place of the original creditor can in his turn be substituted by another creditor and so on. 14 Luck. 164=1938 O. 206 (F.B.). A creditor whose debt came into existence prior to the petition for adjudication but subsequent to the acts of insolvency alleged by the petitioning creditor, can put in an application under S. 16 for substitution of his name as petitioning creditor. 13 Luck. 757=1938 O.W.N. 230=1938 O. 101. Unless a finding is arrived at by the Insolvency Court that the petitioning creditor is not proceeding on his application with due diligence, no order of substitution can be made because that is a condition precedent under S. 16. Further, when once a Court grants leave to the petitioning creditor to withdraw his petition without making an order under S. 16, it can be reasonably urged that the Court was satisfied with the conduct of the petitioning creditor and did not suspect any want of diligence on his part. 1940 L. 470. An express order of substitution is not necessary under S. 16 but substitution can be inferred from the Court continuing proceedings on the application of the creditor applying to be substituted under that section. 14 Luck. 164 =1938 O.W.N. 871=1938 O. 206 (F.B.). Where the original petition under S. 9 was validly presented, it could not be withdrawn without the leave of the Court. 7 R. 785. It appeared that the petitioner did not proceed with due diligence on the petition and that fraud and collusion were alleged against him. Certain other creditors applied to be substituted as petitioners. Held, that the Court could order their substitution at any stage of the pendency of the insolvency proceeding. The effect of the substitution would be that they took the place of the original petitioner ab initio, that they were entitled to prosecute the original petition as if it were their own petition and that no question of the necessity for a fresh act of insolvency could arise. 7 R. 785=1929 R. 291. But if once the petition is dismissed, no question of substitution of another creditor arises thereafter, and the only remedy of the latter is by filing a fresh petition. 11 R. 407=1933 R. 251

Sec. 20.—SCOPE OF ENQUIRY.—Enquiry whether debts mentioned in the petition by the

where the debtor is the petitioner ordinarily shall, appoint an interim receiver of the property of the debtor or of any part thereof, and may direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof, and the interim receiver shall thereupon have such of the powers conferrable on a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as the Court may direct. If an interim receiver is not so appointed, the Court may make such appointment at any subsequent time before adjudication, and the provisions of this [1][section] shall apply accordingly.

Interim proceedings against debtor.

21. At the time of making an order admitting the petition or at any subsequent time before adjudication the Court may either of its own motion or on the application of any creditor make one or more of the following orders, namely:—

debtor are real debts is not proper in such a summary enquiry. 1929 L. 49. When the Court makes an order appointing an interim receiver of the property of the debtor, it ought to give direction as to which of the powers ordinarily conferable upon a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure should be exercisable by the receiver in the particular case. I.L.R. (1938) 1 C. 245=66 C.L.J. 61=1938 C. 182.

OBJECT.—Reading Ss. 20 and 56 the following principles are deducible: (a) An interim receiver may be appointed by any Ins. Court with directions to take immediate possession of the property of the alleged insolvents; (b) the powers to be exercised by an interim receiver shall be determined by the Court with reference to O. 40, C. P. Code; (c) to ensure compliance with its order, the Ins. Court can remove a person in whose possession such property is, but it cannot remove any person whom the insolvent has not a present right so to remove. 36 P.L.R. 205=1934 L. 1006. See also 1938 C. 182. Where the property is under a mortgage and the mortgagee is in possession through his tenant, in ordinary circumstances the Court is not competent to remove the mortgagee from the possession of the property as the insolvent himself cannot do so. Where the person through whom the mortgagee is in possession is the insolvent himself, the receiver takes the property subject to the burden, if any, and is entitled to elect whether to retain it or not if the burden is too onerous to be borne by him. If the interim receiver elects to remain in possession, he shall have to discharge the obligations attached to the property 1934 L. 1006 Ordinarily an ad interim Receiver is appointed to preserve property from destruction or disappearance. 32 I.C. 897=3 L.W. 250; 42 C. 289. As to powers of interim receiver, see 23 L.W. 300=50 M.L.J. 665. Effect of such appointment is that he will have such of the powers conferrable on a receiver appointed under C. P. Code. 1927 M. 693=53 M.L.J. 142. Appointment of a receiver in respect of undivided share of joint family property is not valid. 48 I. C. 526. See also 49 L.W. 422=1939 M. 438. Power of interim receiver to apply under O. 21, R. 89, to have sale of insolvent's properties set aside. [see 1926 M. 357=50 M.L.J. 239.] A receiver appointed under S. 20 does not have all the powers of a receiver appointed after adjudication but it is necessary for the Court to make an order under that section in which the Court may in its discretion direct him to take immediate possession of the property or any part thereof. On the other hand, in the case of a receiver appointed under S. 56, the property immediately vests in him from the moment of his appointment. 9 P. 945. See also 1938 Nag. 230=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 161=1938 N.L.J. 40. Order appointing interim receiver—Discretion—Second appeal. 34 Bom.L.R. 382=1932 B. 228.

Secs. 20 and 21.—Where a creditor filed an application, unsupported by an affidavit, nominally under the provisions of S. 20 (but really to get an order under S. 21) praying for the appointment of an interim receiver of not only the properties of the debtor but also the properties which were supposed to be his and for directing him to take immediate possession thereof, the Court ordered accordingly, and the Official Receiver went and took possession of a shop which stood in the name of and which was ostensibly carried on by somebody quite different from the debtor, in a high-handed manner, though he protested and set up a claim to be the owner of the shop and contended that the property had nothing to do with the insolvent. Held, that the conditions required by S. 21 and the proviso to it had never been fulfilled and no materials had been placed before the lower Court. The receiver should have stayed his hand until the question of whether or not the shop was the property of the debtor had been determined by the Court, after an investigation. He should have gone away and brought the matter before the Court in order that the claim put forward by the stranger might be properly adjudicated upon. The order of the Court in so far as it purported or was assumed to authorise the receiver to take possession of the shop of a third party is an illegal order and one made without jurisdiction. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 245=66 C.L.J. 61=1938 C. 182.

Sec. 21.—Under S. 21 Court can make an order for security at any time at or after admitting petition. 93 I. C. 903=1926 L. 360. When the Court has only ordered the debtor

(1) order the debtor to give reasonable security for his appearance until final orders are made upon the petition, and direct that, in default of giving such security, he shall be detained in the civil prison;

(2) order the attachment by actual seizure of the whole or any part of the property in the possession or under the control of the debtor, other than such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or by any other enactment for the time being in force from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree;

(3) order a warrant to issue with or without bail for the arrest of the debtor, and direct either that he be detained in the civil prison until the disposal of the petition, or that he be released on such terms as to security as may be reasonable and necessary:

Provided that an order under clause (2), or clause (3), shall not be made unless the Court is satisfied that the debtor, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors or to avoid any process of the Court,—

(i) has absconded or has departed from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or is about to abscond or to depart from such limits, or is remaining outside them, or

(ii) has failed to disclose or has concealed, destroyed, transferred or removed from such limits, or is about to conceal, destroy, transfer or remove from such limits, any documents likely to be of use to his creditors in the course of the hearing, or any part of his property other than such particulars as aforesaid.

Duties of debtors.

22. The debtor shall on the making an order admitting the petition produce all books of account, and shall at any time thereafter give such inventories of his property, and such lists of his creditors and debtors and of the debts due to and from them, respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, attend at such times before the Court or receiver, execute such instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property as may be required by the Court or receiver, or as may be prescribed.

NOTES.

to appear in Court to answer the allegations made against him, the penalty for his not appearing being an adjudication order in the absence of the insolvent, the Court is not justified in issuing a warrant for the arrest of the debtor. Such order cannot be deemed to be under cl. (1). It can be only passed under cl. (3), S. 21. 1929 L. 808.

Sub-sec. (1).—The seeurity cannot be summarily enforced. Proper course is to obtain an assignment and sue. 7 M. 273; 19 B. 694. See also 31 C. 162.

Sub-sec. (2).—Scope and object of, see 59 C. 1338=36 C.W.N. 741. S. 21 (2) contemplates an order of attachment which is analogous to an attachment before judgment and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure apply to such attachments by virtue of the provisions of S. 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act. I.L.R. (1938) 1 C. 245=66 C.L.J. 61=1938 C. 182. Vesting properties with an ad interim receiver while sale proceedings were going on in execution is illegal. 32 I.C. 897=3 L.W. 250. Attachment under this section is analogous to an attachment before judgment. Objection by an alleged owner must be enquired into. The alleged owner can wait and appeal or object to the attachment itself. 24 I.C. 752=36 A. 65. As to Stamp for Security bond under S. 21 (2), see 47 L.W. 154=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 159.

Secs. 21, 28 and 56: COMPARISON OF POWERS CONFERRED BY.—As the debtor continues to be in possession of property prior to adjudication, the Insolvency Court is empowered by S. 21 (2) to get at the property in the possession of the debtor. But after adjudication all property of the insolvent vests by virtue of S. 28 (2), in the Court or receiver. S. 56 (3) empowers the Court or receiver to remove persons in possession and obtain actual physical possession. But if the third person in possession sets up a title, a Court has no power under S. 56 to summarily direct him to deliver up possession. In such a case the Court has to try under S. 4 the issue whether the insolvent is entitled to the property or not. The more convenient course is to authorise a creditor to conduct the proceedings on its behalf under S. 28 (2) and present the necessary petition for that purpose. 1938 N.L.J. 384=1939 N. 10.

Sec. 22.—The provision in first part of S. 22 that the debtor shall on the making of an order admitting the petitions produce all account books is not applicable to a case when an order has been made on a creditor's petition. But the second part of the section applies to both classes of cases, viz., debtor's and creditor's petition and to all stages of the proceedings that follow the order admitting the petition, leaving it to the Court or the receiver to make the requisition at the appropriate stage. [In re Moir, (1882) 21 Ch.D. 61, Ref.] 61 C.

23. (1) At the time of making an order admitting the petition or at any subsequent time before adjudication, the Court may, if the debtor is under arrest or imprisonment in execution of the decree of any Court for the payment of money, order his release on such terms as to security as may be reasonable and necessary.

Release of debtor.

(2) The Court may at any time order any person who has been released under this section to be re-arrested and re-committed to the custody from which he was released.

(3) At the time of making any order under this section, the Court shall record in writing its reasons therefor.

24. (1) On the day fixed for the hearing of the petition, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the Court shall require proof of the following matters, namely,— Procedure at hearing.

(a) that the creditor or the debtor, as the case may be, is entitled to present the petition:

Provided that, where the debtor is the petitioner, he shall, for the purpose of proving his inability to pay his debts, be required to furnish only such proof as to satisfy the Court that there are prima facie grounds for believing the same and the Court, if and when so satisfied, shall not be bound to hear any further evidence thereon;

NOTES.

537=149 I. C. 352=38 C.W.N. 642=1934 C. 409. After admitting petition, Court may demand inventory of the debtor's property and lists of debts due to and from his creditors and debtors. 93 I.C. 903=1926 L. 360. See also 1936 N. 237. [Absence of due notice under S. 19 (3), effect of].

Sec. 23.—There is no inherent jurisdiction for the Ins. Court under S. 5 to pass a protection order or an order protecting the alleged insolvent from arrest and imprisonment in execution of a money decree otherwise than under the provisions of S. 23 and 31. 148 I.C. 975=1934 L. 113. As to protection order by Ins. Court and arrest of judgment-debtor, see 83 I.C. 877=1924 P. 559. Court is not bound to release though security is furnished. 3 P. 543. Where a Court accepts the security furnished by a petitioner in insolvency but on objections by the other side finds that it is not sufficient, it has inherent jurisdiction to demand fresh security. 1935 L. 148. Whether person not arrested can ask for protection order, see 47 M.L.J. 530=20 L.W. 870; 47 M.L.J. 783=20 L.W. 879. Mere issue of warrant of arrests is not sufficient, but actual arrest should have been made to obtain protection under this section. 148 I.C. 975=1934 L. 113; 1931 L. 121. An Ins. Court has no power to pass an order of interim protection in favour of a person arrested by a person empowered to arrest under S. 10, Sind Encumbered Estates Act: 1927 S. 123=22 S.L.R. 24; nor arrested under S. 45 of the Lower Burma Land and Revenue Act. 5 R. 806=109 I.C. 145=1928 R. 81. Sec. 24:—SCOPE.—see 36 M. 402; also 108 I.C. 433 (1)=1928 N. 226. No elaborate enquiry into validity of debts need be held. 97 I.C. 463=24 L.W. 219; 1927 C. 69; 8 Pat.L.T. 184=1927 P. 188. In administering the Act, it is the duty of the Court hearing petition by a debtor, to be satisfied prima facie and after following the necessary procedure and making the necessary investigation, to come to a conclusion that the statements of the debtor are true and that the insolvency application is honest and bona fide. 1937 P. 62. See also 1942 N.L.J. 409. S. 24 does not contemplate a searching enquiry. Under that section only prima facie proof of his right to present an application has to be taken. 1930 L. 644. See also 1942 N.L.J. 409. It is unfair on the part of the Court to order the debtor in every case to file inventories of his property and list of debts due from them to others, without petitioning creditors having first established their right to present the petition. In the absence of circumstances to justify such an order it is necessary for the Court to proceed under S. 24 by calling upon the petitioning creditors to establish their right as defined in S. 9 to present a petition before taking any other action against the debtor. 119 I.C. 753=1929 L. 636. Where an insolvency petition has been presented by a person claiming to be a creditor of the debtor, it is open to another creditor of the debtor to contest the petition on the ground that the petitioner is not a creditor at all. 38 P.L.R. 729=1936 L. 499. Enquiry under S. 24—Finding that debt is fictitious—If res judicata. See 40 P. L. R. 316. Where in a creditor's petition, the insolvent denies the existence of the debt, the Court is not bound to decide every question connected with it or which may incidentally arise from it. It can refer the parties to a regular suit, if it thinks that a complicated question of law or fact arises in the case. 59 B. 161=36 Bom.L.R. 1236. Evidence of benami, if and when can be taken. 1928 P. 477. Omission and mis-statement of debts need not be enquired into. 36 M. 402=22 M.L.J. 52. See also 26 I.C. 24; 1930 L. 738 (1). The Court is bound to enquire as to the existence

(b) that the debtor, if he does not appear on a petition presented by a creditor, has been served with notice of the order admitting the petition; and

(c) that the debtor has committed the act of insolvency alleged against him.

(2) The Court shall also examine the debtor, if he is present, as to his conduct, dealings and property in the presence of such creditors as appear at the hearing, and creditors shall have the right to question the debtor thereon.

(3) The Court shall, if sufficient cause is shown, grant time, to the debtor or to any creditor to produce any evidence which appears to it to be necessary for the proper disposal of the petition.

NOTES.

of the debt if the debtor denies the debt. 99 I.C. 666=1927 L. 111; 109 I.C. 552. Proof required from debtor see 29 L.W. 750=113 I.C. 290. Mere inability to pay debts is not enough. Court has to record finding as to act of insolvency under cl.(c). 115 I.C. 419=1929 L. 239. Debtor swearing to correctness of his debts and want of other property—Petition should not be dismissed. 1930 L. 75. In the case of a petition presented by a creditor, although the act of insolvency may have been proved, it is not open to the Court merely on that fact being proved to adjudge the debtor an insolvent. The Court must examine the debtor as to his property, conduct and dealings and his ability to pay his debts. 1930 L. 855 (1). The Court is not bound to accept the statement of the petitioner but should investigate the facts for itself. 12 P. 866. When a prima facie case is made out the Court should not reject the debtor's application simply because it is shown that he had in part entered into certain colorable transactions. 37 C.W.N. 841. The fact that the debtor acts mala fide and dishonestly in presenting insolvency application inasmuch as he includes some fictitious items both on the side of liabilities and assets is no ground for refusing application, if it is found that he is unable to pay his debt. 1930 L. 644. But the creditor should not be prevented from letting in evidence to show that several of the debts are fictitious, as he is entitled to show that the debtor is in a position to discharge his liabilities and that he has no right to present the petition. 144 I.C. 102=1933 L. 629. Where the insolvent having admitted the debt of the petitioner, the Court did not consider it necessary to frame an issue and call for further proof, it is open to the District Judge in appeal to frame an issue on the point and remand the case for evidence thereon, if he thought it fit to do, but he is not justified in dismissing the petition without giving the petitioner an opportunity to produce proof of his debt. 148 I.C. 910=1934 L. 128 (1).

Sec. 24, proviso.—Where it was shown that the debtors had suffered an attachment on a previous occasion, they had been trying to wind up their business ever since, their trade had been very much reduced and the Court had no prima facie difficulty in inferring that they were unable to pay their debts, the debtors are entitled to be adjudicated as insolvents, and the Court is not justified in refusing to adjudicate them on the ground that they failed to produce their account books for three certain years. 59 C. 1279=1932 C. 817.

Sec. 24 (2).—The object of S. 24 (2) is to obtain information at as early a stage as possible of the property and the whole conduct of the debtor in relation to the insolvency proceedings; therefore the failure to examine the debtor when the petition is presented by a creditor does not invalidate the subsequent proceedings, unless it can be shown that the debtor has been prejudiced by the omission. Where the debtor files a written statement and gives evidence on his behalf and is in no way prejudiced by the omission to examine him under S. 24 (2) the order of adjudication cannot be set aside on the ground of such omission. 174 I.C. 61=1937 N. 226. Under S. 24 the Court is not bound to accept the debtor's mere statement as prima facie proof of his allegation that he is unable to pay off his debts. 41 C.W.N. 804. Where an insolvency petition has been presented by a person claiming to be a creditor of the debtor, it is open to another creditor of the debtor to contest the petition on ground that the petitioner is not a creditor at all. 38 P.L.R. 729=1936 L. 499. The procedure indicated in sub-S. (2) is to be adopted as a preliminary to the decision as to whether the petition should be granted or not. The hearing of the petition is no mere formal matter. When the petitioning debtor says he has no books of account, it is the duty of the Court to be satisfied prima facie and after following the necessary procedure and making the necessary investigation to come to a conclusion that the statements by the debtor are true, before the petition can be granted. 13 Pat.L.T. 714. The fact that the debtor has concealed his account books is no ground for dismissing the application. 34 Punj.L.R. 69=1933 L. 330. The examination of the debtor is absolutely necessary when he applies to be adjudicated. 14 I.C. 416=9 A.L.J. 233; 87 I.C. 751. The provisions of S. 24 (2) are mandatory and the Court must examine the insolvent with reference to the facts stated in the petition before dismissing his application for being adjudicated an insolvent. 1930 L. 746. The provisions of cl. (2), S. 24, are mandatory and the failure to observe them vitiates the order of the trial Court. The section does not distinguish between debtors' and creditors' petitions. (1930 L. 746, Rel. on; 1932 R. 67, Diss. from.) 1935 Pesh. 139; 1927 C. 32; 1926 L. 508.

Sub-Sec. (3).—For "extension of time" and "sufficient cause", see 36 M. 402=22 M.L.J. 52; 9 I.C. 461. The question of granting further time can be considered only after examining the debtor. 14 I.C. 416=9 A.L.J. 233; also 1927 R. 329 (2). Witnesses not absolutely necessary—Dismissal of a debtor's petition for want of

(4) A memorandum of the substance of the examination of the debtor and of any other oral evidence given shall be made by the Judge, and shall form part of the record of the case.

Dismissal of petition.

25. (1) In the case of a petition presented by a creditor, where the Court is not satisfied with the proof of his right to present the petition or of the service on the debtor of notice of the order admitting the petition, or of the alleged act of insolvency, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts, or that for any other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court shall dismiss the petition.

(2) In the case of a petition presented by a debtor, the Court shall dismiss the petition if it is not satisfied of his right to present the petition.

witnesses other than the debtor himself, without recording whether he was disbelieved is wrong. 100 I.C. 1004 (1)=1927 R. 329.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The provisions of S. 24 ought not to be interpreted in such a way as to reduce the requirements of the most salutary new provision that the debtor must prove his inability to pay his debts to a mere assertion or nominal proof. He must prove prima facie grounds for believing the plea as to inability to pay debts. 9 Pat.L.T. 444=1928 P. 477.

Sec. 25 (1).—"Ability to pay debts" is a ground for dismissal only when the petition is by a creditor. 39 I.C. 590. See contra 37 I.C. 109. The words "any other sufficient cause" must be read along with "is satisfied by the debtor" and refers to petitions filed by creditors. 83 I.C. 967=1924 A. 686; 11 I.C. 743. See contra 9 I.C. 461. Where an insolvency petition is dismissed by the Court upon the statement by the creditor that his debt had been paid and that the petition should be dismissed, such dismissal is one under S. 25 (1) of the Act as it comes within the words " for any other sufficient cause" of that section. 1938 M. 267=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 179. The words "for any other sufficient cause" in S. 25 cannot be taken to override an express provision of law especially on a question of procedure. Hence where the Court has no jurisdiction to proceed under O. 11, R. 21, C. P. Code, it cannot do so under the general provisions of S. 25, Insolvency Act. I.L.R. 1936 N. 142=1936 N. 130. Statements by debtor in answer to an application by a creditor may amount to sufficient proof of act of insolvency. 18 I.C. 729.

Sec. 25 (2).—The right to be adjudicated is a statutory right and not a matter of discretion of Court, when the debtor satisfies the necessary conditions. His misconduct is not a ground for refusing adjudication. 44 C. 535=32 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.); 9 I.C. 682; 27 P.L.R. 734. See also 37 I.C. 391; 11 I.C. 745; 36 A. 250 =23 I.C. 4. As to scope of enquiry on a petition by debtor, see 162 I.C. 278. =1936 Pesh. 102. For rejection of a petition on the ground of its being intended as an abuse of the process of Court, a distinct finding on evidence is essential. 14 M.L.T. 587=22 I.C. 276. If the petition amounts to an abuse of the process of Court petition may be dismissed. 37 I.C. 391; 36 A. 250=23 I.C. 4.

WHAT ARE NOT GOOD GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL.—In order to escape adjudication on a well-founded petition and act of insolvency, a debtor must satisfy the Court that he has a present ability to pay creditors, and it is not sufficient for him to show that he will be able to pay in the more or less distant future. 43 L.W. 516=1936 M. 275. Mere presence of unliquidated assets does not necessarily prove that they are capable of being liquidated. Unliquidated assets cannot be sufficient to discharge debts until they are liquidated and until those steps are taken, willingly or unwillingly by the debtor, it cannot be said that, at the time when the petition is put in, praying for his insolvency, he is able to discharge his debts in the ordinary sense of the term. The fact that he might pay them off if a purchaser was available and if he had time given to convert his assets into cash does not affect the question whether at the time of the presentation of the petition and up to the time when this point arises for decision he is or is not able to pay his debts. Therefore although he has assets which, if liquidated, would provide sufficient money to discharge his debts, yet if he has no liquidated assets with which to pay his debts at present he must be held not be to able to pay his debts and therefore liable to adjudication as an insolvent. The mere fact that the " value " of the immovable property owned by the debtor is in excess of his liabilities, is not sufficient to prove his ability to pay his debts, regardless of all other considerations. What he has to show in each particular case is whether he possesses such realizable assets, as can within a reasonable time be made available to meet all his liabilities. Where the assets realizable at the instance of the creditors are much less than the debts due to them, and there is no reasonable prospect of the debtor paying them by voluntary alienation of his land and the debts have been due for a considerable time but no effort whatever has been made by the debtor to pay off the creditors nor has he any present intention of paying them anything by liquidating any of his assets it must be held that the debtor is " unable to pay his debts" within the meaning of S. 25. I.L.R.(1939) L. 408=1939 L. 349. Where under S. 25 an application is made by a creditor for adjudicating his debtor as insolvent, the burden of proof lies upon the debtor to show that he is able to pay his debts. Although a debtor may have assets which, if liquidated, would provide sufficient money to discharge his debts, if he has no liquid assets wherewith to pay his debts, he should be deemed to be unable to pay his debts. 1937 N. 127. A petitioning creditor need not, under S. 25 (1) do anything more Award of compensation.

26. (1) Where a petition presented by a creditor is dismissed under sub-section (1) of section 25, and the Court is satisfied that the petition was frivolous or vexatious, the Court may, on the application of the debtor, award against such creditor such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the debtor for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the petition and the proceedings thereon, and such amount may be realised as if it were a fine.

(2) An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such petition and the proceedings thereon.

than prove his right to present the petition and the alleged act of insolvency; or that the adjudication has to follow unless the Court is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to prove his debts. It is not for the creditor-petitioner to prove the debtor's inability to prove his debts. 47 L.W. 772=1938 M. 489. The provisions of S. 25 relate to the defence that the debtor may put up even though the petitioning creditor satisfies the conditions required by the Insolvency Act. Therefore in a creditor's petition although he may have proved that the debtor has committed an act of insolvency, if the debtor makes an allegation that he is able to pay his debts and attempts to prove it, the Court is bound to enter into the matter and if satisfied as to his ability to do so, dismiss the creditor's petition. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 408=41 P.L.R. 785=1939 L. 349. Irregular accounts not relevant to the question of adjudication 9 I.C. 682. Insufficient evidence of inability to pay debts. 14 I.C. 570=9 A.L.J. 699. Suspicion that the debtor is guilty of criminal misappropriation. 50 I.C. 192=41 A. 486. An endeavour on the part of the debtor applicant to keep back the property. 17 I.C. 92=10 A.L.J. 188. Change of residence or false account of income and debts. 60 I.C. 848=2 Pat.L.T. 166. That evidence on the other side shows him to be a man of sufficient means. 14 I.C. 224. Omission to disclose dismissal of a previous application. 40 I.C. 445=15 A.L.J. 572. Failure to examine the debtor is not one of the facts on the proof of which the Court is bound to dismiss the petition and unless the debtor is thereby prejudiced failure to examine the debtor as provided in S. 24 (2) does not ipso facto vitiate the adjudication. 10 R. 187=1932 R. 67. But see contra 1930 L. 746; 1935 Pesh. 139; 1927 C. 32; 1926 L. 508. Grounds for dismissal must be set forth. 15 I.C. 870=15 C.L.J. 631. Full enquiry as to truth of particulars of property is not pertinent. They become relevant only after adjudication. 46 B. 751=1922 B. 80. Dismissal for default is not a bar to a fresh application. 49 I.C. 229. Nor is subsequent petition, where fresh and changed circumstances are alleged, barred by reason of dismissal of prior petition. 154 I.C. 874=1935 Pesh. 25. Adjudication does not bar question whether petitioner can be discharged. 12 I.C. 403 (M.).

APPELLATE COURT will not in general exercise its discretion under S. 25 to set aside order of adjudication. 50 M. 396=1927 M. 153 =51 M.L.J. 680. Where the lower Court has not actually exercised the discretion under S. 25, it is not open to the appellate Court to base its decision on the ground that the lower Court has exercised such discretion. There can be no unconscious exercise of discretion. But it would be open to the appellate Court to exercise that power itself. I.L.R. 1936 N. 142=1936 N. 130. Where the Court refused permission to verify the petition and order the same "to be struck off from the register," held, that the order should be deemed to be one of dismissal passed under S. 25 and that the same was appealable. 133 I.C. 626=1932 L. 28.

Secs. 25 and 27: PETITION BY DEBTOR—SCOPE OF ENQUIRY.—No elaborate enquiry is required at the initial stage of the bankruptcy proceedings when the petitioner is a debtor. It has to be seen whether the petitioner has made out a prima facie case for adjudication by proving that his debts exceed Rs 500 and that he is unable to pay those debts. The fact that petitioner is acting mala fide by keeping back his account books does not arise at this stage at all and where the Court dismisses the petition merely on the ground that the petitioner has kept back his account books, it commits a material irregularity and its order is open to revision. 162 I.C. 278=1936 Pesh. 102.

Sec. 26.—The word "debtor" in S. 26 means any one against whom an insolvency application has been presented by a creditor. The person applying for compensation under that section need not in truth be a debtor at all. 1938 M. 267=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 179. For the application of the provisions of S. 26 it is not necessary that at the time of dismissal under S. 25 (1) itself the Court should be satisfied that the petition was frivolous or vexatious. The Court can consider the matter on a separate application even though it did not do so at the time of dismissal of the petition under S. 25 (1). 1938 M. 267=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 179. A creditor in whose favour a Hindu father had executed a promissory note found to be binding on the family presented a petition in insolvency against the father and his two sons to have them declared insolvents. About 4 months later, on the creditor's statement that his claim was satisfied, the insolvency petition was dismissed under S. 25 (1). The sons claimed compensation under S. 26 of the Act. It was found on evidence that the debt was one binding on the family for which the sons' share could be made liable. Held, that under the circumstances the creditor had sufficient grounds to reasonably suppose that fraud was being attempted by the sons also and therefore it could not be held that the petition of the creditor against the sons was frivolous or vexatious and that therefore no compensation was recoverable. 1938 M. 267=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 179.

Order of Adjudication.

27. If the Court does not dismiss the petition, it shall make an order of adjudication, and shall specify in such order the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge.

Order of adjudication.

(2) The Court may, if sufficient cause is shown, extend the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge, and in that case shall publish notice of the order in such manner as it thinks fit.

28. (1) On the making of an order of adjudication, the insolvent shall aid to the utmost of his power in the realisation of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors.

Effect of an order of adjudication.

NOTES.

Sec. 27.—Where a person brings his case within the four corners of the Act, he is entitled to an adjudication as a matter of right and there is no question of an abuse of the process of the Court. Distinction between cases of adjudication and annulling the same pointed out. 51 C.L.J. 545=1930 C. 576. Whether a lunatic can be adjudged an insolvent is still an open question. 1930 M.W.N. 651. Duty of Court to specify time for discharge is imperative. 7 P. 375=1928 P. 338. At the time of adjudication of a firm a Court need not make an order as to the course of administration of joint estate of firm and separate estate of partners. 55 I.C. 186. See also 27 P.L.R. 734. Court cannot order cancellation of alienation. 1921 M.W.N. 810. Property vests in O.R. only on an order to that effect. As to whether the principle of ratification will apply when the order is passed subsequent to O. R.'s dealings with the property, see 85 I.C. 439=47 M.L.J. 749 and 51 M.L.J. 529 (F.B.). No appeal lies against an order refusing to extend time. 89 I.C. 959. See also 1926 O. 186. Insolvent cannot apply for second order of adjudication. 1929 O. 149. Conditional order of adjudication bad. 9 P. 304=1930 P. 326. A co-parcener cannot be adjudged insolvent simply on the ground that he cannot enforce partition of the joint property during the lifetime of his father. 122 I.C. 237 (2)=1930 L. 227 (2). A person can be declared insolvent in spite of the fact that he died before the creditor's application for his being declared insolvent was decided. 33 P.L.R. 151 =1932 L. 264.

Sec. 27 (2).—Adjudication does not ipso facto become annulled on the expiry of the time fixed for discharge. 29 Punj.L.R. 122= 107 I.C. 394=1928 L. 82. Power to extend time. 1927 L. 763(1). See also 27 N.L.R. 374; 1938 N. 312. A Court has jurisdiction to extend the time originally fixed under S. 27 for an application by the debtor of discharge, after the expiry of that time but before an order of annulment is passed under S. 43. All that is intended by S. 43 (1) is that, if no one applies for an extension of time or no extension of time is given, the Court must then annul the adjudication. A judge was absent on the day fixed for applying for discharge and the insolvent did not apply on that ground. The case was posted to another date when the insolvent applied. The judge dismissed the application as being belated on the ground that he had no power to extend time. Held, that the judge had power to extend time and that he had power to consider application. 144 I.C. 869=1933 R. 133. See also 1937 A.L.J. 773. Where an order of the Insolvency Court fixing a year for the insolvent to apply for discharge, is challenged by way of appeal and revision, the original order of the Insolvency Court is not the final order in matter and time for applying for discharge should be calculated from the date of the order in revision. 1941 O.W.N. 587=1941 O. 308. S. 27 (2) gives the Court power to extend the time within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge, and it applies as much to cases beyond the extended period as to those within it, so long as the application is made before any order of annulment is made by the Court. Further, S. 148 of C. P. Code allows the Court to enlarge the time even in cases in which the application for extension of time is after the expiry of the time originally fixed. 53 M. 288=58 M.L.J. 369 (F.B.). See also 117 I.C. 87=1929 L. 399; 113 I.C. 357=1929 N. 11; 10 L.W. 357; 1941 O.W.N. 857=1941 O. 308. An application of the insolvent for discharge can also be an application for extension of time, although it does not specifically ask for such extension. 117 I.C. 87=1929 L. 399. The Court can extend time of its own motion. 8 R. 506. See also 14 Luck. 40=1938 O.W.N. 377=1938 O. 122 (F.B.).

Secs. 27 and 43.—Ss. 27 and 43 should be read in a manner so as not to contradict each other and an Ins. Court can extend the time for applying for discharge even after the expiry of the period fixed on the date of adjudication. A power to grant further time carries with it a power to grant extension even after the expiry of the term originally fixed, since annulment of adjudication is not automatic. 55 A. 241=1933 A. 230. See also 1942 O. 97=1941 O.W.N. 1190 =17 Luck. 271; 1939 N. 103=1939 N.L.J. 96; 1937 A.L.J. 773=1937 A. 536.

Ss. 27 and 53.—The Court should not at the time of adjudication avoid the alienations by the insolvent unless and until it is moved by the O. R. under S. 53, or by an aggrieved party. Even if the Court purported to declare the mortgage by the insolvent void, it is not res judicata so as to preclude the mortgagee from suing for declaration of its validity. (45 M. 189, Ref.) 1932 M. 233=62 M.L.J. 177.

(2) On the making of an order of adjudication, the whole of the property of the insolvent shall vest in the Court or in a receiver as hereinafter provided, and shall become divisible among the creditors, and thereafter, except as provided by this Act, no creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted in respect of any debt provable under this Act shall during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings have any remedy against the property of the insolvent in respect of the debt, or commence any suit or other legal proceeding, except with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose.

NOTES.

Sec. 28.—Adjudication itself does not mean that the debtor could not be arrested, even though no protection order is passed. 49 A. 201=1927 A. 418; 160 I.C. 33=1936 G.W.N. 56=1936 O. 177. No immunity from arrest until protection order is obtained. 1929 L. 453. Effect of deleting in the New Act the words "on persons" in S. 28 considered. 54 A. 416=1932 A. L. J. 186. Where the appellant prayed that a declaratory decree should be set aside and the declaratory decree was to the effect that property was not attachable under the decree, held, that the appeal was not barred by S. 28. 54 A. 532 =1932 A. 382. An insolvent is under S. 28 (1) required to aid the Court 'in the realisation of his property.' Property here includes moneys received by way of income. Though Palampat land granted for the purpose of maintenance does not pass to the Court on insolvency, the same does not apply to income from it. 1942 N.L.J. 246=1942 N. 83=I.L.R. 1942 N. 714.

INSOLVENCY OF FIRM—ONLY ADULT PARTNERS WILL BE ADJUDICATED.—When a firm consists of adult and minor partners and an adjudication order is sought against the firm itself, it will not be made against the firm, but the adult partners alone will be adjudicated. 1935 R. 327.

Sec. 28 (2): GENERAL.—As to difference between positions of Official Assignee and Official Receiver, see 40 I.C. 170=32 M.L.J. 520. A purchaser of the insolvent's property at a sale in execution of a decree held after the adjudication of the judgment-debtor as an insolvent, who purchases the property in good faith, acquires a good and valid title as against the receiver, though the purchaser is the decree-holder himself. 39 C.W.N. 424. The provisions of sub-S. (2) of S. 28 do not create any right of suit which does not otherwise exist; they operate as a bar on the rights of creditors in respect of remedies, suits and proceedings otherwise existing. That bar is in itself subject to an exception, namely, that premission of the Court may remove it. But permission of the Court operating as an exception to the bar created by the sub-section certainly cannot give the creditor any right which he has not apart from this sub-section. 73 C.L.J. 225=1941 C. 298. See also 1937 M. 667=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 223; 1938 M. 906=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 705. The provision contained in S. 28 (2) is controlled by S. 51 (3). And when the decree-holder is wholly unaware of the insolvency proceedings, the sale in execution cannot be held to be a nullity merely because of the non-service of notice on the receiver under O. 21, R. 23, C. P. Code. 39 C.W.N. 424. See also 53 L.W. 357=1941 M. 575=(1941) 1 M. L.J. 405. Applicability of S. 28 to proceedingi under Companies Act, see 1936 Pesh. 57. In the case of a scheme, S. 28 has to be read with S. 39, and the protection in respect of the debts not included in the scheme is taken away. Where, therefore, a debt is left out of the scheme by consent of the parties, as being no obstacle to it, a suit instituted by the creditor to recover that debt is not barred. 57 M. 1012=1934 M. 529=67 M.L.J. 843. The provisions of this sub-section do not apply to creditors having no notice of the proceedings. 60 I.C. 588. But see 17 L.W. 319=1923 M. 487 (1). When an O.R. has been appointed, he represents the whole body of creditors and it is he who should move the Court on behalf of a creditor to attach the insolvent's property, though it is open to a creditor to bring any matter to the notice of the O. R. or of the Court. 1933 A. 153. Suit against the insolvent without leave of insolvency Court is not maintainable. 110 I.C. 386. Permission to sue does not cover permission to execute decree. 24 A.L.J. 755=1926 A. 640. As to the proper course to be adopted in respect of a suit by the insolvent after adjudication, see 1935 A.L.J. 709=1935 A. 675 (F.B.). Property devolving on an insolvent after adjudication can be transferred by him before O.R. intervenes, if the transaction is bona fide: see 97 I.C. 980=1927 N. 16. On sub-cl. (2) see also 92 I.C. 142=1926 R. 2. A person is not entitled to claim exclusion of the period spent by him in the Ins. Court under either of Ss. 28 (2) and 78 (2), inasmuch as an order of adjudication is a pre-requisite for the applicability of either of the said sections. 121 I.C. 55. On the wording of S. 28 it is clear that the Crown is included among creditors. Where the Crown has to recover arrears of income-tax due from the insolvent, it being a creditor, can only recover it by applying to the Court or receiver in whom all the property of the insolvent is vested. It cannot by virtue of the certificate issued under S. 46 (2) of the Income-tax Act recover it by sale under the Land Revenue Act. 1938 N.L.J. 128.

MEANING OF TERMS.—"Salary" is property of the insolvent. 19 C.L.J. 83=21 I.C. 950; 38 I.C. 410. "As hereinafter provided' qualifies "Receiver" and not "vest," 45 M. 167=42 M. L.J. 53. Receiver represents creditors. Where the judge is himself the Receiver, he must in case of dispute appoint a creditor as the representative of the general body of creditors. 39 A. 152 =37 I.C. 76. "Legal proceeding"—Meaning of—Application to Debt Conciliation Board pending insolvency is a "Legal proceeding". 48 L.W. 246=1938 M. 808=(1938) 2 M.L.J.93

VESTING IN RECEIVER.—The scheme of the Ins. Act is to vest the property of the insolvent in the receiver. If the insolvent is under a liability, whether it arises out of an equity or as a matter of law, the Receiver cannot have any greater right than the insolvent himself. 133 I.C. 541. See also I.L.R. (Vesting order on adjudication takes effect from date of insolvency petition); 1940 Pesh. 36. S. 28 (2) read with S. 2 (d) makes it clear that all the property of an insolvent whether within or without British India vests in the Official Receiver. 1939 A.M.L.J. 73. On the insolvency of a person, what vests in the Official Receiver is, not the property which the insolvent knows he possesses, but the property which in law he possesses. 31 S.L.R. 506=1937 S. 306. Where, prior to his insolvency, the insolvent executes a deed of trust vesting his property in trustees for payment of secured and unsecured creditors, and in proceedings under S. 53 the deed is upheld as valid and effective, the property comprised therein does not form part of his estate or vest in the O.R. The latter is not, therefore, competent to deal with such property in any way or to administer it either on behalf of the creditors or in accordance with the terms of the deed of trust. The proper course is for the O.R. to institute a suit for the administration of the trust. 1935 P. C. 104=61 C.L.J. 274=68 M.L.J. 744 (P.C.). Where the insolvent had at the time of purchase of certain property agreed with the vendor to remove certain chatta in a common lane whenever the vendor required and the receiver having sold the property of the insolvent, held, that the purchaser was bound by the undertaking given by the insolvent. 133 I.C. 541 (A.). Absence of a vesting order is immaterial. Attachment after adjudication is void. 41 M. 923=35 M. L.J. 581. See contra 43 M. 869=39 M.L.J. 438. Since the properties vest in O.R. on adjudication, O.R. can simply sue for declaration without asking for possession. 44 A. 617=1922 A. 448. Charges created on the property even by a decree after the date of insolvency petition are not binding on the receiver. 109 I.C. 373= 1926 L. 738. Where a person who had obtained a decree against another for a monthly family allowance was adjudicated an insolvent, the decree became vested in the receiver as from the date of adjudication, and all payments alleged to be made by the judgment-debtor to the insolvent after the said date, which were not certified to the Court under O. 21, R. 2 (3), C. P. Code, could not be recognised as against the receiver by the executing Court. 137 I.C. 394 =35 L.W. 161=1932 M. 250. Money due to a Government servant from the General Provident Fund is a compulsory deposit and on the insolvency of the servant, the O.A. is not entitled to demand from him the money comprised in such deposit. 11 R. 93=143 I.C. 771=1933 R. 148. Semble.—It may be that if the moneys came into the hands of the insolvent and the O. A. then took steps before his disposal of the moneys to realise the same, the insolvent might be ordered to pay the sums for the general benefit of his creditors. 1933 R. 148. Even property obtained by sons on partition can be taken possession of by Receiver. 47 A. 263=1925 A. 225. Only the share of an insolvent member in a joint family vests in the receiver. The rights of the other members are unaffected. 35 I.C. 610=32 M.L.J. 84; 6 O.W.N. 977. Where one of the coparceners of Hindu joint family becomes insolvent, the O.R. can sell the right, title and interest of such coparcener in the joint family property and the purchaser's remedy is to compel partition as against the other co-sharers. The actual shares of the coparceners of other members in the family need not be determined at the time of sale by the O.R., but can be determined at time of partition. 1933 L. 651= 146 I.C. 840=34 P.L.R. 1032. The undivided interests of the co parceners in the joint family property do not vest in the Receiver upon the adjudication of the manager as an insolvent, though the manager's power to dispose of such shares to satisfy the just and proper debts incurred by him on behalf of the joint family may so vest. But as the manager has no right to exclude them from possession, the receiver also cannot attach their property. 1933 N. 150=29 N.L.R. 159. See also 63 C. 194=40 C.W.N. 808. The effect of the insolvency of a member of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family is to vest his interest in the joint family property in the receiver who, so to say steps into the shoes of the former. If the insolvent happens to be the father of the other coparceners of the joint family consisting of himself and his descendants, the receiver in insolvency would have all the powers which the insolvent had. The receiver would thus be able to bind by his sale the share of the other coparceners, if the insolvent himself could have sold for those debts of his the joint property including the share of his descendants, that is to say, the receiver will have the powers to bind the non-insolvent coparceners by his sale of the entire joint property, provided the family at the time of his sale was still undivided, and provided the sale is for the liquidation of the personal debts of the father (insolvent) which were not of immoral nature. The position, therefore is that he steps into the shoes of the father who has become insolvent. In accordance with this principle he will not be entitled to take possession of the entire joint undivided properties, but would only be entitled to joint possession with the other non-insolvent coparceners of the family. 45 C.W.N. 329. On the insolvency of the managing member of a joint Dayabhaga family who is not and cannot be the father, his power to sell or mortgage the interest of other coparceners for satisfaction of joint debts does not vest in the receiver under S. 28 (2). The receiver therefore has no power, by virtue of adjudication alone, of alienating the share of other coparceners 46 C.W.N. 808=A. I. R. 1942 C. 533. By virtue of such power the receiver has also the right to ask for annulment of the sale of the sons' shares. The remedy of the receiver lies in the Ins. Court and not in ordinary Civil Court. 152 I.C. 1026=1934 N. 271; 19 Pat.L.T. 488=1938 Pat. 234. Though ordinarily an attachment of the son's shares in execution of a decree would put an end to the right of the O.R. to sell the shares of the son of the insolvent, when the attachment is effected by a creditor who was granted leave to institute the suit under S. 28 (2) of the Act on condition of his handing over to the O.R. all the moneys realised by him, and when such creditor consents to a sale by the O.R. of the entire property of the joint family, the creditor is not, by reason of the attachment, entitled to any preferential right in respect of the proceeds of the sale of the shares of the sons to the exclusion of other creditors. 1935 M. 255=61 M.L.J. 357. The right to claim damages is a mere right to sue therefore does not vest in the O.R. 28, N.L. R. 340. A vesting under S. 28 (2) or 56 (1) is a "transfer" under S. 34 (5) of the U. P. Land Revenue Act and the receiver must make a report as required by that section. In the absence of such a report, he cannot maintain a suit in the Revenue Courts for arrears of rent due to the insolvent. 11 O.W.N. 1037=15 L.R. 546 (Rev.)=18 R.D. 430 (2). Where the time for applying for discharge has expired, the Court is not bound to vest the property in the insolvent; but it may vest it in the receiver for the benefit of the creditors; and even if the receiver sells the property or distributes it among creditors, the insolvent has no right to object to it, though the creditors may do so. 1933 L. 1008. The salary earned by an insolvent after the presentation of the insolvency petition and before his adjudication vests in the receiver under sub-s. (2) read with sub-s. (7) of S. 28. Under sub-s. The rule in Cohen v. Mitchell does not apply to cases arising under the Pro. Ins. Act. 60 B. 141=38 Bom.L.R. 211=1936 B. 164; 1938 Nag. 408; 20 Pat. 866. See also 1937 Sind 306=31 S.L.R. 506. The test for determining whether or not the salary which has been ordered to vest in the receiver is excluded by the terms of sub-S. Where therefore an order of adjudication was made on 3rd April, 1937, the extent of the salary to be excluded from vesting in the receiver will be determined according to the Civil Procedure Code, S. 60, as existing on that date and not according to S. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code Amendment Act (IX of 1937). 177 I.C. 352=1938 Cal. 325; 20 Pat. 866. The insertion of the word 'forthwith' in S. 28 (1) has been to sweep away the Court's attempt to postpone the vesting. As soon as the amount of a provident fund reaches the hands of an undischarged insolvent depositor, it ceases to be a compulsory deposit that is not liable to attachment and it becomes the absolute property of the depositor insolvent and therefore vests in the Insolvency Court. A suit without obtaining such leave is liable to be dismissed. 1936 M. 984=71 M.L. J. 738. The language of S. 28 (2) is perfectly plain. (1939) Bom. 493=41 Bom.L.R. 583=1939 Bom. 344. It is not imperative on a creditor to obtain leave to commence a suit when his debtor has merely applied to be adjudicated insolvent. Subsequent adjudication would not affect the maintainability of a suit without such leave. The intention of sub-S. (7) is only that the title of the Court or the receiver appointed by it to the insolvent's property shall relate back to the date when the petition for adjudication was filed. When an adjudication is annulled, it is annulled for all purposes and the position with reference to a suit filed without leave of Court is as though there had never been any necessity for obtaining leave of the Court. 42 C.W.N. 34. See also 1940 Rang.L.R. 396=1940 Rang. 234. WHERE LEAVE OF COURT IS NOT NECESSARY.—Objection as to want of leave should be taken in the first Court. And where it has not been so raised, it is not open to the O.R. on appeal to contend that the suit should have been dismiss-d by the lower Court for want of leave. 38 L.W. 891=1933 M. 917. The wording of S. 28 does not require that a suit by a creditor against an insolvent without leave of Court to be dismissed, but by implication gives power either to stay the suit or allow it to be proceeded with on terms; these powers may be exercised at a stage later than the commencement of the suit, should the suit have already been commenced without leave. 34 Bom.L.R. 683=1932 B. 344. See, however, the ruling under S. 17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act holding that is the duty of Court to dismiss such a suit. 34 Bom.L.R. 649. The concluding portion of S. 28 (2) imposes a disability which debars a creditor from commencing any suit or other legal proceeding, except with the leave of Court and an application for execution is the commencement of a legal proceeding within the meaning of the section. The disability is not affected by the fact that there has been no protection order under S. 31, if the creditor could not have applied at all for leave. Until such leave is obtained, the decree-holder is under disability from taking any step in execution of decree and where the application for execution of a decree passed after an adjudication is made within the period of limitation from the order granting leave, the application is not barred by limitation, even though it may be more than three years from the date of decree. 10 P. 422= 1931 P. 357. See also 69 M.L.J. 137. After the execution of the said trust deed, the insolvent has no interest in the properties covered by the deed and they do not vest in the receiver and are not subject to be administered by him on behalf of the general body of creditors. Nor has the receiver any right to administer the assets in accordance with the terms of the trust. 68 M.L.J. 744=40 C.W.N. 33=1935 P.C. 104 (P. C.). A Hindu father's right to dispose of the joint family property in order to satisfy his own debts is property within the meaning of S. 28 of the Act and vests in the receiver who is entitled to seize the entire family property and transfer it in order to satisfy the debts of the father. It is not incumbent on such a receiver to obtain an order of the Court, execute it and attach the family property. He can straight away seize the property and sell it under a private deed, it not being incumbent upon him to take out an attachment. 1935 A.L.J. 673= 1935 A. 643.

It is not intended to apply to a case where property which does not come under the section is sold by some one who has a right to sell it. Where the Zamindary property of the insolvent which is exempted under the Bundelkhand Land Alienation Act from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree and which is, therefore, by virtue of S. 28 (5), not the property of the insolvent, for the purposes of that section, is sold by a Co operative Bank under the Co-operative Societies Act for a debt owing to them from the insolvent, the sale price of the property will go to the Bank and cannot be considered as being acquired by or devolving on the insolvent under S. 28 (4). 1935 A.L.J. 170=1935 A. 279. See also 23 Pat.L.T. 35. a party to a money suit is a secured creditor, it is not necessary for him to prove in insolvency. 120 I.C. 218=1930 N. 17. The existence of an attachment in favour of a creditor does not constitute that creditor a secured creditor. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 675=41 C.W.N. 1079=66 C.L.J. 315=1937 Cal. 517. A receiver appointed in a mortgage suit and in possession of the mortgaged property, is not superseded by the insolvency of the mortgagor and the appointment of a receiver-in insolvency. The latter has no preferential right to possession and the receiver appointed in the suit cannot be removed from possession and made to surrender possession to the Receiver-in insolvency. The right of a secured creditor to realise or otherwise deal with his security is unaffected by an order of adjudication. 39 C.W.N. 384.

Sec. 28 (7) SCOPE.—S. 28 (7) governs Sec. 34. 42 C.W.N. 34. The doctrine of relation back enunciated by S. 28 (7) cannot be invoked to entitle a creditor to deduct the period from the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition as well, because the two sections deal with quite different subjects; S. 28 (7) dealing with all dealings by or with the insolvent, and S. 78 (2) with the maintainability of actions on a debt due by him in a Court of law. The doctrine of relation back can never be applied to a suit instituted before an order of adjudication. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 439=46 L.W. 559=1938 Mad. 19=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 703. See also 42 C.W.N. 34; 1938 M. 806. An order of adjudication under Cl. (7), S. 28, relates back to the date when the petition for insolvency is admitted by the Court. The effect of Cls. (2) and (7), S. 28, is that the properties of the insolvent, wherever they may have been and whoever may have been in their possession, automatically vest in the Court. It is immaterial whether there was at that time any receiver appointed by the Court or not. The vesting of the property of the insolvent in the Court is not dependent upon there being a receiver. 17 Pat.L.T. 313=1936 P. 112. See also (1939) 1 M.L.J. 705=1938 Mad. 906. This sub-section is controlled by S. 51. The decree holder has greater rights than receiver in respect of assets realised before date of adjudication. 2 Pat.L.J. 235=39 I.C. 463; 42 A. 336=59 I.C. 67. The title of the auction-purchaser who purchases in good faith is protected by S. 51 (3) of the Act; though there may be an adjudication order subsequent to the sale, the title of the purchaser to the property would remain unaffected. The doctrine of relation back of the Official Receiver under S. 28 (7) is subject to the exception enacted in S. 51 (3). The fact that the decree-holder himself is the purchaser would make no difference, provided he acts in pursuance of a valid order of Court and purchases with leave of the Court. 48 L. W. 279=1938 Mad. 906=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 705. The sub-section does not mean that the date of adjudication is identical with date of presentation for all purposes. Reading with S. 53, a transfer more than two years prior to adjudication but less than two years from presentation cannot be annulled. 1924 L. 374. Transfer between date of presentation and adjudication is void. 18 A.L. J. 449=55 I.C. 941. See also 1935 L. 368; 1938 Mad. 906=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 705. Whether a debtor of insolvent is liable to the receiver after payment to creditor of insolvent, see 1925 M. 328. A creditor who has attached a sum of money due to insolvent, before vesting in O. R. is entitled to it exclusively in satisfaction of his debt. 30 I.C. 82=42 C. 289. The fiction that once the order of adjudication is made, it relates back to the presentation of the petition has no place outside the Ins. Act. 1927 M. 693=53 M.L.J. 142. See also 167 I.C. 493=1937 R. 50 (debt contracted between date of application and date of adjudication is provable in insolvency. By the operation of S. 28 (7), the title of the auction-purchaser who purchases the property of the debtor after the admission of the insolvency petition but before the order of adjudication is not absolute, but contingent on the insolvency application being dismissed. If the insolvency application is dismissed, he gets an indefeasible title. But if the order of adjudication is made, he cannot claim any title as against the receiver unless he is purchaser in good faith. 39 C.W. N. 1289=1935 C. 612.

Secs. 28 and 29.—The operation of S. 28 affects all creditors [other than secured creditors, —28 (6)] whether they are judgment-creditors or not, or have proved their debt or otherwise. The section clearly enacts that during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings no creditor shall commence any proceedings in pursuit of a remedy against the property of the insolvent in respect of his debt without leave of the Court and such leave is a condition precedent to the commencement of proceeding. S. 29 which must be read with S. 28 can only refer to proceedings which are pending at the time of adjudication or else simultaneously with it. It cannot be invoked where the suit is filed after adjudication. 1940 Rang.L.R. 544=1940 Rang. 289. After a person is adjudged an insolvent, a suit filed by a creditor for the recovery of a debt provable in insolvency without the leave of the Insolvency Court is not maintainable; nor can the Court in which the suit is filed give leave to continue it. The point of time to which both Ss. 28 (2) and 28 refer is the date of the order of adjudication. S. 21 deals with proceedings not pending on the date of the order of adjudication, while S. 29 deals with proceedings then pending. S. 29 only refers to a suit already begun but not finished when the order of adjudication is made since leave of the Insolvency Court is a condition precedent to the right of action under S. 28, the want of it is a defect fatal to the suit and subsequent leave cannot validate it. The fact that the creditor files the suit in ignorance of the order of adjudication makes no difference. If a suit is filed after the order of adjudication without the leave of the insolvency previously obtained, the suit is not maintainable; the Court in which the suit is instituted has no power under S. 29 to grant leave to continue the suit. I.L.R. (1937) Mad.

29. Any Court in which a suit or other proceeding is pending against a debtor shall, on proof that an order of adjudication has been made against him under this Act, either stay the proceeding, or allow it to continue on such terms as such Court may impose.

Stay of pending proceeding.

30. Notice of an order of adjudication stating the name, address and description of the insolvent, the date of the adjudication, the period within which the debtor shall apply for his discharge, and the Court by which the adjudication is made, shall be published in the Official Gazette and in such other manner as may be prescribed.

Secs. 28 (7) and 53 : TRANSFER BY INSOLVENT DECLARED VOID—PROPERTY, IF VESTS IN RECEIVER.—Where subsequent to the transfer made by the insolvent, a petition for adjudication is filed and the transfer is found to be fictitious and fraudulent, and consequently void as against the O.R., the property vests in the O.R. under S. 28 (7) from date of petition for insolvency, and as such the transferee has no saleable interest subsequent to this. Hence a transfer by him is void. 1935 L. 368 ; 18 A.L.J. 449=55 I.C. 942.

Secs. 28 and 59: SCOPE AND EFFECT—SUIT BY INSOLVENT AFTER ADJUDICATION AND PENDING INSOLVENCY—MAINTAINABILITY. It is fundamen ally opposed to all principles of insolvency to hold that an insolvent after an adjudication order is competent to file a suit in his own name. That is clear from Ss. 28 and 59 of the Provincial Insolvency Act. A suit by an adjudicated insolvent during the pendency of the insolvency is therefore not maintainable. 40 Bom.L.R. 956.

Sec. 29 : SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—See 3 Pat. L.J. 456=46 I.C. 224 ; (1939) 2 M.L.J. 786. Stay of pending proceedings. 6 I.C. 96 ; 40 B. 461=18 Bom.L.R. 198 ; 97 I.C. 765=1926 M. 1145; 1929 N. 356. Court is bound to stay proceedings against debtor only after adjudication. 1926 M. 432=50 M.L.J. 665. "Other proceedings—" Meaning of. See 56 C. 712. The presumption from the word "stay" is that the suit stayed is not at an end, but may be continued until a further order is passed and as all orders in suit must be made after hearing parties, a Court cannot make a final order until it has heard objections; even where the creditor, whose suit is stayed, has not made an application, the Court would have to consider his request to continue the suit. 1929 S. 204. Where a suit for arrears of rent was pending against the insolvents at the time the order of adjudication was made and the insolvents brought it to the notice of the Court and there is no specific order on the record, but the Court continued the proceedings, it must be deemed to have allowed the suit to be continued without specifying any terms and there can be no bar to the passing of a decree for arrears of rent. 1936 R.D. 164=1936 A.W.R. 485. See also 45 L.W. 709.

Secs. 29 and 52 : RELATIVE SCOPE AND DISTINCTION—Venkatasubba Rao, J.—S. 29 deals with the effect of an order of adjudication, while S. 52 deals with the effect of an order admitting the petition for adjudication. Under S. 52, the material point of time is not the date of the order of adjudication but the date of the admission of the insolvency petition. The point of difference is that, whereas under S. 29, on mere proof of an order of adjudication having been made the executing Court's power is checked under S. 52, no such result automatically follows from the mere fact that notice of the admission of the insolvency petition has been given to the Court ; there must also be an application to the Court for delivery of the property. 59 M. 928 =1936 M. 819=71 M.L.J. 170.

Sec. 30.—Want of notice is a mere irregularity. 5 C.W.N. 91. The publication is intended only to provide conclusive evidence in all legal proceedings of an order of adjudication having been duly made and its date. Want of notice is only an irregularity and cannot vitiate the proceedings. I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 478=1939 N. L.J. 96=1939 Nag. 103. Though in a suit for damages for defamation of an insolvent a part of the claim refers to the injury to the insolvent's estate, the insolvent may still carry on the suit as the right of action for the injury to his character and reputation remains vested in him. 26 S.L.R. 21. On this section, see also 1926 C. 160.

Sec. 31.—See 49 A. 201=1927 A. 418. There is no inherent jurisdiction for the Ins. Court under S. 5 to pass a protection order or an order protecting the alleged insolvent from arrest and imprisonment in execution of a money decree otherwise than the provisions of Ss. 23

(2) A protection order may apply either to all the debts of the debtor, or to any of them as the Court may think proper, and may commence and take effect at and for such time as the Court may direct, and may be revoked or renewed as the Court may think fit.

(3) A protection order shall protect the insolvent from being arrested or detained in prison for any debt to which such order applies, and any insolvent arrested or detained contrary to the terms of such an order shall be entitled to his release:

Provided that no such order shall operate to prejudice the rights of any creditor in the event of such order being revoked or the adjudication annulled.

(4) Any creditor shall be entitled to appear and oppose the grant of a protection order.

Power to arrest after adjudication.

32. At any time after an order of adjudication has been made, the Court may, if it has reason to believe on the application of any creditor or the receiver that the debtor has absconded or departed from the local limits of its jurisdiction with intent to avoid any obligation which has been, or might be, imposed on him by or under this Act, order a warrant to issue for his arrest, and on his appearing or being brought before it, may, if satisfied that he was absconding or had departed with such intent, order his release on such terms as to security as may be reasonable or necessary, or, if such security is not furnished, direct that he shall be detained in the civil prison for a period which may extend to three months.

Schedule of creditors.

33. (1) When an order of adjudication has been made under this Act, all persons alleging themselves to be creditors of the insolvent in respect of debts provable under this Act shall tender proof of their respective debts by producing evidence of the amount and particulars thereof, and the Court shall, by order, determine the persons who have proved themselves to be creditors of the insolvent in respect of such debts, and the amount of such debts, respectively, and shall frame a schedule of such persons and debts:

The Act makes no provision for an ad interim protection pending the hearing of an application for adjudication of a debtor. A fortiori, the pendency of an appeal from an order dismissing an application for adjudication is no reason to stop the decree-holder from proceeding with execution of his decree by arrest of the judgment-debtor. 36 C.W.N. 345. See also 30 C.W.N. 834 ; 1925 M. 170 ; 10 R. 71=1932 R. 51. S. 28 (2) no longer protects an insolvent from arrest. In the absence of a protection order obtained by the insolvent, he is liable to be arrested. The protection order is a privilege to be granted or withheld as the Court, in its discretion, may, determine and in exercising that discretion it is relevant and proper for the Court to have regard to the character and circumstances of the insolvent. 118 I. Sec. 33: SCOPE—RIGHTS OF CREDITOR.—The policy of the Act is that when a person is indebted, all his debts should be dealt with in the insolvency. A creditor who has got a debt provable in insolvency should not stand aside when all the other creditors or most of them have their debts dealt with by the Ins. Court and refuse to come in or take notice of a composition scheme and then as soon as the adjudication is annulled, proceed once more to harass the insolvent. Of the two Acts, the Presy. T. Ins. Act seems to carry out the policy more correctly, because the plain meaning of the word in S. 30 of the Act is that if any composition creditor has a debt which he could prove in insolvency and does not do so, he is nevertheless bound by the composition. But in the Pro. Ins. Act, S. 33, if strictly followed, means that a creditor whose debt is not entered in the schedule is not bound by the composition and can have a remedy elsewhere against the insolvent. Where the creditors of an insolvent agree to a composition and one of the creditors, who had a decree against the insolvent did not prove his debt in insolvency and was not a party to the composition proceedings, and after annulment of the order of adjudication he sought to execute the decree by arresting the judgment-debtor. Held, that, under S. 33, the creditor was entitled to pursue the remedy he liked. But in the circumstances of this case, arrest of the jndgment-debtor was refused by the revision Court also. (1934 M. 529, Rel. on.) Enforcement of claim as a scheduled creditor against property acquired after discharge is not possible unless the schedule of creditors had been prepared before discharge. 35 A. 402 =20 I.C. 316. A judgment in insolvency, declaring that the creditor's debt (i.e., a judgment debt) is a provable debt does not declare that an alleged debt which merged in that judgment-debt is proved. 54 M. 601=1931 M. 441=61 M.L.J. 229 (S.B.). Even the creditor on whose application the debtor was adjudged insolvent is found to prove his debt before the O. R. and the latter may reject it if he is not safisfied with the proof. 146 I.C. 221=1933 S. 313.

Provided that, if, in the opinion of the Court, the value of any debt is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt shall not be included in the schedule.

POWER OF COURT.—It is for the Ins. Court alone to decide whether the debt can be fairly estimated or not and to make an order accordingly. High Court has no jurisdiction to decide whether the debt can be fairly estimated or not. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 458=1940 Lah. 304. Ins. Courts have inherent power to correct clerical errors. 51 I.C. 52. Sec. 33 (3).—Proof of debt can be given at any time during the administration of the estate, even after order of discharge. Limitation ceases to run on adjudication. 45 M.L.J. 166=1924 M. 163. But see 14 R. 529=1936 R. 393. See also 2 Luck. 261. The Act provides a formal method of proving a debt and this is the only method which can be applied in so proving a debt. A debt cannot be said to have been legally proved unless the method laid down in the Act is adopted. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 345=42 P.L.R. 751. Where a notice issued to a creditor to produce details of what is owing to him together with the evidence thereof, threatens him that if they are not supplied his name will be struck off the schedule, the latter part is ultra vires since it is not in accordance with the provisions of S. 33. The debt can be proved at any time before discharge and an official receiver is legally incapable of directing the striking off of a creditor from the schedule for failure to produce the necessary evidence. 1940 A.M. L.J. 84. S. 33 (3) prevents a creditor from proving his debt after the insolvent has been given a final discharge. 14 R. 529=1936 R. 393. See also 1941 Lah. 6 (mode of proof of debt) Before a creditor's name is added to or removed from the list, the validity of the claim should be judicially determined after notice to parties. 90 I.C. 802. LIMITATION.—Debt not barred at time of insolvency does not become barred by lapse of time. 1926 O. 621. An order rejecting the application of a creditor for inclusion of his name as a creditor on the ground of delay is not proper, when his name is not included in the list of creditors and when no opportunity is given to him to explain the delay in making the application. S. 33 (3) entitles a creditor at any time before final discharge to tender proof of his debt and apply to the Court for an order directing his name to be entered in the schedule. The discharge mentioned in S. 33 (3) means the final discharge and not a conditional discharge. 1936 C. 807=41 C.W.N. 221. There is no express period of limitation for a creditor, whose debt is provable in insolvency proceedings to prove his debt. A debt is to be proved ordinarily before any dividend is declared. That is necessary in order that the officer of the Court administering the insolvent's estate may have in his possession materials which will enable him to make a pro rata and equitable distribution of the assets. The provisions of S. 33 (3) are directory and a creditor can come on the schedule of creditors as long as there are any assets available for distribution amongst the creditors and till the final dividends are distributed and till the administration is complete. The same principle finds support in S. 64, for, that section requires a receiver, before declaring a final dividend, to serve notice in the manner prescribed to persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified but not proved; and if such persons come and prove their claims within the time limited by the notice, they will be entitled to a share in the final distribution. The time of the discharge of an insolvent has no relation to and can have no relation, in any case, to the time for declaring the final dividend. 1936 C. 434.

Secs. 33 (3) and 53.—When transfer by way of sale by the insolvent is annulled as fraudulent under S. 53, but it is found that the alience paid a sum of money towards the satisfaction of a prior decretal debt, the alience may be allowed to prove in the insolvency as an unof the insolvent, tender proof of his debt and apply to the Court for an order directing his name to be entered in the schedule as a creditor in respect of any debt provable under this Act, and not entered in the schedule, and the Court, after causing notice to be served on the [1][receiver] and the other creditors who have proved their debts, and hearing their objections (if any), shall comply with or reject the application.

Debts provable under the Act.

34. (1) Debts which have been excluded from the schedule on the ground that their value is incapable of being fairly estimated and demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract or a breach of trust shall not be provable under this Act.

secured creditor to the extent of the prior debt discharged by him. 34 P.L.R. 127=1933 L. 211.

Secs. 33 (3) and 64.—The provisions of S. 33 (3) and S. 64 are not necessarily irreconcilable. It is not laid down in S. 33 (3) that the debt of a creditor must be proved before discharge. The rule is that the application to be included in the schedule must be made before that time and that it must be accompanied by proof of the debt. It may be that the proof is not considered sufficient by the receiver and, if that is so, there is no reason why further proof should not be provided after the discharge of the insolvent. The provisions of S. 64 are subject to the rule laid down in S. 33 (3). They are provisions of the final distribution of assets of the insolvent and this distribution may or may not take place before an order of discharge is passed. If the distribution is to take place after the order of discharge, there would be no question of proof by any person who had not already made application supported by such proof as he himself thought sufficient under S. 33 (3) of the Act. Where there is an adjudication and a discharge before there is any proof, any debt and there has been no application by any creditor, it would be too late for a creditor thereafter to apply to the Insolvency Court to include his debt in the schedule and ask for its discharge by the disposal of any property which might be found to belong to the insolvent. 1942 A.L.J. 399.

Secs. 33 and 34.—Scope—Partnership between persons for limited period—Subsequent dissolution — Withdrawal of one—Promissory note by partner to withdrawing member—Subsequent insolvency of sole partner— Retired partner—Right to be included in schedule of creditors—Extent of debt provable. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 242=20 N.L.J. 196=1937 Nag. 410.

Secs. 33, 34 and 44.—Purchaser of shares of company adjudged insolvent and unconditionally discharged—Subsequent liquidation of company—Balance of money due upon shares is not recoverable in liquidation. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 458=42 P.L.R. 754=(1940) Lah. 304.

Sec. 34 : SCOPE.—Proceeds of execution sale prior to adjudication are excepted from the operation of this section. 1925 M. 224. S. 34 is governed by sub-S. (7) of S. 28. Hence if the right to recover a debt has become barred by time on the date when the order of adjudication is made, but the right subsists on the date of the presentaiion of the application or on the date when the application is admitted, the creditor is entitled to prove his debt as the statute of limitation does not affect debts which are within time on the date of the petition. 34 P.L.R. 464 =1933 L. 688. But see 1937 R. 50 infra. Where the Official Receiver realizes rent of the property of the insolvent from the period subsequent to his adjudication, such arrears of rent do not amount to "provable debt" under S. 34 of the Act. The Official Receiver cannot claim such amount for the purpose of distribution amongst the creditors of the insolvent. 40 P.L.R. 669= 1937 Lah. 790. It is an ordinary rule of construction that a statement in a statute or a section should be interpreted according to its natural meaning. As S. 34 stands, there is nothing to show that it is to be read with S. 28 (7) and the doctrine of relation back is not to be imported into S. 34. Accordingly, a debt contracted by an insolvent between the date of the presentation of an application for his adjudication and the date of the order of his adjudication is provable in insolvency. 167 I.C. 493= 1937 Rang. 50. See also 42 P.L.R. 367=1939 Lah. 384.

APPLICATION.—An obligation incurred after adjudication is not provable under the Act. A suit lies. 48 I.C. 913. Maintenance to a wife provided in a decree is not a debt provable. 35 I.C. 541, contra. A claim for maintenance or residence is capable of valuation as much as an annuity which is admittedly provable in insolvency. 1933 Lah. 901. Maintenance due to a wife under a decree of Court against her husband is a debt provable in insolvency, and does not fall under debts excluded by S. 34 (1). A decree for maintenance is clearly distinct from an order for alimony. No execution of the maintenance decree against the insolvent husband can be taken out without leave of the Insolvency Court. 49 L.W. 167=1939 Mad. 183=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 1042. Claim to future maintenance by mother and unmarried sisters against Hindu insolvent—If debt provable in insolvency. See (1940) 2 M.L.J. 239. In order that a particular debt contracted after the order of adjudication may be a debt provable in insolvency proceedings, the debt should have existed at the date of order of discharge, or if contracted

(2) Save as provided by sub-section (1) all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged an insolvent, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable under this Act.

Annulment of adjudication.

Power to annul adjudication of insolvency.

35. Where, in the opinion of the Court, a debtor ought not to have been adjudged insolvent, or where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent have been paid in full, the Court shall, on the application of the debtor, or of any other person interested, by order in writing, annul the adjudication [1][and the Court may, of its own motion or on application made by the receiver or any creditor, annul any adjudication made on the petition of a debtor who was, by reason of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 10 not entitled to present such petition.]

subsequent thereto, it should have been based on a liability existing at the time of adjudication. 1930 A.L.J. 350=1930 All. 104. See also 1930 Cal. 459. In respect of rent due by the insolvent firm till the date of the passing of the order of adjudication, the lessor should rank as an ordinary creditor having the same rights as the creditors who proved their debts had; in respect of rent which accrued subsequent to the order of adjudication, the lessor could recover the same in full as "expenses of administration or otherwise." 34 C.W.N. 751=1930 Cal. 459.

Sec. 34 (2).—To the ordinary rule that a matter decided by a decree cannot be reopened, there is an exception in solvency. The Insolvency Court has the power to go behind a judgment and inquire into the consideration even for a judgment-debt, and this although the judgment may have gone by default or by consent or been affirmed on appeal. But the Court will not, as a matter of course, inquire into the validity of a judgment debt, but only when there is evidence that the judgment has been obtained by fraud or collusion or that there has been some miscarriage of justice. 34 Bom.L.R. 411=1932 Bom. 253. See also 145 I.C. 835=1933 Rang. 268. The criterion or material date for purposes of S. 34 (2), is the date of the filing of the insolvency petition, as the adjudication relates back to the date of the petition under S. 28 (7). Consequently, a debt which could be enforced in a Court of law on the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition but in respect of which the remedy by suit becomes barred by limitation before the date of the order of adjudication, is a debt provable under the Act and can be admitted by the O. R., in the schedule. 45 L.W. 565=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 637.

Secs. 34 (2) and 28 (2).—The obligation on the part of an insolvent under the Hindu Law to pay maintenance allowance to his brother's widow is a debt provable in insolvency as laid down in S. 34 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act. His liability is not a personal liability, but a liabiiity which has got to be met from the property which he inherited from his father and this property is now vested in the receiver for the benefit of the creditors. If the brother's widow has a charge declared upon the property in respect of her maintenance allowance by a competent Court, the receiver may be compelled to pay the money out of the estate in his hands. But in the absence of a charge, she can only rank as an ordinary creditor and can prove the liability in insolvency proceedings. A suit by her for arrears of maintenance allowance is not, therefore, maintainable against the receiver. 45 C.W.N. 808.

Secs. 34 (2) and 44.—The liability of a member of a Co-operative Society to contribute to the assets of the society in the event of its being dissolved before or during insolvency is a contingent liability and as such a debt provable in insolvency under S. 34 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act. The liquidator should either prove it or have it excluded from the schedule under S. 33 if it comes within the provisions of that section. If he does not do so, the member's liability for such debt ceases on his being granted a complete discharge by the Insolvency Court as expressly provided in S. 44 (2) of the Act. An order of the liquidator assessing the contribution of a member under S. 42 (2) (b) of the Co-operative Societies Act after he is granted a complete discharge will be in excess of the limit of his jurisdiction and therefore a nullity, and the Civil Court can decline to execute the order under S. 42 (5) of that Act. 44 P.L.R. 376. Having regard to the express language of S. 34 (2) and the absence in the Act of a clause similar to S. 46 (2) of the Pres. T. Ins. Act, a debt contracted after the presentation of the petition in insolvency, but before an order of adjudication is provable in insolvency. A suit on the debt after the discharge of the insolvent is barred by S. 44. 34 Bom.L.R. 980=1932 Bom. 511.

Sec. 35.—Action under S. 35 can ordinarily be taken on an application made by the O. R., or by the creditors and on proof of circumstances specified in that section, and the attention of the insolvent must be drawn to the facts alleged against him by notice or otherwise so that he may be able to meet them. I.R. 1932 Lah. 659. An order of adjudication cannot be annulled on an application by a creditor under S. 35, on the ground that the petitioning creditor's debt was a bogus debt, unless it is shown that the debtor did not owe any other debts that the debtor was not really insolvent at the time the order of adjudication was made. It is not enough for an applicant to merely prove that there was no binding debt due to the petitioning creditor in order to make it obligatory on the Court to set aside the order of adjudication under S. 35 on the ground that the order ought not to have been made. 50 L.W. 821=1940 Mad. 151=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 753. See also (1940) 1 M.L.J. 228 (F.B.). Under S. 35 the appellate Court is competent to consider the propriety of an ex parte order of adjudication. An ex parte order of adjudication made on the last Saturday, which is a clearance day, is not a proper day and is therefore liable to be set aside in appeal. Judicial work is presumed not to be done on a clearance day. 20 Pat.L.T. 768= 1940 Pat. 58. Where it is shown that no act of insolvency has in fact been committed the Court can set aside the adjudication on the ground that the debtor ought not to have been adjudged insolvent. The fact that the debtor does not object to an order of adjudication being passed against him is no bar to the granting of an application, for an order setting aside the adjudication under the provisions of S. 35. Where an adjudication has taken place under the Act and it has been shown that no act of insolvency has been committed, the Court has no discretion in the matter, but it must annul the adjudication. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 441=51 L.W. 231=1940 Mad. 375=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 228 (F.B.); (1938) 2 M.L.J. 385; (1939) 2 M.L. J. 753. Where an order of adjudication is clearly without jurisdiction, S. 35 empowers the Insolvency Court to annul the adjudication on the ground of want of jurisdiction. The Judge sitting in insolvency is competent to revise his own order or an order of his predecessor adjudicating a person an insolvent on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Where the act of insolvency, a fraudulents tranfer, relied on as the basis of the petition by the creditor on which the adjudication order is made, was committed more than three months prior to the date of the petition, the adjudication order is without jurisdiction because there is no act of insolvency on which an adjudication order can be made. Such an adjudication can be annulled under S. 35. I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 24=48 L.W. 239=1938 Mad. 898= (1938) 2 M.L.J. 385. Debtor adjudicated on his petition—Transfer deeds executed by debtor subsequently found to be fictitious is good ground for annulment of adjudication. 1938 P.W.N. 453=1938 Pat. 368. It is doubtful whether Court can refuse annulment when the circumstances mentioned in this section were proved to exist. 23 C.L.J. 220=34 I.C. 792. Annulment order on grounds untenable under S. 25 cannot be made. This section is subject to S. 25: 38 I.C. 822. The debtor realized certain debts due to him before presenting the insolvency petition and nevertheless showed the debts as still due to him. The Court further found him to have been dishonest in his dealings and entering recklessly into transactions and incurring debts which he never hoped to pay. Upon these grounds the judge annulled the adjudication. Held, that the facts found might furnish grounds for refusing an absolute discharge, but they furnished no grounds for dismissing an insolvency petition and that consequently no legal grounds for annullicg an adjudication. 53 A. 476=1931 A.L.J. 175. "Ought to have been adjudged insolvent," meaning of. See 1928 M.W.N. 175=1928 M. 609. Court cannot annul an adjudication order on non-fulfilment of a condition imposed at the time of adjudication if the condition itself was illegal. 21 I.C. 950=18 C.W.N. 1052. The fact that criminal proceedings under S. 43 are contemplated is not enough to annul adjudication. 31 I.C. 15=5 L.W. 220. Payment to creditors need not be made through the O.R. 52 I.C. 689=1919 M.W.N. 622. Annulment of adjudication if can be ordered only after the debts due to all creditors have been paid. 99 I.C. 277=3 O.W.N. 296 (Supp.). An insolvent whose debts have not been paid in full is not entitled to apply for annulment. The fact that all the creditors give him a complete and full discharge will not entitle him to do so. 30 L.W. 948=57 M.L.J. 816. An order of adjudication once made can only be annulled under the provisions of S. 35 or S. 43. Neither section provides for annulment from failure to deposit the cost of publication. As to power given to Court under R. 277 (30) of the Oudh Chief Court, see 1930 O. 53=5 Luck. 479. Where an application of a creditor is dismissed under S. 25 (1) there can be no order of annulment under S. 35: 121 I.C. 55. It is only when an appeal against an order of adjudication has been made under S. 75 (1) or when an application is made by a person interested under S. 35 that the Court has authority to annul or set aside an order of adjudication. 1930 M.W.N. 651. The insolvent got himself fraudulently and collusively adjudicated by setting up a bogus creditor. Later on the original creditor who had sued to enforce his claim dropped out and another bogus creditor who stepped in to continue the proceedings put in proof of his claim before the O. R. The same having been rejected, he appealed to the District Judge who however dismissed his appeal and at the same time annulled the adjudication. Thereupon another creditor applied under O. 47, R. 1 to review the said order but it was also rejected. Held, that the District Judge acted wrongly in annulling the adjudication in the absence of a prayer to that effect by either party and that the same constituted an error apparent on the face of the record so as to sustain an application for review. The question whether the District Judge had power to review his order on the ground of error of law that is to say non-compliance with S. 35 was held not to arise. 1932 M.W.N. 153 (F.B.).

PAYMENT OF DEBTS IN FULL—WHAT AMOUNTS TO.—Under S. 35 the debts of the insolvent must be paid in full before the adjudication can be annulled. It may be that the debts Power to cancel one of concurrent orders of adjudication.

If, in any case in which an order of adjudication has been made, it shall be proved to the Court by which such order was made that insolvency proceedings are pending in another Court against the same debtor, and that the property of the debtor can be more conveniently distributed by such other Court, the Court may annul the adjudication or stay all proceedings thereon.

Proceedings on annulment.

(1) Where an adjudication is annulled, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the Court or receiver, shall be valid; but, subject as aforesaid, the property of the debtor who was adjudged insolvent shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or, in default of any such appointment, shall revert to the debtor to the extent of his right or interest therein on such conditions (if any) as the Court may, by order in writing, declare.

NOTES.

referred to in the section mean debts proved in the Ins. Court; but once a debt is proved, it does not cease to be a proved debt simply because the creditor states that he does not wish to be recorded as a scheduled creditor. The consent of, or even an unconditional discharge by, the creditor will not entitle the Court to annul the adjudication, unless the debts have been paid in full in cash. If a debt is not paid off, it still subsists in spite of the annulment. 18 N.L.J. 145.

APPLICATION BY JUDGMENT-DEBTOR FOR ANNULMENT ON GROUND OF FRAUD—POWER OF COURT TO ENQUIRE.—On application of a creditor who had obtained a decree on a promissory note, the debtor was adjudicated insolvent. The debtor filed an application under S. 35 for annulment of the adjudication or on the ground that there was no consideration for the promissory note and that judgment was obtained by fraud or collusion. Held, that the Ins. Court had power to enquire into the consideration for a judgment-debt. It would do so when there would be evidence that the judgment had been obtained by fraud or collusion or that there had been some miscarriage of justice. 1935 R. 276.

Secs. 35 and 27 (2).—It is a matter for consideration whether in all ordinary cases, annulment proceedings shall not be kept pending so long as proceedings under Ss. 53 and 54 are outstanding. The better view seems to be that it can be under S. 27 (2). I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 204=1938 Nag. 312.

Secs. 35 and 37.—ORDER OF ANNULMENT—CAUTION TO BE OBSERVED.—Orders of annulment should be very carefully worded because where the Court annuls insolvency proceedings, to avoid very considerable hardship to the creditors, it is necessary to make provision for what is to happen to the assets. Further a Court should be very chary about annulling insolvency proceedings where there are proceedings pending under Ss. 53 and 54 of the Insolvency Act. 1939 N.L.J. 465=1940 Nag. 4=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 500; 1940 M. 375.

Secs. 35 and 38.—REJECTION OF APPLICATION UNDER S. 35.—IF A BAR TO LATER APPLICATION UNDER S. 38.—Proceedings under S. 38 are not allied to proceedings under S. 35. In the latter case the insolvent has to show that the debts have been paid in full, which implies that the debts have been paid along with interest at the contractual rate, while S. 38 contemplates a proposal for a composition in satistaction of debts and implies a reduction in the claim of the creditors. Hence rejection of an application, by the insolvent, under S. 35 does not bar, on the principle of res judicata, a later application by him under S. 38. 1936 A.L.J. 44=1936 A. 102.

Sec. 36.—The Chief Court of Oudh could not pass an order of stay of a case pending before the Court of the Insolvency Judge at Cawnpore, unless it is confirmed by the High Court. Where such an order is communicated to the Insolvency Judge at Cawnpore by the Registrar of the High Court. with a remark, that it was for the Judge to decide to stay or not, it does not amount to a direction by the High Court to stay proceedings under S. 36 of the Act. But if he does stay it, he being the Court that had jurisdiction to pass the order of stay, is undoubtedly authorised to reopen the proceedings stayed by himself. I.L.R.
